UNITY LEAGUE CALLED RED BY TOM MOORE

"Enlighten" Furniture Workers is Plea Made by Labor Congress Head

Workers Unity League is Branded as Fomenter of Strife

STATEMENT ISSUED

Girl Pluckers Paid From 17 to 28 Cents Hour, Says Swift Head

Stratford, Ont., Oct. 2 (CP)—The Workers' Unity League, sponsor of the organization of Stratford's 850 striking furniture workers, is described by Tom Moore, president of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, as "the Canadian section of the Red International of Moscow whose sole purpose is to stir up strife and foster the aims and objects of the Communist Party."

On August 14, two weeks before the furniture workers walked out of the factories here, Mr. Moore wrote J. J. O'Rourke, secretary of Local 154, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, strongly advising him to warn Stratford workers of his views. The advice was in response to a letter from the local union member who told the labor head of the activity of the Unity League here and urged that the Trades and Labor Congress start an organization campaign in a set that of the Workers' Unity League.

The Dominion Congress was not in a position to comply with the request, Mr. Moore said, for various reasons, but the president urged in his letter that Stratford workers be enlightened as to the status of the Workers' Unity League.

Steps of Settlement

Stratford, Ont., Oct. 2 (CP)—While several furniture manufacturers may still be settled by negotiation, definite announcement was made today from the U. L. C. Canadian plant that all operations in the Stratford branch of the Canadian company are ceased and that recommencing was indefinite.

W. J. Clark, Toronto, representing the company here, issued this statement:

"The situation at the plant is that all operations will cease and re-opening is indefinite, pending further developments."

Swift Canadian Company Ltd., Toronto manager's representative here in Stratford was able to say that all of the experienced girls picking chicken average from 17 to 18 cents an hour. Four girls who were selling more than that were long experienced. A comparison of this average rate from the company's very beginning with such work in the industry in general.

Another Point

Another point he wish to make clear is that the company is not at any time during the strike employed any new hands to replace strikers. We did use men of our own organization, experienced and skilled in handling the product and other perishable products, which normally did not belong to the company. And when that was finished, operations at the plant ceased.

"We want to emphasize the fact that prior to the strike, 10 o'clock a week ago Thursday morning no demands whatever had been made to the management regarding wages and hours."

"On with the Show" Stiff Order, when Performers Run into Several Accidents

Halifax, Oct. 2 (CP)—"On with the show" was a stiff order on the programme of the Provincial 1933 Nova Scotia exhibition. The commission had booked thirty performers in New York, and here's what happened to them.

Twelve chorus girls en route from the Bloomsbury Pair to Halifax were jolted at Bedford, Pa., when their train was derailed. Five girls were injured and all wardrobes were destroyed, so the act was cancelled.

Two French clowns and one member of a musical ensemble were injured at Moncton, N.B., when their car was wrecked. They arrived by train, too late to go on.

A pair noted for a specialty act found all the cash here and reported they were late because their car overturned on the highway near Truro and one of them had to get six stitches in his head.

Number of other dancers thought they were going to miss the opening too when their car was ditched in Maine, but they made repairs and arrived safely for the opening in Halifax in time. Courageously and with a smile appeared without mishap, so the show went on.

BOARD WILL APPEAL HYDRO ASSESSMENT

Increase Over 1932 Assessment on Shop is Noted

INSTALLATIONS

Hydro Board Plans to Meet Ontario Board Shortly

Belleville Hydro Commission today authorized the secretary, Mr. O. E. Scott, to enter an appeal against the assessment of the Hydro by the city. This step was taken on motion of Commissioner G. A. Reid, seconded by Chairman M. P. Duff.

The secretary, Mr. Scott read the 1933 assessment notice which showed as follows: Retail store, $9,300; business tax $2,790, a total of $12,090 and the service department $2,600, business tax $500, total $3100. It was pointed out that ninety per cent of the Hydro system assessment is selling of electricity and not retailing. The total assessment this year is $15,190.

The figures of 1932 assessment on which the 1933 taxes were paid were: Retail store $5,300; business tax $1,590, a total of $6,890 and service $3,900, business tax $1,080 — Total assessment this year was $12,240.

Accordingly there has been a reduction in the assessment on the service department, but a large increase on the retail end.

Commissioner Reid said—"What we want is to get this in clear shape, these persons think that the Hydro does not pay any taxes, that is, of course, as it is exempt. I am told them that we are heavy taxpayers and this will prove it.

Chairman Duff also briefly explained the past five months.

Eighty Water Heaters Installed

Eighty water heaters have been installed in the past five months, which will bring in a revenue of over $2,000 per year. Commissioner Reid brought out that about the five months period has there been a sale in all approaching this total. It was pointed out by the manager that none of the installations are performed by the local Hydro Commission, but that local electricians do the work, the Hydro paying for the cost of installation.

The commission plans to have an interview with the Ontario Commission on October 18th if that date is satisfactory to the Ontario Board.

A number of matters will be brought to the Ontario Commissioners in order that the Belleville commission may present their views and rulings will be asked from the H.E.P.C. of Ontario.

Some discussion took place today over the accumulated surplus and street lighting account which totals $17,73.3 and also the $4,000 previously accumulated deficit in power account which was cleared up recently. Mayor Tree talked over some possible changes which might be highlied under the new system of illumination.

MOVEMENT IN LABOR GROUP

Socialist League Would Take Over Financial Machinery

(By Thomas T. Champion, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Hastings, England, Oct. 2 (C.P. Cable)—Two movements against the National Executive will probably be battled out during the congress of the Labor party which opened here today under presidency of Joseph Compton of the Vehicle Workers' Union.

About 600 delegates are assembled some of the grades unions having refused their representation for reasons of economy.

Local labor parties have banded themselves in a demand for strong representation on the National Executive as a direct challenge to the present leadership of the organization. This group held a conference meeting and keen resentment was aroused by the refusal of any member of the executive to attend it.

The other attack comes from the new Socialist League led by Sir Stafford Cripps, former Solicitor General, and recognized as the successor to the old Independent Labor party. Ledbetters, Tomorrow Sir Stafford will move to reject the executive's report with instructions that it should specify the means which might be adopted by the next Labor Government for rapid conversion of Capitalism into Socialism.

The Socialist League demands immediate abolition of the House of Lords, immediate acquisition of power to take over the country's financial machinery and similar measures.

Against this the convention will have the official statement of the executive which says in part, "given adequate power labor is prepared to assume full responsibility, and without promising a new heaven and a new earth in the twinkling of an eye, will endeavor to begin to establish life in the community on firm Socialist foundations."

FIVE KILLED OVER WEEKEND

Child Topples From Third Story Balcony to Street

Toronto, Oct. 2 (CP)—Three of the five persons killed in Ontario over the week-end, met death in automobile accidents. Excessive speed was responsible for another death while a fall from a balcony proved fatal to a four-year-old boy.

The brother, Harry, and two other companions, Arthur Bond, Windsor and Lloyd Gaetuil, Owen Sound, suffered minor injuries. The passengers in the Pearson vehicle escaped with a severe shaking-up.

PICTURESQUE FIGURE GONE

Sir George Beaumont, War Veteran of Norman Ancestry

Leicester, England, Oct. 2.—(CP Cable)—One of the most picturesque figures in the British country famous for its sportsmen, Sir George Beaumont died today at the age of 84 years. He was the Honorable Colo Orton Hall.

Descendant of a family tracing its ancestry to the Norman Conquest Sir George was a popular figure among the villagers on his estate by driving around and setting up his famous coach-and-four on behalf of those asked in the village market.

It was good fun for the old gentleman, "I stood in the van and enjoyed the ride to the hounds, and I'm sardener took the money."

Later he joined a small fruit flower and vegetable store in Coalville Village, the girl selling the fruit for the Baronet's racing colors —French Grey and Scarlet. Both ventures proved profitable.

Was Third British Gunboat Sunk in Thames During War of 1812?

Chatham, Ont., Oct. 2—(CP)— Was there a third British gunboat sunk in the river Thames during the War of 1812? So it is thought an old hulk, lying in the river bed here may be the remains of the old fighting ship.

Discovered during the 1912 dredging for bridge piers, the hulk is the subject of much speculation as to its identity. Now it is thought there is a third. The ribs of the old hulk are just below the surface and the water is calm and was noticed until recently. The wood appears to be sound and is about 40 feet long. Historians are being asked under to decide whether or not it is a gunboat.

Roosevelt Tells U. S. Veterans of Increase in Benefits

Other Veterans Given Same Consideration as Other Citizens

CREDIT PARAMOUNT

Government If Bankrupt Cannot Restore Industry

Chicago, Oct. 2 (AP)—President Roosevelt outlined the economy regulations for veterans before the American Legion today and then pointed his "comrades" to the recovery battle, and a united nation.

He told the veterans that the United States Government maintained a responsibility for those disabled by war service and hoped to increase these benefits.

But, he declared that "special benefits" would not be given to a man "over and above all other citizens because he wore a uniform."

Mr. Roosevelt added a third principle to the veterans' program assurance that the federal government would give the same relief it gives to others in caring for those veterans who are disabled from causes unconnected with war service but unable to care for themselves.

Veterans and Government

The President who was second in command of the United States army in the war and also suffered disability from infantile paralysis, went before the convention today against the advice of friends to talk over the relation of the veterans to government.

"The car was stalled," he said in speaking of the spring of that year. "Obviously, the first collective was to get the engine running again. It is true that we succeeded in reopening a large number of banks, but this would not have been possible if at the same time we had been able to restore the credit of the government."

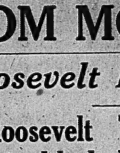
In speaking of National credit we are again dealing with a real thing, not a theory in books. Industry cannot be restored if money cannot be put back to work, banks cannot be kept open, human suffering cannot be relieved if the government itself is bankrupt.

Human Values

"We realize now that the great human values, and the first must be but for all American citizens, rest upon the undoubted credit of the United States.

"It was because of this that we undertook to take the National treasury out into the black. And in the doing of it we laid down two principles directly affected benefits for veterans—to you and veterans of other wars. The veterans of the armies, is that the government has a responsibility for those disabled by those suffered injury or contracted disease while serving in its defence.

No Special Form



"The second principle is that no person, because he is a veteran, should be given preference be placed in a special class of beneficiaries over and above all other citizens.

As he rode westward last night to the mid-west Metropolis he announced from his special train the creation of a gigantic government corporation to purchase and distribute the necessities of life to the unemployed this winter. This enormous swamps involving about $330,000,000 calls for more money than was reduced from veterans' allowances proved profitable.

Discussing other National affairs, the President warned that a restoration of the domestic economy would not be realized for six months, but he reported progress.

Roosevelt Declares

Confers With British

Dean Acheson, under-secretary of the treasury, who will take the chief responsibility for carrying on the forthcoming discussions of the British war debt. This announcement was made by U.S. Secretary of State Cordell Hull and the selection of a treasury official to conduct the discussion means that the war debt will be treated purely as a financial problem. Disarmament or trade concessions will be barred from the discussions. Secretary Hull indicated. Dr. Frederick Livesey, associate economic advisor of the state department, will co-operate with Dean Acheson in the negotiations.

SHOULD OVERHAUL ALL STOVE PIPES

A timely warning was given today by fire chief Wm. Lynch in an effort to check the usual annual epidemic of fall fires caused by the lighting of stoves and furnaces for the first time during the early frosty days.

"Generally the fire lighted is a brisk wood fire, which burns out the stove pipes and chimneys, often lighting the pipe and dust which has collected. Some times, also, the pipes become red hot before they are noticed, threatening the surrounding woodwork. It is good practise at this time of year to have a complete overhaul of pipes and stove, before the fires are first lighted," stated the Chief.

MOVE TO COMMUNISM EVERY DAY CHARGED

Claims It Pretends To Everything But It Is Not

Cork, Irish Free late, Oct. 2 (AP) —The charge that the DeValera government "consciously or unconsciously is moving toward Communism every day," made by General Eoin O'Duffy, stirred political circles today.

O'Duffy, a leader of the new United Ireland party said his organization opposed the administration not because it is Republican but because it pretends to be many things it is not. He spoke at a meeting of Blue-shirt National Guardsmen at the quays here, headed by the Irish Republican army men. In clashes between members of the two factions 30 or 40 persons were slightly hurt.

1816 COPPER COIN IS FOUND NEAR CLUB

Evidently Dropped in River by Band of Voyageurs

Evidently dropped by one of a hardy band of voyageurs on a visit through this district following the year 1816, and preserved perfectly by the silt in the bottom of the local harbor, a copper coin or token struck in the year 1816 in honor of Sir Isaac Brock, was recovered this week from the bottom of the harbor near the Wharf Street Dehaitz clubroom by Mr. "Cap" Smith. The coin is in an excellent state of preservation, with all figures and characters plainly discernible. On the face side of the coin appears the inscription "Success to the World," in plain lettering around the rim. In the centre the date of 1816 appears in large numerals. On the reverse side the lettering "Sir Isaac Brock, the Hero of Upper Canada," appears, with the smaller lettering appearing in a circle around pedestal: "Fell Oct. 12, 1812." The coin is being treasured by the finder, subject to—had by some collector.

SETTLING EARTH CAUSES COLLAPSE

For several days past motorists who have driven over a certain road-way in front of the local Armouries had a "sinking spell" under the city fathers' care. Late Sunday afternoon, without warning, a section of the asphaltic roadbed collapsed, leaving a gaping void several feet deep and six or more feet square. Police summoned the city fathers who ordered immediate steps could be remedied by filling of the earth which had way given as the cause.

CHOIR RECITAL AT ST. THOMAS

Communion Celebrated in Thanks to God For Harvest

"Come ye thankful people come, raise the song of harvest-home"—and its goodly numbers the members of St. Thomas' parish assembled yesterday in the beautiful old church upon the hill and in services of rare beauty, impressiveness and devotion returned thanks to God for the benefits of the harvest. The interior of the historic old church, the walls of which have been renovated recently through the generosity of a parishioner, after removing the beauty of the mural colors and designs, was most attractively and artistically decorated in keeping with the festival with flowers, fruits, vegetables, and grains, the beauty of the altar being added to by the arrangement of lovely Gladioli and Dahlias along the front of the reredos.

Communion Celebrated.

At 8 a.m. there was a plain celebration of the Holy Communion and at 11 a.m. the vicar, the Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne, was celebrant assisted by the Rev. B. F. Byers as a fully robed acolyte in front of the Holy Communion. The sermon was preached by the vicar. Radio chose as his text the fifty-first verse of the sixth chapter of the Gospel of St. John: "I am the living bread which came down from heaven: if any man eat of this bread, he shall live for ever; and the bread that I will give is my flesh, which I will give for the life of the world." The great teaching enshrined in these words was presented to the congregation in an attractive and interesting manner by the preacher. An item worthy of special note in connection with the sermon is that the musical setting to the post Communion hymn was composed by Mrs. Hunter-Rowland, who is a valued member of the choir and of the congregation, reflected much credit upon him. At 3 p.m. the teachers and scholars of the Sunday School assembled at the Parish House and marched in a body to the church where the children's service was conducted by the vicar, who addressed the children in a most interesting and helpful manner.

Recital Given.

At 7 p.m. festal evensong was conducted, the sermon being preached by the vicar, who gave a most interesting and thoughtful discourse from part of the fourteenth verse of Psalm twenty-six: "Remember me for your First Book of Chronicles: "All things come of thee and of thine own have we given thee".

At the close of evensong the choir assembled in the gallery at the front of the church and rendered a most pleasing recital of a varied and fine selection of Mr. Ross Hunter, the choir leader, with Miss Hunter as organist. The program consisted of two anthems, namely: "O Lord How Manifold Are Thy Works" by Barnby and "While the Earth Remaineth" by Maunder; a selection entitled "God the Father Whose Creation" by Dr. Gounod and "I Have Heard the Voice of Jesus Say" by Mr. Clark Patterson, and a solo by Mr. Ross Hunter with organ accompaniment by Mrs. Hunter. Every number was given in a most pleasing and creditable manner and the entire recital was greatly enjoyed by the congregation. The excellent training of the choir reflects much credit upon Mr. Hunter, the conductor.

The 21st Canadian Infantry Battalion over the week end mustered over 400 former members at their fifteenth annual reunion, which is regarded as this unit's most successful gathering since it was demobolized here after the close of the First Rook of Chronicles; "All things come of thee and of thine own have we given thee".

At the close of evenang the choir assembled in the gallery at the front of the church and rendered a most pleasing recital of a varied and fine selection of Mr. Ross Hunter, the choir leader, with Miss Hunter as organist. The program consisted of two anthems, namely: "O Lord How Manifold Are Thy Works" by Barnby and "While the Earth Remaineth" by Maunder; a selection entitled "God the Father Whose Creation" by Dr. Gounod and "I Have Heard the Voice of Jesus Say" by Mr. Clark Patterson, and a solo by Mr. Ross Hunter with organ accompaniment by Mrs. Hunter. Every number was given in a most pleasing and creditable manner and the entire recital was greatly enjoyed by the congregation. The excellent training of the choir reflects much credit upon Mr. Hunter, the conductor.

Annual Meeting

In the afternoon was held the annual meeting of the 21st. Battalion Association. Formed two years ago, primarily with the object of serving as an organization for the 21sters who do not reside in the cities where eight battalion clubs function, those responsible for the production of the unit newspaper the 21st Battalion Communique — Col. Pense, Capt. D. McE. Goode of Toronto, the editor; and Capt. Fred T. Hart of Peterboro, Secretary-treasurer—were nominated.

Approval of their record during the past two years was reflected in re-election of all officers of the association: Honorary president, General Hughes; president, Col. Pense; vice-presidents, Major Kidd and L. C. Madden, Belleville; secretary-treasurer, Capt. Hart. The presidents of the club clubs, some of which have been active since 1919 were re-elected members of the executive. All surviving former commanding officers of the 21st in Canada, including Lieut.-Col. T. S. Smith of Montreal, were present at the reunion.

One Driver Badly Hurt, Damage is $10,000

Aurora, Ill., Oct. 2—Ten trucks and passenger automobiles piled up in a succession of collisions near Aurora, Illinois, one driver was killed fatally and causing property damage estimated at $10,000.

The series of wrecks started when L. W. Talbot, truck driver from Toulon, Ill., ploughed into a load of hogs to the Chicago stockyards, stopped on the highway because of a thick cloud of smoke from burning peat beds made driving perilous. A motorized Mother's Truck loaded with 100 hogs, nosed through the smoke and smashed into Talbot, tipping over. Fifty hogs were killed.

And so it went with trucks and passenger automobiles piling into the wreckage. He stepped on the gas and crashed into a parked truck. He was hurled thru the top of his car, injured probably fatally.

ANY SIN IS A LARGE ONE

Bishop Marshall Addresses Congregation at Festival

"There is no such thing as a little sin, they are all eventually big ones" said Bishop Marshall, when referring to the development of evil, at the annual Harvest Festival at St. Emmanuel Church on Sunday evening. Bishop Marshall took the 30th verse of St. Matthew's fifth chapter for his text and dwelt on the growth of the grain in comparison with our every day activities, both of which grow as they are sown.

In opening Bishop Marshall firmly pointed out, that in His teachings, Jesus Christ, invariably used parables while his text was made up entirely of parables uttered by St. Matthew. "In those early days when due to the non-ability of the masses to read, parable were used by teachers to put over Christ's teachings", said the Bishop, as he went to show, that this was the manner of educating the people of that day and age along the lines of Christian education. Materially he referred to the sowing, growth and harvesting of the grain, as was typified in the parable of the tares, infested with tares, a useless weed, that infested the grain fields on Palestine in biblical days.

Reverting his text to present day life the Bishop referred the sowing to the small things that we do each day, that grow on us. Then they, the same as the seed, grow until they become large. Then comes the harvesting of man comes and the reckoning therefore. The small things, evil ones, will be cast aside, while the good wheat or God-loving Christians, will be gathered into the Kingdom of God. "What so ever you sow, so shall you reap" said the Bishop, when referring to our character, which we mould ourselves can build up in a Christian manner. In conclusion Bishop Marshall said, that religion and not religion alone had made life tolerable for the people of the past, as it is to Christian teaching, that once given a firm growth will ever-come all evil.

The church was decorated beautifully with fruits, harvested, flowers and other products of the harvest, that are typical of the impressive Harvest Festival air, while the hymns were also of the seasonable nature.

Speaking at the morning service Bishop Marshall took as his text the parable of the ten lepers from the gospel of St. Luke, reading the text. "Were there not ten cleansed, where are the nine?". The minister reviewed the story as told in this text and showed first that man is prone to forget many things especially Providence is good to all and lastly that only one in ten thanked God to acknowledge his blessings and benefits. There was a large number out at the service and the choir rendered music suitable for the occasion.

UNIONS NOT RECOGNIZED

Manufacturers Willing to Discuss Conditions With Workers

STRATFORD, Ont., Oct. 2.—(CP) —Dawn of amicable relations in hope for conciliation between Stratford's furniture and Packing Plant managements and striking employees appeared today as pickets marching up and down the sidewalks outside six furniture factories and the chief of the Swift Canadian Company.

The strikers, organized by newly-formed unions, refuse to operate under the banner of the Workers' Unity League, have declared they will not return to work if the employers emit more than 100 soldiers and police to protect them. Such men have been withdrawn from the city.

The employers claim is satisfied with the statement they will not negotiate with the Unions of the W.U.L., which they claim is affiliated with the Red International of Labor Unions, with headquarters at Moscow.

Both sides have held numerous meetings among themselves and with each other, but never have they come close to ending the impasse. Meanwhile, the city fears heavy casualties as the strikers have needed to supply the winter trade, may be idle with no other source than as an immediate settlement of the furniture industry is forthcoming. The Swift plant is closed, and 80 employees are out there.

The furniture employers and Swift Company have expressed their willingness to negotiate with their employees—but have definitely refused to deal with the Unions. The Union Leaders announced last night that they would call a general strike for the benefit of the strikers.

She paraded both sides of the 10-car train, exhibiting heavy with the cattle destined for the markets of the United Kingdom. As the train headed northward, she stood on the tracks and bewailed a lusty farewell.

TREMOR ROCKS LOS ANGELES

People Pour Into Streets Fearing Another Disaster

Los Angeles, Oct. 2 (CP)—A tremor felt here and Long Beach at 1.10 a.m. today. It was felt throughout Southern California.

It appeared to be as strong as the one which caused more than $10,000,000 property damage and injury damage at Long Beach last March 10.

Thousands of persons poured into the streets while buildings were still shaking and while the fear of earthquake Santa Barbara reported feeling the shock.

First check-up of reports from various sections, however, indicated little serious damage. The tremor lasted as set as there appeared to be a series of tremors following it.

Twenty minutes after the shock was felt, the Los Angeles Times reported, however, no fatal reports of only one building severely damaged, that at Fourth Street and Central Avenue.

BENNETT TO TOUR WEST

Terms of New Loans to Be Announced Before Departure

Ottawa, Oct. 2 (CP)—An announcement of the terms of the new (seven) loan is expected before the week ends. The issue may be launched on October 10 with the amount mentioned at between $200,000,000.

On his brief western tour in which he will discuss the wheat agreement signed at London last month by the wheat exporting countries, Premier R. B. Bennett will leave Ottawa towards the latter part of the week. He will speak at Winnipeg on October 9 and 10. On October 13, Mr. Bennett will address a meeting in Saskatoon. Visits will also be made by him to Regina, Edmonton and Calgary.

Prior to his departure for the west, the composition of the new board of directors may be announced. Composed now of 21 directors, three trustees are to replace the present directorate under legislation passed at the last session of parliament.

Daily meetings of the Cabinet Council will continue for the week with consideration being given to economic conditions.

QUIET RULES IN STRATFORD

Some Strikers Already Given Relief by City

Stratford, Ont., Oct. 2—(CP)— Quiet prevailed in Stratford's strike area today as employes of the closed factories returned to the picket-lines following the Sunday respite.

Rumors were again current in the city last night that a number of employes would attempt to enter their respective factory workshops today, but no attempt was made.

Provincial and city police were detailed to each factory and as they patrolled the side of the plant closest to the factories, the employes paraded the other side. When the factory whistles did not sound at the usual opening hour, the picket lines thinned out.

The Swift Canadian plant, scene of several recent flare-ups was the quietest spot of all. There was only one picket on duty there despite an order for all strikers—numbering approximately 80—to "walk the line." It is expected, that the Swift employes may return to their shops this week.

With the furniture strike, involving close to 700 men, now entering its third week, efforts are being made to provide relief for the strikers by the union officials. It was expected that $1,200 would be available for distribution tonight. This was reported to have been raised in Stratford, Toronto, Kitchener, Sudbury and other centres.

It is estimated approximately 1,500 persons have been affected by the strike and will have to be fed. Already relief has been extended to a number of families involved.

Today representatives of the Chesterfield and Furniture Workers' Union will make a tour of the rural districts appealing for vegetables and produce for the strikers.

HINDENBERG 86 SUNDAY

Spent Birthday in Solitude of East Prussian Estate

By Louis P. Lochner

The wish of the 86-year-old chief of state that all public demonstrations in his honor be eliminated was generally respected by the German nation and only stacks of gifts, letters and telegrams indicated at Neudeck that this was not a day like any other.

The only Sunday regalia of his grandsons and granddaughters, who celebrated the 86th anniversary of the supreme commander and the war hero by parading before aristocratic commanders and, in the case of the Berlin Guards, before Defense Minister Werner Blomberg.

Von Hindenburg was said to be in excellent health and spirits.

"Blood Tests" Showed The Remarkable Improvement This Run-down, Pepless Girl Made in One Short Month On This Treatment

LITERALLY thousands of people in all walks of life, who have been pale, weak, devitalized conditions, arising out of anaemia, but don't realize the part that is wrong. One person close to a reputable physician on November 14th, 1932, and said she lacked pep and vim. She felt tired, had no appetite, no color, got very little fresh air and sunshine, and looked pale.

Haemoglobin Only 60%

A blood test was made which indicated an anaemic condition, the haemoglobin content of the blood being 60% instead of 90% to 95%, which is normal for a woman. The blood count was low also, the red blood corpuscles showing 3,700,000 instead of a normal count for a woman of 4,800,000. As it is the duty of the red blood corpuscles to carry haemoglobin throughout the blood, and as it is only through the haemoglobin that life's vital forces can be brought to every cell of the body, it can easily be seen that with the patient's deficiency in haemoglobin, her whole blood system and to the health naturally was below par. The patient was surprised to learn of her condition, but glad to know that it could be corrected. The treatment she took was to take two Dr. Williams' Pink Pills three times a day for a month and return for another blood test.

The Importance of Haemoglobin To Good Health

If your haemoglobin is one-third below normal you are only enjoying as two-thirds of your normal self so far as pep and energy are concerned. It's the haemoglobin in your blood that carries the life-giving oxygen to the innermost cells and the tissues of the body. The haemoglobin also clean the system of impurities.

It is essential to good health to have a normal content of haemoglobin and to maintain the normal number of red blood corpuscles, for these are the carriers of the haemoglobin in the blood stream.

Haemoglobin Increased to 84%

The patient returned on December 16th, 1932, when the second blood test showed that her haemoglobin had increased from 60% to 84%—a remarkable improvement, a 10% increase in the short time would have been considered good, and she had more than twice that. At the same time the number of red blood corpuscles to 5,408,000, which was slightly h[illegible] than normal. The patient said she had lots of "pep" and felt like working, which would be expected from such a great improvement in the condition of her blood.

Blood Tests Prove Its Efficiency

The blood tests of this patient prove the efficiency of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in revitalizing an impoverished blood stream, in building up the blood count, and in making it rich and red, which is the secret of health. Any person who is suffering from anaemic, rundown conditions should appreciate the value of the efficiency of this preparation. The patients' names and records of their blood tests are on file.

Are You Like This?

If you lack pep, tire easily, don't feel like working—if you are pale, look pale, perhaps have a heart palpitation and dizziness, you lack that glow of health that is without doing anything about it. Such symptoms of anaemic conditions should be left to chance to get better of its own accord. It's more likely to become worse.

Try This Treatment For One Month

Start right away with a 30 days' treatment of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. In many cases, that will be sufficient to make you feel and look healthier, peppier, stronger, more vigorous, and full of life. At that time that you'll be encouraged to continue the treatment until you are right back to normal. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have been a standard prescription for tired-out, rundown, thin-blood, anaemic conditions for forty years. They're safe to give to children as well as to adults. Your druggist has them and they are sold in every country. Don't be a good one to remain in use for forty years and to still be widely sold.

NOMINATED FOR NOBEL PRIZE

For the first time a woman, Blanche Shoemaker Wagstaff, of New York, (Mrs. Donald Carr) has been nominated for the Nobel Prize in literature. The critic nominating her, Victor Setterberg, translated her poems into Swedish, after he had become interested in her work, "Mortality," a poem, the inspiration for which came to her suddenly and which was composed in six minutes. Wide notice was given the poem recently when a copy of it was found after his execution among the belongings of a convict; to whom the credit of authorship was given until the error was discovered.

Should the authoress be awarded the prizes she will join a glorious company of writers of all tongues to whom the prize has gone in the past.

THE CANADIAN SERIES

The Canadian, the official publication of the Ontario School for the Deaf, continues this month the admirable series of articles on the works of the greatest Canadian writers. This October article is devoted to the "The Dean of Canadian Letters," Charles G. D. Roberts.

Such poems as "Vagabondia," "The Maple," "Aylesford Lake," "Grey Rocks and Grever Sea," "Hilltop Songs," "The Quest of the Arbutus", "Severance," and "Recessional," are quoted in full. The writer also devotes some consideration to Roberts' prose work.

Such a series is doing much for the boys and girls who are in the classes at the Ontario School for the Deaf and for those Canadians and others to whom this school magazine finds its way. Attention of Canadian children to the Canadian outlook and art as expressed in Canadian songs and fiction must be, as of most of the importance in the training of the young. Too many adult Canadians know nothing of the strivings of Canadian authors and artists for expression of the peculiarly Canadian aspirations. Canada has a contribution to make to the world of thought and expression of its own and she has also a handmaid in the poets and artists, who will help to realize the Canadian ideal.

EUROPE'S MUSHROOM CITIES

St. Peterburg, Constantinople, Vienna—what glorious cities they were! See them now—Vienna saddened, Constantinople with a population of barely 750,000, St. Petersburg twice rechristened, and today a mere ghost of its former self. But meanwhile, see Gydnia, Magnitogorsk, and Zlin —so new, so full of life. Prof. Prof. Gregory, head of the University of London, declares their "amazing rise" one of the most significant of modern developments.

In the London Evening Standard, he writes enthusiastically of "Gydnia—the optimistic creation of Polish nationalism, mistrustful of the 'Free City' of Danzig's chauvinistic gorgy, one of the first-fruits of the Five-Year Plan, which aims at industrializing agricultural Russia." Zlin, "the Canadian hive in dustry which has sprung up like a mushroom in the folds of an obscure Czecho-Slovakian valley."

In sharp contrast to all this upstart novelty, one ancient capital, Rome, is becoming more wholly ancient than ever, and Norman Hillson comments in the London Daily Telegraph, "Mussolini has transformed the city of the Caesars into the finest architectural museum in the world.

"He has made great changes, sweeping away acres of slums and laying bare the original Roman city. He has driven the huge and imposing Imperial Way from his own palace at the end of the Corso to the beginning of the Appian Way, near the Arch of Constantine. The marvellous way that in order to give complete harmony to this new road, it was necessary to 'manufacture ruins.' But if ruins were 'manufactured' it must be confessed that they are uncommonly good ruins."

At the same time, even Rome has its mushroom growths, and Mussolini "has bestowed upon the struggling city of the Seven Hills the appearance of a modern metropolis."

MINTING COINS FOR EUROPE

Wanting 16,000,000 dinars coined, and 5,500,000 half-dinars, Jugo-Slavia placed an order with London's Royal Mint; the other day, quite as a matter of course. According to Sir Robert Johnson, Deputy Master and controller, the Royal Mint has the making of the coinage of all Europe with the exception of France and Germany, and Tri-Bitz (London), informs us that it "can turn out 1,000,000 coins a day."

WHEN YOU ARE HAPPY

I know when you are happy,
You do so many things,
You flit about the little house
As though your feet had wings.

With sewing, cleaning, baking
It seems you never quit;
And, even when all else is done.
You take bright yarns and knit.

I know when you are happy,
Though others might not see
The half-hid smile, the glowing eyes
These signs are clear to me.

But, ah!, when you are quiet
And when your hands are still,
Across my heart from some dark land
A wind blows, bleak and chill!

God made me wise and strong, dear,
To fend your fears away;
For I would have you happy
Forever and a day!

THREE BILLION, THREE HUNDRED MILLION DOLLARS is to be expended upon public works in the United States under President Roosevelt's National Recovery Act program. This stupendous sum almost takes the breath away, but President Roosevelt and his advisers seem to have plenty of courage, and the whole world will watch and pray that he is not overwhelmed in his own enthusiasm. His public works budget is equivalent to $30 for every man, woman and child in the United States, a computation which reminds one of the dire prophecies of Canada making under a load of debt made by politicians during the building of the Canadian Pacific Railway, one politician being charged with the statement that the C.P.R. would never pay for the grease on the car wheels. John A. MacDonald staked his political fortunes on the national policy and Canada has outcome of the enterprise and Canadians of today can but wonder how anyone could doubt Canada's ability to prosperously support a transcontinental railway. Sir Wilfred Laurier used to exclaim, "Oh, ye men of little faith"—to scoffers who pointed with horror and foreboding to important public works expenditures—and so, let us hope that Franklyn Delano Roosevelt may be justified in his optimism, and maintain, as he hopes, a good batting average.

MARRIAGE, IS IT CAUSE OF NERVOUSNESS?

Married Women Who Are Nervous Are So Before

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph. D. Famous Authority on Health and Psychology.

(Copyright, 1933, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Women so often seem to become markedly nervous after marriage that marriage, as such, has in this connection, received rather a bad name.

Is such a charge, however, quite fair? Is it true?

To be sure, young girls specialize about marriage, and what it is going to be like in ways that could not possibly square with reality. They allow their imaginations to run wild and fashion all sorts of highly-colored pictures that could only occur in fairy tales. Even when they know that it hasn't turned out quite like that in the cases of their friends who have been led to the altar, the ego of every young woman insists that her own case will nevertheless be exceptional.

To a girl, marriage is the one big thing in life and in her mind that is as it should be. Still and all, every woman who married should maintain a degree of her common sense and realize that actuality is never as wonderful as anticipation.

If the bride maintains a certain elasticity of mind and her marriage does not long survive as idealistically as she had hoped it would then at least she can quickly readjust herself and thus still can manage to maintain a degree at least of poise. If she does not, then surely she will be tortured by doubts and conflicts which eventually will, and perhaps seriously, effect her nerves.

A healthy and well-adjusted girl finds in marriage a way of expression for her inner longings. Under the marriage state she has a natural one it should really carry her through every conceivable thing.

But these women who "become nervous, apparently because of marriage, were usually of that type of make-up even before they met the man of their choice. Indeed their over-enthusiasm for marriage was something of a nervous sign. What they did was to rely too much upon a fanciful hope as to what upon fact. Marriage, in the last analysis, merely brought their neurosis to a head.

That is the inherent "overvaluation" which gains currency after marriage in girls for neurotic tendencies, accounts in large measure for the prevalence of divorces cannot be denied. Many a fine adjustment makes them run away. Instead of facing their new problems and conquering them—a variant of the fairy tale theme—they fantasy and too little upon fact—they become discouraged, or disgusted, and refuse to live through something unpleasant so as to build dreams about another realm altogether.

Every now and again one hears sentimentalists urge that women get to marry if she would regain her health. That is the underlying notion based on the assumption that child-bearing straightens out nerves

There is some truth in this assertion, for the maternal situation usually quiets down when mother-hood is in the offing.

But this does not always last. The rearing of a child is so prosaic that usually make a woman more nervous than before.

The safer course for any girl, therefore, is to get rid of her nervous tendencies, or, failing this, may be, before she marries. At least, she will then not start handicapped in what should be the most glorious adventure in her life.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Diet Hint

Sugar in various forms, as well as sweets in general, have a distinct place in the dietary provided they are eaten in a concentrated form not only is readily oxidized to produce energy but also to give a satisfying quality to a meal. On the other hand, the eating of sugary substances in large quantities produces stomach disturbances and digestive difficulties and quite spoils the appetite for other foods.

Goodyear Earns Year's Dividends

Position Strengthened in Past Nine Months, States Mr. Carlile.

In a letter to shareholders accompanying dividend cheques for the third quarter of the current fiscal year, Mr. C. H. Carlile, President of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. of Canada, Limited, states that in the past nine months, the company has increased its reserve for plant depreciation, its cash position and its working capital, and has considerably more than earned at the current rate its dividends for the entire year.

Mr. Carlile points out that for the nine months of the current fiscal year, the volume of sales of the Canadian industry has been 64 per cent less than in the corresponding months of 1929. Goodyear shows a decrease of slightly over one per cent.

An audited statement and full particulars of the year's operations will be submitted to shareholders of the company following the close of the next quarter.

Mr. Carlile stresses the fact that it is to the interests of shareholders not only to purchase Goodyear products but to further their sale wherever possible.

CREDITS NEWSPAPERS WITH NOXZEMA'S GREAT SUCCESS

J. Marvin Shaw Says Newspaper Copy Responsible For Sensational Introduction in Canada.

"No other gentleman", says J. Marvin Shaw, President of the Noxzema Chemical Company of Canada, Ltd., "could have promoted our product so sensationally as newspapers. Our first national report bears out this statement by showing a steady, rising, month-by-month increase in sales at least. They're credit is good copy, sound merchandising ideas and the enormous pulling power of newspapers."

This famous old medicated product, Noxzema, introduced in Canada only 18 months ago—has already won an enviable name for itself. Noxzema's introductory advertising, offering a trial jar of Noxzema, put it over with a splash! Over 600,000 trial jars were mailed to Ontario and Quebec alone. Noxzema is rapidly becoming known throughout Canada as a "wonder cream" for the correction of skin irritations. Noxzema will be featured throughout the winter for chapped hands as well as a common correction.

"We are convinced," says Mr. Shaw, "that we have hit upon the right policy by concentrating heavily on regular, eye-catching advertising in newspapers."

LONG GRIND OF BASEBALL SEASON ENDS

GENERAL SWING

Hurlers Hold Upper Hand With Adoption of Deader Ball

(By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr., Associated Press Sports Writer)

The long grind of the baseball season which started last April, again has narrowed down to the two-club battle for the World's Championship which starts between Washington Senators and New York Giants tomorrow. The other 14 major league clubs finished up their chores yesterday but some of them and their followers still are wondering how it happened that they are not occupying the champions' positions.

When the season started, New York Yankees, 1932 world champions and the 1931 pennant winners generally ranked as favorites. The end yesterday saw these two second in their leagues with the Athletics who didn't even clinch that post until they defeated Cincinnati in the first game of their closing doubleheader. Meanwhile Washington, "dark horse" with a powerful well-balanced club to finish seven games in front of the Yanks and the Athletics with fair pitching and defensive strength gave them the National League flag with five game margin at the end.

Pitchers Dominate

Outside of these rather unexpected twists in the pennant races, the season was notable mostly for the general swing from batting to pitching dominance; for its large number of managerial shifts; for the new ideas the fans developed about going to games or staying away and for Lou Gehrig's all time record with the Yankees.

From start to finish it was a pitchers' year and as a result batting averages were generally lower than last season. Lack of power, a club which had been relying on power to produce victories, also had thinned out thrust rudely out of the races.

The two new batting champions, Chuck Klein of the Phillies and Jimmy Foxx of the Athletics, also abounded in power. Foxx and Lefty Alexander respectively, kept sprigging at the end of the year while yesterday's games, Klein with an unofficial average of .368 and Foxx with .356 had added a total of 39 points over their nearest rivals. Foxx held on home run honors and won last year with 58 four baggers, but this season he fell ten b'ow that mark.

LORNE CHABOT TO CANADIENS

George Hainsworth Will Come to Leafs in Swap

Toronto, Oct. 2—(CP)—Clearing the decks for the winter's action, directors of the National Hockey League have limited the number of players to be received more than $200 for his prowess on the shining blades.

Some interesting player-deals were made during a meeting held here Saturday. Lorne Chabot, twine tender for Toronto Maple Leafs is to wear a Canadiens uniform, while George Hainsworth will move from Canadiens to Toronto. Lionel Conacher, the "big Irish" of Canadian sport, will move from Montreal Maroons to Chicago, while Teddy Graham of Chicago will go to Maroons. The Maple Leafs attempted to swap young Charlie Conacher for Mush Marsh and Charlie Gardner of Chicago but the deal didn't go through.

Recommendation to allow teams to play one man short in case of penalties was defeated, all the rules will read as formerly. Thus a club will have four men on the ice, no matter how many may be in the penalty box.

Pittsburgh will again remain out of the league, although it is understood a new rink is to be built there this winter.

CURRENT SPORT

Tomorrow baseball's annual classic again assumes the spotlight in the eyes of all sport fans, when the New York Giants meet the Washington Senators in the initial game of the 1933 world series. Pre-series predictions are not so frequent as in years past, the boys in the "know" seemingly realize a bit dubious as to the ultimate outcome.

One thing seems certain to their minds however, that being the choice of starting pitchers for tomorrow's game. Although nothing authentic relating to the two mainstays has been released, it seems understood that Carl Hubbell, of the Giants with his "slicker ball" will oppose "General Al" Crowder the pride of the Senators hurling corps.

Flight Lieut. Laurie Wray, sports director at the Airport, has everything in ship-shape order for the opening hunting hours of the season to be presented on the Airport this coming Wednesday evening. We understand, that 12 all-star boats will be on hand, with participants from various parts of Eastern Ontario, including Kingston, Belleville, Oshawa and Toronto besides those of the "Foreign Legion of the Skies."

We have not received any authentic information regarding the proposed Wednesday night bouts, tho there to have been word here by the South End A.C., of late. With the idea in mind that another of the indoor sports should fast be coming into their own these coming days. Then we understand that the Kiwanis Club are still endeavouring to engage some high class wrestlers to appear in a bout some this fall. Apparently Mayor McMahon was not abiding, when he assured us he'd like to try Canada's professional football. We hear he has been out on several occasions practising with Lionel Conacher's Toronto "Pros."

We have witnessed a few basketball games during our lifetime but the second's intermediate O.B.A.A. semi-final at Picton on Saturday last was undoubtedly a class by itself. It is doubtful if any two baseball clubs ever played such a game. Fast, clean, thrilling, in the final game of the 1932 world series. Football Fans in for Real Season Result of Early Tilts

Sarnia Imperials Pull Surprise Downing Montreal 12-10

(By Elmer Dulmage, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Oct. 2 (CP)—So well scrambled that the interested public was dizzy trying to figure it all out, the football situation in the east today held promise of taking a very long time indeed to straighten itself. Saturday's final series of preparatory battles did not mean a thing officially but it showed plainly enough there is going to be some grand duelling along at least two of the three senior circuits through October and November.

The 12-10 triumph of Sarnia Imperials over Montreal Winged Wheelers topped all other feats in the day's exhibition tilting, but it was only one show of power among a half dozen. No team was more impressive than the doughty Hamilton Tigers in whipping University of Western Ontario 30-2 at Hamilton and once they got up steam, Argonauts showed as much all-round strength as any team required in thumping the Intercollegiate champions, University of Toronto, 25-1.

Victory a Surprise

Sarnia's victory at Montreal over the Wheelers, surprising as it was under the circumstances, was not more upsetting to the form pundits than the slim margin of defeat at Ottawa, where the Roughriders were forced to come from obscurity in the fourth quarter to edge out Ted Reeves' Queens team 9-3. Considered a prospective weak sister in the senior O.R.F.U. group, St. Michael's College held the fighting Balmy Beach team scoreless for three periods and then only yielded 10-1. The game ended as the Irish were in position to kick for a tying point. And just to round up the situation, McGill beat Royal Military College 17-0. This was three days after the Red and White bowed to the Montreal Westward intermediates. A touchdown by Rocky Parsons and a 30-yard field goal from placement by Orville Paterson, both in the third quarter, were the major thrusts in Sarnia's victorious offensive against Montreal. They came immediately after Wheelers had rolled into a substantial lead by virtue of a touchdown and the brilliant kicking of Sterling Kelly, left no scope for the Big Four team to come back and regain the lead.

Druchela, County Louth, Irish Free State, October 3—The victim of an aeroplane crash here was identified today as Captain-Kingsley Rose, former member of the Royal Canadian Air Force. Passengers in the wrecked plane for a joy ride were injured. Rose was employed by Aerofilms, Limited.

Darkness Intervenes as Falconbridge and Picton Battle to an Eight-Eight Tie

Both Teams Played Ragged Ball in Spots

DRAWN OUT

Teams Had Chance to Salt Game Away Several Times

In a long drawn out but rather hectic game the Picton intermediates battled the Falconbridge Miners" to an 8 to 8 draw in the second game of the intermediate O. B. A. A. "B" series semi finals at Picton on Saturday before the umpires terminating the game on account of darkness. The game will be re-played at Picton on Monday afternoon by orders of the O.B.A.A. when the Yanover-managed crew from the Prince Edward County seat will try and endeavour to pull up even with the Falconbridge club, they having won the initial contest of the series by a score of 5 to 0 at Falconbridge one week ago.

Although rather poor baseball and innumerable accidents marred the contest throughout, and mitigated its prestige, the game was thoroughly enjoyed by the large crowd on hand, due to the fact that the clubs battled at even terms throughout, each team seemingly having the game in the well known "hip" several occasions only to have the contesting club regain its lost advantage. Despite the rather poor baseball played, the game was enjoyed until the final out was made.

Game of Errors

The "Miners" elected Billie Ralph ex-Deloro left hander, who subbed for Bill Hamilton, regular Falconbridge, to assume the pitching duties until although he succeeded in the homsiters to 9 safe blows his team mates boosted the ball for seven costly errors, many of which entered into the ultimate scoring. Ralph also shaded his opponent Bill Campplate via the strike out route. Manager Yanover elected to start veteran right hander, Ron Church to hurl the second game of the series but following three scoreless frames in the third innings, Church was moved to third base to replace Thompson, who was ill, with "Warpy" Phillips assuming the pitching duties. The diminutive Wellington southpaw was nicked for but six hits but in the case of the Falconbridge the efforts of his team mates was anything but commendable and the five errors committed by the Picton club availed all and under the leadership of Phillips being returned the victor. Minor injuries to many of the participants held up the proceedings until but nine full innings could be played before Umpires Collins and Gerow were forced to terminate the contest owing to darkness.

Home Club Scores First

The home club opened the scoring in the initial frame, when Learn-ard and Church singled and scored on McQuaid's double. The visitors assumed the offensive in the 2nd frame, and tied the score to the front. Four hasty hits rough-ed two local hurlers and the Picton infield paved the way for the four Falconbridge runs. The next frame an error by Picton add to other run, while they counted two runs in the 4th following three hits and another bobble. They tied the score in the eighth counting on some hectic base running. The Yanover-led outfit added to their first six runs, when they counted one run in the fourth, fifth and sixth to climax the situation in the seventh when they scored three runs to end the contest for the day. The same two clubs return to the diamond today to endeavour finishing the series. A win for Falconbridge gives them the right to meet Southampton in the intermediate finals while a win today for Picton will necessitate a third game being played. Captain "Roly" Rorke supplies the fielding combination of the day when he raced in behind second to throw Courcoche out at first. The play saved the day for the home club as two were on at the time.

Mrs. Hambly is Burned About Face and Body at Simcoe

Simcoe, Oct. 2 (CP)—Severely burned about the face and body when a kerosene explosion, Mrs. Thomas Hambly, or, of Lynnville, is in hospital in serious condition early today.

A can of kerosene had been left on the stove in the Hambly home, unknown to the aged woman. Hearing the stove caused the oil to explode and Mrs. Hambly's clothing caught fire. A grand-daughter Douglas Wood was present and beat out the flames, suffering minor burns on his own body.

The injured woman was brought to hospital where, although her condition was said to be serious, hopes were held for her recovery.

MONEY FLOODS IN ON GIANTS

Odds Shift With Probable Even Money at Starting Time

(By Herbert W. Baker, Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Oct. 2 (AP)—The New York Giants and Washington Senators prepared for a last minute "fire drill" today before they plunge into the blazing competition of world series combat in the Polo Grounds tomorrow.

An overnight flood of New York money had forced the betting odds, favoring the Senators' down to 8 to 5 from 10 to 7, with prospects of a further shortening to even money unless stronger support develops from the American League champions. This swing toward the Giants and indications that the ticket sales for the final games in New York tomorrow and Wednesday, have not come up to expectations, took all the play away from the actual competitors and their pre-series predictions seemed dated for the Polo Grounds this afternoon.

The Giants' business office announced today reserved seats would be sold separately for either the first or second games. This ruling reversing the Giants' previous policy of disposing of tickets only in strips of three, covering the first, second and third games, does not apply to the 4,000 box seats, all of which have been sold, or to the 5,000 bleacher seats will go on sale the morning of each game.

Washington announced several days ago that, if necessary, seats would be sold for the three games, which will be played there Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Friday and Saturday.

Cronin Not Worrying

The shift in betting odds failed to perturb Joe Cronin, youthful manager of the Washington Club. Cronin believes implicitly in the ability of his well-rounded team to "take" the Giants, not in four games as the New York leader has predicted, but as much as a pound as did the National League teams.

Identity of Washington's starting pitcher remained a secret. Cronin himself insists he hasn't decided whether to name Lefty Stewart or General" Alvin Crowder his left handers. Earl Whitehill or Monte Weaver, his right hander. Whichever way, that the Senators will find Hubbell not as much a puzzle as did the National League teams.

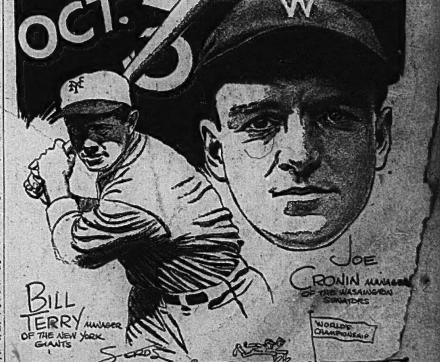
Buffalo, N.Y., Oct. 2 (CP)—The little World Series will go into its seventh game here tonight with Buffalo and Columbus all square with three victories apiece. There will be no chance to end its before tomorrow night as the winner must take five games.

The rest of the games will be played here and they will be night games, running over into the major World Series.

After the American Association champions appeared to have the International League leaders on the ropes leading them three games to one, Buffalo fought back in its home park over the week end, winning a pair of games to even the series.

Tonight the Buffalo Bisons are expected to use Dalliva, star right hander. Paul Dean, who has beaten Buffalo twice, is expected to be Manager Ray Blades' pitching choice.



The locale story over the week-end was one of good pitching by a pair of Buffalo left handers, Milstead on Saturday night and Perkins Sunday afternoon.

The Columbus batters, after manhandling Buffalo's burlers for three games, evidently found the Bible with what Milstead and Perkins served them. Milstead fanned eight and Perkins seven.

LARGE ATTENDANCE

Dr. Margaret Forster Addresses Meeting on "China"

On Thursday, Sept. 28th, women from all parts of Belleville section gathered at Moore Pleasant Church on United Church Day for the eighth annual meeting of Belleville Section, Women's Missionary Society.

The church was resplendent with potted plants and the altar was a bower of beauty, banked with flowers of every description.

Mrs. John Moore of Belleville, vice-president of the section, ably presided and Mrs. E. W. Rowland officiated at the piano.

All joined in the grand old hymn "Take Time to be Holy" and the pastor, Rev. Fred G. Johns, offered the invocation prayer. Wellman's Anthem was took others in the Devotional. Mrs. Walter Deacon greeted the platform and Mrs. Miss Twitchell's aunt, Mrs. A. E. Austin, of Prospect, Ont., handled just one of its best-known bachelors.

MISS ELEANOR TWITCHELL

Becomes Mrs. Gehrig

With the marriage of Miss Eleanor Twitchell of Belleville, and Louis Henry Gehrig, star first baseman of the New York Yankees, at the home of Miss Twitchell's aunt, Mrs. A. E. Austin, of Prospect, Ont., handled just one of its best-known bachelors.

the tumult" was sung and then Mrs. C. W. Bishop of Belleville, introduced the new Study Book, "Christ Issues in China". She first gave a brief resume of the author's life, he was a personal friend. She then read the eight chapters and gave the very briefly sketched the theme of each.

Present Papers

Mrs. R. J. Graham of Trenton, read a splendid paper prepared by Mrs. E. L. Fraser of that town on "The Missionary Monthly". When Christian people are informed about missionary work on home and foreign fields, they will give more instantly of their time, talents and money for the Master's service. Because it is published to meet this need. If every woman could read the magazine, she would be better informed of the world and its needs.

Mrs. J. Bews of John Street, Belleville, gave a paper prepared by Mrs. Ira Pearson, Temperance Secretary of the Presbyterial. She lamented the fact that there is the slave traffic of one hundred years ago. We as a people are free to give way to our tempers, to think evil thoughts, to drink alcohol, but we are not free to it all. Our realization of Temperance was likened to the attitude of "do" and "don't" and is typical of the indifference of the people today on Temperance question.

She read an interesting story from the little book "Here's Healthy to You", and by the use of sketches showed the audience how Bill drank up half a crown and next day he had his wife and child, were poor and miserable. And in contrast Dick took his wife and children on a picnic and she following day they were not sick and had no doctor bill, no trouble to see which man received most value for his money.

At this juncture Mrs. Bews offered prayer as a memorial of gratitude to all the ladies who have passed on to a higher service since the last rally.

Quiet Half Hour

Mrs. H. W. Foley of Spring brook, conducted the quiet half hour using "Flight the Good Fight" and prayer. She chose as her subject "Books" and paid tribute to the many inspiring books, which have been written by great thinkers. In the Book of Books we discover whether Faith or Works matter most. Today we have the radio, but all through the ages the messages have been in the air and only man could develop the wireless. We must be in receiving tune to get the message either by radio or through God. We have just passed through a period of false prosperity and the depression would have been unnecessary if man had lived according to God's laws. Mrs. Foley paid tribute to Dr. Kagawa and his vision of uplift. This most impressive half hour closed with prayer by Mrs. E. Farnsworth, of Belleville.

The ladies of Moore Pleasant Auxiliary then served a very appetizing luncheon in the church hall and the proceeds of the dinner amounted to seventy-two dollars. The tables looked pretty with bouquets of asters, gladioli and other seasonable flowers interspersed with high bowls of rosy apples and grapes. During the noon hour Miss Misses Frances McKeown and Edna Thrasher delighted with piano selections and three little girls, Marion and Ruth Rose and Marion Phillips sang "Jesus Loves Me".

The afternoon session opened with a devotional exercise taken by the Canniffon auxiliary and Mrs. C. A. Callery explained the 23rd Psalm, saying the red was a symbol of sorrow. During the singing of that a symbol of support. Prayer was offered that selfishness, be banished from our midst.

C.G.I.T. Work

Miss Robina Templeton, Branch Secretary of Canadian Girls in Training, urged that more groups be formed in order that the teen age girls receive some missionary information. The next rally will be held in the groups is "The New Revolutionists", and there is a Free Booklet, "Advanturing in Young China". A rally of groups will be held in October for the Presbyterial and full particulars may be had by writing the speaker or Mrs. Palmatier, she suggested that the girls make scrapbooks and diaries.

Miss Lasells Brown of Belleville, Branch Treasurer, spoke on Christian Stewardship and Finance gave a resume of the several branches. As a Branch Presbyterial Auxiliary and Individual, have one done all we could to foster Interest and to help along this work. The budget could be planned, prayed and worked for, and it is a good ideal to try to have three-quarters of the income come through envelopes. This is a magic power of money and today the money we gave last year is working in China, Africa, India, Trinidad, Honan, as well as a dozen places in Canada.

Dr. Margaret Forster

The special speaker was Dr. Margaret Forster of Honan, China and she addressed the audience in a Chinese costume. Dr. Margaret Forster left her home in Bomba, Ont., in 1914 to go to Honan as a missionary to China in 1926 and she is now home on furlough.

Dr. Forster has a well fluent speaker and held her audience in rapt attention. She gave a graphic, but lengthy address of her various activities in China. Her address was a dual personality, part allegiance to China and part to Canada. Dr. Forster told how when he said, "Go ye into all the world" for one of the first times in her life, it meant that all should be closer to the Master's Century, could be easier task and all should feel duty bound to go—or send some one in their place.

Dr. Forster said coming home to Canada impressed her with Canada's green grass as China has too much sun and we NEED the rain to keep grass. The lovely music as the Chinese people in their spiritual life also play the lute and so there is a wealth of real good music and that in their spiritual uplift and close contact a missionary gets from their Christian family and in the Orient and the people at home are very representative in Canada in every missionary there should be one thousand members in the home church.

While a student in Japan she was impressed with the politeness and children working for peace, than the strife and war in the eastern country. She paid glowing tribute to the work of Dr. Kagawa.

Dr. Forster closed in exactly what Christ did in that over-population, Christ fed five thousand, fifty per cent. of the children die of starvation in China and it is hoped that by saving these children they will be Christianized and will lead the country out of chaos.

The audience gave the missionary an ovation for her fine address and then the Misses Eileen MacMullin and Mrs. Palmatier presented the offering which gives for secretarial expenses and Mrs. Tooze dedicated it to God's cause.

The Misses Ruby Thrasher and Olive McConnell of Moore Pleasant, with Mrs. Ross Hoard, as pianist, rendered a duet "Just Rest, Have Faith in God".

Mrs. G. W. Spafford of Atkins, who has been secretary for the past five years, resigned and Miss Ross Adams of Foxboro, is the newly appointed officer.

Invitations were received from Plainfield, Canniffon and Stirling, and it was decided to meet at Plainfield in 1934.

The secretaries' minutes were accepted as read and Rev. R. J. Wallace, B.A., pastor of Plainfield, announced the Benediction, closing this wonderful rally, filled with inspiration and enthusiasm.

Large Attendance

The day was ideal with a bright sun shining overhead and the glorious hues of autumn transforming the countryside as the delegates motored from Bayside, Trenton, Atkins, Belleville, Corbyville, Canniffon, Thrasher, Moore Pleasant, Shannonville, Melrose, Regent, Stirling, Shannonville, Wellman's, Rylestone, West Huntingdon, Stirling and from nearby points to Mount Pleasant, Plainfield, Foxboro, and over two hundred were in attendance at the meeting. The color guard of the Mission Band assisted with the ushering, Manager of Chicago Block-hawks of the National Hockey League announced here today he had signed Red Shields, former Ottawa Wingman who has been in the Maritimes for three seasons with Halifax Wolverines. He is a right wing.

Beauty .... By Helen Jameson

Adaptability is a Beauty Asset

Why do women strive and struggle and fling money for the sake of looking good? Self-respect is one answer. Desire for love and friendship is another reason. Everybody yearns for admiration of one kind or another.

Yet there are plenty of pretty girls who never seem to get any place. The majority of these lack adaptability. They have a fatal gift for being uncompanionable. Others make it a practice to carry a chip on the shoulder, rub everybody's fur the wrong way. They might better save their face paint allowance and put it away for a lonely old age. Everybody dislikes them.

Learning how to get along amicably and happily with one's fellow creatures should be a large part of every girl's business. It means greater success in the profession or job; it makes a calm atmosphere in the home; it creates a face that is more than pretty—a face that carries the radiance of well-planned deportment.

The belligerent misfits look as if they ate pickles and quenched their thirst with vinegar. No matter what you say, they pick up the other side of the argument, make you feel uncomfortable, or hurt, don't see beauty helps. They need soul sweetening.

Find a popular girl — the one whose phone is always ringing and for whom both necktie and long sleeves, spaulets trimmed with seed pearls and carried a colonial bouquet of pansies. She was given away by her father.

The maid of honor, Miss Virginia C. Sidenius, sister of the bride, wore a silk green dress with brown velvet capelet and turban and matching accessories. She carried an arm bouquet of yellow 'mums and tantana.

The bridesmaids, Misses Lynda S. Whitlock, New York City, and Hazel M. Frost, Vineland, wore Canary yellow dresses were made like that of the maid of honor and carried arm bouquets of yellow 'mums and tantana tied with green ribbon. The groom was attended by his brother, Mr Olaf Snelgrove.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidenius, parents of the bride's brother, was usher, assisted by Messrs. Freeman Lawrence Turner and Melvin Whiteside, all of Toronto.

After the ceremony, a reception was held in St. Paul's United church hall. The hall was prettily decorated in wine-colored silk with beige accessories. Arranged on a stage of panels, received with the bridal party. During the reception Mme. Zendi sang a selection of Swedish folk songs. A wedding supper was served to the bridal party and immediate families of the bride and groom at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Sidenius. The young couple, both graduates of Victoria College, class of '31, are returning to Toronto, this year's honeymoon is quite study. The bride's going-away costume was an ensemble of royal blue, with navy blue accessories.

The bride was formerly of Belleville. Her father being secretary of the Y.M.C.A. here for several years.

The church was decorated with autumn leaves and fall flowers, the guest pews being marked with bouquets of asters tied with white satin ribbons. The pulpit was effectively arranged by Rev. Francis E. Vipond, B.A., B.D., assisted by Rev. Robert Neil Clark. The Swedish wedding march was played by Miss Octogy Pilgrim. Mme. Marie Sidenius (Zendi), of Chicago, the bride's aunt, sang Oedmark's At Dawning and also the signing of the register.

REPORTS BY SECRETARIES AT W. M. S. RALLY

"This is one of the thirty-four auxiliaries reported. The largest percentage yet reported. Canniffon and Thrasher first reported, Bridge Street has the largest urban membership, Shannonville with 65 members as the largest, Wellman's second and Bethany is second with 36. Nine home gifts in membership are reported; a large percentage of the losers coming by death. In order of the largest average giving in this Presbyterial we should average $4.00 per member. Actual averages for year 1932 was $13.77, Bridge Street with $8.88 was the only other society to reach the ideal; Trenton Grace averaged $6.48; Tabernacle $6.06; Melrose $7.00; Mount Pleasant, Rawdon $6.72 and Plainfield $6.00 were the smallest average giving was $2.94.

Seven societies, 20 per cent. of their funds obtained by free will giving. Seven reported no funds given in this way and 40 per cent.

Seventeen reported some work in the Peace Department. Ten had Mission Bands, Bayside, Helen and Trenton Grace Mission Bands as a play "The Stewardship of Personality". Bethany Mission Bands are found very helpful.

Stirling has the Easter program was the Christmas the Christmas Tree, birthday box, autograph quilt and plays. Wellman's, Rawdon, Helen and Trenton Grace Mission Bands used as a play "The Stewardship of Personality". Bethany Mission Bands are found very helpful.

Several societies found the Easter program made the interest more special. Others mention a special Temperance meeting during the year, study a service of consecration for a January meeting and the Weekly Day of Prayer; Canniffon mentions an Annual Banquet for the young men, C.G.I.T. and Mission Band taking part. John Street tells of an Easter Carnival in the basement in which every church group participated. Another shows the Thankoffering was one, to many nations all of which were represented. Bridge Street reports varied programs of unusual interest. Bethany and Tabernacle reports on the Peace Plaque, Mrs. Hinds and Mrs. Wood, each was dead on "Will We Abolish War?" and "The Missionary Monthly and that the leader always finished a program by reading a declied-in a deepened spiritual tone in the W.M.S.

Many ways of raising money have been resorted to. One Tabernacle had a birthday basket at the birthday box; donations were received in the form of baskets of cookies, rhubarb, green beans, a basket, an apron, eggs, etc. Money was also received and when $25 had been collecting they made themselves a life member. Scotts made an autograph quilt which they presented to the minister's wife. Then there were entertainments, social evenings, concerts, banquets, field days. At Hooper, tea, cent teas, patch-work parties, Mission Band programs, lawn socials St. Patrick suppers, Pancake socials, box socials, meetings and special speakers.

Many ways of obtaining new members were suggested. King St. Church has a decade Day, Trenton Grace and Bridge St. the possible new members. At Atkins Mission Band the Mission Band are responsible for new members for the auxiliary. Scotts appoint each member brings one. Stirling has a Mission Band responsible for new members.

Atkins reports a variation of the group system by having a Pep Contest; points are given for fees received, for attendance, new members, using envelopes and Mission Band. Bethany reports, Plainfield has the entire community calling and the four groups which has added to the interest and they hope it will increase the membership.

Advice to the Lovelorn

COUBINS IN LOVE

Dear Miss Fairfax: A cousin of mine from a distant state visited us some time ago and she fell deeply in love with each other. We want to get married, but our parents have advised us against it because they say it might affect our children. We are very near blood relations, being first cousins. We still appreciate it if you will advise us what to do.—H. G. F.

The question of cousins marrying is one for a doctor, rather than a lovelorn, to answer. As you may have observed, sometimes cousins marry and have perfectly normal children, again, there are unfortunate results. You had you're confronted by this problem, and you have my sympathy.

LOST HIS JOB; COULDN'T BUY WEDDING RING

Dear Miss Fairfax: I was going with a young lady of my own age, that is 27 years, for five years. A year ago last Christmas we broke our engagement. I am as a Christmas gift, but I lost my job and couldn't buy the ring. I didn't want to tell her because I knew she would worry. So I sent her flowers and candy since, and I can do anything to get her back. I have written her a letter and want to see if I couldn't forget her, but it seems I can't. If you can advise me about all this, please help me if you can.—Jack.

Please don't lose another day, my dear friend, but write that girl and tell her the only reason you didn't give her the ring you promised was that you lost your job and didn't like to tell her. Tell her how much you still love her and that you know she'll take you back. And here are my best wishes that she does.

PICKED HIM UP ON A DARE

Dear Miss Fairfax: I am a girl of 18 and quite popular with boys. I have always prided myself on not falling for any particular boy. Recently I met one whom I care for a great deal. Do you think that he will mind me cheaply in his estimation because I had picked him up on a dare? He is away now, and I would like to see him three whole weeks, but I have received a few cards from him. I think that he would be likely to care, under these circumstances.—Ann.

When a girl picks a man up, either on a dare or because she's made up her mind to, she cheapens all the usual formalities she takes just that action two miles from the proper arrangement, in which neither of the parties has any doubt as to whether he is to you now, if you wish to make a "permanent impression," to prove to him, however, that in spite of apparent evidence to the contrary you're not the type of girl any man can pick up. In other words, you've got to watch your step.

A gripping story of a struggle for sub-sea treasure, millions of dollars of gold from the bottom of the ocean upfolds in a fascinating manner at the Capitol Theatre in the film "Below the Sea," starring Jean Parker and Stuart Erwin. The latter plays the part of Bellamy as the fearless and "nardi-bodied" diver and Miss Parker is Sidney Wray the Diane Templeton, an heiress financing a scientific expedition, and Frederick Kerr as Karl Schlemmer, the man who has the secret to the ocean treasure share honors in their fine performance while Walter Howard as Lieut. PRINCE OF WALES MAY VISIT U.S. SOON FOR EXCHANGE OF IDEAS WITH ROOSEVELT

By CHARLES SAMUELS
Central Press Canadian Writer

Washington, D.C., Oct. 2 — The Prince of Wales may visit the United States and Canada this fall, and it will be a changed man that both countries will see when he arrives.

When the Prince visited the U.S. last in 1924, debutantes and their instrumentality - ambitious mothers gave chase. Yet he managed to have a thoroughly good time.

But this time it won't be pleasure that brings the heir to England's crown to western shores. It is the notion of Edward Doran, National Conservative member of parliament, that the Prince should travel to Washington during the next few months and confer with President Roosevelt, thereby cementing the relationships of two great nations.

Mr. Doran intends to suggest the trip to his colleagues during the next meeting of the House of Commons. He visualizes the trip as a means of insuring a lasting world peace.

In addition to these objective, it is believed that the proposed get-together of the English heir and the U.S. President may have far-reaching results on world economic conditions.

A Changed Man

Both are progressive - minded men. In the last few years, the entire British Empire has been smarted in the change that has come over his popular Prince. No longer the careless playboy of his youth, the Prince at 39 has made himself of late with the problem of bettering the conditions of the poor, with important labor problems.

The distress of his people, brought on by the four lean years since 1929, is to-day an chief concern, according to those who know him best. Many of his ideas on the curing of economic ills coincide with those of President Roosevelt.

The Prince visited Western Hemisphere in 1930. He travelled to four South American countries then as "an ambassador of trade." He was so successful in selling the "Buy British" idea to the people of Cuba, Argentina, Peru, Chile and Brazil that English exports to those countries greatly increased.

Will He Wed?

Will the Prince eventually marry an American society girl? Reported engaged to various European princesses many times, the Prince has steadfastly declared that when he finally becomes a bridegroom, it will be for love only.

A marriage to a commoner would be contrary to royal British precedent, but the Prince has always been known for his disdain for tradition.

Economists agree that world prosperity can be aided by close co-operation among nations. It is quite possible that the President and the Prince, whose ideas are so startlingly democratic and modern for a regal bluebood, can work hand-in-hand towards the achievement of this ideal.

But the American society boss think that friendly relations between the United States and England would also be improved if the popular Prince chooses an American bride.

Cut Sons' Allowance

Lita Gray Chaplin

The two sons of Charles Chaplin famous screen comedian, hereafter must live on a monthly allowance of $250, following a ruling by a Los Angeles court reducing their allowance from $500. Lita Gray Chaplin divorced wife of the star and guardian of the two boys, Charles Jr. and Sidney Earle, is pictured above in the court room where she bitterly assailed her former husband for forcing her to come to court to explain what she termed as "ridiculous" items of expense.

...rim mused, "how that phrase have is has crept into American speech. We think we have to do so many things which, after all, do not really need to be done, or if they do will be done by someone else. You say you have to be there and yet you're not there and the world goes on—there are no explosions back there, no chunks of the city blowing up to clutter up the harbour."

"There's no hurry, sir." Vern soothed him courteously, "there is no quick way at all—so way in fact."

The elderly banker had been seized by the other two old men who had recovered enough to take a terrified interest in their past lives.

"No way to get back," echoed the clerk, "but my dear sir, I have a donation service for the Near East Relief in mind."

"Someone will conduct it," Vern offered genially.

"But you don't understand—" "And I," cogitated the third member of the party, "am Judge Hale of the Circuit Court. I am right in the midst of a murder trial as you probably know by the papers."

"Yes," Vern admitted, "I know who you are. You're known as a twenty thousand volt judge' aren't you? Well, probably they'll send this 'Red' Foster you're trying to the chair anyway whether you're there or not. So you needn't worry about that."

But Judge Hale did worry even if not about that. "Hang it, man, I've got to get back. I've got to explain to my wife how I came to stay out all night last night."

Vern looked at him somewhat suddenly when he noticed that neither of the others did. "Didn't they explain what he said?" he asked. "Judge Hale, who finds men in the electric chair without turning a hair or wondering how he is going to account to the Almighty for his nerve in destroying His handiwork, is afraid to play away from home for fear of his wife."

"Run along man, you are impudent and ignorant. Turn this vessel around and take us back to where you found us. We insist."

"I can't do it, gentlemen. For one reason I have no control over the course of this vessel as I am merely a commercial employee and to obey the commands of my superior officer."

"Then for heaven's sake take us to your superior officer," demanded the banker looking around for a captain in gold braid.

"That girl!"

CHAPTER 9

"Yes," Vern assures the involuntary passengers, "that girl is the skipper."

"Captain of this boat?"

"Absolutely."

"That alters matters considerably," the judge assures his fellow-stowaways. "She looks like a pleasant young woman who would be amenable to reason. Perhaps it would be well if I were to speak to the woman in the coming interview."

They moved aft by common consent. Vern delayed long enough to take with him a captain bar from a small anchor hoist. With that in his hands he unobtrusively took his position alongside his commanding officer.

The parley had already begun.

"I am sorry, gentlemen," she was saying pleasantly, "your request that I put back to New York would under ordinary conditions, be reasonable enough and I should feel in duty bound to accede to it. It just so happens that today I cannot do as you wish."

I cannot even take the time to set you ashore so that you may find other means of transportation back to the city. Unless something unforeseen occurs I shall be obliged, regretfully, to take you with me in our original destination."

"Which is?" The judge put the question.

"A small island off the coast of the Carolinas. You will pardon me if, for reasons of my own, I am not more explicit."

The trio reflected on this information. They even drew a little apart to discuss it. After a moment they returned.

"My colleagues and I," said the judge, "have come to the conclusion that this is a very stupidous cruise doubtless undertaken in accordance with some purpose in defiance of the laws of the United States."

Irene smiled. "If you mean to suggest that I am a rum runner I don't mind telling you that you are wrong. The error is a pardonable one and I might say that the idea of entering that profession has occurred to me. But as yet, I have not violated any of the statutes of our government."

"You have kidnapped three prominent citizens," Judge Hale pointed out.

"No not even that. You three gentlemen came on board this yacht of your own free will and accord, did you not?"

That question was a puzzler. The three important citizens looked at one another in sheepish dismay. No one of them could recall under what circumstances he had arrived in the cabin where he found himself that morning.

"You seemed to be somewhat under the weather," said Irene.

The judge and the banker looked at each other sheepishly. The clergyman said:

His explanation was given simply and directly, and there was no difficulty in his honesty.

"The question of a definition of terms," said the judge, "is immaterial. Whether I was kidnapped or lured on board under false pretenses does not materially affect the case. We now demand to be taken back to the city."

"And the lady captain officially refuses," said Vern. "On the high seas her authority is superior to that of the church and the United States courts."

"We decline to accept that authority." The judge took a step forward and the others more timidly joined him. Vernon also advanced one pace, the captain bar suggestively in evidence.

"Wait a minute, gentlemen," Irene

OCT 2 MR. AND MRS— SHE KNOWS FROM EXPERIENCE

TARZAN LORD OF THE JUNGLE

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

A hundred knights of Nimmr, armed with lances, formed at one end of the lists, awaiting the trumpet signal to engage an equal number of Knights of the Sepulcher. These knights were the very flower of both factions, young men, their lances, astride chargers especially selected for their power and fleetness. Jimmy Blake found himself well toward the centre of the line of Nimmr's knights.

As Blake looked at the glittering array of opposing knights adown the field, he experienced a certain nervousness, as for a brief moment he felt he was merely part of a dazzling dream. At last came the signal. Trumpets blared from the four corners of the lists. From two hundred throats came a shout and the thundering horde bore down the smooth field. Each knight must engage the single foe upon his shield's rim.

Over his shield's rim, Blake saw the solid front of lances, iron-shod chargers and great shields almost upon him. Then the two lines were almost upon. The spectators sat in spell-bound silence. The riders, grim-faced, with tight-set lips, were reckless men. Blake's lance set, picked the knight range toward him. Each couched behind his shield as the two lines came together with a deafening crash.

Blake'shield smashed back against his face and body with such terrific force that he was almost borne backward from his saddle. He felt his own lance strike and splinter. Then, half-stunned, he was through the line; his right hand frantic and uncontrolled was running wildly toward the tilts of the enemy. With a mighty effort, Blake pulled himself together and tried to regain control of his mount.

Seventy-Eighth Annual Fair at Ameliasburg Has Largest Crowd of History

Oldest Fair in Prince Edward County Taxed For Room

EXHIBITS SPLENDID

Meeting Place For Residents of Community Besides an Exhibition

Smiling blue skies and a warm September sun added the last touch of perfection to the day set aside for residents of Ameliasburg Township, the annual fall event of Roblin's Mills Fair, held on Saturday for the seventy-eighth consecutive year.

It was a day of superlatives for this oldest fair in Prince Edward County. With the largest membership this year in history, and with the greatest number of exhibits facing the grounds to overflowing the buildings, it remained only for the appearance of record breaking attendance on the grounds to establish the glowing account of previous years.

Seventy-eight years ago Roblin's Mills Fair was founded. Since then it has forged steadily ahead until at last it has taken its rightful place among leading fairs throughout the county. It has become a worthy exhibition ranking high in comparison with the annual exhibitions held by even the larger and wealthier communities. But Roblin's Mills Fair is more than that. It has become the meeting place each year of old friends from throughout the district. It is the mecca of lovers of horseflesh, and stock breeders find it a happy place to discuss farmers and residents from throughout Prince Edward and Adjoining counties, and an exchange for housewives, who take keen interest in the competitive displays arranged so tastefully on exhibit. Here a friendly rivalry between "their" fair is displayed by residents of Ameliasburg and other townships adjacent.

Extra Accommodation Needed

This year, in order to take care of the large number of entries, extra accommodation had to be provided. In the Agricultural Building every available bit of space was taken up with the attractive displays of products from kitchen and garden. Here were the finest specimens of the season's crop of vegetables from a section of the country noted for its fruits. Vying with the apples and other fruits of garden and orchard were tempting goodies from the housewife's kitchens, ranged along one other side of the wall were the cut flowers, in attractive baskets, along with eggs, fruits, jellies, pickles and other seasonal delicacies. It was a difficult job for a judge to choose.

Ladies' work and plants and flowers combined to form a delightful display in one other large building on the fair grounds. Overflowing the space reserving for them, it became necessary to add additional tables and improvised platforms to hold the large number of exhibits. Colorful paintings, water colors, and painted scenes matched the rich hues of the autumn foliage from the flower filled stalls and booths. Here were school children's work of maps and draw ings creditable to an artist.

On the grounds stood the sleek-coated Holstein in a bit self conscious in all their trappings and finery, the cattle and the grand gane of the trotters passed along their lines. Bold and heavy muscled draft horses rounded out worthily in their stalls, paying little heed to the crowds which simply passed by.

Restive sheep and swine added the last touch of rural domesticity, as they milled around in their respective enclosures.

Good time was made even on the small track with the harness being announced by Mr. Herbert Orser, starter, well known however for his duties as annual visitor at the fair for many years. The judges were Bill Weltmanks, C. Ferguson and Percy Hayes.

Gananoque Band Present

Throughout the day the Gananoque Band supplied appropriate music for the occasion, and also provided the music for dancing in the town hall during the evening following the fair.

One of the novelties of the day was the Baby Show held on the grandstand. Nine smiling, happy babies were measured and carefully examined by Dr. Thompson of Wellington. After considerable chuckling up of measurements, Charlie Pickels was chosen the finest baby, with Shirley Jean Donna Casson being announced first for the girls. She was also the recipient of a special prize as best baby on the grounds.

In the ball game between the Mountain View Girls' softball team, and the Quinte Uni girls, the latter were defeated by the score of 9-3. The softball game between the Redneryville boys' team and Victoria ended disastrously for the latter when they carried off the short end of a 26-4 score.

Following one of the most successful fairs in years, a big dance in the town hall which was attended by young and old from throughout the whole district run down the curtain for 1933.

Tells Plan To Avoid Illness

Keeps Well By Using Method

"I am over sixty years of age and have found that I feel my kidneys not working right I take a few Dodd's Kidney Pills and am soon all right again," says H. Sweet, 2121 Dufferin St., Toronto, Ont. "I used to use other kidney pills before, but I think Dodd's are the best, and since using them have used no other. My experience is that they are the good old right either for the kidneys or lumbago."

CURRENT ATTRACTIONS AT LOCAL THEATRES

AT THE BELLE

Believing that "Voltaire," which opens at the Belle Theatre tomorrow for three days, contains one of the greatest contribution to the screen, George Arliss is convinced that pictures based on historical events are born of stress and troublesome times.

"Voltaire," by Warner Bros., was planned and produced last summer, during the most hectic period in Hollywood's history. War, like never heard on all sides. Banks were closed, disastrous earthquake had ruined millions or dollars in damage to several of Hollywood's neighboring towns and had shaken nerves of the self confidence out of that scintillating city. Studios were struggling through a lean period.

Out of this welter of bad fortune Voltaire" emerged as a product of strenuous days and nights of work and worry. Despite the difficulties encountered by the world during its making, it progressed to satisfactory completion, and it appeared to be a "natural"! It seemed to have qualifications that would fit it as exceptional even in the list of Arliss pictures.

There is precedence for Mr. Arliss' belief that difficulties sometimes bring forth splendid results. The original stage version of "Disraeli" was hastily assembled in five weeks and made Mr. Arliss the most important stage star of his time, came at the height of financial distress and stress which almost threatened to stop it before it started.

"Alexander Hamilton," his own play, later made into a picture, was written for the public during the World War and an epidemic of influenza which almost forced all stage productions.

In fact most of the real successes enjoyed by Mr. Arliss are plays which emerged from obscuring clouds of difficulties and difficulties. "Voltaire" is like those and even in making, it was subjected to being superstitious about, seems convinced it is his greatest screen success.

"Voltaire"also deals with troublesome times. It is laid in the epicentric days just prior to the French revolution when King Louis XV, was completely under the influence of ecstacy taxes in order to keep up the luxury of his court, Arliss, as the poet and philosopher Voltaire, clashes with the king over his proposals which would have ruined France and saved from the Bastille by Mme. Pompadour.

Mr. Arliss is supported in this picture by a notable cast which features Doris Kenyon, Margaret Lindsey, Theodore Newton, Reginald Mason, Theodore Von Eltz and Four-Star Comedy

Special short subject to be made of the exceptional comedy to be presented on the same program, which comes with a four-star line-up from Liberty Magazine and is titled "Nobody's Fool," featuring a hilarious burlesque on "Grand Hotel." Posthumous Novel of Galsworthy's is Issued Under Title of 'Over the River'

London, Oct. 3 (CP)—Bearing the significant title "Over the river" John Galsworthy's posthumous novel was published today, to be received by the reviewers with complete admiration.

Many of the fascinating personalities of Galsworthy's immortal Forsyte family reappear with no less vividness. The background is sufficiently recent as to embrace the election of the national government in 1931, "Cavalcade" at Drury Lane and the French exhibition in Piccadilly.

"So Comes TO Acad", says the Daily Telegraph editorially, "a history of over three lots of skill and knowledge such as no other gentleman of Galsworthy's time had before its eyes. Greater novelists by far have worked in English, but none who set himself so earnestly to make pictures of the forces and fashions, material, intellectual and spiritual, of his particular period.

"Whatever value in the future may be set on Galsworthy's art it will recognize that to understand what England was through the changing years which ushered in this time of reconstruction his books must be read."

ULTIMATUM UNANSWERED

No Response Expected by Manufacturers of Radios

Stratford, Ont., Oct. 3—(CP)—Ultimatum delivered to the Chesterfield and Furniture Workers' Industrial Union by representatives of Stratford radio manufacturers last night had not been replied to at the hour set today.

Shortly after the hour Major J. Milton of the Dominion Croxley Company stated no reply had been received from representatives of the union to which the strikers are attached.

"We didn't expect any," added Major Hahn.

Efforts were made to get in touch with union leaders. Fred Collins, union organizer, was in town today according to men at strike headquarters. He probably did not know anything of the ultimatum. It was said, because he was out of the city when it was issued.

Will Move Cabinets

It was indicated the unfinished radio cabinets would be moved from the factories whether the union agreed or not. It is expected, in the event of the instruments being moved, the trucks will be protected by police and perhaps soldiers.

It was authoritatively learned if force had to be used in moving the cabinets the Toronto companies and their employes stood to lose close to half a million dollars worth of business from radio manufacturers.

Further disorders, however, are not anticipated.

CHALLENGE THROWN OUT

Germany Argues Problem of Jews Should Not be Discussed

Geneva, Oct. 3 (CP)—The new German policy today threw a challenge to the League of Nations.

Arguing the problem of the Jews in Germany was not property to come coming within the terms of the minorities treaty, Germany challenged the old conceptions of minority rights and even the old conceptions of Nationality.

And this ethnic nation had a natural and moral right to regard itself as forming an intellectual and cultural unit with all its members, even though they were divided by national frontiers from the fatherland, he said.

AMERICAN EAGLE SHOT IN ONTARIO

The NRA eagle of the United States has fallen victim to a Canadian shotgun. While out shooting rabbits, recently, Marvin Clark of Toronto noticed the eagle hovering around his catch ready to pounce. When the bird swooped Clark let go the gun and scored an eagle one in golf parlance. The bird has a wing spread of seven feet and is a small American bald-headed of the type used on the NRA displays. The shooting took place at Keswick, near Lake Simcoe.

Five hundred "Community Welfare" bags which have been carried by the Central Relief Office will be distributed throughout trunks, clubs and offices in the city during the next week or so in an effort to raise sufficient cast off clothing, shoes, etc., to be used during the winter months by those on relief. The bags are paper, but designed large and strong enough to hold sufficient cold weather necessities for a whole family, and when filled will be sufficient for relief officials. A phone call to 68W will secure a bag, which will be brought to the office or house, or they may be had by calling at the office in the city hall.

TO EAT TRANSIENT MUST EARN MEAL

"I suppose I'll have to get a job and earn a meal, eh?" was the response received by Sergeant Booth after informing a transient that no meals were being supplied at this time in Belleville.

Shortly before noon yesterday a transient walked into the local police station and enquired as to where he might procure a free meal. Sergeant Booth occupied the police desk at the time and informed the wanderer of the road, that no free meals were being provided in this city just now. The "knight of the road" seemed quite disgusted with the local idea and with a shrug of the shoulders made the above reply with no kind suggestion as to where to go to get something to eat.

TEMPERATURES AT NEW LOW LEVEL

A stiff breeze from the north late last evening brought temperatures down to a new low level for the present season, and residents awakening this morning found frost on the streets in the city, and wilted flowers in unprotected areas throughout the district. Thermometers fell early Tuesday morning, to four points above freezing, registering 36 degrees above. The highest point reached on Tuesday was 61 at noon. Although while frost rimmed the grass and plants in the district, little damage was reported from farmers and gardeners who have been prepared for the visitation of frost since the early snap a week or two ago.

CITY CLOCK TOLLS HOUR WRONGLY

Big Ben went temporarily hay wire this morning. While the minute hand of the large clock pointed to exactly sixteen minutes after ten the bell solemnly tolled off the hour of ten o'clock. By eleven a.m. the venerable old time piece had recovered its proper stride and ball and hands once more synchronized.

No marked changes in the prices of farm produce were noted during Tuesday's mild-week market. Eggs remained firm at 30c a dozen while butter sold at 23c the pound. The usual display of farm produce, such as fruits and vegetables, was in evidence with Saturday's prices prevailing throughout. The market was well attended.

LITTLE INTEREST IN CORSET GIFTS

Feminine relief applicants are in for a new style of relief, if Tuesday's city. A gift of some four or five hundred corsets has been made lately to the Central Relief office, and at present large stacks, piles and boxes of the corsets are waiting for distribution. Little interest, however, is displayed by those who call at the office. The corsets were the gift of a salesman of a corset company who found that a few of the shipments slightly damaged in transit.

NEXT WAR TO BE FOUGHT IN AIR, SAYS GENERAL A. E. ROSS

Principal Speaker at Joint Meeting of Service Clubs

"Fellowship Week" was fittingly observed with a joint meeting of Belleville's service clubs, the Rotary, Kiwanis, and Y's Men, Monday evening in the Hotel Quinte. The attendance was 100 members and guests present numbering over one hundred. President Bill Bernard, of the Rotary Club performed the duties of chairman, in his customary efficient and pleasing manner, assisted by S. R. Burrows as song leader; Leo Riggs, pianist, and Gerry Shortt, sergeant-at-arms. Community singing and vocal solos featured the musical program, the soloists being James Bankier, always a local favorite, and Sergeant-Major Wilberkley, of the Air Force camp. The latter, a newcomer in local musical circles, proved himself a first class entertainer, and his selections received an encore, he concluding "The Sad Story of the King" that had had its freshness, "The Village Pump" and "The Candidate."

Frightfulness, possible in the next war, should there be one, furnished a gruesome but interesting theme for General A. E. Ross, M.P., of Kingston Director of Aviation during the great war in World War. General Ross was introduced by W. E. Tummon, M.P., who cited the war record of his services during the war, of his previous services during the South African War, and his present valuable service to Canada as a member of the Dominion Parliament. General Ross had discovered a preventative for trench rot, and an antidote for mustard gas, during the war and was "seven times mentioned in despatches."

War in the Air

General Ross prefaced his address by reference to a speech he made in Parliament when Sir Robert Borden was spending of money on armament, means of defence and defence and, when attention was being centred on the dangers of war from the air, he pointed out that from the time of the cave man were described the peaceful uses to which it could be put, land and sea, there remained no commercial enterprise used daily for industrial purposes, which could be ascribed quickly and made into a weapon of warfare engines for wiping out cities and nations.

Tracing the development of the use of gas in the Great War and the mean slaughter of combat in effectiveness, the speaker said that a new and more deadly gas than any used by the Germans had been developed in the United States and that in the 1919 campaign, if there had been one, and it was a good thing for Germany and the world that when it did, before this gas was tried on them.

Poison Gas Not New

Gas in warfare was not a new thing but had been known for many years. England refused to use it and among civilized nations Germany was the first to utilize it in actual warfare. When the first grey-green clouds of gas swept over the battlefield at Ypres the Germans had the war won, but they could not use it, but they let the opportunity pass and protective measures against this new and deadly weapon of warfare were soon devised. More and deadlier forms of poison gas have since been used by the Germans, gas which gave no notice of its presence until it penetrated the skin, too late for protective measures; gas which interfered irritation and sneezing by invisible dust clouds and induced the soldier to throw off his gas mask when the follow-up gas got in its deadly work; gas which left terrible effect of poison gas upon the soldiers were painted by the speaker, and the possibilities of even greater horrors in the next war, which will be fought principally from the air, with giant planes dropping huge bombs filled with the most destructive gas imaginable upon cities and towns, blotting out everything. It comes in contact with moisture.

Set Fire to Gas Mains

Gas bombs will be dropped from airplanes, which would penetrate the earth, destroy buildings and set fire to the gas mains of the cities, completing a horrible holocaust of destruction, were pictured by the speaker who said that little attention would be paid to the fruit lines, which would be automatically defeated by the destruction of communication and the industries which supplied the sinews of war.

Tracing the tremendous development of engines of warfare during the Great War and the terrible possibilities of still further development were described in detail by the speaker, who said that the backbone of future warfare was in the air force as in the next war, if any, would be fought largely in the air, and invariably the busy devising new and terrible destructive agencies to be dropped from war planes.

Fifty Deadly Gases

Armaments may be scrapped but there is no protection against the use of gases, over fifty of which, each more deadly than the other, have been discovered and materials used daily in industry, and are always ready to be utilized. Science can protect against everything else that might be used as an offensive weapon. In warfare but there is no protection against poison gas.

Armies can be moved twenty to thirty miles a day, motor cars for military purposes move up to sixty miles per hour, but the air plane, carrying death and destruction, travelling at one hundred and fifty miles per hour—what can stand against it? As the greatest danger may be expected from the armies of the air then defence must be made in the air—defence money spent on other armament is largely thrown away.

Appreciation of all present was ably voiced by Past President P. C. MacLaurin of the Kiwanis Club.

FRACTURES LEG WHILE PLAYING

Tweed Lad Injured on High School Campus

Tweed—While engaged in a friendly tussle with a school-mate, during noon hour on Thursday, James Lajoie, a student at Tweed High School, sustained a compound fracture of his left leg. Two young ladies, also students at the High School were present when the shock and fainted. The injured boy was taken by Mr. T. Calnan, one of the staff, to the office of Dr. Doyle where the fracture was reduced. The boy is resting as well as can be expected at his home.

While returning home from the dance on Tweed Fair night, Dan Coffey Jr., son of D. H. Coffey, merchant of Read, narrowly escaped serious injury when the car which he was driving left the road and crashed into a Hydro pole just south of the main entrance to Memorial Park, Tweed.

The accident occurred about two o'clock on Saturday morning. Mr. Coffey and Mr. Joe Shannon, of Latta, both of whom were seated on the left side of the car were cut by flying glass, though neither suffered serious injury.None of the other occupants of the car were hurt. Dr. M. G. Dales attended the injured men. Constables Moon, Hall and Hayes investigated the accident. The left side of the car was badly damaged, and the Hydro pole was shifted several inches from its normal position, and was cracked at a point about four feet from the ground. No explanation is offered as to the cause of the accident, though it is thought that the car may have been too close to the left side of the road and found it impossible to negotiate the turn which is quite sharp.

A Baptismal Service was held at the United Church on Sunday morning in connection with the Communion. Rev. R. R. Nicholson administered the rites of baptism to Lois Ronald and Shirley Ann, the three children of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Way, and to Erma Fay, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Burris. Mr. and Mrs. Burris were also received into membership, having transferred from George St. United Church, Peterboro.

LABOR TO WAR UPON FASCISM

Labor And Fascism Have Nothing in Common Says Compton

(By Thomas T. Champion)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)
Hastings, England, Oct. 2.—(Cp Cable)—Labor was called on today to fight Fascism and Communism in relentless war when Joseph Compton delivered the Presidential address at the opening of the annual convention of the British Labor Party.

Labor and Fascism, declared Compton, had nothing whatever in common, and the failure of Labor must mean the success of the latter. Both Fascism and Communism, he asserted, were a challenge to Democratic institutions.

LETTER TELLS OF STUDENT LIFE IN NEW ZEALAND

Miss Enid Connor, Tweed, Hears From Faraway Pen Friend

Tweed—The following interesting letter was received recently by Miss Enid Connor from a school girl in South Island, New Zealand.

Otama, R. D. GORE
Southland, N.Z.,
Aug. 20th, 1933

Dear Enid:

I received your welcome letter lately and am taking this opportunity to answer it. First of all I shall tell you something about myself.

I am a brown haired, blue-eyed lass about fifty feet seven inches tall weighing eight stone. I have two sisters, Catherine aged nineteen; Caroline, seventeen; and three brothers, Will, who is fifteen; Tom, twelve; and Jim, the baby of us who is seven.

Today is Sunday, and I was at church. Rev. Wm. Hannah, our minister, preached a powerful sermon on "Obedience to Christ". It is rather cold here now, especially in church today.

One of our cows, Mary Ann, was choked on a turnip, I hope she will soon be better.

Otama is beautiful in spring when the fields are green with grass, and the dainty flowers are shyly peeping into the sunlight, and the lambs are bleating, the cows mooing, the birds are caoling and the birds merrily singing, and the world is lovely just like England.

We have a memorial in remembrance of the brave soldiers who sacrificed their lives for us. It is kept in perfect order and is a pretty picture to look upon. Beside it are the Church, the Hall and the School. Also there is a path and mill owner sar well. Our nearest city is Invercargil. We are 55 miles south from there. Gore is 15 miles south and is our nearest town. It is my home town and is situated on a hollow surrounded by hills. Rather a pretty little place. It has two schools, a memorial, a convent and half a dozen churches. My granny lives with us. She is quite old, and quite young for her age too.

Dad died last October. He was quite a young man still 56 years old. He was ill for six years suffering with paralytic strokes which paralized his left side. Just before he died he was unable to feed himself and suffered great agony.

For pets we have a cheeky little puppy, called "Mac", a black pussy, called "Nigger" and two fancy pigeons. Have you any pets? At present we are milking two cows. In summer we will be milking twenty. As for horses we have five working horses, a hack, and one motherless mare, foal, called Fanny. Besides we have one hundred and forty sheep and sixty hens and ducks.

Lately we have been working in the garden. We have mixed up the flower garden and tomorrow we will be working in one for the vegetables.

In my next letter I will send you some snaps of myself and other things. I will close now with love

Your pen pal,
Jessie Price.

Fall Ploughing Weeks Ahead

Reports from throughout this district indicate that this season has been a record one for early fall plowing. Assisted by favorable weather the majority of farmers of the section have been able to finish the operation weeks ahead of the usual time, making it one of the earliest seasons in years. Plowing matches have been completed on nearly every farm, and in many cases with time banging heavily on their hands, farmers have been able to finish a second and third plowing, said to be good practice when the land is dry. The drought during the early part of the present season and the early maturing of nearly all crops was also a feature of the day. This

By LEVON E. HORTON

No vegetables. No milk or fats. No eggs. No hair-cutting. No soap. No toothpaste. And no high-heeled shoes or tight clothing for women.

Following these ten commandments constitute paradise for two Brooklyn naturalists, Prof. Juan Ramon-Wilkins and Dr. Walter Siegmeister and their followers who are establishing a "Garden of Eden" on a tiny island in Limon Bay, eight miles off the city of Colon on the Atlantic side of Panama.

Prof. Ramon-Wilkins is sailing with his wife and eight-months-old baby to establish headquarters on the island, called Orange Key, and next month Dr. Siegmeister will follow with a group of some thirty men and women from all parts of the United States.

"As Man First Lived"

There they will live "virtually as man first lived and was intended to live", according to Ramon-Wilkins. Their sole labor, after they have established themselves in thatch huts, will be acquiring of fruits from trees. The fruit will be their only food, as it is of the gentle, which the professor says man most closely resembles. The rest of the time will be spent in leisure—reading and following out the artistic leanings of the individual members of the colony.

"Wear Little Clothing"

The colonists will establish their own code of living, with the two professor says man most closely re- men as the ultimate authority in the final decision. There will be no toothpaste or soap. We will clean our teeth with the juice of the orange. And we will wash with clear water.

"We will let our hair grow. It improves thatching, since it is stuffed with the pineal and pituary glands and it attracts other women.

An "Ideal Diet"

"Vegetables will be taboo in our living methods. The gorillas never eat them. Herbs are for animals that bend downward. Roots are for animals with snouts. It is a philosophical fact that man is an upright vertebrate animal, which reaches into the trees for his livelihood.

"Our foodstuffs will consist of bread fruits, papayas, cocoanuts, bananas and oranges. The winds on Orange Key will be rich in iodine and potassium. And we will have all of the elements of an ideal diet."

To Colonize.

According to Prof. Ramon-Wilkins who left years old, his group will live at Orange Key for the present and later move to a plateau, known as Boquete, on the Pacific side of Panama.

They plan to branch out and colonize in a number of remote spots, Honduras, Brazil and Africa.

Prof. Ramon-Wilkins and Dr. Siegmeister established a trial camp last summer at Mount Olive, near Flanders, N.J., and Lake Hopatcong. There they carried out in so far as possible the principles which will govern their tropical Eden. There close to a hundred people lived practically nude and ate only fruits.

That group will make up the personnel of the party to accompany Dr. Siegmeister on a fleet of three yachts. Privately owned by members of the group, the boats that make the trip will carry cultural equipment in the nature of books and musical instruments.

NEWS OF THE CHURCHES

That the church is coming to realize the advantage of publicity is clearly indicated in the trend in the United Church and in the Church of England. The latter church has an active organization which sends out news of real value, chosen and selected by journalists. The Church of England has now found in the publicity given the Restoration Fund that the press serves as a real ally in such effort. On a recent date the general secretary of the Council for Social Service reported as follows:

"The Restoration Fund press service was of great value. Never before has the Church carried on so extensive and carefully organized a publicity campaign through the press. Our very real thanks are due to the Canadian Press, the daily and weekly papers throughout Canada and all our church papers for the very generous use made of the material so lavishly supplied and for the many helpful editorial references.

"The wide use made of the press illustrates what a great deal it will be to the Church when the General Synod's recommendation for the establishment of a department of publicity is implemented."

RAILWAY IMPROVEMENTS

That higher railway speeds will mark the coming era is the view expressed by certain railway men, who foresee streamline bodies on coaches and trains to make greater speed.

This advantage would put the train into competition with the bus which operates on the highway and provides for rapid service. Of course even today the train has the advantage in speed over the bus, but increasing of the speed would ensure more prosperity for the railway train in a position of superiority over the bus.

The St. Thomas Times-Journal ventures the opinion that the railways have shown a lack of initiative as they did not foresee the powerful rival which the highway coach has proven to be in the railroads, and have acted too generally, in a position of self-complacency.

The talked-of reduction in the rates of travel by train would, perhaps, be the most powerful incentive to more train travel. Today a motorcar can carry on the average its driver at a lower cost from one part of the country to another than he can travel by train and when it is considered that the automobile can carry at least four others, then the reason is very clear for the popularity of the motorcar. But lower rates, greater speed and specially constructed trains, may be the means of, for it is clear that railways will not at all cases sway as a means of transportation. Yet it would seem that they have to become more flexible, they will have to find for business and have something of the mobility of the bus and automobile. Trains are limited to tracks and do not run to streets or turn corner after corner. Some change, perhaps with the adoption of auxiliary services, will probably come.

One thing is clear. The motorcar has slowly, but definitely kept its way forward to the creation of types of cars which lower wind resistance while trains, improved in other respects, flaunt the air currents with complacency.

SNAILLIKE DRIVERS

Those who travel the highways even at this late season of the year cannot fail to see the menace the slow-moving automobile is to traffic. Especially is this apparent in congested areas, but even more so in the approach to grades or hills, where the order is indicated 'Do Not Pass on the Hill.' The regulation which prevents passing on hills is a wise one for hill-passing makes accidents very likely. But the slow and immobile driver cares not how he is holding back traffic especially in places where the traffic behind him cannot turn out either because of congestion or because of the hills.

Some means should be found to make the speed on the highways, more uniform, so that motorcars will not tie up in a cluster in the rear of a slowly moving machine. Some of the slow cars are delapidated contraptions and their drivers are evidently unlikely to spur them up to greater speeds, unless the department takes a hand.

(With strength that does not wane or sleep)
Love's certainty, abiding, deep.

Be strong unceasingly in trust
That not one valiant sword shall rust,
Not one hand fail, whose cause is just.

Choose strength's bright armor for your heart
So, when long-cherished joys depart,
You can withstand pain's piercing dart.

Be strong, though in time's dark you grope
Life's height or valley, plain or steep.
Be strong in faith, be strong in hope!

GET OUT YOUR SNOW SHOVELS and fill the bins with coal, for this is going to be a real old-fashioned Canadian winter, according to old settlers up Cobourg way, who have been watching the animals and find that the groundhogs are carrying apples to their dugouts, and also laying in a supply of vegetables, and squirrels are also busy putting in a good supply of winter eats. Corn patches are also being visited by animals and the corn put away for the winter. Bluster ahead. To clinch the matter the old settlers state that the animals are developing their winter fur coats early, a sure sign of an early and long winter.

GAS MASKS FOR CIVILIANS and gas proof chambers for children being arranged for in Denmark indicates that the belief is current in that country that another big war is brewing, and that it will be a chemical war. Gas masks will be sold in drug stores for 24 kroners, about $5.08, with full instructions for their use. The subsidiality of constructing special gas-proof rooms in buildings for the protection of children is also under consideration, and it is planned to have one eventually in every building. When nations are continually talking about war and preparing for war there is strong likelihood that eventually there will be war.

A Short History of Science at the Chicago Exposition

What has been called the shortest history of science appears in the west wall of the great room of the Hall of Science at the Century of Progress Exposition. The history was written by Dr. Henry Crew:

"Pythagoras named the All. Cosmos; Euclid shaped- Geometry — Archimedes physics.

"Xenophanes gazing upon the heavens saw them to be one. Copernicus placed central in that one our shining sun.

"Democritis glimpsed the atomic theory of the structure of matter; Dalton established it.

"When, in the nineteenth century, Lamarck and Darwin formulated the great principle of organic evolution, the science of life was first seen as a cosmic progression of nature.

"The Century of Progress saw Oersted and Faraday discover, and Maxwell and Hertz advance, the theory of electromagnetism.

"Through the labors of Becquerel, of the Curies and of Thomson, in our own day are revealed fragile atoms and electrons.

Curtailment of Political Machines Only Way to Halt Gangdom Alliances

New York's Medalie Tells How Rackets Gain Foothold

(Mr. Medalie gives his first interview on rackets exclusively to Central Press Canadian.)

By BRYCE OLIVER

Central Press Canadian Correspondent

The much-advertised alliance between gangdom and certain political machines is a cold four-square business deal.

Such is the opinion of George Z. Medalie, New York's mild-mannered scholarly federal prosecutor, who recently tightened the political tension in the metropolis by pinning the black badge of gangdom on at least four powerful political leaders.

"Personal observation and careful reading of reports has convinced me that New York is not the only city in the country where this situation exists," he asserts.

The One Cure.

"I believe that the only way to cure it is by ousting the dominating of machine politics in local governments. Only in this way can American cities hope to divorce their affairs completely from the underworld influence."

Medalie would not be quoted with regard to his recent charge before Senator Royal S. Copeland, conducting the senate investigation, that certain prominent New York district leaders are working hand-in-glove with gangsters.

He consented, however, to discuss the problem in a general way. Weighing his words carefully, evidently with full appreciation of the responsibility of his position and of his charges created, the prosecutor of Charles F. (Lucky) Luciano and James J. Davis and of New York's leading underworld figure, "Waxey" Gordon, stated:

Political Outgrowths.

"There are professional politicians, who are the creation of municipal machines, and because they are dependent to treat racketeers as a business man treats his commercial customers.

"The gangsters customarily are used in strategic points on election days to aid in fraudulent registration and voting at the polls.

"Certain gangsters do not perform for nothing. Sometimes they are called upon to perform. Therefore, a practical-minded person should have no difficulty in understanding why certain political leaders seem so busily engaged around district attorneys' offices and the criminal courts.

Election Tactics.

Medalie said that—her "fraudulent registration and voting by gangsters can be carried out only in certain districts, where the voters, particularly the foreign-born, are easily imposed upon. However, he pointed out, in a close election the influence of the underworld often becomes a determining factor.

"The usual method is terrorism against the voters who are most easily frightened.

"I do not, by any means, mean to imply that all machine politicians make arrangements with underworld leaders. Many, however, who would not soil their hands on racketeers.

"Nevertheless, the machine patronage system in municipal politics is conducive to the development of the type of professional politician who has given politics a bad name. There is only one remedy that I can see and that is to scrap the machine influence in municipal affairs.

Labor Racket.

Medalie also declared that the records of corporations in the United States court for the southern district of New York, including Manhattan and the Bronx, showed that certain political leaders had linked themselves with labor racketeering. In the case of one big labor racketeer, convicted, he said:

"We didn't prove it in court, but we knew he had made substantial contributions to a political organization. Those contributions hadn't been able to convict him; but at least one of them wished us success in the prosecution."

As a result of Medalie's charges in the senate investigation, the New York county grand jury instituted an investigation. The findings recently were turned over to the state attorney-general, John J. Bennett, for further inquiry.

MAIN STREET
Ramblings . . . . . .

Car owners who have been in the trusting habit or parking their machines in the vicinity of vacant lots will have to look out or they will be bothered with an epidemic of flat tires. It has caused considerable concern and scurrying about in these parts lately. It's a nice idea to leave one's machine by the wayside for an hour or so and then come back and find one or more tires mushroomed out on the pavement like a defeated warrior. No one carries a tire pump these days, and generally the rim wrench which should be under the rear seat can't be found to change over to the spare. So it often means a long wait for the garage man. The worst case to have, generally the right rear tire that is attacked, not often the other tires are touched. One car owner who has been in the habit of leaving his car near a school ground found his one tire flat three times last week. Toward the end of the week he kept careful watch from the office window to see how it happened. Then he saw the rascals. Three boys with a defiant look and approached the car, carefully removed the dust cap from the tire, he'd the tube of the bladder out and then proceeded to blow up their ball to the required pressure. They used the right rear wheel because it was the handiest.

Claude Graham, one of the city's old-time sailors, and a deep water sailor at that, has been tattooing and tattooing chests for a good many years now. Considering however, his work has not been confined to just arms and legs—he has done some really creditable work on the hard area of skin through which the backbone runs. When at sea, Claude always carried his little box with him. Inside the box were quite an array of assorted pointed needles, ink and other stuff necessary to carry out the decorations of the country. His little pictures most sailor boys love to have carved on their arms, legs, etc. He forgets how many people he has tattooed during his wanderings around the world. There must have been hundreds of them, though he thinks. But he will tell you that when he first started to tattoo people he used to get in fierce fights to get a little practise. A tattoo artist had to be good then. He had to draw his own designs, sketch the outlines, and then carefully go over the lines and ink with the fine little needles and fill the punctures with the stain. Often the design took intricate hours of work to finish one. He worked it in shifts. For example, if he was working on a full masted barque, or a regular round-the-Horn clipper, he would lay by for next one day's sketching in the hull the next day, and then work them along to the end of the rigging and masts, with each sitting. As he got better at the work he used to take as much for one big picture or scene. So he picked up quite a little pocket money between ports. There was always some one on board who wanted to become a second "tattooed man," so a lot of his trade were the repeaters. In the old days it was a fairly long tedious work, getting tattooed, because needles were all held and worked by hand. The old fashioned inks and stains used to cause some pretty bad sores on the tattooed spots. But now it's different. You can get a regular little electric machine for the purpose and the job is done in a very few minutes. In the days of sail, the tattoo man has regular printed pictures to go by. You simply wet them, lay them on the skin, and the whole picture is there to work from. The ink and stain is also medicated and an antiseptic, he is careful to explain. Sailors seem in the old days used to go in pretty heavy for mermaids and full blown nymphs, and also prominently displayed daggers used to run a good second, while any officer the sailor would ask him his name and address tattooed somewhere—just in case of accident. His biggest job, he thinks, was the time he tattooed a four masted schooner on the back of a big Swede. The boat was in full sail, and was about three inches high. Claude says that nowadays nobody wants to get tattooed any more. New and then the old dog a job for some youngster who thinks it's smart to have a tattoo, but that's about the extent of the trade. The old-timers never come to him any more. Or if they do come, they want him to take off some previous work. Claude says that everybody ought to be tattooed. It's better than finger printing, and the police would be able to keep track of people better. One of the queerest jobs he ever did was he printed the complete Lord's Prayer on the forearm of a sailor.

And he went in, Feds Sammun saying, G. I wonder if it really was for him, he's such a darn liar you never can tell, and I said, It was for him all rite, you heard what the letter carrier said, and anyways I saw his name on it myself.

COUNTED OUT FOR 1ST TIME IN CAREER

Life of Stribling Strangest in Annals of Pugilism

VARIED CAREER

Sometimes Brilliant And at His Worst, Fans Said "Yellow"

(By Alan M. Abele, Associated Press Staff Writer)

Macon, Ga., Oct. 3 (AP)— They counted out Young Stribling early today for the first time in a 15-year career that stands as one of the strangest in the annals of pugilism.

In the stillness of a hospital room—a setting which was the very antithesis of the active life he had led—death came to "the boy" as Stribling called him, from injuries suffered in a traffic accident.

A veteran at 29 of more than 300 ring battles and five times champion for titles he never won, Young Stribling had left for his record books a question mark as to his true rating as a fighter.

At his best he was brilliant; at his worst they hurled at him the taunting cry of "yellow." And in between he went his way smilingly, undaunted, taking on all comers in a campaign that carried him to the far ends of the earth.

Those who knew Stribling as an amateur athletic director, golf and tennis partner, golf and basketball star—never questioned his courage.

Plenty Doing

"Particularly, any who flew with him, breathed freely once more only when their feet again touched their feet again. He had walked away from at least one crash in his plane and, until Sunday, had been on his feet at the finish of every venture he ever tackled.

After a childhood acrobatic career Stribling entered the fistic wars as a slight, wiry-bright pompadoured youth, wearing bright purple tights made by his mother — Mrs Stribling, who was in his corner for every big fight from then on. He won a four round decision the day from Kid Dumb an Atlanta newsboy, but it was not until three years later that he gained wide fame in the memorable "three fer dollars" bout with Mike McTigue, then light heavyweight champion, at Columbus, Ga.

Harry Greb brought along as referee by the McTigue faction found himself in a quandary at the end of a fight with many close rounds. Young Stribling had won. After Young Stribling had won. After making on unintelligible announcement about to Stribling, Ertle rendered his final decision—a draw—upon returning to his hotel with the boos of a crowd of game Georgians still ringing in his ears.

Met Best Boxers

Pushed into the front of the picture by Tex Rickard, Stribling the next eight years met the best of them—Berlenbach, Sharkey, Loughran, Scott, Carnera, Schaaf and Schmeling—with credit always, even had a title always eluded him. Almost to the end this morning he remained considerate, carrying on the same spirit that he showed when they brought him from the roadside on Sunday.

"Well kid, I guess this means no more road work," was his grim comment to a friend who was trying to reach calm in her bed beside his wrecked motorcycle with one foot dangling at a grotesque angle, "but how that doesn't sound as if "the boy" was fellow.

Yesterday afternoon G. E. "Ernie" Gibson, City Manager and Eastern Ontario O.B.A.A. executive member, flew by plane from Montreal to New York City where he will attend the first two games of the present world series. "Ernie" was invited to the "set-up" by Umpire-in-chief B. Emslie of the National League and will occupy a seat in the box reserved for the umpires' grounds. Mr. Gibson who hails from St. Thomas, Ont., has been the chief arbiter of the senior major loop for three many years.

Incidentally the radio fans had better take full advantage of this year's world series broadcast as it may be the last of its kind. The series will be broadcast by the N.B.C. and the Columbia system. We have been given to understand that radio folk will no longer enjoy that rich broadcast plum that is the future. The right to air baseball's classic in 1934 and later years will be sold to the highest bidder, with the proceeds going to the home for old professional baseball players.

After talking into consideration the various predictions of the big league sports writers it looks as though the New York Giants are expected to pull another Boston Braves miracle of 1914. Practically all concerned seem to agree, that the American League is still the class of baseball and neither brother but, with a team battling collectively like Bill Terry's Giants, and the pride of the "Foreign Legion" rows ray away. Behind Smart Hurling by Phillips, Picton Even Series with Falconbridge Miners

Score 7-5 in Well Played Game Before Large Crowd

WINNERS HIT WELL

Blows Come When Bases Populated, Which Retired Ralph

With the series all square, the result as it is to be won by the Picton intermediates over the Falconbridge "Miners" being a replay of the tie game of Saturday last, the teams will battle it out at Napanee in a sudden death game at Napanee on Wednesday with the winner meeting Southampton "Fishermen" in the intermediate O.B.A.A. final of 1933.

Timely hitting on the part of the Vanover-led clan won the day for the Prince Edward County intermediates, when they capitalized to the fullest measure on the mishaps committed by the "Northerners" when hits meant runs. Once again "Warpy" Phillips was elected by Manager Vanover to stop the Bessner led clan from the mat-ic. Despite the fact, that Phillips faltered slightly at times he rose to heights in the pinches, and hurled his team into a tie with the powerful "Miners". Billie Ralph, who had previously beaten the Picton club and also injured them into a tie game, was elected to try his luck against the slugging Picton club once again, but, two days before Saturday, Billie's downfall and he retired in favour of Percy Larrance, the Sudbury hockey fame, who went on to finish the game and assume defeat. Captain Beaver of the visiting team from the north was the big hitter of the day with a double, triple and 3 timely double. For the winners Burke, McQuaid and Cole hit well in the pinches.

The twosters bagged six big runs in the first two innings, three in each frame. They added three seventh run in the fifth following Mighton's double. The visitors scored in the fourth and added two more in the third on four successive hits. With great daring them in the face the "Miners" assumed the offensive in the eighth and ninth when they gathered one run in each of those frames only falling short in scoring the needed tying runs in the fatal ninth, when Phillips rose to the occasion and subdued the oncoming Falconbridge batsmen.

The fielding sensations were provided by Leavens and Mighton of the home club, while Beaver and Smith stood out for the losing "Miners". The splendid catching game of the series will be played at the Gibbard Memorial Stadium at Napanee on Wednesday afternoon.

Lindstrom of Pirates Calls Old Team Mates to Win

Major Hockey Trade

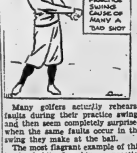
Reliable reports are to the effect that Lorne Chabot, solemn-faced goal tender of the Toronto Maple Leafs in the National Hockey League will this year do his puck stopping with Les Canadiens of Montreal. In return George Hainsworth, veteran shut-out king, will come to Toronto. Perhaps Chabot, who, while playing Stadium at Napanee on Wednesday afternoon.

With Trainer of Club on Way to North For Holiday

Freddie Lindstrom classy outfielder for the Pittsburg Pirates in the National League, Dr. Charles Jorgensen, trainer for the same club and their wives were visitors in the city today on their way to Pievna for a ten day hunting and fishing trip. Both have made trips to Canada before but not to this section and they were pleased with the possibilities for a holiday and the hospitality of the Canadian people. The reporter for the Ontario Intelligencer had the pleasure to meet this pleasant couple and naturally the conversation drifted to baseball. Neither of the men are enthused over the World's Series and stated that probably they would turn on the radio to hear some of the games but no special effort would be made to keep in touch with the game.

Asked as to the prospects of the Giants in the coming series, Lindstrom gave the representatives of his league a slight edge, which was only natural but he gave full credit to Joe Cronin and his Senators remarking "they are smart". In answer to a statement "that the American League was twenty percent stronger than the National loop Mr. Lindstrom remarked, that the competition was not as good in the American League as in the National. "There has always been three stang out teams in the American League, while in the National the playing strength is more evenly divided and makes for better ball" said the ball player. "There were several teams in the National loop that could have won the pennant this year had the breaks come but such is the luck of the game."

Hubbell Outstanding



Speaking of the coming series, Lindstrom remarked that Carl Hubbell was the outstanding hurler in either league. "He is a natural hurler and has developed the screw ball to an exactness, that is uncanny and Mr. Lindstrom. "The ball is thrown up to a right hand hitter by a left hand pitcher the same as it would be thrown by a righthander to a right hand hitter and after breaking takes another curve towards the inside corner. He has marvelous control and can throw the same ball with three speeds. His change of pace throws a hitter off balance and in all he is the "berries". Hubbell is a gentleman in every particular and as no time tries to "dust off" a hitter." Most likely Hubbell will have trouble with the Senators in that many of them hit from the southpaw side of the plate and the ball would naturally be breaking into them. Schumacher is "also smart" but Pittsimmons and Parmalee are not in the same class with the first mentioned two. Probably Schumacher will be the standout of the series.

Mr. Lindstrom would not count himself on the prospects of George "Moonye" Gibson losing his job at Pittsburg. He did as well as anyone could with the team but the fans are fickle and many in Pittsburg were of the opinion, that we should have won the pennant but the Giants were "hot" and played their best ball in the pinches. I expect to be back next year. Lindstrom broke into the big league as a boy of 18 and was called the "boy wonder". In the series of 1924 between the Giants and the Senators, Lindstrom was made the goat, when in the seventh game of the series the ball twice took bad hops and were not fielded allowing the Senators to win in 12 innings. Lindstrom was traded by the Giants to Pittsburg last fall and was placed in he outfield instead of the infield and more than made good for his owners.

Introduction to the party was made by John Fahey, local lederdashrr and close student of baseball.

GOLF FACTS NOT THEORIES.

ALEX. J. MORRISON

LIFTING HEAD IS PRACTICE SWING OF MANY A BAD SHOT

Many golfers scarcely rehearse faults during their practice swings and then seem completely surprised when the same faults occur in the swing they make at the ball.

The most flagrant example of this is the habit of making a practice swing with the head turning around with the body

In other words, the player deliberately exercises his head to raise or move out of the proper position while he's making a shot.

If he would only make sure that his head was in the right position during the practice swing he might have a chance of keeping it in that position during the actual shot.

FINE ADDRESSES

Miss Angela Whalen is Valedictorian of Class

An auspicious occasion in the school year of St. Michael's Academy was the awarding last evening in the Academy Auditorium of the prizes won by clever pupils in the junior and high school departments and the presentation of certificates for lower school and junior matriculation examinations. In the presence of a large number of parents, officers of the Catholic Women's League, (the organization which provides the majority of prizes for competition at the Academy), teachers and school friends, the boys and girls received the reward of their year of faithful study.

The Academy Auditorium was beautifully decorated for the occasion, the stage being particularly attractive with its profusion of colorful Autumn flowers. Seated on the platform were Rt. Rev. J. P. Nicholson, V.G., who acted as chairman, Rev. J. Clancy of Kingston, Toronto, Rev. J. Regiopolis College, Rev. H. J. Madden, Miss K. Dolan, president of the C.W.L., Mrs. F. Fitzpatrick, past president, and the students who were to receive prizes. The program was opened with a musical selection by the Old Orchard Lawrence Paul, and Ruth Kelly. Monsignor Nicholson presented certificates for lower school and matriculation examinations to pupils of the first, second and third forms of the High School Department of the Academy.

MISS LAURA TAYLOR

Missing from her home at Elizabeth Bay, Ont., it is feared that Miss Laura Taylor, until recently a resident of Deseronto, Ontario, has been kidnapped. Miss Taylor last year was much in the news when it was announced by Hamilton doctors that she would die if she did not get married.

FEARED KIDNAPPED

Miss Angela Whalen, a student in the fourth form this year, gave the valedictorian address as follows which will be long remembered by her hearers. Delivered in graceful style, Miss Whalen's message to her fellow students was sincere and timely. She counselled them to take advantage of the wonderful facilities provided for their education, to make the utmost use of their time at school, do work diligently and to remember that by their example they were influencing the actions of many. Miss Whalen concluded her address by thanking Monsignor Nicholson for the deep interest he takes in scholastic life, and by expressing appreciation to the teachers and to the kind donors of prizes.

A piano duet by Dorothy Morgan and Ruth Kelly was followed by the awarding of prizes to students who had the highest marks in their June examinations. These were as follows:—Second Class—Dorothy Rose, Third—Annie Acerro, Senior Fourth, Room One—Kathleen O'Callaghan, Room Two—Ruth Belair. All of these prizes were donated by the Catholic Women's League.

Margaret Webster was presented with the Knights of Columbus prize for passing highest in the Entrance Examinations at the Academy. This clever student was second in the city's entrance candidates, being only one mark below that of the highest ranking pupil. Frank O'Neil won the second K. of C. prize in the Entrance Class.

Donald Dell, who came fourth in the list of successful students in Belleville at the Entrance Examinations was awarded a prize and also received his prize for winning second place in the C.W.L. diocesan essay contest.

In the High School Department the prizes were won in the First Form by John McMahon, first, and Marie Oswald, second, the prizes being the gift of Mr. Alphonse Black. In the second form examinations, Miss Betty Belair won first prize and Miss Mary Meagher second while for third form work Douglas Duminis was first and Helen McQuaid second. It is interesting to note that the last two students have won the prizes for each year in the High School. Second and Third form prizes were donated by Monsignor Nicholson.

Upon receipt of their prizes each student gave a graceful speech of thanks, showing by their fine stage manner that they are promising actors.

Rev. Father Clancy was then called upon and in an interesting manner addressed the students and their friends. Father Clancy congratulated the people of Belleville parish on the beautiful school they have provided and maintained and that their zeal and self sacrifice has had marked results was exemplified by the fine work of the pupils demonstrated last evening by their high academic standing and their remarkable ability as public speakers. The valedictory brought out many fine points which the students would do well to remember.

The logical question is sometimes raised "what is the purpose of this long training, this ordeal of study" and the question has been well answered by famous philosophers who reply that all education is a preparation for after life. The period of education will soon pass away, the period whose aim and purpose has been to fit the individual to take their place in life. To many the high school course marks the end of their scholastic education. They will enter trade and commerce, but the principles, the character, the ability to exert their energy and attention on matters on hand that has been part of their education are absolutely necessary for their success in after life.

The last students will often say: "I don't have to bother much now, wait till I get out of school." Then I'll be a success." They argue that success in academic work is not necessarily a guarantee of success in after life. This idea has been proven false by records that cannot be questioned. Officials in Harvard University having made an exhaustive research of the fate of good and bad students find that ninety-six per cent. of their good students made the natural careers in after life. So one sees that those whose student years have been marked by industry, attentiveness, adaptability, and eagerness to learn have acquired the necessary character to fit them for success in future undertakings.

The words of the valedictorian in urging students to employ their time well is a wise warning for nothing is so pathetic as the fate of the student with ability, who wastes time year by year and whose lack of industry finally makes him a useless drifter. In conclusion, Father Clancy commended the Catholic Women's League on their practical interest in matters of education as shown by their annual awarding of prizes.

Rev. Father Madden paid tribute to the young men and women, who had won their spurs after faithful work and to whom the occasion was a night of triumph. Monsignor Nicholson thanked the Catholic Women's League the Knights of Columbus and Mr. Alphonse Black for their generous donation of prizes which were such a great incentive to the scholars of the school. He spoke of the need of full sided education which is designed to embrace man's faculties, physical, intellectual and spiritual. Education must be rounded to embrace all man's possibilities. The human mind is the field over which completing theories sway for supremacy. He paid tribute to the work of the Sisters who have laboured for years in this parish, years consecrated to the training of the children in whose service they spend their lives.

Miss Dolan, president of the League, in an interesting address, said she was very proud to represent the League and to extend to the Sisters and students, congratulations on this occasion, and expressed the desire of the League to continue to co-operate with the Sisters in all matters for the furtherance of education.

Mrs. P. J. Lee moved a vote of thanks to Monsigner Nicholson and the speakers of the evening. Mrs. James Lynch seconding the motion. The singing of the National Anthem brought the program to a close.

Dr. O. A. Marshall and Dr. Jack Marshall attended the clinic on Denture Technic at the La Salle Hotel, Kingston, last evening.

A farewell party was held last evening at the home of Miss Doris Williams, Derwyn Park, in honor of Miss Hazel Saunders, who is leaving this week to reside in Belleville. Fifteen of Miss Williams fellow C.G.I.T. girls were present. The first part of the evening was spent in various games. Then Miss Mary Cowain, leader of the C.G.I.T. read a short address and spoke of the splendid help Hazel had been in the group and of the kindly welcome and lovely times all had had at Miss Williams' home. Miss Emma Cowain presented Hazel with a beautiful pendant. Hazel in a few well chosen words thanked the girls and invited them to her new home. A dainty lunch was served by the hostess. After a vote of thanks to the hostess and to Miss Cowain the "Good-Night Ladies" the party came to a close.

YOU MAY WEAR A TWO-FACED when it comes to clothes this season. The very newest suit is the simple affair of fine black woollen. Perfectly plain and tailored, it has a scarf that goes around to display that the entire back of the suit is an insert of leopard fur . . . .

JUST A TOUCH of ingenuity is all that is needed to make a garment stand out from the crowd. A simple coat of silver-brown ribbed woollen is made sensational by the collar of ombre lamb which is set circular around the throat, allowing one end to continue down as a long revere. There is a muff of the fur.

WHY NOT BE A SPARKLING SUCCESS and wear a frock with mirror trimming. A simple dress of black silk crepe, cut on the severest lines had a pointed yoke made entirely of tiny round bits of mirror glass.

Advice to the Lovelorn

They Have Both Been Frank

Dear Miss Fairfax:

About seven months ago I started going with a certain girl whom I learned to love, and we were planning to get married; but a week ago she told me that she had an affair with another boy two years ago. After that I went home, feeling sad and broken; I was thinking about not seeing her any more.

But still, I have been living a pretty wild life for the last four years, and I also had affairs. Besides, I went to see another girl a few times since I started going with her. When I told her about it she took it on the chin, like the sport she always has been, although in her heart deeply.

Should I quit seeing her, or would this marriage turn out all right? I love her above everything else, and I want to do the right thing. Please answer.

Worried.

This girl seems to me to be honest and candid—two qualities that form a secure basis for friendship. No family life can be secure without these splendid virtues. You have been equally free with the truth—a fine start.

The main thing is to keep straight with each other, and I am very glad that you will be, too. If you are very young, I hope you will be guided by your parents' advice in this matter. Or write me again and tell me how old you are.

Discovered He is Married

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 18; the boy is 22. I've gone steady for over two months with him. He says he loves me and it would be a sorry day when we parted. He comes over every night.

Just last week a stranger woman told my brother that he was going out with her husband. That night he told me all about it, before I had a chance to ask him. He cried, pleaded, begged me never to leave him, said that I was the only thing left that kept him happy and cheerful. He's very good to me. I was terribly jealous of him until that night. Do you think he has lied to me?

I lived in this town for over nine years, and I know most all the people. His wife lives but five blocks away. She wants to talk to me, my brother says. What shall I say when I see her? We've been acquainted for over seven months. He said he was going to divorce her.

Please won't you help me? I will watch every day for your answer.

Lillums.

He should have told you that he was married, before you were entangled in the affair. Now that you know he is a married man, there is nothing for you to do except it short of breaking off all relations. You had just better go and coax some to anybody concerned by going on with such a tangle. Fortunately, you have escaped without much harm and is free, and if you still care for him, he may consider continuing his friendship and even closer ties. But until that time, better cut it out.

Made Him Give Up Baseball

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am asking your advice. I went with a certain boy about two years, trying at all times to please her in every possible way. Every one who drank, I quit when asked to by her, and I also stopped playing baseball when she asked me to. I even went as far as to quit going to any of my friends of long standing on her account.

Last night about three or four months ago, I went to her home. Her mother told me the girl no longer desired my company, and as I might, she would give no reason for the breaking. Now, after about three or four months, I am asking her to return. I still think a lot of her, but friends tell me not to go back.

B. A. C.

No man can do better than to follow the lead of his heart. You are fortunate to be desired by a woman of fine principles. She has exerted a splendid influence over you in the matter of drinking, but failed to understand her objection to baseball.

But you must be prepared to give and take. For instance, you would only be gold sportsmanship if she agreed to drop her change of heart toward you during these four months. I think you are entitled to some reasonable explanation about giving up your friends and baseball.

He's Happy Go-Lucky; She's Serious

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 16 and am going "steady" with a boy 18. He is the happy-go-lucky type and rather fickle, while I am just the opposite—very serious and steady in my devotion to him. I know that he likes me better than any other girl, but he likes to (col around with them, and when I see him even talking to some other girl it puts quite a damper on my spirits.

Other boys bore me and I just can't seem to get interested in them, no matter how hard I try, and, while I am very much in love, I am sometimes puzzled. But I can't go on like this. I've told him how I feel, and he says it's his nature to be that way, and reassures me that I am the only one. Can you help me, please.

J. H. G.

At the heavenly age of 16, my dear, many things seem impossible that, which later on become practically automatic! Among them are concealing our feelings and not showing how much ugly primitive, emotional we are.

Very probably you will have several sweethearts before you walk up the aisle on your father's arm to the inspiring strains of Lohengrin, to find your Fate awaiting you at the altar.

Meantime, try to learn something about the technique of living. Don't break your heart over a boy you know to be fickle and who likes all girls. For, my dear child, you will not always be 16. Enjoy your youth.

Offers Being Far Apart—at New Time High—Stocks Idle Also With No Leadership

NEW YORK FINANCIAL

New York, Oct. 3 (AP)—Financial markets kept their mid-week trim tuned today but strong trade winds failed to stir them to the extent they way was made.

Stocks generally were dully irregular as tooth bulls and bears appeared to slumber in a morass of indecision. Inflationary sentiment seemingly was at a low ebb and bids and offers for gold and lacers were far apart. Another increase in the price of newly mined gold for export hoised the metal shares with fresh hope in the early hours, but their moderate buoyancy was offset by heaviness of the rails. Bonds continued unenthusiastic. Aside from moderate advances in shares of Dome and Hollinger, prominent Canadian stocks were not inclined to go very far. Shares of Canadian Pacific eased and that of International Nickel was unchanged. On the curb, issues of Hiram Walker and Lake Shore were well exchanged 1-3 point higher. Dominion government bonds were narrow. The $ were mildly firmer while the £ eased. The Canadian dollar gained 1-4 of a cent at 98.27 1-2 cents.

STANDARD EXCHANGE

Toronto, Oct. 3 (CP)—Some of the Penny shares showed more expensive shares saide today and provided quite a flurry in the business in the morning session of the Standard Mining Exchange. Central Manitoba, Lake Shore, Parkhill, Barry Hollinger and St. Lawrence changed hands. McVittie, Ventures and Macassa, had the chief turn most of them at rising prices. The central zone was firm with some business passing in Leading base metal shares were steady, Noranda, trading unchanged at $36 and Nickel at 20.25.

Gold bars sold in London today at a new all-time high mark, but the fact had no influence on the market for base-metal issues, which lagged more than usual, showing gains or losses limited to about 25 cents. Teck Hughes and Wright Hargreaves showed a little trading action at slightly softer prices.

TORONTO EXCHANGE

TORONTO, Oct. 3 (CP)—Distillery and Metal Shares had a little fun today on the Toronto Exchange with prices moderately higher but elsewhere interest was at a minimum as well exchanges. Ford A eased back below 12 on light selling and losses of minor fractions were in the majority, the list moving in sympathy with the declines market in New York.

Nickel showed up a little steam and advanced 20 cents to 20.40 but Smeltery went into reverse, dropping 2 1-2 to 134. Hollinger was off 1-4 to 13.12-2. C.P.R. gained 1-8 to 14.6-8 and Bell 1-4 to 109. Gold-ora was down 1-8.

Lacking definite leadership from Wall Street and News of market importance, stocks idled along in a narrow groove covering one hop and fractional gains the next. Metals and Distillery shares were restless. Nickel getting up to 20.40 and then settling back to 20.30, while Waterous common swung up and down between 42 1-2 and 44 1-2.

CHANCELLOR OF AUSTRIA IS WOUNDED BY TWO BULLETS

Young Soldier Arrested as Assailant, Wound Not Serious

TENSE SITUATION

Vienna, Oct. 3 (AP)—Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss was shot and wounded today in what authorities described as an attempted assassination.

A youthful gunman found the Chancellor in the Parliament building—seat of the parliamentary body exempt Dollfuss shelved August 3.

The assailant fired twice, both shots taking effect. However, surgeons said the Chancellor was "not dangerously wounded."

The youth was placed under arrest.

Authorities were not able immediately to determine whether the gunman was a Nazi or a Socialist.

Bullet Wound Slight

Rushed to a hospital a few blocks distant, the Chancellor was found to have been wounded slightly in his left breast also. This shot ripped through his coat and vest and grazed his shoulder.

A young soldier whose political connections were not immediately known immediately able to learn was arrested in connection with the attempted assassination, and police began a round-up of all political suspects.

Chancellor Dollfuss returned to Vienna from the assembly of the League of Nations at Geneva last Friday to find politics in his capital seething. Nazis and Socialists both by the government itself and the Fascist Heimwehr, which recently pledged its allegiance to the Dollfuss patriotic front.

Further adding to the unsettled state of affairs, evidences were seen of opposition to the Heimwehr even in quarters friendly to the Chancellor.

Fights Nazi Efforts

Fighting desperately against Nazi attempts to bring his country into the fold, the Chancellor was assassinated at Germany's behest, frustrated his intention of leading the struggle to keep Austria an independent nation. The German delegates did not join in the applause.

A part of the Austrian cabinet which confronting Dollfuss was engendered by the Lower Austrian Provincial Council which recently passed a resolution to the effect that the organization long glad advocated a change in the existing forms of democracy but not the abolition of democracy itself.

Domination of Government

This was interpreted by some observers as a move to dominate Dollfuss' virtually complete domination of the government.

In his own cunning party politics from Austrian governmental affairs the Chancellor controlled five cabinet portfolios in a complete captives, realignment.

This wholesale assumption of power, despite Dollfuss' apparent sincerity of purpose, immediately gave forth wide criticism that he was attempting to emulate Premier Mussolini.

To many, it appeared there were grounds for the accusation. For the Fascist Heimwehr —the government's strongest source of support in the battle against Nazism—had a hand in forcing the issue.

Further, it was pointed out, Prince Starhemberg, the young Heimwehr leader, had returned from Italy declaring a Fascist state was Austria's need.

WATCH STARTS TREASURE HUNT

Faded Paper Found Within Starts Imagination To Hidden Treasure

Toronto, Oct. 3 (CP)—It's ho for the Spanish main and the broad doubloons for M. C. Rice, a kindly handyman who likes to do little odd jobs for his friends. He has a map—one with latitude and longitude directions and there's nothing for going to stop him for going on a treasure hunt.

Six years ago Rice repaired a watch for an old gentleman lady who gave him as a reward a tarnished old watch about the size of a silver dollar. Only the face is great it is cleaning the other day. On removing the face he found a little circle of velvet that protected the inner works from collecting against the outer.

Accidentally Rice cut into the velvet with his knife. An edge of faded paper was visible. In a minute he was gazing at a map and a yellowed bit of paper that was a lad. Written in pencil on the chart showed the contours of an island. The letter read:

Magic Paper.

"Paul, my son, I am not long for this world. I am going to bring you this chart, as I planned, so the treasure may not be lost to the right place and hope you find it. I am the only one surviving with this knowledge. The others are in this city sum, at least 50,000 pounds in sterling and coin. You will find it small, uncharted and far from the beaten track. The island is large with two small edges. A line drawn through these bears west. Sailing from the first island in which then bear west southwest and 100 fathoms more. You will be buried eight feet. Good luck, lad, and leave not a trace. Your loving father (sgd.) J. L. Trinidad, 1868."

Highly Excited Now

Rice and his wife and two children admitted they were mightily excited today. They are to be going after treasure. Rice said he expects a legacy soon. It was in the same chest marine during the war and he knows ships. He's going to get one and buy a boat and take Island in. He says, but it banks somewhere off the beaten track and he'll be a millionaire of the south seas.

The lady who gave him the watch, Rice said, told him it was given her by her father who was a sailor. Her grandfather also was a sailor of the sea. Rice intends to try and find the elderly lady first. He doesn't recall her name.

Parlour Meeting of W.C.T. Union

A very successful parlor meeting was held under the auspices of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, at the home of Mrs. W. E. Hartley, Monday, October 2nd, at 41 present. The meeting was under the groups of Mrs. Carley and Mrs. Fenwick. Mrs. Carley, associate Superintendent of Parlor Meetings presided at the meeting in the usual pleasing manner.

A cleverly arranged list which all heartily participated, opened the meeting with Mrs. John Moore at the piano. Scripture reading led by Mrs. W. D. Harrison after which Mrs. R. D. O'Flynn led in fervent prayer. The clip sheet on "Beer" revealed some interesting facts and was ably discussed by conclusions and answers are as follows:

The war debt of $4,000,000. declare that the return of beer will bring prosperity. Industrial records show that in 1914, the Canadian dollars invested in the brewing industry, 78 men were employed for every million invested in other industries, 218 men were employed. That is, for every million dollars of capital invested in brewing there were less than one-quarter of the same capital invested in other industries. Beer does not greatly help unemployment.

Would you say that beer is an intoxicating drink? No, simply? A glass of beer contains 1-10 as much alcohol as a glass of whisky but the same ale but the mug of beer is much larger than the wine glass, and the beer is drunk more frequently, because it is a cheaper drink.

It is true that the per cent. of alcohol in the wines and beer is not so high as that in whiskey but the actual quantity consumed in the Regulation glass of whisky or wine these liquors is almost exactly the same. You cannot say a man or woman can become as drunk on beer as on whisky.

Is beer a valuable food? Here is the chemical content and the comparisons in food values: Beer contains 5 per cent. or so-called extract and 4 per cent. of alcohol. The extract is the nourishing chief ordestrine and protein. This extract is far inferior to food value in an equal weight of corn meal or wheat flours. The alcohol in beer is oxidized in the body, furnishing heat and energy, but the value obtained in this way is negligible. It has no effect of the alcohol.

The next speaker was expert who gives these fixtures adds, that in his opinion a tablespoon of flour contains far more nourishment than an ordinary pint bottle or beer.

Liquor germs in Ontario are carried by every fourth adult. Shall we loosen our efforts to get rid of liquor or shall we strengthen them, knowing that the organized temperance forces of Canada is gaining ground, and the forces of righteousness must save the nation, else it will perish?

Mrs. C. W. Bishop was the guest speaker of the afternoon, and the inspiration and power of her message will never be forgotten. Her touching words she told of the influence of the spirit of the Oxford Group on her life. The deepening Mexico, D.P., Oct. 3.—(AP)—Dispatches from Progreso, Yucatan said today that a tropical hurricane originating in the Caribbean struck that port.

HEAVYWEIGHT BOXER DIES AFTER CRASH

Vitality Ends

For a while last night the physicians held hope for Stribling's recovery, but in the early morning hours they saw his tremendous vitality begin to ebb. Then they knew it was a matter of hours before he would go.

Members of the family gathered in the white-walled hospital room as 3 a.m. after hope for his recovery was abandoned. He held on gamely, rousing occasionally to ask for water, but at 6 o'clock his stout heart began weakening rapidly.

The physicians were amazed at his ability to cling to life, with his temperature at 107 1-5 degrees and his pulse at 175.

Once, he recognized his wife.

"Hello, Baby," were his last words to her.

Shortly before she had been wheeled into the room and throwing her arms about his neck, murmured, "W..."

"Sugar," was the surely audible reply.

Dr. A. H. Kemp, the family physician, Dr. A. H. Rozar, his surgeon, and Dr. Thomas Stribling, left soon after the member had been almost severed in the accident; and Dr. H. G. Stribling, another family physician, were with the family at the end.

"Pa" walked grimly from the room and tearfully said "he's gone." Dr. Kemp then set out a moment later and announced the time to waiting reporters.

Shortly before the physicians left, Stribling's sister-in-law came out into the corridor and embraced Dr. Kemp with a plea for physicians to do something for her son.

Never a Champion

Throughout the night, acquaintances of the fighter described "school boy" begin his fight career in Memphis, Tenn., his home town known boxer, stood outside hoping for a word of encouragement.

Dr. Stribling's phone calls poured in to "Pa" and other members of the family said flowers, which banked a reception room and overflowed into the corridors were received from admirers throughout the country.

Death ended quick and dramatic career which saw Stribling fight all but championship battles, and champions of the past 10 years but he never had the power to become a champion.

STEAMER BROCKVILLE TO AGAIN PLY ON QUINTE WATERS

Being Refitted And Rebuilt For Service in This District

Memories of the days and nights when the steamer Brockville churned up the bay of Quinte, loaded with merry picnickers, ablaze with lights and color, and with tiny sparks glowing like fireflies from the funnels above her single funnel, are recalled this week with the announcement that the well known old boat is at present in dry dock at Toronto being fitted out for service again from there to Belleville.

Many of the family gathered in the white-walled hospital room at 3 a.m. after hope for his recovery was abandoned. He held on gamely, rousing occasionally to ask for water, but at 6 o'clock his stout heart began weakening rapidly.

The physicians were amazed at his ability to cling to life, with his temperature at 107 1-5 degrees and his pulse at 175.

$50,000 IN WILL TO CHURCH COLLEGE

Toronto, Oct. 3—Emmanuel College is entitled to $50,000 under the will of the late Theodore F. Loblaw, according to a judgment delivered by Mr. Justice Wright at Osgoode Hall yesterday.

His lordship holds that a subscription of $25,000 for the Emmanuel College building fund was a debt binding upon the estate and that a legacy of $25,000 mentioned in the will was for a different purpose.

The subscription, the bench ruled, was given for the purpose of enabling Victoria University to erect buildings, etc., in connection with Emmanuel College, while the legacy was given generally without restriction.

It was further found that Jean Leslie, infant daughter, was entitled to all real estate property owned by Mr. Loblaw on the Lake Shore Road at Mimico.

ISLAND GIRL

By FRANK R. ADAMS

"Under the circumstances, shipwrecked and wounded, they had a perfect claim on our hospitality than ever. There was no question of not taking them in and caring for them. It was a week before Pete Pancake was really in shape to be moved and then when I suggested that the couple would take them over to the mainland 'Dummy' objected. He said that with the loss of his boat he had no business and he offered to stay there and work for us. Naturally I refused as there was nothing for him to do even if I had been willing to have him around which I wasn't. For several days the polite relation of host and guest was kept up and then finally 'Dummy' came out flat with a proposal of marriage to me. My father wanted to kill him but we suddenly discovered that my little brother, Drury, was missing. 'Dummy' had sent Pancake back into the cave-in-rock with the boy with instructions to keep him hidden until he was master of the island".

CHAPTER 11

"You can see what an intolerable situation we were in," went on Irene. "We have no communication with the mainland except by boat, there was no way to ask for help. Besides 'Dummy' told me that as the first sign of such a thing he would have Pancake kill Drury.

"Finally I asked him how much money he would take to restore Drury and leave the island. 'Dummy' named a sum way beyond the value of our entire property, thinking of course, that we had no way of raising it. But he was partially wrong. I, personally, had several registered bonds locked in a safety deposit box in a vault in New York City. No one knew about them but myself. Naturally I had not dared speak of their existence to my father. They had been given to me personally by a wise and provident aunt who abhorred my father's prodivities and wished to insure me against absolute want.

"No matter what the exact amount of my little fortune was," it's gone now anyway. But I managed to haggle with 'Dummy' finally and he finally agreed to take what I had, together with our night, and go.

"He demurred slightly at the idea of letting me go to New York to get the money but I pointed out that there was no other way and he finally agreed. Keeping Drury with him as a guarantee that I would come back and, further, that I would not notify the authorities or try to get help of any kind. He told me that at the first sign of treachery or if I did not return in ten days they would kill the boy.

"So father and I came to New York. I got the bonds, signed the transfers and gave them to dad. I got cashed at the offices of my aunt's broker, while I got gasoline aboard and got ready to put to sea again.

"When he did not return immediately I was uneasy and cursed myself for a fool by nightfall I was almost certain what had happened. The feel of money in his hands had been too much for father. He had had the old impulse to double it. Luck would surely be with him this time and he would make enough to keep us in comfort once more.

"Next day, yesterday, my crew demanded the wages which had been promised them the day before and, when I could not pay them they left, taking with them the yacht's dinghy, I suspect. At any rate it is gone and it was about the only new thing I've had.

"Time was getting short. 'Dummy's' ultimatum did not leave much leeway. I had to be starting back soon if I expected ever to see my brother alive again. But I did not want to leave the city without some news of my father either. Besides I had a faint hope that he might be in some gambling resort actually winning. Lock might really have turned.

"Finally, in the afternoon, I went to the police and told them of my father's disappearance. They were very kind but seeing to think that being gone for only one day did not constitute cause for much activity on their part. A friendly sergeant suggested that I might get results by broadcasting his description over the radio. I did and it is to that I owe the honor of your company. You were each brought on board by individuals who thought you answered my description of my father.

"When my father really was brought in I should have put you gentlemen ashore but in my haste to get started I overlooked the fact that you were still in the cabin.

"To go back now even to put in at some other harbor, in order to land you would make me too late to save my brother's life. I weighed all this, carefully and decided to go ahead, feeling sure that you would endorse my action. I don't know whether you gentlemen, Lessons of Drury's age but even if you haven't you will doubtless appreciate to what lengths I feel warranted in going in order to save his life. Drury is not a cherub and I don't think he will ever be ashined for his behavior during this life. But he's a regular boy and the dearest thing in the world to me. I feel certain that you are in possession of the facts, waive your own personal comfort, convenience, profit and even anxiety in order to help me.

"It seems to me that it is only a question as to which course will cause the most suffering. If you think that your absence from New York will be a greater disaster than the death of my brother I will agree to abide by your decision and put about. My case is in your hands."

CHAPTER 12

The judge took the lead in replying. "With your permission, Miss Ferguson, we will go somewhere apart and discuss this matter."

The others followed him forward where they went into a brief executive session.

"If they don't agree to your plan," said Vern to his bast, "I can knock them over one at a time with this," He indicated the automatic.

"You'll do nothing of the sort. Thanks just the same but go put that drum-stick back where you found it. All stand by my proposition."

She spoke to him as if he were a small boy afid she was a friendly but firm governess. This was a manner she had doubtless acquired from supervising the life of her brother. Vern liked it—it admitted him to a degree of intimacy he had scarcely hoped for. Always, or at least for a long time, she treated him as if she were a dozen years older.

In less than five minutes the three prominent citizens had returned.

"We'll go with you," they decided via the judge again as spokesman, "but we don't see exactly how it will help you much to arrive at the island without the ransom money."

"That is quite a logical inference," the girl admitted, "but I already had a plan, an alternative proposition to make to 'Dummy' Squales, one which I am reasonably sure that he will accept as the price of my brother's safety and freedom."

Her confidence seemed to satisfy the new members of the expedition who began to worry about the more immediate necessity for food fee as an aid to renewing the grasp on life. Irene gave Vern the wheel while she went below to provide refreshment.

She was gone half an hour or so and by the time she came back Vern had had plenty of time for reflection.

"What is this alternative you propose to offer to Squales who has taken possession of your property?" he demanded.

"That," Irene returned gravely, "is a matter which is solely my own affair."

"What if I should make it my affair, too?"

She searched his face and finally smiled.

"Even if you did it wouldn't make any difference. But thanks for offering and as a reward you are from now on first mate of the yacht 'Wings'.

"Aye, aye, captain."

She regarded the compass a moment, then looked over the side.

"Don't you think mate, that it would be better if you luffed a little?"

"I do already, captain— a whole point."

Warner Ferguson came on deck in the early afternoon. He had had a really good rest and had quite recovered what was apparently his usual genial good humor.

"A fine day and a fine breeze, Irene," he said to his daughter ingratiatingly. "We ought to reach Little Cane Key in plenty of time."

"And with plenty of money, too, I presume," she replied. "Perhaps you had better turn over the cash to me."

He coughed uneasily. "Oh, the money. Well, daughter, you see I have—"

"Never mind thinking up a long story, father. I know the truth. This gentleman here found you where you had been thrown out into the street from one of New York's most notorious gambling hells. Father, how could you?"

He made a deprecating gesture. "I didn't mean to rub it in all, it did not seem reasonable to think that I wouldn't have one little run of luck before I died. I had a feeling that this was going to be the time. I even prayed, Irene, that I could make enough so that when I passed on, which it's going to be soon now, I could leave you in affluence for the balance of your life."

That reference to "passing on" was a skilful touch. Warner Ferguson was no mean pleader especially when he had a client he was interested in, such as himself. Irene's face and voice ticked with sympathizing with, interest, at, condemning, him but her nature was such that she could not hold resentment against one who had a demand upon her womanliness and love.

She forgave him. He shared himself almost to the point of his morseful tears.

Then, the incident closed, he went forward and organized a poker game, George MacLean, the banker, and Judge Hale played but the Reverend Henry Snyder seized himself comfortably with a book.

As none of the players had any money whatever they played with initialed I.O.U.'s.

Vern, whose sailing on the yacht was not quite clear to anybody, was tentatively asked to join them but he definitely refused. Somebody had to help Irene worry.

They divided up the duties of steering so that Vern took the long trick at night and could sleep during the day.

"I don't know how I can thank you," Irene said.

"You've done that already by trusting me."

It seemed like a rollicking adventure and they dropped off ten miles an hour or better right along. The wind held good the weather clear and save for the undercurrent of anxiety which lay beneath Irene's calm and reddute exterior no one could dream that they were drawing nearer and nearer to the scene of imminent tragedy.

Two or three days of life on a small vessel are equivalent to an association lasting as many months on shore. The breaking point of tolerance is reached much sooner afloat than ashore as is also the discovery of dependable and companionable traits in one's mates.

Fortunately Irene and Vern discovered that they could be friends at least. Vern was discovering much more than that but except in jest he kept it pretty much to himself.

Irene knew that he was no ordinary city loafer who had shipped with her for a soft berth and a chance of ocean. She wasted no questions as to his antecedents or education but her gradual change of attitude told that she knew. She honoured him with discussions of subjects which one would hardly have broached to an illiterate longshoreman.

OCT 3 MR. AND MRS. - HOUSEHOLD HINTS

TARZAN, LORD OF THE JUNGLE

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

When at last Blake succeeded in turning his charger about, he got a glimpse of the opening event's results. Disorder was scrambling ready to arise as others galloped about, riderless.

Some twenty-five knights lay upon the field. Blake raised his broken spear aloft and this was permitted to gallop, unchallenged through the fray, back to his own end of the lists for a fresh weapon.

Armed anew, Blake turned back toward the centre of the field where many individual encounters were now taking place. As he rode, hoarse cries came from the stand occupied by the followers of King Bolton

"The Black Knight!" they shouted. "Here! Here! Sir Wildred! The Black Knight that overthrew Sir Guy! Have at him, Sir Wildred!"

Sir Widred, a hundred yards away, couched his lance. "Have at thee, Sir Black Knight!" he shouted. "You're on!" Blake shouted, putting spurs to his great charger. Sir Wildred was a giant in stature. His charger had the speed of a deer and the heart of a lion. Blake did not know that Wildred was the most sung of all the heroes of the Sepulcher.

And now, as though he had been born to the order of gosh and true knighthood, the goughly young American drew down upon the redoubtable champion of the opposing side. Beyond the charging Knight of the Sepulcher, Blake caught a glimpse of a slim, girlish figure, standing in the central logs and he knew Guinalda was looking at him. For any Princess he whispered, as lance smote on shield.

Europe's Wealthiest Monarch Seeks Cure For Depression Which Hit Holland Last

Queen Wilhelmina

By J. C. OESTREICHER

Almost four years late, the world depression, which less fortunate nations like to refer to as the "last unpleasantness" has struck the Netherlands.

For more than a year, according to the sage Queen Wilhelmina, Dutch prosperity has been "trickling away," and the states general of her small but powerful country has been called upon to do something about it.

By a strange trick of fate or a positive genius in international finance Holland prospered and flourished during the very years when the depression was taking its heaviest toll in virtually every other nation of the globe.

Fell With Dollar.

Many factors lay behind her strange ability to remain wealthy in the midst of world-wide suffering. But only one has been responsible for her belated collapse, and Queen Wilhelmina was too much of a diplomat to offend a friendly country by mentioning it.

Holland's troubles are directly traceable to the abandonment by the United States of the gold standard, which catapulted the Dutch guilder to such a high value on the world's exchanges as to make international trade for her a decidedly unprofitable business.

For many years the Dutch guilder and the American dollar went together as the measuring stick of world exchange. The French franc was stabilized,but the stigma of extreme inflation was still upon it, so the guilder and the dollar rode on a yardsticks after Great Britain abandoned gold.

Collapse a Shock.

With the help of the dollar the guilder was thus a king-pin in European finance. But when President Roosevelt found America's crucifixion on the "cross of gold" had gone far enough Holland's gold inspired prosperity was swept away.

It had been weakening somewhat before that time, for no nation was entirely impervious to the devastating forces of the depression, but Holland's collapse came as a sudden and awful shock.

"The crumbling away of our prosperity," the queen said, "has lasted over a year and is exercising in a large degree an influence on the situation of the public finances. It has disturbed the equilibrium between revenue and expense."

Asks Economy.

In an effort to extirpolate the situation the queen demanded that an end be put to "risky experiments in the economic and monetary domains"—possibly a veiled allusion to the prominent part played by the Dutch financiers in the exchange speculation which contributed greatly to America's abandonment of gold—and requested economy in the matter of government expenditures and salaries.

In this respect Queen Wilhelmina's own code might well have been held up as an example for the parliamentarians to follow.

She is one of the wealthiest women in the world, enjoying even in these troublous times an income of $5,000,000 a year, but she lives less ostentatiously than any other monarch in Christendom.

Her tastes are simple and her worldly pleasures few. Embroidery, needlework and the cultivation of flowers occupy all her leisure hours. In the matter of receptions and banquets her court enjoys far less pomp and panoply than that of England. The income of whose King and Queen and all its princes is considerably less in toto than hers alone.

Princess Juliana

Economy At Home.

And Queen Wilhelmina's strict economy and domestic simplicity are rigidly followed by her daughter and heir to her throne, Princess Juliana. Four or five ladies-in-waiting have been enough for Wilhelmina and will be enough for Juliana unless the princess should happen to marry some more worldly scion of royalty to whom the pleasures of the court mean enough to effect a change in dynastic habits which have prevailed for decades.

But six sailors have been mentioned for Juliana's hand and all have still to become the consort of royalty's wealthiest heiress. Perhaps, observers say, they have been too frugal enough in their tastes for bed and board at The Hague.

30 HOUR WEEK LABOR'S VIEW

Washington, Oct. 3 (CP)— Appealing for patience and "faith in the new deal," President William Green told the American Federation of Labor convention that unemployment would not be eliminated until a 30 hours work week was established.

Opening the 53rd annual convention, he opposed "rapid inflation" and said the "Federation would plead for unemployment insurance, adoption of the child labor constitutional amendment, adequate retirement laws for workers and the elimination of discrimination against workers 40 and 55 years of age."

"The hours of labor and the minimum wage set by and established in these codes are unsatisfactory. The hours are too high and wages too low if we are to realize the real objectives of the recovery act.

"In my opinion the effort we direct will not get back to work until we face the issue boldly and uncompromisingly and establish in these codes a 30-hour, five-day week."

"We must realize that mistakes will be made and we must have patience," he emphasized.

3 MONTHS ON BISCUITS AND MILK

Woman's Digestive Troubles

Everyone who is subject to any form of indigestion should know of this woman's experience. Seeking advice from one who has had such severe attacks is advice worth having. She writes:

"I suffered from indigestion, gastritis and constipation, and was so very ill. I had on medical advice to live on soda biscuits and milk for three months. Well, a friend advised me to take Kruschen and now I am pleased to say my troubles are ended. I can eat and enjoy a good meal without any painful after-effects, my skin is clearer—in fact, quite clear and there is no sign of constipation. I would advise anyone suffering the same to take Kruschen." —(Mrs.) M.R.L.

The immediate effect of the six salts in Kruschen is to promote a natural flow of the digestive and other vital juices of the body. Soon after you start on Kruschen you will find that you are able to enjoy your food without any distressing after-effects. And as you progressively take the "little daily dose", you will see that the relief which Kruschen brings is lasting relief.

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE CAPITOL

Barbara Stanwyck, in a new type of role and with a new leading man, will make her appearance on the screen at the Capitol Theatre on Wednesday, in her latest Warner Bros. picture "Ladies They Talk About."

As a dashing and attractive bank bandit, cool, worldly wise and hard boiled, and matches her wits against ladies and gentlemen of the underworld Miss Stanwyck interprets a role for removed from her recent characterizations. For the first time in her life also, she appears as a platinum blonde; although this is as but a few sequences where she uses a blonde disguise while fleeing from a bank.

Preston S. Foster, who played a crook part in "Ann Vickers" and "The Chain Gang" and Killer Mears in "The Last Mile," has been graduated from that type and into his first leading role for Warner Bros., opposite Miss Stanwyck. He has the role of a young evangelist, who is infatuated with the beautiful young bank bandit he is trying to reform.

The story is a revelation of the life of women prisoners in the California prison and is based upon actual prison experience of Dorothy Mackaye, the actress and co-author of the play. She plays a term in the institution after the death of her husband in the electric chair has stirred Hollywood and the theatrical world a few years ago.

For the vivid and colorful background for the unusual scenes within the prison walls, a replica of the women's section of the institution was constructed on the Warner Bros. lot. In order to make both atmosphere and action correct, a former inmate of San Quentin prison, a woman of high intelligence, was engaged to act as technical advisor throughout the picture.

The story is that of a beautiful girl who turns crook, robs a bank, is caught and sent to prison. She holds a fatal fascination for a young evangelist, whom she uses as a tool to assist in the jail break of two of her pals. The plot foiled, and believing the reformer is also a stool pigeon, she sets a conflagration when released. But when he refuses to turn her in for the reward after she has shot and wounded him, and

A new George Arliss picture for Warner Bros. Vitaphone is an excited even his memorable "Disraeli" in magnificence, interest and drama. The production, open at the Belle today, for two days, matinee daily.

This is a picture in which Mr. Arliss is privileged as the dean of actors in America, realizes a life ambition in portraying the character of one of the greatest Frenchmen in life on stage or screen.

The events in the life and career of "Disraeli" offers such a rich field for dramatic exploration as did the character and times of Voltaire. Fraught with interest, pathos and power before equalled in an Arliss picture "Voltaire" marks the high water mark of Mr. Arliss' career, out ranking in importance all previous efforts of the famous star.

The story of "Voltaire" is based on a single dramatic incident in Voltaire's career during the long reign of King Louis XV of France. Voltaire has been called the father of the French Revolution and this incident upon which the picture is founded was actually one of the contributing causes to the great governmental upheaval of she finds he has not revealed the truth, she is swept off her feet by the intensity of his love.

There is an excellent supporting cast which includes Lyle Talbot, Dorothy Burgess, Lillian Roth, Mendel Eburne, Harold Huber, Ruth Donnelly, Robert Warwick, Helen Ware, De Witt Jennings and Robert McWade.

Carlton Miles is the co-author of the original play with Miss Mackaye, which was adapted to the screen by Sidney Sutherland and Brown Holmes. Direction was by Howard Bretherton and William Keighley.

"Ladies They Talk About" will replace the first days at the Capitol Theatre with additional "shorts," including The Two Black Crows, Vaudefilm and Canadian Sound News.

CEASING OF STRIKE ASKED BY COMPANIES

Fearing Loss of Winter Radio Sales Ultimatum is Issued

TENSION HIGH

Possibility of Troops Being Called Out Looms

Stratford, Ont., Oct. 3 (CP) — Fraught with possibilities of further disorder, dawn broke over Stratford today as citizens studied an ultimatum laid down by Canadian Radio manufacturers and pickets still marched up and down in front of six furniture plants where 800 employees have been on strike for a week.

Faced with the loss of winter radio sales, the manufacturers of those articles last night declared if the strike was not settled by nine o'clock this morning they would be forced to go elsewhere for the cabinets, with a consequent loss of thousands of dollars to Stratford workers.

In the factories here, thousands of partly-finished cabinets are awaiting the finishing touches, and it seemed probably early today some of these would be removed by the manufacturers under heavy guard. A brief attempt to remove unfinished cabinets from the Kroehler bedding plant two weeks ago caused a brief flare-up which only subsided when the attempt was abandoned. Similarly riots threatened at the Swift Canadian plant when strike breakers were brought in to remove live chickens from the packing plant, for here, too, conditions are tense. The establishment was finally closed down some days ago by the management.

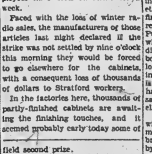
"Light Call Troops

Possibly more than 100 troops and four tanks, held in the Armouries here, might be called out loomed today. So far the soldiers have only appeared on Stratford streets while on route marches but they are held in readiness to rush to the scene of any disorder with which reinforcements of police cannot cope.

Radio manufacturers and strikers met yesterday with the former asking for an increase in the 100% cabinets from the plants and have them finished elsewhere. There was no reply from the Chesterfield and Furniture Workers Industrial Union, which called the strike, and the radio men later announced "it would be foolish to wait a moment longer than nine o'clock this morning. The holding up of our work is assuming aspinal which we will have to guard, and if we see no satisfaction here we will have to go elsewhere."

City council refused to intervene with the action of the police commission in requesting the troops be brought here. A motion introduced by Alderman W. Graham and seconded by Aldermen C. J. Kerr and Ing council a petition the police commission to bring about the removal of troops was defeated by a vote of seven to two.

SCHOONER DORIN NOW TWO WEEKS OVERDUE



Believe She Has Been Carried By High Winds Off Course

Halifax, Oct. 3 (CP)—Fate of the schooner Dorin provided a puzzle today to fishermen along Nova Scotia's coast. Anxiety was growing for the big three-master and her crew of 24 and fears were held that she had run into serious trouble on the voyage from the Bahamas to Yarmouth, N.S. She put out of Turk's Island on Sept. 8 and left Nassau for Yarmouth four days later. Ten days sailing should have brought the schooner to Halifax, but there has been no report of her since leaving Nassau.

Captain J. T. Cruickshank, her owner, said he thought the Dorin might have encountered a series of gales on the northward passage and been driven far off her course.

MILLION DOLLAR LIQUOR CARGO SEIZED

Camouflaged Freighter Seized with Million Dollar Liquor Cargo

Resemble Coast Wise Trader And Runs Blockade

25,000 CASES

Skipper States Unable To Stop Owing to Tide

New York, Oct. 4—(AP)—Customs officials announced today the seizure of 25,000 cases of liquor, which they value at $1,000,000 on an abandoned freighter anchored in the Hudson River off Haverstraw, N.Y.

The vessel, camouflaged to resemble a coast-wise freighter and with the name, "Texas Ranger" painted on her sides, was identified by a treasury agent as the British freighter "Holmewood", registered in West Hartlepool, England.

She is a vessel of 3,244 tons gross, 291 feet in length. She was built in Toronto, Ont. in 1921.

Eighteen seamen, who were found in Haverstraw, N.Y. were questioned by police and later taken to jail there. They said they were all Nova Scotians and that they had been put ashore from the vessel by their captain after it ran aground. They had asked passersby if they were in Albany.

According to customs officials it was the skipper's hard luck in running aground that led to the capture of the steamer load of liquor.

Rum Blockade

The skipper had steered his vessel boldly up the Hudson River past a fleet of customs boats on the look out for a floating warehouse, thing that a gigantic liquor shipment was to be smuggled up the river.

Two customs launches were posted at Sandy Hook, two more in the Narrows and patrol boats stationed at the entrances of the north and east rivers.

A number of freighters plodded by but none that could be suspected.

Among the arriving vessels was a freighter of the type, tonnage and markings of the Nevier Company fleet which run between New York and Galveston and do not have to stop at quarantine. This freighter signalled at quarantine that she was the Texas Ranger, a Nevier vessel bound for Albany. She was allowed to pass.

Hour later, with the suspected ship unsighted someone wondered if it was not time for a Nevier freighter to be the Texas Shipper in quarantine and the Texas Ranger in the Hudson.

Officials of the company were then communicated with and they explained it would be only by a miracle that the vessel could either be the Skipper or Ranger as both were hundreds of miles away when last reported.

Customs men finally placed the ends of the daring exploit together with the finding of the 18 men in Haverstraw at the ship grounded. A tug was sent to Brooklyn.

INMATE BEATS UP ATTENDANT

Guard Pursues And Overtakes Fleeing Man

London, Ont., Oct. 4—William Wright, attendant at the Ontario Hospital here, was severely beaten and choked by a patient who attempted to escape early today.

The patient was in the yard of the institution when he attempted to run away. Attendant Wright saw the man leap suddenly over the wall and start to run across country. Wright gave chase, finally caught up with the fleeing patient and overpowered him.

In the tussle that ensued Wright was knocked to the ground, beaten and choked. Other guards came hurrying from the hospital and soon brought the insane under control. Not, however, before the man had nicked himself on the throat with a razor instrument.

Dr. Vrooman, superintendent of the Hospital, stated the inmate since declared he had no intention of taking his own life.

NAZIS FLAUNT HITLER FLAG

Viennese Crowd Laughs as Swastika Flag is Pulled Down

(By Wade Werner)

Vienna, Oct. 4—With Fascist lawlessness and terrorism rampant, martial law to prevent further outbreaks of anti-government violence, outlawed Nazis gave a gesture of defiance today by hanging out a huge Swastika flag in front of the opera in the heart of the city.

When it occurred scarcely an hour after the order of a thanksgiving mass in St. Stephan's Cathedral celebrating the escape of Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss from an assassin's attack.

What had promised to develop into a tense situation faded quickly as the crowds reaction was laughter rather than rage—which, however, was typically Viennese.

Forcing their "way through a throng which obstructed traffic, firemen hauled down the flag amid cheers and the incident soon became apparently only the subject of laughing discussion.

While police and psychiatrists investigated the political and mental background of Otto Planetta, former army Keukbo bugler, who shot and slightly wounded the little Chancellor, preparations were made for Dollfuss' their children, and the nation gave thanks for the deliverance of the friendly but stubborn leader.

New York, Oct. 4 (CP)—Women motorists should drive only half as fast as men drivers, Judge Benjamin Greenspan believes. He fined a lady driver $25 when she admitted she drove her car at 46 miles an hour.

CAR LOADED WITH RADIOS IS SET AFIRE

Freight Car Being Moved From Stratford Object of Attention

$500 DAMAGE

Seal Smashed on Car, Gasoline Poured on Furniture

Kitchener, Ont., Oct. 4 (CP)— A freight car piled to the roof with finished and partly finished radio cabinet from a strike-closed Stratford furniture factory was set afire here early today and damaged to the extent of about $500. The cabinets were loaded from the Preston-Noelting Company plants at Stratford last night by strike breakers.

Police expressed the opinion the fire was set either by strikers or their sympathizers. They hold the theory the incendiarist might have climbed atop the car at the yards pulled out of Stratford and waited till it stopped here before pouring gasoline over a number of cabinet and lighting it with a match.

Police also considered the possibility these responsible for setting the fire drove to Kitchener by automobile and joined in the shadows of the Canadian National Railways yards until the train was hauled and the yards were deserted. Halfway could not confirm a report that a member of the train crew saw a man running from the scene of the fire.

Glass Jar Found

A glass jar which smelling of gasoline was found beside the open door of the freight car by firemen and police who put it out. It could have been used to carry gasoline with which to start the fire. The seal on the door was smashed and the car damaged. The incendiarist had smashed the seal on the car door to gain entrance.

The cabinets were consigned to the Imperial Company, Toronto. Several hundred striking furniture workers watched them being reloaded to the freight cars at Stratford last night but there was no trouble as police in force were on hand for the undertaking. Strike-breakers were not molested. The train reached here about 12.30 this morning and stood in the yard while the train crew switched other cars.

Heard Crash of Glass

A little more than an hour after the train arrived, Conductor Lambert and his head a crash of breaking glass. Running in the direction from which the sound came the official saw flames leap up behind the door of the freight car. The fire brigade was called.

While one member of the crew turned in the alarm, the others sped him to a fire alarm box, the engineer shunted the burning car to the freight shed nearby, about 250 yards away to simplify the work of firemen when they arrived.

The blaze had gained a stubborn footing by the time the fire department arrived. Water completely at was used to combat the flames but the greater part of the cargo was saved.

A report than an arrest had been made in connection with the fire was denied by the police.

RADIO MEN ANGERED

Stratford, Ont., Oct. 4—(CP)—Standing radio executive today told the Canadian Press that burning of a carload of partially finished radio cabinets at Kitchener early today was the "last straw" and that hereafter no Stratford furniture factories would be immediately placed elsewhere."

Lindbergh Swap Good Will With Russians

Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, arriving at Leningrad on their good-will mission were given a grand welcome and treated to the best in the land by the Soviets. In these first pictures of their visit, Col Lindbergh is shown conversing with reporters while Mrs. Lindbergh talked with Assistant Commissar of Foreign Affairs Yermat, shortly after their aeroplane landed (above).

Crisis in Rink Situation

A crew of men, sent by the Linde Company, Montreal, have arrived in Belleville to dismantle and ship to another city the ice making plant in the Arena Rink.

The news of the imminent dismantling of the rink ice plant quickly spread over the city and on every hand expressions of regret were heard, the concensus of which being that to lose the ice plant with the consequent closing of the rink to skating and hockey this winter would be a civic calamity.

If the ice plant is taken out it may be twenty years before another plant is installed and a modern ice rink operated here. This would not be fair to the youth of Belleville who have become accustomed to the artificial ice rink and get a great deal of healthful exercise and entertainment out of it.

Now the rink is a going concern—without the ice plant it would be just another empty building. Erected and equipped at an expenditure of $116,000, the Arena Rink property can be secured now for less than one-third of the original cost, which looks like a good business deal on the face of it.

Without the Arena rink the city expended about $1,500 yearly on open air rinks for the young people. Last winter this expense was saved through arrangement with the Arena Rink.

A crisis has arrived in the matter and only quick and decisive action can save the rink for the city.

A special meeting of the City Council has been called to consider the matter.

This newspaper would not be in favor of investing $116,000 in a rink properly, but when an opportunity occurs like this where the same property can be taken over as market and city property, and skating rink as well for less than one-third the original cost — we think it good business for the City Council to take advantage of it.

To lose the rink, under the circumstances, would in our opinion be a poor piece of civic management, and we are sure the majority of the citizens agree with this.

The question now before the citizens of Belleville which will have to be decided by the City Council at once is whether it is good business to lose this $116,000 investment which can be saved by a few dollars being actively small investment. Whether it is fair to the young people of the city to deprive them of this healthful means of exercise and entertainment when prompt and courageous action will save this civic asset for the benefit of all citizens.

We would strongly urge the City Council to take definite action on this question at once—it is NOW OR NEVER—and if the property can be taken over legally we feel that the majority of the citizens will endorse the action of the Council as in the best interests of the city, and a wise business deal.

To fail to save this civic asset for the citizens as a whole, broadcast from coast to coast, would be a black eye for Belleville, considered one of the most progressive cities in Canada, in our opinion.

Tempest Puts Moratorium Upon Disorder, Revolution and Commerce

(By John P. McKnight)

Havana, Oct. 4 (AP) — A 70-mile-an-hour gale swept Havana today and ruled out commerce, a moratorium on orders, shootings, commerce, and political troubles.

Cubans were compelled to remain indoors, and the capital experienced its most peaceful night in a week. A few shots were heard near the Presidential Palace early in the evening, but later the whistle of the tempest drowned out even 24 hours before bullets had whined.

Belen Observatory reported that Havana had a disturbance of slight intensity was crossing Matanzas and Havana provinces and was moving northward toward the Florida Straits. Telephone lines were broken in Havana. Trees were uprooted. High seas and heavy winds were reported off the coast. Reports from Matanzas said no serious damage had been done.

Soldiers were deployed about the United States Embassy following rumors of a plot to bomb it. The home of former President Mario G. Menocal was searched by soldiers while machine guns were trained on the house. An officer declared orders had been issued for Menocal's arrest and said rifles and ammunition were found.

PAIR PURSUED

Loss to Bank May Not Exceed Fifteen Hundred Dollars

Preston, Ont., Oct. 4—Two armed hold-up men entered the Imperial Bank branch here shortly after 12.15 today, overpowered the staff of two into the vault, and escaped with a small amount of money.

At 12.15 p.m. the door of the bank swung open and two youthful, unmasked men entered. Pointing a gun at the four members of the staff, one of the pair lined them together from the front while the other leaped over the counter and covered them from behind.

In the four employees, R. E. Webster, accountant; C. M. Wismer, teller; L. R. Binkley, ledger keeper, and Charles Alloway, messenger boy were then herded into the open vault.

The men scooped a sum of money —tentatively estimated at between $500 and $1,500—from the cash drawers and fled from the building. They made their getaway in a maroon-colored automobile.

District Watched

Immediately police in Hespeler, towards which town the car was travelling, were notified to be on the lookout for the two youthful bandits.

One of the men was dressed in a grey suit and grey hat, the other wore a grey fedora.

Five cars from Preston started immediately to chase the bandit automobile, while police in all near-by towns were asked to watch the highways.

Word of balancing the books in an effort to determine the exact amount of cash taken was started at once and is still in progress. Bank officials are certain the loss will not exceed $1,500.

Polo Grounds, New York, Oct. 4 (AP)—A heavy bank of clouds settled over the field today as the Giants and Senators started the second game of the World Series. The weather was cool, with a brisk breeze blowing, but the weather was ideal for the rival fast ball right-handers, Al Schumacher of Giants and Al Crowder of the Senators.

The line up:

Washington—Myer, second base; Goslin, right field; Manush, left field; Cronin, short stop; Schulte, centre field; Kuhel, first base; Bluege, third base; Sewell, catcher; Crowder, pitcher.

Umpires—Moran and Pfirman, National League; Moriarty and Ormsby, American League.

First Inning

Washington—Myer walked on a curve that missed the plate by inches. The Senators apparently were trying waiting tactics. There was a sacrifice early in the inning. Giant ball pen. Goslin bounded to Ryan, who came in fast and drove the Goose out at first, Myer reaching second. Manush drove a long fly to Davis whose fast throw prevented Myer from making any attempt to advance after the catch. Cronin struck out, missing a high curve by a wide margin. Berman ball who had started to warm up in the bull pen, sat down again. — 0 runs, 0 hits, 0 errors; one left.

Second Innings

Senators—Schulte grounds to Schumacher, Kuhel flies out to Ryan, Bluege walks. Sewell flies out to Moore. No runs, no hits, no errors. One left.

Giants—Ott walked. Davis singles to centre and Ott pulls up at second. Jackson advancing, Mancuso covered from the front while the other leaped over the counter and covered them from behind.

FOREMAN WEDDED 49 YEARS AGO

Forty-nine years ago today, it was bright and sunny weather. Mr. John Colden, foreman of the city waterworks department, who has held that position in this city for the past twenty-eight years, distinctly recalls the day, as it was the occasion of his marriage to Miss M. Sweet, of Newburgh, Ontario. Today Mr. and Mrs. Colden were the recipients of many congratulatory messages from friends and relatives on the occasion of their forty-ninth wedding anniversary. Both Mr. and Mrs. Colden are well and active and expect many more years of happy life, in spite of the fact that next year will see the anniversary of their golden wedding. Today Mr. Colden marked the forty-ninth anniversary by working, as usual.

DEVOTIONS AT ST. MICHAEL'S

Feast of St. Theresa, The Little Flower is Observed

Devotions were held in St. Michael's Church, last evening, on the Feast of St. Theresa, The Little Flower, a large congregation attending. The special preacher was Rev. Father Brady, chaplain of Providence Novitiate, Kingston.

Father Brady, in an eloquent and touching sermon, pointed out that day, less heroic men and women, who feel that such courageous example it is impossible for them to follow. The "little way" of gentle love, Theresa an "ordinary" saint, who earned her heavenly reward by becoming a spiritual child, submitting without murmur to the will of the Father, is the path for them to follow.

St. Theresa studied the life of the Holy Family, an unrecorded "ordinary" life remarkable for practice of perfect submission to God's will. This example she followed during her years on earth. Promising that her heavenly reward would be spent in showering roses upon earth, the precious blessings of St. Theresa are eagerly sought by the devout. The new church is a fine building and all should ask for, concluded the speaker.

Solemn Benediction was celebrated by Very Rev. Dean J. J. O'Grady, assisted by Rev. Father E. M. Leacy, Deseronto, and Rev. J. Cleary, Kingston. The choir of children's voices, was heard during the ceremonies. Veneration of relics of the Little Flower followed by Rev. J. F. Nicholson, V.G., and Very Rev. Dean O'Reilly officiating.

J. O. HERITY IS SPEAKER

Addresses B.C.I. Students on Friendship And Fellowship

Friendship and fellowship had a more definite meaning today for scholars of the Collegiate Institute following a splendid address delivered in the school auditorium, before morning classes, by Mr. J. O. Herity, secretary of the local Chamber of Commerce, invited by the principal of the school, Mr. P. C. McLaurin, to speak on that important subject during the present "Friendship and Fellowship Week" observed throughout Canada.

Mr. Herity analyzed friendship and fellowship.

"The former antedated even the writing language, when from the birth of civilization, men have found it necessary to band to survive", he stated.

The "dangerous" side of patriotism was also enlarged upon.

"When it assumes the form of racial superiority, of bumptiousness, and is expressive of hatreds, it is then liable to become a menace to civilization, rather than a safeguard", declared the speaker.

During the address, which was enlivened with witticisms and catchy phrases entirely suited to his juvenile audience, Mr. Herity, dwelt at length upon the importance of absorbing the principles of fellowship and real friendship during the early period of one's life. It was then, he declared that the spirit of well being toward one's neighbour, and the virtue of fellowship was first instilled, and which would enable them to carry the love of fellowman into later years.

Letters to The Editor

Mr. Editor will you kindly publish this word of appreciation in your interesting and up-to-date newspaper.

Seven weeks ago not being very well in body decided a rest in bed on Sunday would be in order. It was a beautiful day and made one wish to be out in the sunshine when suddenly there came on the air through the open window that beautiful old hymn "I'll Use This Old Old Story of Jesus and His Love" played by the Salvation Army Band. It stirred memories of Sunday School I laid back and drank in every word of the hymn and the music brought a great blessing and a lift. Heavenward. Then yesterday was their harvest Services, so I decided to go. Never have I heard such beautiful playing by a band. It was like a glorious cathedral organ.. I don't know what the selection was called but it was full of soul-uplifting music. The singing of the harvest hymns by the songsters was in great harmony, the service and address was also splendid. We owe a debt of gratitude to these Salvation Army bandsmen for the great blessing and comfort they bring to many with their open air services in all kinds of weather and playing for God's good cause.

FOUNDER IS SHOWN HONOR

Craig Lodge, Deseronto, Observes Golden Anniversary

An event unique in the annals of local Masonry was celebrated in White Hall, Deseronto, last night when the occasion of the observance of the 50th anniversary of Craig Lodge, with the founder of the lodge, Rt. Wor. Bro. the Rev. R. J. Craig, of Demoresville, Prince Edward County, as guest of honor.

Well over one hundred of the craft with a large percentage from this city and district were in attendance to mark the occasion. As chief speaker of the evening, the guest of honor, Rt. Wor. Bro. Craig, gave an interesting talk on the formation of the lodge fifty years ago, and the many years of progress since that date.

NAZI FOLLY

German nationalism has surely gone to the farthest extreme in the persecution of the Jewish people. One of the last to suffer is the grandson of Felix Mendelssohn, the great composer, who is one of the immortals and one of those men who made Germany famed in music. Today Mendelssohn's music, which is played throughout the rest of the world is not played in Germany because of the Nazi ideals of a Teutonic art.

The persecution of the Jews can only be the result of an inferiority complex on the part of Hitler and his followers. The purely German people have no doubt, given something to the world but the Jews have been leaders in German history. One of the most famed of them, Heinrich Heine, composed some of the finest of German songs. German bankers have often been members of the Hebrew faith.

Such an attitude must be a wrench to the cultured portion of the German people, who must still have an art instinct and a knowledge of history.

What can explain this hold then that Teutonic ideal has suddenly taken of the people? The aged Communist Marx claims that Hitler is a weakling and is only suffered because he acts as a buffer against the Communistic influence and because he is backed by a steel magnate. That may or may not be the case, but there must be some thing radically wrong in Germany to allow Germans to endure such.

The reason may be political only, though one has only to recall that not many years ago, this race gave itself to a militaristic ideal, which swamped all its art ideals. Is a similar instinct overcoming the people again in the cry for national expression and a purely Teutonized state?

RIVALRY OF THE CHURCHES

"A statistical report in the Christian Herald reveals that in the United States, during the depression, one of every six banks was wiped out, one in every 46 hospitals closed, one of every 200 industrial institutions were forced into bankruptcy, but only one of every 2,344 churches suspended," says the Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

"In comment thereon, Marlen Pew, in Editor and Publisher, says this confirms the belief that religious fervor is a corollary of hard times.

"Perhaps religious fervor is not entirely a correct term. If it is a case of keeping up struggling churches where they are not needed, it may be plain stubbornness. As for the Canadian field, one thing is certain, that thousands of clergy in home mission fields are subsisting upon ridiculously low stipends, hundreds of churches are being maintained by great sacrifice on the part of people whose incomes have been hard hit by general conditions.

"That sacrifice may be good for their souls. Comparatively few have experienced the thrill of 'giving till it hurts,' but as a matter of fact concerned. But there is such a thing, no doubt, as waste of men and money and effort, through overlapping, even in this field. We are thinking especially of the west. A distinguished church officer who spoke in Oxford a few weeks ago told of 400 congregations in the plains area as a result of church union, but he also reported organization of 1,300 congregations out there since 1925. No doubt other churches established in the same field, and so the competition goes on. Missionary receipts of one denomination were lower by $107,000 for the eight months ending August than in the corresponding period last year, so missionary clergy will have to tighten their belts another notch.

"It is the same with other churches throughout the Dominion." They are all over-extended because they cannot bear to contemplate the idea of relinquishing any part of any field, however adequately served by some other church or churches. The original command to go into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature was delivered to the Church as a whole, but each section of the much-divided Church today seems to regard the task as unperformed unless its own special creed is promulgated."

As one who gives you flowers
The golden summer day
When every hill and meadow blooms
To vie with garden ways,
Some proffer love so lightly
It is of little worth
A daffodil the more, perhaps,
Upon the flower-strewn earth.

As one who, when chill winter
Comes roaring down the land,
Brings you the fruit of patient toil,
A white rose in his hand.
I come with life's one blossom,
So frail a thing, so small,
And yet so precious in my sight,
This love that is my all!

YOUNG STRIBLING, gallant young battler of the prize ring, took the count for a final farewell to earthly contests when he mixed up a motorcycle with an auto mobile. Keen regret will be felt by Young Stribling's many admirers all over the world, for he was a gallant lad and a fighter, not picking his battles but taking on all comers. Picturesque as a fighter who graduated from the High School to the prize ring and made fighting a business, assisted by "Ma" and "Pa" Stribling, who managed his affairs and looked after his training and particularly his food, young Stribling came mighty near the top rung of success in his chosen profession and had a clean, sportsmanlike career.

A BIG BLACK BEAR swimming in a northern lake swam toward a motor boat containing hunters. The boat struck the bear, sunk him and he drowned. The hunters salvaged the carcass, and secured the skin, but not having notified the government within ten days of the killing were hailed to court in Chapleau. An assessment of one dollar and twenty cents was levied for the government by the magistrate, with presumably costs of court and action added. So, neighbors, if you're tempted to kill a bear just pause and reflect that the government has an interest in that self-same bear—and when you take a bead on the bear just remember that before ten days elapse it will be necessary to notify the government of the decease of the animal, so that, why, when you're back or she bear came to his or her death—but don't hesitate too long for if the bear gets you first the coroner will make the report for you.

WHAT TO DO WHEN DOG BITES ANYONE

Animal Should be Confined For Test as to Rabies

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology.

(Copyright, 1933, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Dog lovers claim that an unmuzzled and unleashed dog is likable to bite than one who is free. In the latter case they say, the animal feels able to protect himself and hence his disposition is more friendly.

Aside from the pros and cons of such an argument the fact remains that every one and then somebody is bitten by a dog. Then what should one do.

On the assumption that the dog may be "mad"—that is, be suffering from Rabies—every attempt should be made to confine the animal in order to await possible definite signs of the presence of this dread disorder.

And just as soon as possible the person who has been bitten should get the wound cauterized and repeat either to a physician or to a station where the famous Pasteur treatments are given.

If, which is likely, materials for cauterizing the wound are not at hand, the wound should be sucked in order to draw out possible infections. Should be combined with germs before they enter the system—in other words, cauterizing the wound—a one-fifth solution of bichloride of mercury, or a five per cent. solution of carbolic acid may be used.

Rabies does not manifest itself in a dog for from three to five weeks after he has been contaminated. That is why every animal that bites should be confined and carefully watched for at least five weeks.

In the dog the symptoms of rabies appear as a raging madness, one night say, or as a more quiet disorder.

In the excitable form a period of depression sometimes ushers in the symptoms. During this stage the animal is restless, cowers and loses his appetite. He may, however, fancy peculiar foods and eat such as bark, dirt, etc. It is during this period that a dog is most dangerous to human beings. This may last only half a day or it may run on to three.

What follows 1 sthe real rabies stage so generally recognized. The dog's bark changes noticeably. It becomes hollow, is peculiarly broken in the air and sounds rather unsonny. The animal also shows a strong tendency to bite. Paralysis, finally, he grows thin, becomes, paralyzed in the hind quarters and dies.

In the more quiet form of the disease the initial symptoms of depression and irritability are less intense. No real paralysis, however. The disease terminates in from two to four days, and in the maniacal form it lasts about six.

Although "hydrophobia" anotiers name applied to rabies, literally means "fear of water," it is held by authorities that, although a dread exists to what does exist, this is not due to fear but to spasms of the throat muscles, making it difficult as well as painful for the dog to drink water.

Pasteur treatments, which consist of repeated injections to establish immunity in an individual against rabies, are frequently given when the offending dog is being observed for rabies symptoms as well as in all cases of doubt. Although all dogs that bite are not rabid, all rabid dogs are not— Pasteur inoculations should always be begun forthwith.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Diet Hint

When you have a cold, always eat light nourishing food that allow the body to get weak. Milk is advisable, but eggs should not be recommended are orangeade and lemonade. For supper consommé broths, gruels, toast, vegetables and baked apples are good. Meat should be eliminated. After recovery, meals slightly heavier than usual are indicated in order to strengthen the depleted system.

OPEN VERDICT IS RETURNED

Husband States Belief Friend of Family Killed Wife

Windsor, Ont., Oct. 4—(CP)— The strange case of Mrs. Pearl Senko, who died suddenly under inquest last night, which ended with an open verdict after investigation by the jury, with the suggestion the investigation into the cause of her death be continued.

Just a week ago Peter Senko, the woman's husband, and a neighbor walked into the house after Senko had found a trunk opened and articles scattered over the room. In the basement Mrs. Senko's body was found. Her head was submerged in a 50-gallon wine cask filled with water. There were no signs of a struggle. From a coal pile hiding place, $700 was missing.

Senko told the witness stand at the inquest. Under oath he expressing the belief a friend of the family had killed his wife and stolen the money. The friend often visited their home, he said, and had frequently tried to borrow money. On one occasion when his request for a loan was refused, he had told Mrs. Senko she would "have trouble in her life" for not granting the loan.

When he left the house on the day of his wife's death, Senko said, she had asked him if he could explain the "trouble" she had spoken of, which she was dressed in while and was going to a wedding.

Neighbors saw the woman shortly before her death and decided she seemed quite normal. Police admitted they were unable to say whether she committed suicide or whether she took her own life.

CHIEF BACK WITH PEOPLE

Banished Weeks Ago by Order of English Court

Serowe, British Bechuanaland, Oct. 4—(CP)—Sekgoma Khama Tshekedi, banished leader of the Bamangwato tribe, sat passively on his throne today and was reinstated by Vice-Admiral E. R. G. R. Evans, acting High Commissioner of Bechuanaland, who ordered his suspension a little more than two weeks ago.

Surrounded by his councillors Tshekedi listened while the Vice-Admiral, speaking from the same platform on which he sentenced the native chieftain to exile, read at the command of King George. Tshekedi and his mother the Dowager Queen Semane Tshekedi, arrived here early this morning after a moonlight motor trip from Palapye station.

At the first glow of dawn the Bamangwato hastened here from all parts of their territory to worship as their chief would rule them again. Even women, who did not attend the martial reinstatement ceremony, flocked to today's native court. At noon Vice-Admiral Evans, one of Britain's war time naval heroes, dressed in full uniform, strode forward by the hand and called him friend.

Hubbell's Screw Ball Takes 10 Away by Strike Out Route

OTT HOMERS

Senators Receive Good Relief Pitching by Russell, Thomas

(By Edward O'Neil Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Oct. 4 (AP)—Prowling about the baseball stronghold today was Joseph Edward Cronin, lantern-jawed young leader of Washington Senators, valuable his forces for the second game of the world series, and keeping a sharp lookout for those fellows, who told him Bill Terry's Giants couldn't hit.

It was probably less of a shock to him, than he'd care to admit that Carl Hubbell, the lanky screwball king of the National league pitchers, struck out 10 of his own mighty batsmen and allowed but five hits, all singles and a couple of them scratches, as the Giants raced away with the opening clash of the annual inter-league battle, 4-2.

But there was plenty to amaze him, and even the American League experts, was conceded the pitching mastery, of the Giants' staff but laughed lightly at the mention of their attacking power so light in fact during the regular season that four teams in their own league outbatted them.

There was a major chance in the tone of all concerned today as Cronin definitely nominated "General" Alvin Dwight, his right-hand star and wheel horse all season, to work the second game against young Al Schumacher, the Giants' right-handed sinker ball sensation, who has been Terry's second game nomination for all a legal a week.

Ott Hard to Stop

With the scene shifting tonight to Washington for games three Thursday, Friday and Saturday before returning here for games four, five and Monday if such are necessary to bring one side four victories it behooved Cronin to put his best in first from now on. He was willing to admit today, that his experiment in trying to stop Ott and Terry, the two southpaw distance hitters in the Giant ranks with left hand pitching was something you just couldn't depend on.

Heading by Mel Ott, the young right fielder, John McGraw picked out of a high school eight years ago, the Giants ruined Cronin's pitching strategy by belting Lefty Wally Stewart loose from the last game in the third inning, cuffed right handed Jack Russell for four hits in five frames, and then assisted against the veteran Al Thomas in the last turn at bat. By that time, however, Cronin didn't fret, for that the Giants did offensively.

All they needed to do had been done by this young fellow named Ott, who took over offensive honors with four straight hits, a home run and three singles in five times up, in the manner to shame the great sluggers of the American League champions.

It was a strange king of a picture for the crowd of 48,672 fish crowd ed expectations and all but filled the batting-festooned lower stands of the Cromine, and not much of it was really baseball of a World Series standard. Screwballer Hubbell held the Giants woe, and there were times when the rest of his mates' winning despite themselves.

For despite Hubbell's marvelous manipulation of the screw ball that nicked the corners, dove and died, and a curve that zoomed in, broke with a break of a couple of feet in between his fast one and change of pace, the vaunted defence of the Giants failed them twice and but for Hubbell might have brought defeat.

Once the devastating Ott pumped his home run belt into the right field stands in the opening inning after the first of Bobby Myer's two errors at second base, equalling the record for one series set by Frank Joe Moore on first waiting for a side home. Hubbell had all the runs he usually needs.

Fanned Three in a Row

He fanned Myer, Leon (Goose) Goslin and Heinie Manush, the first three men to face him, without allowing any one of them a real stout foul. Then he went on from there as only a trifle slower place, until there came the two occasions when, if he were to go on winning, he needed a normally tight defence. First Hale Hughes' error, the Washington at second base in the fourth, then John (Skondy) Ryan, the Worcester man at short, messed things up behind him in the ninth. In each inning the Senators scored a run.

Trouble rose so high in the ninth that old Adolf Luque was out in the bull pen, desperately warming up before it was over and the Giant victory clinched. Ryan started this one by mauling Manush's easy grounder. Cronin tossed a single into the rally and Schulte banged a ball down the third base line. With an easy forceout play waiting at third, and a chance for a double play, Jackson failed to handle the ball cleanly, lost both, and the bases were filled with none out, when there might have been two away. The second Washington run rode home as Joe Hilbel grounded out to Ryan, whereupon Hubbell took charge again, fanned Cesar Bluege for the third time, and got Sewell on an easy bounder to Jackson.

The rally that finished Stewart in the third was brief. Critz, Terry and Ott banged singles to right and centre, Hughey scoring on Mel Ott's hit. Stewart was taken out and Russell took his place, but after he fanned George Davis, who got two singles and two strikeouts, Travis Jackson's infield out scored Terry.

The Giants stopped then as Russell went along errayl except for a bad moment in the fifth, when the invulnerable Ott singled and Davis did likewise. But nothing came of it and the royal rooters, who made a terrific din, were just as satisfied.

BATTING HERO

Mel Ott

Bill Terry's stellar outfielder to whose big bat the lion's share of Tuesday's Glan victory is credited Ott collected four safe blows.

COLUMBUS WINS TITLE FROM BISONS

Five Out of Eight Game Series to Red Birds

Buffalo, N.Y., Oct. 4 (CP)—The Little World Series championship today was safely in the hands of the Columbus Red Birds of the American Association as the result of their five-out-of-eight game victory over Buffalo Bisons of the International league.

The Birds climaxed their drive to the title last night with a 10-3 victory in a game featured by the brilliant pitching of their tall right-hander, Jim Winford. Besides his previous start against the Bisons, Winford got sweet revenge as he allowed only five scattered hits and sent 11 Bisons back to the bench via the strikeout route.

The Bisons qualified for the series by defeating Baltimore and Rochester in the playoffs of their league after barely squeezing into the fourth qualifying position. The first four games of the junior world series were held in Columbus and the teams moved to Buffalo with the Birds holding a 3 to 1 game advantage. Back in their own park the Bisons again looked like champions for two games as they piled the series to three-all but from that point on they seemed to have shot their bolt.

CURRENT SPORT

While converging with Freddy Lindstrom yesterday we did not forget to tell him about the good fishing along the shores of the Big Bay de Grace where he and I served Fred to some of the "big ones" that have been caught locally of late and he became so interested, that he promised to drop off at Belleville on his return from the Smithboro and give the bay a trial. Dr. Jerry—as the Pirate trainer, shakes he had heard of the good prospective fishing in the Bay of Quinte but the party had been to Picton before and had thoroughly enjoyed themselves. Fred is a fine built young man but at stakes he has a tough time of it keeping his weight down these days. He gained ten pounds in the past week, so he states.

With so much world series, O.B.A.A., play, diverse and pre-season hockey dope going around we forgot to mention the fact, that the Belleville Collegiate Juniors are scheduled to open the carnival football season at Trenton on Friday afternoon next. Coach Shiels has both pounds and every afternoon and the usual pre-season training grind will be put through to a close with the opening game so close at hand.

It looks as though Lorne Chabot told us the absolute truth, when he informed us, that he would never don a Toronto Maple Leaf uniform again. The latest press dispatches have Chabot going to Montreal Canadiens in a two-way trade for Geo. Hainsworth, the "Habitant" goalie. When Lorne was talking Wilf Cude from his old Port Arthur team made 47 years past he informed us, that there would be a few changes among the line of new goal tenders in the N.H.L. it begins to look as though Lorne was in on the "know."

Down in Napanee the Picton and Paleonbridge intermediates will try and settle their difference this afternoon. The winner and will continue into the intermediate O. B.A.A. finals against the strong Southampton club. "Warpy" Philips will undoubtedly be the starting Picton hurler while "Frenchy" Lafrance is expected to pitch for the "Millers." (We predictions).

Carl Hubbell entered baseball's Hall of Fame yesterday when he allowed the Washington Senators but five unsmall hits and whiffed 10 batters. Hubbell mastered slightly in the ninth but his faltering was short-lived and the Giants drew first blood in the 1933 world series. Mel Ott also collected his share of the game's honors when his big bat boomed aplenty.

The Giants say that Buddy Myer is most likely to be the Washington hero. They regard the second baseman as the most dangerous hitter on the senatorial side—yes more so than Stewart. And the feeling traces back to some Yankee-National games the Giants have seen in the stadium.

Be it known that the Yankees have had practically no success at all this season in stopping Myer. Other teams have had little trouble with the Mississippian, against Joe McCarthy's outfit, Myer has hit over .400. They simply cannot get him out, and that goes for lefties as well as right-handers.

The Nationals believe that Terry has a fine chance to come through for the Giants. Not as a winner, mind you, but as the heroic leader of a forlorn hope.

RUNNING CHAMPION AT 75 WALKS TO WORK EVERY DAY

Jim Geddes Still Active Sports Official — Commends Present-Day Fac ilities—Stopped in Marathon Race to Aid Distr essed Competitor

By Patrick O'Leary

Special to the Ontario Intelligencer

TORONTO—At an age when most athletes are retired, Jim Geddes, one or Canada's outstanding old time runners, found himself still active and breaking records.

After several years' absence from sport, Geddes blossomed forth again at the age of 52, in the J. J. Ward 25-mile marathon in 1909. He defeated 103 men from the United States and Canada. The following year the same marathon film finished 62nd, and defeated 106 marathoners out of 150 of the best long distance runners from Canada and the United States. And strange to say, he made the distance 6½ minutes faster than in the previous year.

There are many distinctions which Geddes holds. For thirty-five years he has been an official at nearly all athletic meets held in and around Toronto. Over the same period of time he has officiated in all walking races from Hamilton to Toronto and from Oshawa to Toronto. He has also assisted at the Labor Day exhibition sports program for over thirty years.

What probably still stands as a world's record for a man of his age was established by Geddes at the age of 52, at Toronto University track in 1909. At that time he ran 100 yards in 12 seconds flat. Half an hour later he negotiated 100 yards in 30 seconds, and later ran the 440 yards in one minute. The following day, however, he ran sixty-Brilles of Moncton, both of them Brilles of Moncton, both of them University track in one hour and 45 minutes.

It must certainly require a man of much stamina and strength to accomplish such feats at an age as are. And Geddes is still undoubtedly a picture of health—as tory and fit as ever. Nearing his 75th year, during the summer, Geddes covered more than five hundred miles in five months, walking to business every morning.

"One of these days I'm so healthy today," said Geddes, "is because I spend much of my holidays down on the farm. I always drank a great deal of water and ate lots of fresh eggs and brown bread. I used to run two miles every day for milk. By all means don't forget to drink plenty of milk. It is the finest food for an athlete.

Advices Newcomers

These are some of the things to which Mr. Geddes contributes his longevity and urges all future and aspiring athletes to observe.

Born in the town of Glenmorris, near Galt, Geddes began following his athletic career by running at Galt, in the 100 yards dash, half a mile and up to four miles at sixteen years of age. Later he became a fast ten-miler. He also excelled in walking and was one of the best in Ontario at the time.

Today, however, he is still officiating in sports as much as he ever did. He devotes a great deal of time to the daily humanity medal in which he has been engaged for fifty years. He is an honorary member of the Monarch A.C., and the Central Y.M.C.A. walking clubs, Toronto.

Stopped to Give Aid

To achieve things seems to have been the way with Geddes. He was the only humanity medal in Canada for stopping in a marathon race to aid a fellow competitor in distress. There are only two other medals like it in the United States and Edmund Hughes, well known C.N.E. sports director and Jim Geddes, were both captains of the 25-mile distance running team in Canada. For having gathered the largest number of any recruits, Sergt. Geddes and Capt. P. Lawson were the recipients of a big silver cup given by the Patriotic Association. Among Geddes' souvenirs is a collection of more than two hundred medals and prizes won in various meets.

Those are but parts of the activities with which Geddes has been connected. He presided over the big roller skating rink in Galt. Skaters used to come from Kitchener, Preston, Brantford, Waterloo, Preston, Hespeler and Ayr in big sleigh loads to skate. Every month he skated an average of 500 miles for a period of two years, covering practically the distance of half way around the globe.

Many Other Interests

"There's not much difference between the athletes of today as compared with those of my time," declared Geddes, "but there are more and better distance men at the present than there were forty years ago.

There are also more sprinters and faster ones. That is due to better methods in training and the greatly improved tracks."

Mr. Geddes' athletic activity was devoted to running. He was a member of the Galt Gun Club and was a fine shot. He was also an archer of note. "One of the fastest runners I ever knew," said Jim Gree O'Neil, was under his guidance and coaching. For some 30 years he presented the J. W. Geddes gold medal to the University of Toronto for track and field events.

Geddes served as a sergeant in the army, while his grandfather, Major Jarvis Geddes, fought under Wellington in the Battle of Waterloo. His brother, George Geddes, is the former mayor of St. Thomas, Ontario.

Many old-timers all over Ontario still remember the great mechanical genius, Jim Geddes, with whom Geddes travelled. It consisted of three hundred different figures of little men depicting various trades.

Yes, Jim Geddes has had an eventful life!

Child's Choice of Vocation

(By Constance Cameron)

I asked the young girl why she had chosen the work she was doing. It is hard, grueling work, done under a system that is almost military in its inflexibility. She replied: "Because I knew I'd be good at it."

There was a pause. Then she added: "I suppose I'm conceited, but that I like it. He really didn't want me to be a nurse."

That signed my curiosity and I asked her if he had in any way tried to prevent her from which she answered: "No, he has always said that I was free to do what I thought we wanted to do. And we're all doing that, now."

"How did your father arrive at such a decision?" I asked. "Because I'm a girl," answered the girl, "when he was a boy he wanted to do a certain thing and they 'refused' to let him. So dad took up the work grandfather left him to do and he feels he's been a failure at it. He isn't happy," she added with a sigh, "but he'd probably have been a bigger success at something he liked better."

Right to Make a Choice

But all parents don't reason so clearly nor altruistically. Many of them "put" their own failures on "the kid"—strange as it may seem to a child grown up. But I can cite many cases where that has been done, and with tragic results. It is a little tragic that I can tell you of another type of parent, who, because he has been disappointed and embittered, is striving with all his might to keep his children from those emotions.

I don't know the "other kids" that the young girl spoke of, but I am firmly convinced that this young girl's yearning for a certain job, one in which she will soar to the top and gain that inner glow which comes from succeeding at something you like to do, as well as reaping monetary rewards for it.

And here's an end to the dad who wants "the kids" to have what he was denied, unless the right to choose the work which must, in most of our lives, make up the greater part of our conscious, waking activities.

Beauty . . . By Helen Jameson

Tubbing Towards The Beauty Goal

Every good-looking girl is a bath-ed. Circulation is stimulated. The ing beauty and she doesn't have to have a bath on ocean. She pays the mermaid in the sunken tub in a bathroom decorated with Neptune's Highlight most beautiful fishes. She is a soap hound. She scrubs every day and never feels squeaky. Pretty little waley baby, she is.

Funny shine lights will come gleaming into grandma's eyes when she tells you how the tub was also dragged out in her infantile days, placed before the kitchen range, how she sat with her chin against chummy with her knees. Once a week that happened. It was an occasion. And if grandma will reveal the honest truth, she'll tell you that, since the daily bath has become an institution, complexions have stepped right along toward perfection.

In her day a good complexion was a rare sight. Now one seldom sees a bad one. Confusing the hoped-for scrupulous cleanliness has been the big factor. The clean skin is the healthy, glowing skin as a rule. It is less likely to take on blackheads and eruptions than one that is not thoroughly scoured at least once a day.

Local cleanliness isn't enough; the entire body surface must have attention. The skin is an eliminating organ. Perspiration, being a fluids that deposit solid substances on the surface. By scouring daily, soapsuds and a brush, this rubbish, together with dead scales, is removed.

Circulation is stimulated. The complexion has a better chance to bloom in health.

Cleanliness is only one of the many beneficial effects of the daily bath. Prolonged hot baths are not desirable; they excite the sebaceous and sweat glands to abnormal activity. The water should be warm enough to combine pleasantly with soap and to remove from the skin surface all foreign substances. Except in rare cases, the warm bath should be followed by a quick shower, preferably one with considerable force. Then the rub down and the dusting powder.

What few girls realize is that bathing with plenty of friction increases skin color, never destroys it better texture. Within twenty-four hours after the bath the skin surface is fairly littered with oily substances, scales of scarf skin, flakes started by perspiration, dust of all kinds. Germs and germesses are looking for lodgings on such an area. Scat 'em with the suds, I say we, without giving offense, suggest that the washcloth be changed daily? Pantidcous are all women about fresh towels, but somehow the washcloth is overlooked. It should be large, thick and rough. A bath brush is worth its price, when it is considerable if if is of first quality.

Be a crank about soap. The wrong one will irritate the skin in temper. Soap must be bland, pure and unscented.

OBITUARY

THE LATE MRS. S. J. HAGGERTY

Stirling (Special)—The funeral of the late Mrs. Sarah Jane Haggerty, whose death occurred on Thursday last after a brief illness, was held on Sunday, October 1. A private service was held at the house and the funeral procession left her late residence at 1.30 p.m. for St. John's Anglican Church, where funeral services were conducted by Rev. A. D. McConnell, assisted by Rev. Rural Dean B. F. Byers of Belleville. The service opened with the hymn "Rock in the Arms of Jesus," followed by Psalm 19, and prayer. Rev. B. F. Byers read the Scripture lesson from the first chapter of St. Paul to the Corinthians. At the conclusion, Rev. Mr. Byers, who had been pastor of the deceased for seven-eighth and a half years, addressed a few words to the sorrowing family, speaking feelingly of her loyalty, devotion and faithful discharge of her religious duties, and said that the grace of God might be given to them to help them bear up under their great sorrow.

The choir then sang the hymn, "Forever with the Lord, Amen; So Let Us Be." The sermon delivered by the pastor, Rev. Mr. McConnell, was based on the text: "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord; even so, saith the spirit, for they rest from their labors." In his sermon, the rector touched on the unfathomable depths of mother love and said that in the death of a dear one, a lesson is taught in the resignation and faith to be received. Like the disciples who had lost their leader the people feel, he said, that "He is not dead" for "there are no dead, they live in Him." Concluding with that beautiful poem of Tennyson's "Crossing the Bar" and the recitation of the Lord's Prayer, Rev. Mr. McConnell pronounced the benediction.

During the funeral cortege was leaving the church, the choir chanted softly "Abide With Me." Interment was made in the Eighth Line Cemetery, Rawdon. The bearers were six grandsons of the deceased, Messrs Kenneth Haggerty, Harry Haggerty, Donald Haggerty, Kenneth Haggerman, William Gay and Ray Haggerty.

Those from a distance attending were Messrs Vernon and Kenneth Haggerty of Detroit; Mrs. Harold Sweet of Bombay, N.Y.; Mrs. Matthew Sutton and Miss Edna Haggerty of Whitby; Misses Helen Haggerty and Audrey Haggerty, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. S. Empey of Madoc, and Mrs. Susan Drew of Madoc, and Mr. and Mrs. Lapel Easton, Mimico.

Correct Manners

Wedding Announcement

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:
I want to send wedding announcement cards to some friends whose husband's I have never met. Should I address them to "Mr. and Mrs. Smith" or just to "Mrs. Smith?"

2 If I don't send announcements to all my friends and send postcards on my trig, shall I sign "Florence Clark Brown" or "Florence Brown, nee Clark," or would "Mrs. Charles Chester Brown, nee Clark" be all right?

The postcards would be sent to distant friends who do not know of my marriage.

Constant Reader

1. Address the announcements to "Mr. and Mrs. John Smith". Formal announcements of this kind should always be addressed to both husband and wife, whether or not you know them.

2. If you send postcards while on your honeymoon, they should be signed "Florence Clark Brown", of course. If they are addressed to very close friends who know of your marriage, and who probably know your husband, then you would sign your full name—"Florence Brown, nee Clark" would mean that you were born (see) Clark. It is customary for a married woman to use, as her informal signature, the first and last names of her maiden name and place them before the last name of her husband as follows: "Florence Clark Brown".

The best thing to do if you wish to indicate both is to sign your message as it would be signed with the informal name, "Florence Clark Brown", and then, if you wish, somewhere in the message, give your formal name, including your title: "This is a hearty greeting from an old friend with a new name, Mrs. Charles Chester Brown. I am on my wedding trip here in the south of California. Best wishes from my husband and myself. —Florence Clark Brown."

Fashion Flashes

(By ALICE ALDEN)
(Copyright, 1933, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

THAT FEATHERY FEELING is found in a very delightful new dress and matching coat. In bronze green tweed, it combines soft feathers woven into the fabric, making it soft and lovely. The tailoring dress has a square neckline.

❖ ❖ ❖

JUST A TOUCH of fur distinguishes the newest frocks. A most practical and useful frock is of black crepe and has a plastron of white crepe bordered with black Persian Lamb. The sleeves are long and tight and the smart flares a little below the knee.

❖ ❖ ❖

GAY YET SUBDUED is that lovely shade of red known as carmine. Especially clever in velvet it is used for a new wrap, three-quarter length and cut on the straight lines. The velvet has the new spongy surface and the wrap has a double cape and double cuff of baum-marten fur.

❖ ❖ ❖

JUST ONE grand suit compensates for the possession of a lot of other things. Such a suit is a new model in fine woollen with a crinkled surface. It has a black shoe collar of silver fox and is completed with a pair of silver fox bordered pockets that are so placed to make a muff unnecessary.

❖ ❖ ❖

A GRADUAL PROCESSION of new gloves is making its way to all the shops. Nice are the gloves of kidskin, fleece lined for winter use, especially if you have a black suit, and they are trimmed with monkey fur.

❖ ❖ ❖

GO OUT and buy yourself shoes that are comfortable as well as smart. A grand shoe is an oxford in a deep brown suede, with a monkish toe and high collar. Two laces at the side and to prevent rubbing, heel and toe tips are of alligator.

Advice to the Lovelorn

Their Mothers Got Acquainted

Dear Miss Fairfax:
Lately I've been going out with a young man and we liked each other a lot and fell in love with each other. But lately I've got acquainted with his mother and she's begun to come and see my mother very often.? I know he doesn't like the idea of his mother visiting mine all the time. He has almost stopped coming to see me.

He seems to like girls at, whose homes his mother doesn't visit. Do you think he's getting tired of me because his mother comes over so much? Please do you think it's because I went out with him and let him see how much I thought of him before our mothers got acquainted?

Betty.

Goodness only knows why boys switch from one girl to another. Sometimes, as you've surmised, it's because girls don't show more interest in his mother, like everyone else, like "new worlds to conquer". Again, this young man may feel that he likes to call on a girl where his mother's going often. As time and doings, are less likely to be discussed than at a house where his mother visits so constantly.

But whatever may be the reason, my dear, you'll make more headway in securing a return of his friendship if you don't show that this falling off in attention has hurt you. Just as if nothing had happened to mar your friendship. No one enjoys making explanations, and telling why they've stopped coming.

"What are 'Steady' Boys Like?"

Dear Miss Fairfax:
For six months I've been going steadily with my girl friend. He is not much on going places with me, but would like I asked him to take me to a party and a wedding one night a week, he acted real peevish. He would take me once if I insisted, but I thought that was a good way of losing him.

Don't you think he might have been a good sport and taken me for my sake? Probably I'm overdoing it in asking him to take me to many places. Do you like "steady" boy friends for? It doesn't cost him anything to be with me, and don't you think I'm justified in taking a hurt attitude?

Anxious

To my way of thinking, a hurt attitude is about the last one to take. Personally I like a man who somoone get downright angry with me and get over it than hurtfully himself. or herself behind a long-drawn out ill-will. Which is what a hurt attitude usually stands for.

Yes, I do think the young man might go places with you, and if you like to go and he does not, it might be a good idea for you to discover how far this difference of opinion will go before you become "steady". If his not wanting to go places with you "mars your pleasure" in his company, that's one thing; but if it's temperamental that's something else.

Could It Have Been the Saxophone

Dear Miss Fairfax:
When times were good I began to take lessons on a certain musical instrument, which shall be nameless. My struggles with it drove the family from home, so that's what they claimed. Then I thought I would get a job in an orchestra in a very ritzy hotel. Most of the family was broke by this time, and I thought I was glad I learned how to play the thing.

But that's not why I'm writing about, Miss Fairfax. In the hotel orchestra I met a young girl and she's a doted-upon, only child, and experience. She looks at me when she dances with those happier girls who have the privilege of waltzing with me, and I'm overcome with primitive jealousy.

Many times she has written me notes, and once I blew kisses to her when I passed her table. But it worked, for she invited me to a friend's house to tea, and I had the time of my life. Then, people invited me again, but I didn't go, mindful of the fact that I was not under the circumstances. Am I in love with her? Please write to accept play the ——— while she dances with other men?

Lamenting—Jeremiah.

It's not necessary for me to refuse a young man with so appetizing a pen that's been named after a king" or an orchestra player gave his name to. I'm glad you're a musician, even when she's dancing with other men.

The girl seems keen on you or she wouldn't have gotten her friends to invite you to tea. You know more how to play the sax, cornet or anything else. They're not using something else—book-keeping, accountancy, or the like, and you've ever become more to you than a drumming episode, if she's the means of your working and getting more education and advantages. If you're that much to the good. And here's my best wishes.

In Love With Her Sister's Fiance

Dear Miss Fairfax:
My sister says she recently become engaged to the man I love. I have reason to believe that he returns my affection. However, two things stand in the way of clearing up this situation. One is my mother's health. She is deeply, nicely ill with heart trouble, and it would be cruelty to bring up my sister's first romance, as she is a number of years older than I.

Yet the man and I can see nothing beyond our love, and we can't visualize the future apart. I am torn between the man I love and the happiness of my family.

Anne.

You tell me your sister, has recently become engaged to the man you love. Without wanting to reflect on this gentleman's stability of character, it's difficult to see how he could become engaged recently to your sister if he happened to be in love with the other. If he'd been engaged to your older sister for so long time, and then you suddenly flashed on the horizon, I could understand better.

But the circumstances you describe is difficult to grasp in this day and age. If he's the supercentimental type—the homely name for which is "mushy"—who falls for every girl he meets—well and good. If not, I sincerely hope you'll let him alone not take advantage of this weakness and "mar" "mar your sister." If he is genuinely in love with you and you with him, nothing could be more foolish in life than to go on with his engagement to your sister.

Securities And Staple es Rally Briskly Under Stimulus of Short Covering. Wright Hargreaves Brought in Huge Blocks And Advances to all Time Highs. Moderate Gains Scattered Over Toronto Board.

NEW YORK—FINANCIAL

New York, Oct. 4 (AFC)— Hope was reborn in the financial markets today as securities and staples rallied briskly under the stimulus of short covering and re-accumulation by traders who have for some time been hugging the sidelines.

Stocks spurted shortly after the opening for gains of 1 to 4 or more points and for a time the activity was the most pronounced of the past several months. The tide of buying, during the first hour, dropped behind floor transactions, but reversals were pushed down, however, and dullness soon returned. Prices held up fairly well, though in the face of the let-down in volume. Bonds revived substantially.

Most Canadian stocks and bonds were steady up 1-8 to 1-4 of a point included those of International Nickel, Canadian Pacific, Mcintyre Porcupine and Dome. On the curb Hiram Walker gained 7 and Lake Shores moved, occasionally, Dominion government obligations were moderately higher. The Canadian dollar eased 3-16 of a cent at 98.12 1-4 cents.

INVOLUNTARY SUICIDE TO SEND MEN IN

Horrible Picture Painted By Survivors of Bush Fire

HELL BREAKS LOOSE

Majority of Victims on Relief And Were Working For Food

Los Angeles, Oct. 4 (CP)—In voices low from exhaustion, sorrow and shock the men who lived hell today of the men who died in death's ride on a wind-born firebrand across the canyons of Griffith Park.

Only the terrible sights of humanity burned to an almost unrecognizable mass surpassed the stark, homespun drama of words that fell from their lips, halted, paused, soared and swollen by the death-dealing heat from which they had escaped.

They and those 66 or more who were to die had gone down into the canyon to get coal a basic which was believed to have been started by a carelessly discarded cigarette.

All of them were poor. Their jobs, road work, had been supplied by the county in its efforts to relieve the burdens of unemployment their foreman are dead.

"Go down and smack it out with your shovels," was the order.

They went.

Involuntary suicide was the way two fire officials regarding the instructions to plunge into the canyon.

As the vanguard went down the canyon, "Hell broke loose," one survivor said. Terror-stricken men seemed to spread the fire in all directions at once. They were poor, but life was sweet and they ran, tumbled and dragged their bodies through the flames.

Return is Blocked

Others coming down blocked the return of, the first who were and they found a narrow gap was their only avenue of escape. The flames belched upward.

"I still can hear them yelling and shouting for help," said C. B. Carr. 11, was an oven-baked, sunburned red.

"As I staggered on I began to count the bodies. One, two, three—when I finished I had counted 22. I could smell human flesh, that acrid smoke, the singed hair.

"My arms began to burn. I didn't know then they were burned. The man next to me dropped. I pulled him to his feet and dragged him on, stumbling, praying. We found a side trail. It was blind.

Wilfred Singleton saw the ground dotting with bodies and heard heartrending shrieks as men fell and couldn't get up.

"Sometimes I tripped and I would put out my hands to break my fall and I would feel the hot clothing of a dead man.

A blistering heat told Noel Gregg that "God was not answering our prayers."

"On the ground I saw three men, their heads down," he said. "The flames were getting them. My tongue began to swell and I thought my eyes would pop out of my head. I tried to stand, screamed and I fainted."

First there were spitting shrieks R. G. Gill said then they became hoarse and finally it was just whimpers. "The flames cut off my view of them and I knew they had come to their end."

MIRACLE IN PETERBORO

Incident Occurs at Catholic Church Service

Peterboro, Ont., Oct. 4.—Virtually crippled in her right arm for the past two years, Mrs. Henry Delaplante of Peterboro, claims a miraculous cure had restored her arm to normal use. The cure, Mrs. Delaplante said, followed the confirmation last week at special services held in the Roman Catholic Church of St. Jean de Brebeuf in Harvey township on the occasion of the canonization of the festival in honor of the Canadian martyrs.

Mrs. Delaplante said she suffered from a tumor under her right armpit which, she was told, made it impossible for her to raise the arm. Operations and other treatments both here and in Toronto failed to improve it.

Faithfully believing she could be cured, Mrs. Delaplante said she attended the services at the little mission church and when relics of the Canadian martyrs were placed to her arm and side she immediately felt something surge within her. Later she found she could use her arm without pain. This condition has continued since, she says.

MUST PAY FOR ALL SERVICES

Doctors Cannot Afford to Treat Indigents Free Says President

Toronto, Oct. 4 (CP)— Medical men cannot afford to treat indigents for nothing, and the Ontario Government must either make municipalities pay for medical services or must establish state medicine, in the opinion of Dr. E. A. MacDonald, who last night addressed the Toronto Academy of Medicine here. Dr. MacDonald is the new president of the Academy.

The government, he said, should force municipalities to assume the burden, and should see that such arrangements made for maternity cases, for instance, by hospitals underlook pre-natal care, while the practitioner took confinement and post-natal care, but while cities contributed $45, the practitioner received only $10.

He suggested it be made obligatory for all municipalities to levy a tax of $2,000 or less, and salaries of $6,-000 a year would be paid general practitioners, with $8,000 to $10,000 for specialists, the money to be raised by a three per cent capital or per capita tax the same as for the support of police, fire departments, teachers and schools.

The system would allow a free choice of physician, and the doctor's maintenance of personal relations between patient and physician and would not prevent the continuation of medical services provided on a fee basis by those who preferred the present system.

HYDRO DEMAND ON INCREASE

Hon. Robt. Cooke, Chairman, Addresses Central "Y" Gathering

Toronto, Oct. 4—That there has been a gradual increase in the consumption of hydro-electric power since May 1 until it is between 6 per cent. and 9 per cent. higher than formerly, was the statement made last night by Hon. J. R. Cooke, chairman of the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission. He was speaking before the opening dinner for the fall and winter season of the young men's division of the Central Y.M.C.A. He regarded this advancement in the power load as a definite sign of an improvement in the industrial situation of the Province.

Another significant statement made by Mr. Cooke concerned rates. a newspaper report to the effect that the average cost for domestic power in the United States was 3.7 cents per kilowatt hour.

"Our average cost in Ontario, under the public-ownership system operated by the Hydro, is 1.7 cents," declared the speaker. "If the price given for the Republic to the south of us were correct, then it would mean that the people would have to pay $20,000,000 a year more than they pay now. These are arresting figures and they show what Hydro means in saving to our citizens."

The development, service and importance of the Hydro from a small beginning in 1910 until now it distributes 1,250,000 horsepower annually to consumers, were covered by the chairman in his informative address.

ALL IS QUIET AS CABINETS ARE REMOVED

Strikers Make No Attempt to Obstruct Freight Cars

POLICE GUARD

Few Workless Watch Removal of Unfinished Products

Stratford, Oct. 4—First freight carload of completed and uncompleted radio cabinets, tied up for two weeks by the strike of furniture workers in six plants here, was removed last night from the Preston-Noelting Company's factory. The completed cabinets will be finished over by radio manufacturers, who are anxiously awaiting them. The others will be distributed among outside furniture plants for completion.

And as the railway car was taken out of the siding, eleven men, sent here by a Toronto radio concern to do packing, were whisked away in police cars to a local hotel. No attempt was made to obstruct either the railway car or the strike-breakers. The crowd, thinned out from the afternoon, was most passive, if not mournful.

For a short time considerable excitement prevailed when it was definitely learned that radio manufacturers were actually carrying out their threat to move the radio cabinets, despite the protests of 800 strikers. A large crowd, many of them women and children, gathered at the Preston-Noelting plant. Small piles of stones had been placed at vantage points, but none were thrown. During riots at the Swift Canadian plant, stones and bricks are also on strike, many rocks were thrown at police. But there was no disorder yesterday.

A cordon of city and Provincial Police had the situation well in hand, and the militia, two companies of which are stationed in the Stratford armories, was not called.

As the afternoon wore away the crowd thinned out appreciably, and when the cars were moved there were not more than 200 persons on hand.

Despite the quietness of the situation, no chances were taken when the men packing the cabinets were whisked away for the night. Three large sedans swung in line, and, instead of heading for the main street, cut across the tracks of the siding. Planks had been built up over the rails, making a roughshod crossing. The cars were not followed by the strikers as they cut across the emergency trail to the street.

The loaded freight car was just about hidden in the gloom from the eyes of those who hung around the entrance to the factory yard. Fearful of a demonstration, police moved on a few stragglers. But soon an engine steamed into the siding, hooked on to the car and drew it away. A few boos were up from the small crowd, and small police guard was left on duty at the plant for the night.

Today, it is expected, more cabinets will be moved from the McLagan Company plant.

Lure of Jobs in United States Again To Revive Traffic in Alien Smuggling Border Patrol on Guard Against Increase in Illegal Entries

By BONNIE WITT
Central Press Writer

DETROIT, Sept. 27—For many months few aliens have knocked at Uncle Sam's door for admittance.

Countries which continually had quota waiting lists suddenly began to learn that men in the United States were jobless and no streets paved with gold awaited the immigrant. Furthermore, alien's have found no money for passage, consequently few have come in recent years.

Immigration officials estimate that but 10 per cent of the quota from the larger countries has been filled recently. A. M. Doig, acting director of immigration at Detroit, is commenting on the dwindling line of immigrants says, "Economy has put on a stiffer quota restriction than the government ever did."

Expect Increase

Now, as jobs are again being filling and automotive workers are returning to the plants in this area, trials expect immigration to increase. "As soon as the alien abroad knows there are jobs in this country our problem will increase," says Col. Hurl E. Davenport, assistant superintendent of the immigration border patrol. It is largely upon his men that rests the responsibility of preventing illegal entry in the Detroit area.

When automobile production was at its peak, approximately 15,000 Canadians from Windsor were checked through the turnstiles at Detroit every morning. Now that number has dropped to 2,200. Canadians working in the United States are required to obtain a registrar visa which costs $10, plus a head tax of $8.

Just as quiet as aliens feel assured of a job across the border, immigration officials will have to be on the alert for illegal entries. Since the depression there has been a decrease in illegal entries partly because the incentive to come across the border has been removed and partly because the Canadian government has placed a virtual economic embargo on immigration. Therefore, one avenue to the United States has been closed.

How They Do It

Now do aliens manage to elude border police and slip into the United States? Colonel Davenport suggests that you think of every possible way in which a person could manage to transport himself and you will have the answer. Airplanes, trains, cars are popular at present. Planes take off in the dead of night, in Canada, with several aliens and land them far across the United States border in a remote section.

Boats always have been relied upon along the Detroit river, row boats with false bottoms frequently bring several to transport Chinese or other aliens across the river. Frightened, bewildered, they huddle in the tiny compartments with barely enough air to breathe to keep them alive during the journey.

Colonel Davenport enumerates among the scores of schemes resorted to—false compartments in movies vans and automobiles, concealment in bales of hay or sacks of potatoes and even in refrigerator cars.

He recalls with especial vividness five aliens who made the trip from Windsor to Detroit in a freight car filled with cracked ice. Immigration officials had a tip that the men would be in one of four cars. When the train reached Detroit a detail from the immigration office went from car to car pounding on the doors. At last a faint voice was heard inside. The officers pried open the door and, to their horror, one alien stiffly tumbled into their arms but the remaining four were too frozen to move. The men were thawed out and shipped back across the border.

Chinese Vanish

Even more harrowing was the fate which met 15 Chinese some years ago off the Bahamas. A notorious smuggler, Horace Alderman, was pursued by coast guardsmen who were positive he had the Chinese aboard. When they overtook the smuggler's boat every Chinese had disappeared. How? Only Alderman knew the fate which had befallen them. Later, in another brush with coast guardsmen in the same territory, Alderman shot and killed two men on the government boat. He was convicted in federal court and hanged at Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.

Smuggling, Colonel Davenport points out, has increased considerably since the "New Deal" has put coin into pocket which had been empty for years, thereby creating purchasing power for the smuggler's goods. He expects attempts at illegal entry to increase as aliens, attracted by the jingle of coins, cast longing eyes across the border.

Vision of Future With No Illness

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 4 — A vision of a future in which human life would be prolonged, bodily ailments eliminated and senility checked, was unfolded here by Dr. J. Bertram Collip, professor of biochemistry of McGill University, Montreal.

In the cautious words of a scientist, he described the experiments which he and 14 others are conducting at McGill in an effort to determine to what extent man can influence or control the pituitary gland.

This gland is the arbiter through size, sex, decay and perhaps life itself. If it can be controlled, the old search for Ponce de Leon for the fountain of youth will be at an end.

STRANGE UPHEAVAL IN LAKE.

Port Arthur, Oct. 4—Reports of a strange phenomena—hurling big waves over the shoreline, carrying away two fishing docks, and for a while threatening greater damage, came from Rossport, 100 miles east of here on the shores of Lake Superior.

Developing during Saturday and reaching a crescendo during early hours, the heavy rolling of the lake ebbed ceased last night and conditions were back to normal.

Earth tremors under Lake Superior were believed the cause of the huge waves, approaching the small north shore port like walls of water. The first wave rose quickly, swept up on the hamlet and carried away the fishing docks.

BOARD JUDGES FOR IMPOSING OF SENTENCES

Attorney General Favors Clearing House of Prisoners

STUDY ALL CASES

Judgment Board Would Have Power To Lay Down Rules

St. Thomas, Ont., Oct. 4 (CP)—A board of judges and magistrates for Ontario to impose sentences on offenders after a close study of the merits or demerits of offenses was advocated by Hon. W. H. Price, Attorney General, in an address here last night.

"In this way" he said, "there would be a clearing house for all prisoners who have been found guilty. The provincial board would have the opportunity of comparing its facts in each case, and the report of the judge, with facts in similar cases where sentences have been imposed. They could lay down rules and regulations and principles of sentence uniform throughout the province. They might get to the point, if they thought advisable, the factors which they took into consideration in imposing a lighter sentence or a heavier sentence as the case might be."

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE BELLE

Beauty for-Sale," the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer feature which opens tomorrow (Thursday) at the Belle Theatre, is a daring picturization of the sensational Faith Baldwin novel, "Beauty." It is a drama of modern city life, with a particularly intimate locale behind the scenes in a fashionable beauty salon. The story, which ran serially in Cosmopolitan Magazine, is said to be the most popular of the past season. Heading an impressive cast are Madge Evans, Alice Brady, Otto Kruger, Una Merkel, May Robson and Phillips Holmes.

A Triangular Plot

In the glamorous story, a triangular romantic situation is developed between the characters played by Madge Evans, Alice Brady and Kruger. Miss Evans is one of the society most captivating leading ladies. This is Miss Brady's second talkie appearance, following upon "Broadway Ladies Meet." Kruger, outstanding on the New York stage, recently made his debut in "Turn Back the Clock."

Miss Merkel, who plays a gold-digger role, is remembered for her sparkling work in "Whistling in the Dark," "Party-Second Story" and other recent hits. Miss Robson was seen in "Begger's Holiday" and also recently starred in "Storm at Daybreak."

In Supporting Roles

The cast is rounded out by Eddie Nugent, Hedda Hopper, Florine McKinney, Isabel Jewell, Louise Carter, John Roche and Charles Grapewin.

With the three beauty parlor girls providing the triple attraction, the picture has much of the flavour of "Our Dancing Daughters" and its equally successful companion pictures. Each of the girls follow a different path to happiness.

Intrigue that begins in fashionable boudoirs, penthouses and powder boats and less pretentious apartments occupied by working girls, is brought into focus in the beauty parlor treatment rooms. Secrets that would make a Broadway columnist blush are disclosed within the perfumed walls of the salon. Here wives and husbands' sweethearts meet and exchange mutual gossip with all the subtlety of Socrates' characters. A funny Taxi Boys comedy, "The Latest Bride Wins, and a clever Vaudefilm precede the above feature offering.

Treasure Gifts

Thursday evening on the stage, at 9 p.m. another popular "Treasure Night" will be staged. The major prize this week is a handsome 4-piece combination book case and electric clock, and nine other desired gifts.

PET BEAR IS CHILD KILLER

Unfed Show Animal Claws to Death Boy Offering Apple

Brookhaven, L.I., Oct. 4—Grant Taylor, Jr., 11 years old, a student of the Brookhaven public school, was clawed to death by a black bear that broke loose from a chain in the yard of a hunting lodge operated by Gardner Murdock, sportsmen's guide, near here.

As the bear bounded at an apple the boy had saved from his lunch at school to feed to the animal, the chain snapped and freed the bear. The boy ran about twenty feet, but was blocked by dense large trees containing foxes and raccoons. As he turned to dart aside, the bear stood on his hind legs and clutched him.

Motorists who had stopped upon hearing the screams of the boy stood terrified while Fred Dreyer, proprietor of a roadside stand near by, managed to shoot the bear. Fearing he might hit the boy, he waited before firing until several men, who had gone after the bear, forced it away from the boy.

The boy had been crushed against a wire cage. His face and his legs had been clawed badly. Dr. John W. Bennett of Patchogue, who made an examination, said that his neck had been broken.

Dr. Grover A. Sullivan, the coroner, began an investigation into the action. An examination of the bear, the coroner said, that it had not had anything to eat for at least two days.

Murdock, who was away on a fishing trip at the time of the tragedy, returned to the scene shortly.

Nearly ten minutes had elapsed from the time the bear attacked the boy until it was shot by Raynor. He then shot the other bear contained in the cage. The boy, he was afraid it might break loose.

NEW YORK TO SEE NOISY ELECTION

Charges, Counter Charges Already Being Flung by Candidates

REFUSES TO ACT

O'Brien in Wrong For Refusing to Toss Out First Ball

By Sam Robertson, Canadian Press Staff Writer

New York, Oct. 4 (CP)— The Great Tiger Safari continued in the Metropolis today with a rat-a-tat-tat of oratory, that was near deafening.

Charges of "Bossism" belched from the verbal guns of the Lagardia and Mckee expeditions levelled at the Tiger Wigwam-Tammany Hall in other words— but while the main fire was aimed at killing off Mayor John P. O'Brien, the office hunting expeditions were busy, at times at taking pot shots at each other.

All in all, the charges and counter charges of this year's campaign to succeed the hotfoot, noisiest election campaign New York ever has known. And to live up to New York is to come to new noise.

Pleasant speaking Joseph V. McKee shouted "graft, corruption" at O'Brien and his Tammany defenders, then turned on the Fusionist Camp of Fiorella Lagurdia to say:

"We believe that this time, the former Socialist and Radical, is not fit for the office of mayor."

The lusty Lagurdia, in his thin voice shrills "graft, corruption" at O'Brien, etc., then turns on the Independent Camp of McKee to say (still shrilling): "That man was thrown into the fight to split the vote. He is a Tammany henchman."

O'Brien Silent

O'Brien does not choose to say much. He leaves that pretty well to his thousand and one Tammany aides, confident in the knowledge that organization is the most powerful of its kind on the continent.

But O'Brien strategically moves in his campaign by authorizing mass distribution of foodstuffs — federally purchased relief pork — for the poor in the coming winter.

Every pound of that pork will probably catch a vote nor already caught up by the thorough going Tammany organization machine.

The stout and hearty O'Brien rail against tradition's grain thereby as he plans to lose on the first baseball in the New York-Washington baseball series at—

His predecessor, Dapper James (Will)-Walker-Love Me-in December) Walker would have been immeasurably there, tossing out the sphere, but Walker, as you know, hastily departed after Judge Samuel Seabury's investigations and had turned over some hot rose-leaf leaves in the book of his administration. The York lived Jimmy Walker, who was always late to baseball games, left the honors mayors on one of his transatlantic visits in his pyjamas.

But New York at least that portion of it that attends boxing matches, has come to know that O'Brien has a lamentable lack of appreciation of the manly art. Some say that he likes it, he is a good family man. Boo-Boo, they cried when he went to the ring, but he refused to budge, declining past his stand at the NRA parade.

But Boo as they will, the fact remains that Tammany's hold on the 1,000,000 voters, its all but absolute control of the powerful machine, all estimates and all calculations; is ward heelers who keep up the good work by going to weddings, christenings, and funerals —that send little children on summer excursions, have a magic vote-fetching wand.

Sabato Barbara Stanwyck, the "First Lady of the Screen," January First of this year, the Chicago Princess, which had conducted reader poll to select the most popular movie actress, proudly announced that Barbara Stanwyck had been elected by an overwhelming majority. Gals, Shearer, Crawford, all had to be content with playing runners up to the Warner Bros. star who will next be seen here in "Ladies They Talk About," which opens at the Capitol Theatre today (Wednesday).

Barbara Stanwyck, after a siege of "sister-of-the-soil" roles such as she played in "So Big" and "Purchase Prices," becomes a bold brazen bank robber, playing around with a group of bar vlakiors. Her youth and beauty and allurement are capitalized to the fullest in her present picture. This time she uses her personal magnetism and appeal to capture a fighting evangelist, who works among the women prisoners of San Quentin Prison, life locale of the picture.

Preston S. Foster, who plays the "ex" of the fichting Parson, also gets a change of roles in this picture.

The story is based upon the experiences of Dorothy Mackaye, beautiful actress, who it will be remembered a few years ago was sentenced to San Quentin prison following the death or her husband in a brawl. Dorothy Mackaye, is co-author of the story with Carlton Miles.

"Ladies They Talk About" remains at the Capitol until Friday and will be supported by the Two Black Crows in comedy, a Vaudefilm and the Canadian News.

New Pictures!

By disclosing the fact that Manager Holmes of the Capitol Theatre has been fortunate in procuring "Lady for a Day" (the Columbia special) starring Warren William, May Robson, Guy Kibbee and Glenda Farrell among the distinguished cast, and also the four-star picture, "Liberty," for exhibition next Wednesday for a four-day engagement the management of the Autumn Festival of Fine Films looks exceptionally attractive at the Capitol. "Lady For a Day" will be following "Ladies They Talk About" and the clever Vaudefilm precede the above feature offering.

Treasure Gifts

Thursday evening on the stage, at 9 p.m. another popular "Treasure Night" will be staged. The major prize this week is a handsome 4-piece combination book case and electric clock, and nine other desired gifts.

George Arliss Leaving

It is not easy to find the superlatives needed to properly review "Voltaire," the new George Arliss picture which opened at the Belle Theatre last evening. It is undoubtedly the greatest contribution to the screen Mr. Arliss has ever made, not excepting "Disraeli." Voltaire's well known friendship and influence with Madam Pompadour, a role played charmingly by the ever more beautiful Doris Kenyon, plays a vital part in the story.

Nothing Ever Happens," the funny and clever burlesque on "Grand Hotel," The Canadian News and Paramount Pictorial were exhibited during the evening. The entire program will be repeated tonight for the last times.

NATURE'S WAY TO HEALTH

Remember that the mission of our science is not only to give you well but to keep you well. An important part of our science lies in preventive spinal adjustments for those who are tired, "run down", abnormally weak and lacking in the vital energy forces of life. A few adjustments you will find makes a world of difference. After each adjustment you will immediately experience a sense of relaxation, peace and relaxation. This is because you have once more been put in tune with life as Nature intended you to live it. These adjustments correct incipient conditions that if neglected will surely lead to serious disease and disorders.

ISLAND GIRL

By FRANK R. ADAMS

Their luck in finding themselves companions was emphasized as time went on. The poker game became so engrossing that Irene and Vern had to talk so one another if they expected to be listened to. What time he was awake when off duty he spent near the wheel trying by cheerful conversation to keep her thoughts from dwelling too darkly on the immediate future and when he himself was steering he tried to keep her aft where he could throw her an occasional verbal sandcone.

There were three days of feeling the way to permanent friendship. If anything lay beyond that this was no time to find out. Irene would be plenty of time for that when and if the crisis in Irene's affairs were successfully passed.

The morning of the fourth day dawned dim and greasy. The sun had shone red for a brief space before the accordion closed and blotted it out. The wind died and "Wings" rode steadily on a slippery swell. They had had the motor going since nightfall of the day before.

Irene came on deck to relieve Vern.

Her gaze swung across the horizon. "What do you think?"

"I think this craft would be safer inside that reef which is backed just below the horizon on our starboard side."

Irene shook her head. "Perhaps, but we dare not lay up. Besides this storm may last for three or four days. If we once got inside we could never get out again."

"True," Vern admitted. "I was merely telling you what I thought. If a harbor is out of the question we had better make out a little farther. Where we are now a slight mishap to the motor with a heavy sea running would be fatal. Three or four miles more away from the reefs we would have a chance to make repairs."

Irene nodded. "You're quite right. I'll take her out while you turn in."

"Do you want me to stay on deck in case—"

"No, this may not break for several hours yet. It will be better for you to snatch some sleep because later we may neither of us be able to get any. I'll call you when I need you."

Vern knew that she spoke sound sense. Since there was nothing he could do, no preparation he could make against the blow which was coming it would be better to fortify himself with some real rather than fret about something that could not be helped. It might turn out to be only a small squall after all.

Vern had not been in his bunk more than an hour before he was lightly rolled out of it by the first wave of a sudden sea. It came a few minutes ahead of the wind which began to tune up the rigging before he could get his shoes on.

The poker game in the cabin was going on under difficulties because the chips would not stay in one spot and the dealer had to hand each card to the players.

Vern reported on deck. For a moment he stood in the companionway looking at the storm. The wind had become a favorite light combination with Vern lately and he indulged himself even now with the heavens getting ready to wreak their wrath upon them.

Even wind that blew her garments to nothing but bare hands failed to disturb the lovely poise of Irene. A girl and a ship are the two most graceful things in human existence. Combined their charm is more than doubled.

Irene was the spirit of "Wings" balancing the wheel on deck, swaying in absolute tempo with the sea music to which it danced.

This girl was a light in Vern's life that would flame and shine bright that it almost hurt him to look at it.

CHAPTER 14

Irene's attention was far away over the rim of the sudden horizon and he was almost at her side before she noticed him.

"What are you doing on deck?" she demanded with a sharp waiting below.

"It is a poor sailor I guess," he said. "I can't sleep unless you hold this cradle still."

They had to exchange ideas at the top of their lungs because the marine amusement was getting too loud altogether for parlor conversation. Vern had to shout rather than the waves now, snatching off their curving white caps, carrying them aft and adding them in the faces of the crew of "Wings".

Irene had headed the yacht diagonally against the waves, using her around square into the larger more. So far the motor was doing its duty splendidly over running a beat. Vern was glad they had concentrated on gasoline still had nearly a tankful in case they had to run into the lee of the reefs for hours.

Their general direction was still south and after a half an hour of crossing the waves diagonally into the wind [illegible] they were running an equal length of time as a nearly due west on the course which made them glad across the storm's center.

Vern understood the manoeuvre she was still edging nearer to Lady Cane Key's reef. He had forgotten that they had to be there the next day. He had not the slightest hope of getting to forget either no matter if danger and death stood in the path and ordered them to turn back.

Well, whatever she did he was with her—her cause had become his cause. Vern was no half-way fighter. He was all in on any other pursuit he happened. Perhaps it was just as well that the other passengers could not read her mind quite that way. Vern hoped so.

"They've lived their lives," he muttered, "so if—"

"What did you say?" asked the steersman.

"Nuh!," he yelled.

She did. They were drenched anyway. Both she smiled through it. "This is no time for sentiment."

He laughed. This was good. They were in terms of playful comedy, then. For another thing he was glad; the portentous humorless sea-death had for the moment lifted from the weight of foreboding which had been bent spirit lower and lower as they approached their destination. Apparently being face to face with actual and immediate physical danger had banished until tomorrow the necessity for introspective melancholy.

She was too wet now for oilskins. Fortunately the air was fairly warm yet and Irene seemed to thrive on plenty of water. She shook herself and came up smiling a little either cut in her spirits as in her hair. She looked at him questioningly. "Are you afraid?"

"Yes, scared to death. Are you?"

"Absolutely. Ain't it a grand and glorious feeling?"

They rode to the top of the next wave and "pecred down at black death in the hollow beyond before plunging horribly into it.

The old boat shuddered and creaked but got to her feet again, staggering. Vern was glad that they were not carrying an ounce of canvas. Anything to put an additional strain on the keel and the wood probably have pried her apart.

Acting on a discouraging thought, Vern worked his amidships to the pump, a small pitcher pump hand affair such as is used in cisterns and tried it. There was a little water but not much. He had it dry in fifteen minutes. There was no unanimous opening of the seams as yet.

And then, as they were zig-zagging toward shore with the wind and water following over the stern a larger wave than any so far came right over the taffrail, flooded the after deck and poured in a torrent down the companionway.

The motor began to miss. As there were only two cylinders, in the heavy duty marine engine below decks to have one of them incapacitated meant an immediate loss of headway. "Wings" began to roll sidewise a little.

CHAPTER 15

Irene looked at Vern in apprehensive dismay.

"Stick to the wheel," he ordered, revealing their rank for the moment. "I'll see what I can do."

She gave him a grateful glance which he hoped that he would be able to earn.

Vern did know something about motors although the contraption that animated Wings had a bit of old fashioned and complicated parts that he was not absolutely familiar with.

Vern dashed down the companionway colliding with the dampened passengers who were headed for the deck to find out what was the matter. He shook off their demands for explanations and went forward to the compartment where the motor did its threshing.

It was still turning over but in a despirited and erratic fashion as if every gasp might be its last.

Vern had looked it over while they were under sail and knew as much as he could find out without actually taking it apart. He knew, for instance, that the ignition was of the modern high-tension design without any more mysteries than the stationary engines. That where the trouble lay he knew all the working parts and considered them simple. Both the spark and the gasoline were coming to the cylinders. There was a short circuit in the electrical current that supplied the spark. The wet was causing the high tension coil to one pole of the ignition device to short-circuit before the sparks against the cylinder head.

No wonder the motor was trying to fire the gasoline inside the cylinder.

There was no time to wrap the wires with dry cloth. Vern began to dry it and the cylinder head off. He thought that the motor was improving desperately of the load now that the water was not splashing over it any minute. The hull under the deck was not feeling the seas that were hitting nearly broadside now.

Irene came below. "Father has the wheel for a moment," she explained. "Can I help you [illegible] need help,"

Under Vern's direction she wiped off the cylinder head with a piece of waste while he rigged a connection around the damaged motor.

"I think you're wonderful," she said, true admiration in her voice. "I always have had that Yankee ken terribly ingenious."

Vern was just enough distance in her voice to [illegible] from swelling up too much. Did she scorn him just a bit for the way he was gradually she admired? Would her love be more apt to go to the kind of man who died like a gentleman rather than the one whose mind figured a way out?

He was not sure. Neither, of course, was she.

With the after hatch battened down there seemed little likelihood that any repetition of the mishap could befall the engine and so the captain and crew repaired to the deck.

Mr. Ferguson, at the wheel, and Mr. MacLean, and banker, were playing poker for match sticks money on each wave as to whether it would break over the bow or over the yacht or just before it reached—she had just been in New York but without time or peace of mind to visit theatres which were only a memory [illegible] fairyland to her.

In a matter of fact Vern came to a more intimate mental understanding with Irene during those hours than they were marooned on deck together with the heavens and waters of the earth booming around them than he had during the three preceding days of milder and more conversational weather. The explanation probably was that the upset of the elements had lifted a lot of conventionality had removed at least temporarily the bars with which she had surrounded herself. After all, if you are speaking what may be your last few hours on earth with an individual you don't imagine too closely into his ancestry, caste or past existence. Contemporaneity is much more essential.

Not that they were necessarily headed straight into the jaws of death. Under ordinary conditions if the gasoline lasted there was not much reason why "Wings" should not ride out the storm. It was a stout boat, she took the waves well and with headway need not be swamped so easily as a larger craft.

Under ordinary conditions that is.

Nothing was said about it but it was tacitly understood that the journey was going to end that day either at the home wharf at Little Cane Key or on a reef somewhere.

CHAPTER 16

This was the last twenty-four hours of grace allowed to Irene by the strange contract entered into between herself and the strange ruffian who had seized her property. Vern knew just as well as if she had said so that Irene intended to land somewhere before morning, dead or alive.

It should have been a terrifying thought but on the contrary it gave him the restful thrill which he had been so eagerly seeking lately. Added to that was the knowledge that the proximity of death was the only thing that allowed him to partake of full intimate companionship of this womanly girl, whose confidence had become recently the most desirable thing in existence.

He could feel her drawing closer to him with every mile of intervening water they left behind. This was a last ride together, a final boarding on earth, a last material of 'convention were slipping. Why pretend to a person with whom you may, in a few hours, be facing the sea, a judgment?

Even the coming of dusk with the sea growing more sinister compressed them more closely together in their tight little island of hours slipping swiftly into the vortex of eternity.

One part of Irene's mind had been 'roaming afield with Vern's unexpectedly comprehensible and appreciative one. Another part had been sticking very close to the job in hand. Perhaps she had arrived at her conclusions by mathematical calculations, perhaps she knew the coast so well that she had a sort of an intuitive sense of its contours.

At any rate she said to Vern at the wheel, "Starboard your helm. A little more even. There, hold her as she is."

Vern obeyed. They were running with the wind and water, headed presumably dead on for the shore which could not be so very many miles away.

It was too dark now to see anything. But the boat was continuously steady. The wind [illegible] if "Wings" had given an [illegible] gale and was now being borne unconscious by the howling witches of blackness that had closed in around them. The very air was still as if they were in a doomed cathedral of darkness. That was being lifted bodily by a giant hand and hurled accurately at destruction.

OCT 4- MR. AND MRS.- A MYSTERY DRAMA IN THE HOME

TARZAN, LORD OF THE JUNGLE

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Blake felt himself lifted clear of his saddle and hurled heavily to the ground. He sat up, and there, not a lance length away, sat Sir Wilfred. Both being unhorsed, it meant they broke even and neither could take part in the tourney. By this time their squires and men had arrived to aid them, as they started for their respective tilts, Blake turned to grin at Sir Wilfred. "So long, old man," he cried cheerily, "I'll be seeing you again!"

An hour later, another great tourney was over when the heralds announced the Knights of Nimmr had won by the close margin of two points. Amidst the shouting of the stand holding the victory side, the Protors formed to ride upon the lists and receive the prizes. As they trooped down the field to claim the five maidens from the City of the Sepulcher. King Bohun gathered his own knights about him, as preparing to ride back to his camp.

Now a Knight of the Sepulcher, disguised as one of Nimmr, entered the south stand and made his way toward the loge of Prince Gobred, Bohun watched so that the bulk of them were between the victorious Knights of Nimmr and Prince Gobred's loge. Now, as the south tourney prescribed for the reception of the two young Knights with the riderless horses, spurred at a run straight for the loge of the Prince of Nimmr—and the knight behind the Princess Guiselda held himself poised for action.

One of these knights held the bridle of a riderless horse. Suddenly, Bohun raised his hand and spurred across the field, followed by his knights. They met the Knights of Nimmr and the Princess Guiselda in the middle of the field, engaged in the ritualistic rites that the rules of the annual tourney prescribed for the reception of the five prize maidens. Close beside King Bohun, the knight sat on their chargers, their gaze fastened upon their king.

St. Francis and the Birds

Bird Sanctuary in Little Umbrian Town Contains Tiny Monastery And is a World of Bird Song

Following the life of St. Francis of Assisi, who died more than seven hundred years ago, there began a revolution in man's relation to bird life which has never died and which in these latter days is abreast/even with the creation of bird sanctuaries in all parts of the world. Always there has been a company of disciples, world-wide in extent, whose lives have been sweetened and purified by the love of birds and whose inspiration, fidelity, joy and love in the presence of bird life, have been sustained and renewed by the immortal memory of Saint Francis of Assisi.

Thou Saint Francis, bleaser of our wings,
Friest of the morning lark that soars and sings,
Confessor of the Finches, loving Dreamer,
Who by thy faith became the Bird's Redeemer."—Rostand.

From the great mind before which Saint Francis bows down in such exquisite humility, the mind of Christ, there issued some benevolent and mighty power which survives all the controversy, all the bitterness, all the insincerity and the ugly amalgam that has marred the history of the world. In the presence of men know that they are in contact with the greatest love that has ever the power of love. To Saint Francis the love was the secret of life and religion and through it his immortality is a pulsing emotion, even ringing in the ears of all who love birds. His contemporaries are but names in the dust of the ages now. There came little from them that the world needed to remember. Scientists there has issued, as from the mind of Christ, a love that transcional loveliness which has never run dry and which has cleansed the hearts of men and refreshed their spirits when no other power could have done. Many saintly souls, understanding themselves, expert marksmen who have forsaken their guns, into the wilderness for the greater portion of their lives, have come in contact with Saint Francis' benevolence and have put away their guns, "in the dear love of birds" and of men.

A century ago, it is said, Goethe visited the little Umbrian town of Assisi; he looked for a few moments at the portico of the ancient temple of Minerva and then left the place. There seemed little to detain him. Now there hotels can scarcely accommodate the crowd of visitors of all nationalities who flock to Assisi at Easter. They do not go to see the temple of Minerva; there are better temples at Rome and elsewhere. They go because Assisi is the home of Saint Francis and to visit the bird sanctuary. A mile from the town in this bird sanctuary, bearing the inscription on its walls "shooting strictly prohibited." Within the walls of Francis' sanctuary the priest points out an old lime tree where Saint Francis used to preach verse with and sing with the birds. The sanctuary's name is "Bird" song. The traveller who supplies this description concludes: "Assisi's sense that the spirit of bird lovers loved this above all others gives to the familiar melodies of Bluebird, Wren and Chaffinch a lovelier and more spiritual meaning." Here Saint Francis "lives again, in minds made better by his presence.

When Rostand set himself to study the mysterious minds of the birds, in his "Chantecler" he found it quite impossible to separate them from Saint Francis' birds. They were in all literature, not forgetting the "Idylls of Theocritus and Horace's "Little Plays of Saint Francis"—there is nothing to be compared with Rostand's birds' Prayer, as representative and reproductive of the spirit of bird friendliness.

O GOD OF LITTLE BIRDS

O God of little birds!
Who made our bodies light as spoken words;
Who painted Thy blue sky upon our wings;
We thank Thee for the Day, and for the springs
Wherefrom we drank; the whole-some grain we ate;
For all Thy care of us who on Thee wait;
The brightness of our eyes so small to see;
Which spy the foes no human eyes had found:
The tools Thy Thy gardeners never lack;—
Our rakes and pruning-hooks of white and black.

Tomorrow we will strive with weed and blight;
Forgive, we pray, our little sins to-night,
The stolen, tempting berries, two or three.
We cannot sleep if unforgiven by Thee.
Unless Thou close our triple-guarded eyes
And keep us 'neath Thy wing till morn arise.

Lord, if some man have paid with stones and stone
The songs thy birds about his path have thrown,
The toll that slew the wren'l in his wrath,—
Ah, though his net have caught some fledgling sweet,
Teach us forgiveness, though it be not easy,
In the dear name of Francis of Assisi,
Forgiving man whatever hurts or wrds
Because one man hath said, "My brother's birds".

And thou Saint Francis, bleaser of our wings,
Pray for us!
Priest of the morning lark that soars and sings,
Pray for us!
Confessor of the Finches, loving Dreamer,
Who by thy faith became the Bird's Redeemer,
Grave for our souls, absolved them of all taint,
Pray for us! and obtain, beloved Saint,
Our grain of barley—millet—and of wheat,
So be it! So be it! So be it!

His spirit of love of birds finds expression seven centuries after his death not on one, but in every continent. In the very-growing interest in birds and their protection. Sanctuaries for birds are world wide and Canada has some dozens of them.

SUCCESSION DUTY CLAIM IS DISCUSSED

Quebec Not Entitled to $15,775 Paid to Ontario After Sifton's Death

Ottawa, Oct. 3.—(CP)—The Supreme Court of Canada today ruled the Province of Quebec was not entitled to $15,775.10 succession duties from the Estate of Sir Clifford Sifton, former Dominion Minister of the Interior who died in April, 1929. The court upheld the National Trust Company, Executors of the Estate in paying the taxes to Ontario.

When Sir Clifford Canada Minister died he had $150,000 in Canadian National Railway bonds and $53,367 in Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Bonds. Although registered in Montreal, the bonds were in safety deposit vaults in Ontario at the time of Sir Clifford's death. His Executors paid succession duties to Ontario.

Quebec's claim to the taxes was based on the Montreal registration of the bonds and because the headquarters of the Railway Companies were in that province. Lower courts in Quebec ruled against the Province and were upheld today by the Supreme Court.

33 MEN BURN TO DEATH IN BUSH FIRE

100 Others Injured in Making Escape From Burning Ring

OVERCOME BY SMOKE

Victims of Fire Were on Relief Work in City

Los Angeles, Oct. 4.—Thirty-three men were burned to death in the Griffith Park hills above Hollywood, where a fire started yesterday in timber-like brush, apparently after a worker employed on a municipal project had cast away a cigarette.

Some 150 men, drawn from the ranks of unemployed, were sent into a park area to work on relief projects. They were trapped in a circle of flames which engulfed a small area between Griffith Park and Hollywood, when they were employed.

Hardly any of the survivors, reported safe, escaped without some injury or burns. A fleet of ambulances, fire trucks and more than 2,500 recruits were rushed to their aid, but many were overcome before the blaze, after it had devastated about 1,000 acres of uninhabited mountain land.

Quickly a force of 2,500 men was mobilized and rushed to the scene and within a short time they succeeded in controlling the flames. But before it had surrounded the workers, trapping them in the hollow.

Spine Is Broken

Five of the men brought to St. Vincent's and the General Hospitals were burned so seriously that fear for their survival was expressed. One man suffered a broken back when he fell from a canyon wall and there were many whose bones were broken, as well as internal injuries.

Although the largest part of the fire area was covered with underbrush, a small canyon at the north end of the park was filled with timber.

Crews of workmen were scattered throughout the hillsides, and whether they were actually trapped in these isolated sections was not known.

Efforts to penetrate the screen of smoke and flames were hampered by difficult task, offering the possibility of suffocation, were hampered by the rough settled down over the low mountains, and it was considered that the fire would not escape before the full scope of the blaze could be learned.

Two physicians at one of the hospitals in Griffith Park, near the vicinity of the injured treated were suffering from burns, and after examination were released, were permitted to go to their homes.

The fire started within a city area and spread up the hills to one of the largest recreation centres in Los Angeles, comprised of golf courses, riding trails, tennis courts and swimming pools. The general locations of the flames, however, was some distance from the improved territory.

Spread of the fire was supplemented by a strong wind, which almost blew the flames into the sea at the ocean in the late afternoon.

Golf players, riders, cadies and swimmers were summarily recruited to aid the firemen.

Almost immediately known as the Hollywood Hills, is a part of the long rolling range of the Monica Mountains, extending from the ocean beach to a point about 30 miles inland, and ending in a line about 10 miles north of the downtown section.

In the lower section of the southern slope of the hills, above Hollywood, many pretentious homes, a number or mansions of movie celebrities, dot the hillside, but the fire did not endanger these residences.

Mayor Frank L. Shaw issued an appeal to relief centres to aid the stricken families.

"I am terribly shocked at the horrible tragedy," he said. "I will use all the facilities of my command to extend immediate relief to the bereaved families, and will see to it that the injured men are very best of care."

Survivor Tells Story

Los Angeles, Oct. 4.—The story of how thirty-three men died in a raging flames that trapped them in a blind ravine back of the Hollywood Hills, was told last night by R. R. Woods, a county worker, who escaped with several others as the fire swept over them.

"They didn't scream," Woods said. "They were terribly suffocated by the fire the fire caught up with them."

Woods watched the men drop, one by one, as they attempted to fight their way to safety through dense clouds of smoke.

"They were men I knew," Woods said. "We were all county workers together, and we were up that canyon to fight the fire. We dug and worked with our shovels to make a fire break, when suddenly the flames were upon us.

"I ran down hill with a few others and barely got around the flames when I looked back. I saw forty or more others running up hill. They kept dropping one by one as the smoke caught up with them. Then they would crawl a little way and die. And then the fire would catch them.

"I never heard a scream. They just died silently."

On the hillside when Woods saw his fellow-workers burned to death, S. T. Tinker, an automobile driver said he counted thirty-nine bodies.

Birmingham, Oct. 5 (CP)—"We have an overdose of Geneva—let us concentrate on Ottawa," declared F. J. Hannon, M.P., amid prolonged applause, as he complained that the conservative party's great annual convention today there was too much internationalism and too little imperialism.

AFTER HAVANA'S BLOODY CONFLICT SUBSIDED

DISPIRITED SCHOOL BOY SHOOTS SELF

Unable to Make Progress in School Given As Reason

USED "DEN"

Body Found in Play House Used by Neighborhood Boys

Elmcoe, Ont., Oct. 5—Dispirited by his failure to make progress in school, Clifford Herron, 13, crawled through a low doorway that led to his "den" in the barn behind his father's house here and shot himself with a rifle. His body was discovered this morning.

Because he did not get along well in the public school he attended and was described as somewhat backward, Clifford "hated" school. Yesterday he left for classes but did not go to the school. Instead he went to the little playhouse he and his chums had built in the barn.

Throughout the day and night his parents were without word of him. Last night his father, Charles Herron, and his brothers searched for him without success. It was not until seven o'clock this morning the father thought of the "den." The door leading to the room was only a few feet high and Mr. Herron crawled through it on hands and knees.

Apparently Clifford had shot himself through the heart sometime yesterday or last night. He had been dead for many hours when found. A "farewell" letter to his parents was found in an inside pocket of his coat but it was not made public.

Four brothers and two sisters survive the 15 year old boy. No inquest will be held.

GAS RUNS OUT NEAR END OF LONG JOURNEY

Belleville Relief Office Supply Family With Gasoline

WOEFUL ODYSSEY

Claiming of Estate Man Says Leads to Much Suffering

The end of a long arduous trail, fraught with danger and hardship, which has led from Toronto to a village in South Carolina, and then almost back again, for a man, his wife and five children in a dilapidated touring car, ended temporarily at the foot of West Bridge street, this morning when the car's motor vehicle ran dry of gas and left the family stranded.

It was a tale of privation and suffering that the man told as he hopelessly sat on the running board of the old car, racking his brain to find some method of continuing his journey back to Toronto which they had left several months ago on a rainbow trail that ended only in disappointment. Frail, thin and with the marks of worry and care deeply seamed on a tired face the family man huddled in the rear seat of the car could only nod in corroboration.

Nearly a year ago the man had word of the death of his sister, Rhoda reported to have left a house and farm in the rich rolling hills of Carolina. Under the will, the only remaining relative assumed right to the property. The man, tired of life in the big city, gave up a small paying job, drove his life's savings from the bank, and with the family in the machine, set out.

Disappointments

Disappointment awaited. Instead of a farm, he found a broken plot. Instead of a cosy home was a small shack deeply encumbered with debt and back taxes. For a time the family fought with fate. Then with money gone and expenses mounting Toronto again appealed. They set out again from Carolina, back to the city they had left.

By night they slept huddled in the car alongside the road. When hungry they begged food from the houses along the roads. Then gas ran out they begged more from the mayors and revves of the municipalities in which they were stranded. It was a new and terrifying experience. But it had to be done. Somehow they got along.

In Belleville gas again ran out. They slept by the roadside all night. One man, his wife and five children. In the morning they visited the relief office. The father explained their plight. Five gallons of gas was given and the home now..I have well-to-do relations.....they wouldn't like it."

PRESIDENT OF CHICUBS DIES

William Veeck III But Few Days in Hospital

Chicago, Oct. 5—(CP)—William Veeck, President of the Chicago Cubs died at 7:45 a.m. (Central Standard Time) today at St. Luke's Hospital where he had been suffering from leucemia, an excess of white corpuscles in the blood.

The death of the veteran baseball official occurred shortly after his physician, Dr. Leo. C. Clewe, said his condition had taken a turn for the worse. Last night he was reported somewhat better but oxygen had been administered to assist him in breathing.

Veeck entered the hospital several days ago and his condition was considered critical from the start. The report was administered yesterday when his difficulty in breathing caused his heart to be taxed and his temperature to rise.

Once A Reporter

Sharp reportorial wit, backed by a keen sense of constructive criticism, lifted William Louis Veeck from the press box of the outstanding executives of baseball.

He was born in 1914 when the White Sox were the baseball idols of Chicago, and the Cubs were regarded as just another ball club despite a National League pennant during that war year. Less than a year Veeck got his chance. A baseball writer for the Chicago "Daily Bailey" for the Chicago American, he had written a series of articles criticizing the team and making suggestions for its improvement.

The late William Wrigley, Jr. who had just purchased a controlling interest in the Cubs, read the articles and called Veeck into his office.

"If you think you can do any better than why don't you try it?" he asked.

"All right, I will" shot back the baseball writer.

And he did. At owner Wrigley's request, he became Vice-President of the Cubs on December 8, 1918, second in command to Fred Mitchell, then manager of the team, in addition to active managership on the playing field. On July 8, 1919, Mitchell surrendered the presidency to Veeck, assuming both executive executive and confined his attention to managing the team.

Veeck was a resident of the club was featured by his willingness and eagerness to try new ideas. New ideas were with him to the end.

Veeck was another town boy, who made good in the big city, son of a wagon builder and cabinet maker. He was born in Boonesville, Ind. in 1881.

British Trade Union Chief Assails "Plot" to Destroy Citizenship

Hitlerism is Direct Opposite of U. S. Plan, He Says

GERMAN PLOT

Hitler Backed by Wealth of Capitalists Asserts James Rowan

(By Clarence M. Wright)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Oct. 5.—(AP)—A denunciation of Adolf Hitler as a "conspirator" with capitalism and communism against "true democracy" was put before the American Federation of Labor convention today by James Rowan, representing the British Trades Union Congress.

Pointing to the different reactions to the depression that had developed in United States and Europe, Rowan said "almost at the moment when you, President was beginning your bold movement, which we are watching with great sympathy, another was starting in Europe."

"It was a movement to destroy the institutions of free citizenship, and it already has created a good portion of Europe," Rowan said.

German Unions Wiped Out

Recalling the German Trade Unions had 8,000,000 members before Hitler became Dictator, Rowan said they had been wiped out overnight "as if their movement had been a feeble, struggling thing."

"In Germany," Rowan told the Convention, "it is a well planned conspiracy on the part of former leaders to regain the power they lost when they lost the war.

"Hitler's movement has been supplied money by the big industrialists."

Some of it has been contributed directly, he asserted, while more has been given to Hitler's agent in Switzerland and France.

Toronto Women Seek Corsets

One Woman Sends Strand of Rope to Give Her Size

Belleville's Central Relief depot with enough corsets on hand to supply hundreds of feminine relief applicants with that particular article of feminine attire, would do just that if all the requests by letter that have been received since Thursday last from women in cities throughout Ontario, requesting them, are filled. Today at the relief depot letters are being received from as far west as Toronto requesting stated sizes of corsets. One Toronto lady now on relief sent a specific request for a certain size corselette, "with pink silk trimming, if possible". Another sent a mysterious little package containing a strand of rope, the exact waist measurement of the writer.

The corsets, which number several hundred pair, were left at the local bureau by a mysterious donor representing a Toronto concern. They had been damaged slightly in shipment.

Whether outside corset orders will be filled is unknown. It was generally decided that the central office is not in the business.

CHAPTER NO. 55 O. E. S. HOLDS ANNUAL BAZAAR

One sure sign that the summer is over is that the bazaars are with us again. Yesterday, October 4th, Belleville Chapter No. 55, Order of the Eastern Star, held their annual bazaar and believe you me it was some bazaar. What these ladies can do when they put their mind to it!

The bazaar was held this year in their chapter room in the Odd-Fellows Temple and the room was a regular bower of beauty with its gay decorations and wonderful flowers, real and otherwise. The members of the Decoration Committee under Mrs. Lily Law, certainly excelled themselves in their efforts to make the chapter room beautiful.

The guests were received by the Worthy Matron of the Chapter, Sister Flossie Smith, and by Past Matron Sister Essie Naylor and Sister Sarah Gee.

When they had recovered their breath after the sight of the beautiful room, they were drawn irresistibly to the fancy work booth in charge of Mrs. Stella Hogle, and there had their first sample of the rare bargains that were to be had in samples of the handiwork of the members were real works of art.

Then another few steps and behold! A pirate ship greeted their eyes with every kind of tempting pickles and skulls and cross-bones and everything and with Captain Mary Orne on the bridge. A varied lot of plunder was offered for sale. Whether my Timbers, but we pity the poor homes raided by that pirate ship. Also all the members of the households must have had to walk the plank.

Then came the Home Cooking booth with Mrs. Ada McEwen as convener. Some people may have the idea that home cooking means decadent as cooks but if they had only had a look at that booth, their opinion would be quickly dissolved. The offerings looked as though they had been the subject of much thought about the odors of the spices of Ireland!

Then the flower booth with Mrs. Ray Law as convener. Here a sight for flowers destined to arranges do make. And the flower girls! What pretty girls they were and what a few men who came in during the afternoon seemed to gravitate in that direction and to linger longer. We wonder who the flowers were for.

Then the Apron and Towel booth in charge of Mrs. Beatrice Embury as Convener. The remarks heard at this booth of utility articles, were certainly enlightening as the customers tried on the aprons to see if they corresponded with their ideas of what things had as the wonderful weather the towels would improve their condition during laundering.

Next in order was the Candy booth in charge of Mrs. Mrs. Aletha Cornish as Convener and they certainly had a flourishing business dispensing the toothsome dainties and they must have been well pleased with the encouragement came back for a second supply.

Then the Grocery booth which was having two small girls mingling with the crowd and they were well played on trays.

This completed the round of the booths and upon looking around to see if there was something else to purchase, we found that the tea table at a loose end, lot there stood a very wonderful colored bird house with a weathervane on top, directing you to the tea room on the second floor upstairs. This most artistic bird house was donated by Mr. Scott of Wilton and was made by himself, although he has only one hand. Elva Graves was in charge of the selling of tickets on this donation and assisted by Marion Brown and Louise.

By this time the guests were rather inclined to heed the directing of the weather vane and gravitated towards the tea room upstairs which was in charge of Past Matrons, Mrs. M. J. Barlow, Mrs. Ray Law, Mrs. Ada McEwen, with Mrs. C. Washburn looking after the pretty waitresses and Mrs. Bowyer and Mrs. A. Brown looking after the kitchen end to see that the hot drinks were sufficient and Mrs. A. L. Stillman to see that the meat pies and buns were plentifully supplied.

Among the prizes was the selling of tickets on a large hamper of groceries. The donations were as follows towards this, Future that a second basket was provided and the prize was won by Mrs. Ray Law and the second by Mrs. C. Crosby and the second by Mrs. W. D. Rosbury. Other ticket selling features were for home-made candy, won by Mrs. Q. Boyd; writing Lucky Star, Mrs. J. R. Reid; cushion, won by Mrs. N. G. Wheeler-Hagan and the fancy bowl won by Mr. Q. Boyd. Mrs. E. H. Gilbert was in charge of the ticket selling for the groceries.

The Conveners and their staffs are certainly to be congratulated on the splendid way in which everything was handled and it was a great satisfaction to the chapter. The afternoon tea table at which Mrs. was devoted to bridge and euchre with Miss Irene Hallam and Mrs. Nellie Rothwell in charge and this item seemed to be just as popular as any of the others and the prize winners were for euchre: ladies' first, Mrs. J. Corne; second, Mrs. Edna Murphy; third, Mrs. Gallsbury and for the men, W. J. Givens was first; G. F. Adams was second and G. B. McDonald was third. In bridge the ladies, Mrs. C. R. Clapp was first; Mrs. W. J. Green; second; Miss R. McGibbon, third and Mrs. J. Browning, fourth.

Mrs. G. Boyd is General Convener, and Miss Irene Hallam as Co-Convener, are to be congratulated on the success of their efforts.

WINTER RATE AN INJUSTICE

Rate on British Coal Subject to 40 Cent Increase

Mr. W. E. Schuster interviewed again upon British and U.S. Coal Rates and says:

"United States anthracite reaches Belleville on a through freight rate which is $4.20 per ton. $2.52 of this amount is apportioned to Foreign Lines for its haul from the hard coal mines to Black Rock and $1.68 to the Canadian Lines.

"Mr. Justice Fullerton, Chairman of the Dominion Board of Railway Commissioners, has written me twice upon the subject and has referred to an increase from $1.68 to $2.30 on the Black Rock-Belleville rate. Mr. Justice Fullerton has not interpreted correctly supplement E-11 dated March 15th, last. There has been no increase by the Canadian railways.

"As the matter now stands British anthracite is moving from Montreal to Belleville on a rate of $1.70 per ton, which is subject to an increase to $1.84 at the close of navigation, just at the time when the poorer class of people are forced to buy for immediate need. I hope this injustice will be corrected before long. The rates on U.S. Anthracite are in force all year and British rates should be on the same basis. Intra-Empire trade is the key policy of the Bennett Government and we are simply asking for a fighting chance in the matter of rail rates for British Domestic fuel.

WELFARE BAGS TO BE PLACED IN CITY

A concerted drive will be made this week by officials of the Central Relief office to dispose of the hundred "Community Welfare Bags" recently received at the City Hall. These bags are expected to be placed in homes, offices and shops throughout the city for donations of clothing, shoes and other cold weather necessities for those on relief. In order to assist the distribution of the bags, householders who may have cast off clothing or articles are asked to apply at the City Hall for the bags. When filled they will be called for.

Too Many Difficulties in Form Government

Madrid, Oct. 5—Satches Roman, a wealthy lawyer, today declined the office of premier of Spain. Roman he said "I encountered too many difficulties to enable me to form a government."

Roman had been designated by President Alcala Zamora to organize a coalition cabinet to succeed that of Alexandro Lerroux.

But, after prolonged conferences with leaders representing most of the warring factions in Spain's scattered political figure, he declined the honor.

THANKSGIVING TRADE IN TURKEYS SCARCE THIS YEAR

Too Hard To Raise And People's Taste Changing Says Breeders

Although buyers from the larger centres have been making the rounds of farms in this section during the past week or so in search of the birds, the number of turkeys sold this year from this immediate district in anticipation of Thanksgiving trade is expected to be considerably less than in previous years in spite of fairly high prices being offered for the fowls.

Turkey, are fairly scarce in the section report produces men who were questioned. No longer does the farmer hatch and carefully tend a flock of the bobbertone birds, when the results from the sale at the end of the year are always so small. There isn't the demand for them any more as there was in previous years, and only a few farmers, who are able to raise them as a side line are bothering with them. In former years a sizable income from a flock could be realized each Thanksgiving market day, and at Christmas time, but today that day hasn't been worth the bother.

Mrs. H. Powell, of Trenton, explained the difficulty of raising the birds:

"They're as hard to raise as children," she stated, "From the time they are hatched they have to be looked after like babies. When they're not getting into trouble around the farm yard, they are wandering off into the field, to be snapped up by a wandering fox. At night they have to be carefully hunted up and put in their coops. Each time the weather changes they get a chill, and that means more trouble. Only a small percentage of the hatching ever does grow big enough to market. They're hardly worth the trouble, unless one raises just a small flock."

Tastes Changing

Peoples' tastes are changing, indicated another produce man. Not very many years ago Thanksgiving without a turkey was the same as Christmas without geese. Now people don't care whether they have a turkey, a chicken, or just a roast of meat. "Turkeys seemed to belong to the age of the big, old-fashioned wood-burning kitchen stove, when the housewife started making up the Thanksgiving dinner at least two days ahead of time," stated the produce man. "Nowadays you just can't seem to reconcile a turkey with the modern flat. And I doubt very much if you could get a fair sized bird into the ovens of some of those new ranges they sell these days," he added.

One thing that poultry raisers of this district have noticed lately is that the guinea hen seems to be making a bid for the palate. They are regarded as a special delicacy by many, and a good price is generally asked for that particular fowl. Often as high as one dollar and seventy-five cents per pair is asked. They have dark meat, resembling partridge and are small boned.

Although farmers and producers men state that there will be choice offerings of turkey on the local market before Thanksgiving Day, October 9th., they intimate that the quantity of the fowl may be limited, and if that is to be the main dish of Monday's dinner then the advice of shop early is offered.

Prices are expected to range all the way from twenty-five to thirty cents per pound, dressed.

MAY ABANDON LONG FLIGHT

Alternative Route Now Proposed by The Mollisons

Toronto, Oct. 5 (CP)—James and Amy Mollison, unlucky English fliers are still storm-locked today and hopes for their Wasaga-to-Baghdad flight had been practically abandoned unable to get their heavily-loaded plane off the Wasaga sands Tuesday morning, they erected a compression-member on the undercarriage structure of the plane" and were temporarily held up for repairs. The repairs were all completed yesterday, and the plane was again ready to fly.

The fliers slipped quietly into the Meteorological Observatory last night, and studied weather maps. They had planned, weather permitting to slip quietly away to Wasaga and take-off, probably this morning. But the weatherman was against the attempt. Fogs, head winds, low ceilings and generally dangerous flying weather was spread across the entire route and so the early take-off was forgotten.

Leahy of this city. The writ, filed by Alleged neglect. The case is being heard at the Assizes. Dr. Leahy denied the allegation.

Following addresses given by Dr. H. B. McGiveran, Principal of Wycliffe College, and officers of the church, Rev. Dr. Hague was presented with a purse of gold and an illuminated address. Mrs. Hague was presented with a life membership by the Womens' Auxiliary and a bouquet of roses.

RADIOLOGIST DIES AS MARTYR TO SCIENCE

Had to Have Arm Amputated Because of Experiments

Edinburgh, Scotland, Oct. 8 (AP)—William Hope Fowler, a noted radiologist, died as a martyr to that science today at the age of 37.

As a result of radiological work in which he was a pioneer he had to have two fingers amputated at different times and finally lost his right arm last June.

King George praised his self-sacrificing labors when he conferred a Commandership of the Victorian Order on him at Buckingham Palace last February.

Dr. Fowler was the consulting radiologist to hospitals in Edinburgh, and Perth, and wrote numerous treatises on radium and heart diseases.

Weight of School Children Barometer Predicting Good Times and Bad

Philadelphia, Oct. 5 (CP)—In the world of medicine, doctors are pointing to the weight of school children as a new economic barometer for predicting good times and bad. They say this new indicator revealed last year that the depression was on its last legs, with underweight disappearing among 500,000 school children studied.

The discovery was disclosed at the 83rd. convention of the Pennsylvania Medical Society, which continues here today. It is credited to Dr. Allen M. Kerr, chief of the Medical Service of Philadelphia Schools.

He said he used "1926 as a "normal" year, and made records of the weights of 500,000 school children. With these weights as his standards, he continued the study, and before the depression actually had arrived, was on the lead the average school child losing weight, indicating less income at home.

The downgrade for almost three years after that was constant. Then, in the middle of last year, the underweight average began to diminish.

SATISFACTORY ADVANCE

Despite the feeling of indefiniteness, men who may be expected to know feel that the world is showing signs of improving its financial and industrial conditions. The inventor, Marconi, speaking at the Chicago Century of Progress Exposition said he saw evidences of betterment. Alexander Loveday, director of the League of Nations' financial section stresses the world wide character of the recovery, the United States leading by seventy per cent. in the increase in the volume of industrial production. France by twenty-two per cent., Japan and Germany by eighteen per cent., and Canada by eleven per cent. World growth in production has increased thirty per cent. this figure not including the Soviet republics. The monthly trade returns for July of this year for forty-nine countries representing nine-tenths of the trade of the world, show an increase. World exports have risen as much as ten per cent. between April and July, the chief increase taking place in crude materials and foodstuffs. But he notes that seasonal slumps are to be expected especially during the winter and he said that this fact must be recognized in the figures to be quoted.

The International Labor Office unemployment statistics during July, August and September show there is improvement since the beginning of the depression.

Realization of these facts is important, and will speed up the recovery. The exact way of the recovery is somewhat largely unknown to even the wisest of experts and during its course there will be many developments which will be hard to foresee. The fact that Britain herself is showing the real evidences of betterment may be taken as a sure sign.

ROOSEVELT'S STAND

President Roosevelt's dictum to the U. S. Legion that the debts which he declared that the country must be kept invent and steered away from bankruptcy and that the nation must have no favorite class, even veterans have encouragement to the public. His indication that benefits for the disabled veterans may be increased met a hearty response.

UNFAIR COMPETITION

"Leading Canadian insurance companies are in process of raising their rates to buyers of annuities," Financial Post says. "The reasons are that the companies find people are living longer on the average, particularly annuitants, and that the rate of interest on which the payments have been calculated in the past has been too high. Actuaries of the companies have, therefore, revised annuity prices upward.

"The Dominion Government, on the other hand, is now considering making the changes in its already low annuity rates. Ottawa has not seen fit to change the general basis since the Dominion started to sell annuities, except for a reduction of the interest allowed in calculating deferred annuities.

"Government annuities are already providing unfair competition for life insurance companies because the Dominion does not make allowance for administration expenses in its rates. To be just, it should revise rates from time to time the government goes further in its failure to recognize sound principles. This unfair, shortsighted attitude costs the taxpayer money unnecessarily. It is one of the concealed drains on the national exchequer."

ACCIDENT TOLL STILL HIGH

"Motor accidents reported in this province during the first seven days of 1933, in comparison with the corresponding month of 1932, accordin to the motor vehicles branch of the Ontario Department of Highways, are still the toll is a heavy one" says Sarnia Observer.

"Accidents in July numbered 876 and resulted in 53 deaths, while the property damage and non-fatal injuries to 873 persons. There were two more persons killed than during July 1932, and while there were 39 less accidents during last July, there were 27 more mishaps involving pedestrians, 11 more collisions with fixed objects, 24 more collisions with bicycles and 11 more collisions with motorcycles.

"Motor accidents can be reduced but the responsibility for reduction rests with the individual drivers.. Excessive speed, 'cutting in,' failure to check cars frequently for worn tires or mechanical defects that might cause mishaps are a few of the factors contributing to accidents. Modern automobiles are equipped with safety devices and are designed to give long service, but fulfillment of this aim is up to the motorists. Periodical inspection of moving parts will minimize the possibility of misfortune.

"The ever-increasing number of paved highways makes it possible for motor car owners to literally annihilate distances, but to do this it is not necessary to keep the accelerator pressed to the floor most of the time. Steady driving at a moderate rate of speed, with due respect to the rights of other motorists and of pedestrians, is good driving and a practice that should help to reduce the death list."

Who has learned to seek truth, knowing
Life is not what it appears.

Better fitted to pass judgment,
Yet but seldom dooming those Whom the world looks on with censure,
Even though they be his foes.

Far more able to speak sagely,
Time's rich harvest his to teach,
But in silence poised and waiting,
Careful ever of his speech.

He has felt the darkest passions
Stir in conflict in his breast;

Who has gained an understanding
Of the fickle human heart!

CUBA HAVING GOTTEN INTO THE KILLING HABIT keeps right on with the carnage. Seems as if nobody is satisfied down there. One president was chased out of the country, then one resigned in a hurry, and the present one has been invited to quit. Looks like the Cubans had so much revolution in their system, bottled up since Spain was expelled from the island, that it will take some time to get it all used up. In the meantime presidents will lead a precarious existence.

CALIFORNIA has had another shaking up, and no amount of denial will make the world believe that the so-called "tremblor" was anything else a real honest-to-goodness earthquake—not as severe as the last, perhaps, but shaky enough to scare the folks into hunting cover. California instead of denying the visit or earthquakes should capitalize on the "tremblors" as the only country where even the earth does the shimmy.

NATIVES FLOGGING A WHITE MAN, an unheard of occurrence, threw all South Africa in a furore, and a naval expedition with Lord High Admiral and all was sent into the wilds to hold court and discipline the native king who had dared threaten the supremeness of the white race in this manner. Marines and guns went along to enforce the decree of the court and win respect for the representatives of the Great White King. Tshekedi, the young chief, is tain who ordered the flogging, was found guilty and deposed from his office at the head of the tribe, and the white man's honor was vindicated. Not but what this particular white man deserved all he got, charged as he was with offenses against his own people, but to let a black man flog a white, it just isn't done in South Africa, even if the once white man has turned vellow. Tshekedi acknowledged his mistake in allowing a native court to try an Englishman and he has been reinstated by the British Government as head of 35,000 Bamangwato tribesmen. The young chief tain in acknowledging his mistake promised never again to permit a white man to be tried in a native court. Not in South Africa, where the blacks are such a tremendous majority the prestige of the whites is the only thing that affords protection and permits them to live in the country in peace.

MEN MARCHING BACK TO THE BUSH is another evidence of industrial recovery. A few logs have been taken out in the past few years and many families who depend upon bush money for the necessaries of life have had hard pluggings. Now that there is a demand for bush workers Canada regains some of its ancient glory and the timberjacks will again grow fat on the good eats of the modern lumber camps and come out in the spring with fat rolls to carry the families along. The picturesque river drivers will also come into their own again and make the rivers and the adjoining hills ring with their hearty, happy songs of bush and river.

DON'T OVERDO DRAMATICS OR EXAGGERATE

Inferiority Sense Often Leads to Defence Reaction

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology.

Perhaps Americans, more than any other nationality, like to dramatize things to make them emphatic, pithy, telling.

Our newspaper headlines bear witness to this fact. In a few words are condensed the very meat of a story, so that the reader may get the gist of what it's all about in the very first glance. In reporting the news of the day, a punch is put into almost every line. Our literature is tense, highly-colored and exciting.

To be sure, we like this, and it pays, for our general character is make-up. We are, by nature, full of pep and energy. Often we are inclined to be impulsive. We are a young nation, as nations go, and our youth is reflected in the way we read and in what we say and do. Yet, living and vital and therefore healthy as all this is, there remains, nevertheless, a tendency to exaggeration and of overstressing fictitious values, which are not justifiable.

For instance, when an individual is worth, let us say, only a hundred thousand dollars, the chances are that newspaper writer promptly puts him in the millionaire class. When a movie star's salary is reported often, we all know that it is multiplied to three to five times what it actually is.

Exaggeration is likewise prevalent in other matters. Achievements are magnified out of all proportion and their importance. When we talk of having had an enjoyable time we indulge in all sorts of superlatives. We exaggerate even our failures and sorrows. The average person's hard luck story is to be discounted by at least half.

We take positive delight in having a good story and "putting it on thick," and we rarely content-tive to news values and the interest and entertainment values in exaggeration.

There is a sound and fundamental psychological reason which motivates exaggeration. First of all, it makes us feel important when we, ourselves, indulge in it. Secondarily, when we hear it we somehow feel we see "in the know," and this likewise stimulates the ego.

But it also indicates a tendency toward inferiority, and this is why we should try to curb exaggeration and be careful not to overdo our dramatics.

One might say that there is an amount of exaggeration which is normal and beyond which nobody should go. To know just where to draw the line is a matter which is not necessary. After all, we are fully aware of it. When we are playing up a story beyond the point of credulity. We know when we are bluffing, and we know, too, when the other fellow is bluffing.

When one feels inferior — and this feeling may be largely unconscious—one naturally tries to compensate for it by making a big noise. It's a sort of "defense reaction"; a kind of compensation to square things.

So the more an individual exaggerates, the more he may be sure that deep down he is feeling quite meek and humble. If a man boasts too much he may even bore people; let us say, you may suspect that he is probably hiding a distressed streak, although he may not realize it. Yet his chief need is necessary to exaggerate his trustworthiness in order to keep his own shady desires from gaining the upper hand.

Therefore cut down exaggeration to more reasonable proportions. Try to see things as they are, the bare and unvarnished truth. Not only will this enhance your personality but at the same time it will observe much valuable mental energy.

Premier Says Downswing is Definitely Halted

Ottawa, Oct. 5—The considered opinion that Canada is now on the road to recovery, and the reasons for that opinion, are set forth in a statement with which Prime Minister Bennett will launch the campaign in connection with the refunding loan which will be offered to the public on October 10.

Official announcement was made that the loan would be opened on Tuesday next, but the terms and interest rates will not be announced until later. Formal proclamation or the proposed loan will appear in all newspapers carrying the next three days, accompanied by a statement over the signature of the Prime Minister.

The loan, which, it is believed, will be limited to $325,000,000 to provide for the redemption of maturing securities, will be described in more detail by Mr. Bennett and Hon. E. N. Rhodes, Minister of Finance, in a broadcast next Monday night. Mr. Bennett will speak from Winnipeg.

"With due precaution against unwarranted optimism, I think I may say that in Canada we are now on the road to recovery," the Prime Minister will declare. "Reports of the past six months appear to demonstrate that the movement is such that the downward trend has come to a definite stop and that an upward trend is now in progress.

Mr. Bennett turns to the latest statistical reports on industry and trade. These records, he believes, show that Canada's general economic condition reached its lowest point during the month of February last, and that "since we are definitely above that level following a recovery which has been gradual but persistent and unmistakable."

The index of the physical volume of business, which stood at 67.1 on February last, had risen to 89.9 in August, the latest month for which figures are now available; these figures, based on the index of 100, 1926, are said to be conservative. Wholesale prices increased by 9 per cent. over the same period.

Available records of industry since April show that 116,000 have been added to the payrolls, while estimates based on these partial reports place the number of persons employed persons since that date at 246,000. Retail store figures are also now offered as proof of the upswing. Both exports and imports have increased, and Canada's surplus of exports over imports during the 11 months ending with August of this year totalled $114,000,000.

All these facts and figures, I think we may quite safely take as signposts on the road to recovery," the Prime Minister declares. "In our further progress, no single factor will have more significance than the success of our national loan operations."

Letters to The Editor

BOYS' JUNIOR BOARD OF TRADE

Editor Ontario Intelligencer,
City.
Dear Sir,—

There are about fifteen hundred boys in Belleville, who will soon be the men of our city. Later on those boys will be aldermen, school trustees, members of the legislature or parliament. They will be the mechanics, merchants, professional men and officials.

It would help to qualify these boys for the future responsibilities if a Junior Board of Trade was formed to include all boys between twelve and twenty years of age. The Board of Trade could conduct a mock city council, a mock board of education, a mock parliament and mock trials.

These young men will soon be called upon to shoulder the debts and other responsibilities of this city or elsewhere.

Of recent years considerable numbers of young men have been brought before the criminal courts charged with offences. Last Saturday six young lads were brought before me and the Saturday before fourteen young lads were brought before me as Judge of the Juvenile Court charged with more or less serious offences. It is undesirable to imprison young lads and fines put a burden on the parents. A Government report for the Province of Ontario shows that 60 boys who became delinquents in a year and 343 girls who became delinquents in the same year. Some believe it is due to the kind of entertainments and manner in which sports are conducted, others believe it is due to the church, home or school or lack of corporal punishment. Some claim that the insistent spread of Communism, the latest features of which encourage a disregard of property rights and moral conduct, account for the increase of juvenile delinquents.

No doubt, if these unfortunate boys had a fuller appreciation of their responsibilities as citizens, many of them would have escaped the experience of being brought into court. The chain or citizenship is no stronger than its weakest link. If a sufficient number of boys are prepared to register, the Board of Trade could start operations within a short time and a municipal election could be conducted by the boys so that they would have training in the conduct of such an election.

The Junior Board of Trade need not impose any expense upon the boys and will afford an opportunity to rich and poor alike for acquiring knowledge that cannot easily be obtained otherwise.

There is a case of a young lad who started life as a chore boy in a printing office and another young lad started to work in his father's bakeshop, both of whom afterwards became Senators. Another young lad from this district started his career as helper in a cheese factory and later became Premier of Ontario started his career as helper in a blacksmith shop. The best lad in one of the largest financial corporations of the United States started to work in a telegraph office at Belleville.

Opportunity for advancement is open to every boy who wishes to apply himself with diligence and integrity.

Yours truly,
W. C. MIKEL.

MIRACLE MUSHROOMS

When the Department of Health of Ontario decided to devote one of its sections at the recent Canadian National Exhibition to the education of the public in the matter of mushrooms—a popular topic was established.

So great was the interest shown by visitors to the Government Building in this question of which were edible and which were poisonous mushroom types that those in authority decided to meet the demand for something concrete in the matter of rules. The result was the production of a sheet of very condensed information to be used as a guide by the mushroom gatherer.

As valuable does this information appear to be, that "Table Talk" takes great pleasure in increasing its distribution by publishing here the rules and advice given in the Department of Health's memorandum.

Rule, to Be Observed in Gathering Wild Mushrooms

It is impossible to give a simple rule or test for detecting poisonous mushrooms. Care must be taken to observe the characteristics of each mushroom gathered, says the Ontario Department of Health.

The following rules, if carefully followed, will enable one to avoid the poisonous forms:

(1) Never pull or break off plants. Dig carefully so that the poison cup will not be lost, if such is present.

(2) Avoid fungi when in the button or unexpanded stage; also those in which the flesh has begun to decay, even if only slightly and those that contain larvae or worm holes.

(3) Avoid all fungi which have stalks with a swollen case surrounded by a ragg-like or scaly envelope.

(4) Avoid fungi having a milky juice, unless the milk is reddish.

(5) Avoid fungi in which the cap is thin and very brittle, and in which the gills are nearly all of equal length, especially if the cap is bright colored.

(6) Avoid all tube-bearing fungi.

(7) Avoid all mushrooms which have a bitter or unpleasant taste or unpleasant odor.

(8) Avoid all mushrooms which are distinctly acrid or biting.

(9) In case of doubt discard the plant.

Mushrooms Which May Be Gathered

(1) All the puff balls and coral fungi.

(2) Any of the hedgehog or spiny fungi and the true morels.

(3) Any mushroom whose gills become brown.

(4) Mushrooms having reddish or orange milk.

(5) All mushrooms that melt down to an inky liquid when mature.

(6) Many mushrooms with white gills, but one must be absolutely certain that there is no poison cup or volva present.

Weddings

WINTER—ABBOTT

A very pretty September wedding was solemnized at 2.30 on Saturday afternoon when Miss Phoebe Esther Abbott, only daughter of Mrs. Lillian Abbott and the late Mr. Abbott, Napanee, became the wife of Mr. Ralph W. Winter, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. D. G. Winter of Selby. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's mother, by Rev. Harry Pawson, of Trinity United Church, of which church the bride was a faithful member and regular attendant. The bride and groom were unattended.

The drawing room where the ceremony took place was beautifully decorated with pink and white stereoms, and while the ceremony was being performed the bride and groom stood under a suspended bell. The wedding march of Lohengrin was played by Miss Marion Winter, sister of the groom, and during the signing of the register, Mrs. Pawson sang very sweetly "O Promise Me".

The bride looked lovely in her wedding gown of ivory sheer crepe with bridal veil and shoes and stockings to match, and carrying a lovely bouquet of lily-of-the-valley and Ophelia roses.

There were between thirty-five and forty guests present, and after the ceremony a buffet luncheon was served. Gladioli and asters formed a picturesque floral setting and the toast to the bride was ably proposed by Rev. Pawson, which was responded to by the bride and groom.

The groom's gift to the bride was a beautiful pendant, to the pianist a sterling silver bag, and to each of the soloist a lovely beaded bag. Later the happy couple left amid the best wishes of all on a motor trip to eastern points, the bride travelling in a brown swagger suit with hat, shoes, stockings and accessories to match.

The bride for several years was on the staff of Metindale Bros., and for the past few months has been associated with the Canadian Department Stores. The groom, whose home is near Selby, is the proprietor of the Superior Service Station. On their return they will reside in Napanee.

BURRIS—WEBB

On Wednesday, Sept. 20, at the United Church parsonage, Courtice, Ontario, a quiet wedding was solemnized when Miss Lena Webb, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. Webb of Bancroft, became the bride of Mr. Ross Burris, son of Mr. Harry Burris and the late Mrs. Burris of Hillier. Rev. Mr. Wolfenden assisted by Rev. Mr. White officiated.

The bride was charming in an ensemble suit of blue and white silk crepe with blue kid shoes and blue hat to match. Following the ceremony a delicious wedding lunch was served by Miss Wolfrain. The happy couple, as guests of Rev. and Mrs. Wolfrain, attended the church supper and play in the evening. The following day they left on a motor trip to Peterboro and other cities.

On their return, a post-nuptial reception was held in their home at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Burris, Hillier. The young couple have the best wishes of a host of friends. They will reside at the Burris' home, near Hillier.

Lower Heels As Aids to Beauty

They Eliminate Many Faults Caused by The "Spike" Variety

(By HELEN POLLETT)

Shoe manufacturers report that spiked heels aren't doing as well from a sales standpoint; and they are glad of it. They hate to see the little pretties plodding along with uncertain foothold. They offered better designs, but women, having the idea that the higher the heel the smaller the foot appears to be turned away from more comfortable patterns.

Now they're considering. Perhaps the arguments of medical men, warnings of chiropodists, pleadings of beauty writers are producing results. Certainly there are more sensible walking shoes seen on the busyways than stilts, which were never intended for street wear anyhow.

Extremely high heels are responsible for stooped shoulders, protruding bumsies, leg pains, sizzling nervous systems and general worn-come on down, the walking's fine, when it is play time.

To have different perfumes for different frocks and different occasions is the height of something or other. The average woman will be happy and contented if she has a small vial of florcited odors that tickle her nostrils and lifts her soul up on its toes.

By using the same scent all the time, year after year, the entire wardrobe will become aromatic, and the overhead for scent won't be a drain on the check book. The answer, dearie, is economy. Spray frocks as they rest on their hangers in the wardrobe, keep the closet door closed. Spray chest and arms after the bath.

It is poor economy to buy cheap or inferior manicure scissors; only high grade steel will clip neatly and quickly. Twice a year have the blades sharpened at a barber supply house. There they know how to make a good job of it.

Play Clothes For Play Time

(By CONSTANCE CAMERON)

There is nothing more cunning or charming than a cuddler dressed in clean ruffles, sox to match and shining patent leather pumps the like of crickets.

But, on the other hand, there is nothing more pathetic than to view the child in clothes of that type when it is play time.

The three-year-old boy came in to the kitchen at ten-thirty in the morning asking for a graham cracker. And the mother gasped, "Jack! Just look at your duty clothes! And those filthy hands! My stars!"

She had sent him out in an immaculate play suit of blue gingham and has mistakenly expected that suit to stay immaculate. Well how can a little fellow think of his clothes when there are mud pies to make low trees to climb carts to be filled with stones and so on?

The answer is he shouldn't be expected to! Play, exploration, romps with a puppy whose feet are bound to be dirty, are a very important part of the young child's growth and should be anticipated by putting him into khaki or denim all-in-one play suits whose chief claim to virtue is resistance, not looks.

Time for Dressy Clothes

After the early afternoon nap, the toddler may be dressed in the best things which, after all, are a way to mother's vanity rather than a joy to the child—anyway. But, having indulged his privilege in getting good and hot, good and tired and good and dirty in the proper clothing, he may now be educated into the gratification which comes with the donning of fresh, clean clothes and the satisfaction of keeping them so.

But to exclaim in horror every time a child soils a play suit or his hands and face, seems fearfully unjust to me. Do you expect to get on a picnic and return unrumpled and clean? If you do, you don't go on the kind of picnics that I enjoy, for I comb home filthy from lying on rocks, smudgy from rescuing kites from the fire, perhaps greasy from changing a tire, but supremely happy. But, don't make the mistake of thinking I trail up to the mountains in a sheer and dainty afternoon gown! I wear "play clothes", faded from much laundering and tough in texture—clothes to get dirty in.

And that, I feel, is the system which should be used with children—play clothes for playtime and no exclamations when they get dirty. Pretty clothes for quiet play or walks or visiting. In this way the child will enjoy the contrast and will help you to keep clean the clothes which deserve to be kept clean.

Schulte Nabbed by Ryan at Second

Action in the second inning of the series' opener came when Fred Schulte, Senator centerfielder, tried to steal second just after Joe Kuhel had been struck out by Hubbell, pitching ace of the Giants. Manager Ryan, who is Blondy Ryan at the keystone sack nailed Schulte.

Six Run Outburst in Sixth Enables Giants to Win from Senators 6-1

Hal Schumacher Equals Record of Hubbell Allowing 5 Hits

ERRORLESS BALL

Only Run For Losers Scored on Homer by Goslin

(By Edward J. Neil, Associated Press Sports Writer)

Washington, Oct. 5.—Baffled and slightly shell-shocked Doc Cronin and his Washington Senators today tackled a problem that in the baseball way was as desperate as any the Capitol legislators are accustomed to wrestling with in this fountain head of political perplexities.

Their big guns silenced, hitting power lost, strayed or stolen, pitchers battered and morale showing signs of decay, "the American League champion took a deep breath or home air, a fresh grip on themselves and set out to do something desperate about these errors amazing Giants in the third game of the World Series.

When Carl Hubbell, the master of the left-handed screw ball, polished the Senators with a 4 to 0 shutout in the annual conflict in the Polo Grounds yesterday, allowing but five tiny hits in 9⅔ to 2 victory, neither the Senators nor anyone else who knew the Giants expected that 10 shutouts in 24 league victories this year was genuinely surprised.

But when Hal Schumacher, the 22 year old boy so fresh from the St. Lawrence University campus that the signature on his college degree is only four months old, handcuffed them for the second time yesterday, cut their allowance to one run on the same measly ration of five hits and then joined in a sixth inning outburst that completed all the Giant's runs in a 6 to 1 conquest, the situation became genuinely acute.

Miracle Must Happen

For one thing, never in the history of these post-season engagements has a team ever been able to come from behind in a seven game series to win the championship after losing the first two contests. It was done three times in the series had a nine game limit, and called for five victories instead of four. The Giants beat the Yankees under those conditions in 1921.

In this distressing emergency, half the series lost, Cronin called today upon Joe Whitehill, his best southpaw, for the fiqt of the three games in the Griffith Stadium. His first southpaw choice, little Wally Stewart, lasted less than three innings in the opening game, but this was no time for dubbing about little things like that.

"General" Alvin Crowder, the right hand wheelhorse of the Senators' staff whom most of the experts thought should have started the first game, took an even more ferocious beating yesterday.

In line with his policy of open air master-minding, Bill Terry named portly Fred Fitzsimmons, the knuckle ball veteran, as the Giants' pitcher. In fact Terry nominated him for this game just as he chose Hubbell for the first and Schumacher for the second, soon after the National League flag was clinched.

So far he's had absolutely no regrets.

Leave on Specials

On special trains the athletes, their followers, and the experts flowed into the Capital last night to find cloudiness and a threat of rain hanging over a populace so disappointed that some of the Washington players may have wondered if they were going to be allowed to land. The American League champions rode home in bitter, discouraged silence. The Giants were in boisterous, confident jet, shouting that they'd end the series certainly in four straight games.

"Hey," said Blondy John Ryan, the shortstop, "they hit like we're supposed to, and we hit like every one told us they did. Eh, heh! I'm for that."

Certainly the Senators, even the Yankees of the home run boom days rarely turned in a truly more lengthy, impressive and possessed of more finality, than did the Giants yesterday when they fell upon Crowder in the sixth.

For five innings the 32 year old "General," as Cronin's one man fire brigade answering Cronin's alarms, held the National League pitchboiders to two bare singles in a tense duel with Schumacher, ten years his junior. Old "Goose" Goslin had fared back to his sensational home run hitting of the 1924 and 1925 series with a belt into the upper right field stands in the third for the only score up to the sixth.

As wise baseball men worked it over later, a prolonged but fruitless struggle with Schumacher in the sixth, when he was in grave danger, might have had something to do with Crowder's downfall.

Crowder Cooled Out

It took fifteen minutes for Goslin to get his second hit, a single to centre, for Heinie Manush to walk, both move up on a wild pitch, Cronin to foul out. Goslin to get run down between third and home on Schulte's grounder. Joe Kuhel to walk and Ossie Bluege to strike out completing nearly all with the bases full.

Perhaps Crowder "cooled out" in that interval. Anyway, when he started the sixth his speed ball and slider curve no longer docked across the plate so swiftly that the Giants, as in the early innings, swung late, popped up, or grounded out. What-ever happened, the results filled 34-odd enquiring hearts with new hope, then amazement, and finally with the wild excitement as ever flowed through the Polo Grounds.

APPEAL COURT HAS DIFFICULT PROBLEM

"Big Drought" of National League Appears Over as Giants Take the Senators

Winners of First Two Games, Giants Are Fighting Squad

HAVE REAL EDGE

Pitching Has Been Deciding Factor in Both Games

By ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor

Washington, Oct. 5.—(AP)— For years during the "big drought" with the American League taking five out of six successive world series engagements, National League men have been looking for a "fighting team," a genuine champion that would go into the championship fray with plenty of confidence and the pitching antidote for rival slugging.

Pepper Martin and the Cardinals broke the spell in 1931 but last October it was another team for the National League and the defeat of the junior circuit in the All-Star game at Chicago last July did not make it any easier for John Arnold Heving-ga as the answer to a prayer. Old "Goose" Goslin had fared back to his sensational home run hitting of the 1924 and 1925 series with a belt into the upper right field stands in the third for the only score up to the sixth.

Portiones may switch with the change of batsigrounds but all the Giants have to do is win two more games, out of a maximum of five to take the flag. It would seem now that nothing short of a miracle can stop Bill Terry's club from overstepping the greatest upset of baseball dope since the Boston Braves clashed from last place to clean sweep in the 1914 world series. Already the experts are calling it only one "miracle" to a single world series, the Giants have already licked the Yanks.

The Giants came to the capital city with the jinx signs not debated the issue, but to make it four straight. At no time during the current streaks of this amazing team that it would fail to win.

Not so Terry's optimistic

They were sure they would capture the pennant, when only a few days ago the experts said they have now become convinced the Senators can-not be beaten.

"Pitching," repeats Bill Terry, "will predominate and the Giants have the pitching."

If the Giants make it three straight today, with Freddy Fitzsimmons opposing Earl Whitehill, they have their southpaw ace and Gilobbi will be rested and ready to try for a deciding game tomorrow. They would like to give Carl a shutout triumph as a crowning touch to make amends for the only sloppy fielding in the first game.

The most successful baseball National League club owner would readily waive the profits from a prolonged world series play if assured that the Giants could make it four straight and avenge the humiliation heaped upon the older ones by the Yankees in recent years.

2 ARRESTED AFTER HOLDUP

Taken in Their Apartment in Toronto After Exciting Chase

Preston, Ont., Oct. 5.—Charged with armed robbery, Willie Pelley, 25 and Edward Wells, 21, both of Toronto, whose brought here today for remand hearing after their arrest at Toronto last night after a wild chase which had the police of several counties after them.

The pair are alleged to have entered the Imperial Bank here yesterday, tied up four members of the staff and escaped with $2,000. The money was recovered last night when Toronto police who arrested the pair.

Pelley and Wells, police claim, walking into their Toronto apartment late yesterday, directly into the arms of officers who were waiting for them. Pelley broke away and was chased half an hour until he fell exhausted into the armsopf two plainclothes men.

Wells then was there been a more strenuous chase than police had before robbery here. The bandits piled into their car immediately after leaving the bank and drove away towards Guelph. Going thru that city, police spotted the automobile, but it was travelling, they said, at 80 miles an hour and outdistanced a pursuit car. It was next definitely seen at Cookville, outside Toronto, but again its pace was too fast. Later, the abandoned car was found on a side road and police said Pelley and Wells rode a radial car into the city.

The car used by the holdup men was stolen from Mrs. Rose Amyot at Toronto on Tuesday night, police were found in the apartment, according to police.

CURRENT SPORT

Some few changes have been made in the schedule of the Lake Shore group of the senior Ontario Rugby football loop. Originally the local seniors were to have played in Trenton on Saturday but due to a slight alteration in the schedule Oshawa C.I.I. play in the Hollow on that date while the local squad entertain the fast Lindsay C.I.I. team.

Coach Shiels has been more than busy all this week preparing his juniors for the game at Trenton and new comers word that his seniors battle it out with Coach Brown's Lindsay squad on Saturday. The local gridders at the Fair Grounds is getting his yearly grooming and is in excellent football condition. A number of last year's seniors have signified their intentions of hanging their uniforms once and for all which naturally means, that Coach Shiels has to look to the junior ranks for senior material. Seven of last year's champions have failed to return to the ranks at the trimmer to date, thus mitigating the team's chances considerably.

As for the juniors Coach Shiels has a powerful line which should have a powerful line which should have a powerful line which should have

FINANCIAL MARKETS

NEW YORK - TORONTO - WINNIPEG

Bullish Fervor Cools in Financial Markets But Securities Hold Major Gains — Distillery Shares Chalk up Fractional Gain s—Silver Shares Inclined to Ease Back.

STANDARD EXCHANGE

Toronto, Oct. 5 (CP)—Yesterday's rise in the mining shares was carried along in the early trading today and then the trend changed. The senior gold shares especially feeling the effect of considerable buying but the gains had been shaded somewhat by noon.

The mining market lacked uniformity of movement in the early trading today, some shares advancing while others were drifting downward. Golds and base metal maintained a preponderance of strength but the silver shares were inclined to ease back.

In the senior gold group Lake Shore moved up to a new high record at 50.25 and Dome advanced to 13.10 while McIntyre moved the other way, showing a loss of 1.35 to 46.15 at mid-afternoon.

In the base metal group, Noranda edged upward a little on a report that calling was to be increased by 1,000 tons daily.

TORONTO EXCHANGE

Toronto, Oct. 5.—(CP)—Lower volume and a preponderance of slightly lower quotations marked the trading in the morning session on the Toronto Stock Exchange. Distillery shares clubbed up fractional gains in the early transactions but these were largely erased before noon as buying power dwindled. Food, oil and heavy industrial shares were mostly unchanged.

Shellers, had a gain of 1 1-2 trading at 127 and Nickel held through the early session a little under the previous close. Brazilian, Power A and Coty were also off narrow fractions. In the oil group McColl Frontenac took a loss of a point and Imperial was down 1-4 with British American held a gain of 1-8 and Petrol selling unchanged.

Trading flattened out after the over-night orders were filled, an operation which produced a few advances scattered through the list. Most of the gains were lost by noon and at mid-afternoon the market was listless, apparently waiting for New York to assume a definite trend.

In the early transactions metal and distillery stocks presented a strong front, Sentters gaining 1 1-2 Nickle holding firm and Walkers Common registering fractional gains.

NEW YORK FINANCIAL

New York, Oct. 5 (AP)—Bullish fervor cooled in financial markets today, but securities generally managed to hold major portions of their yesterday's substantial gains.

Wall Street continued to watch its pocket-book with one eye and Washington with the other. Although the activity in stocks dwindled appreciably, commission houses generally voiced restrained optimism and there was some expansion of odd-lot buying which is always a hopeful indicator to veteran operators.

Canadian stocks and bonds were a trifle irregular. Shares of Dome Mines managed to get up nearly a point, but those of International Nickel and McIntyre Porcupine were down fractionally to a point or more. On the curb, Hiram Walker and Oils Limited were fairly firm. Dominion Government issues were slightly higher and other maturities were unchanged. The Canadian dollar eased 1-8 of a cent at 97.93 3-4 cents.

WHERE ONE ERROR MEANS DEATH

Here . . . one with graphic art, that should warn the coolest of the hearts; of all followers of Izaak Walton. The locale of the photograph is the Celilo Falls on the Columbia river in Oregon, a spot where Indians from Oregon, Washington and Idaho have for more than a century indulged their unique and strenuous form of salmon fishing during the salmon runs the fish come up through the rapids at this point, they jump the falls to reach the higher waters of the river, en route to their shallow spawning grounds. The Indians met them as they jump. They work in teams and each member of a team (3)- works one hour at a time. The fish jumps, the Indian casts his net and the fish, if the Indian who is strong enough, and he usually is, is caught. The Indian who is not strong enough to hold his catch when it weighs 50 or more pounds is in danger of making his "last final" trip to the happy hunting grounds. The squaws dry the fish that their braves catch, and so the winter larders of the tribes are filled.

CHALLENGE RACE IS WON BY "THE EAGLE"

Defeats Ron Wallace by Over Two Minutes

A second challenge race held in the local harbor between the "snipe" class sailing punt, Eagle, owned by Flagler, and the Ron Wallace, smoothing iron punt, ended in victory for the former boat in a trial match on Wednesday afternoon. A trophy donated by Mr. Walter Patterson was won by the Eagle defending in a previous race here for said other trophy donated by Mr. Patterson. The race was close throughout, with a slight edge being enjoyed by the Eagle over the Ron Wallace on the final lap, when she gained a lead of two minutes and thirty seconds over the latter boat at the finish line. An open handicap race resulted in a win for Callaghan's Father Neal 17 over Boulter's "Joan" and Keller's Scrapper, second and third respectively. Time given for the boats was: After You III, 1 hour, 25 minutes, 9 seconds; "Joka", 1 hour, 28 minutes, "53 seconds; Scrapper", 1 hour, 31 minutes, 30 seconds. Handicaps on the boats were arranged by officers of the South End Athletic who allowed, one minute handicap per foot of deck measurement. This ends a most successful season of punt sailing by the Club under Commodore and ice arrives, when it is expected, a regular series of the boat races will be held throughout the winter.

Special Meeting Adjourned Until This Evening

A special meeting of the city council called to consider the annual situation was adjourned this morning at 1am. until seven-thirty o'clock this evening owing to the absence of Mayor Geo. O. Failure of the local deputation, bearing suggested relief plans of the city for official sanction at the delegation, to conclude their interview with the Provincial Government on Wednesday necessitated a stop over in Toronto until Thursday morning, when it is expected, that official business will be concluded. The local deputation is expected to arrive back in the city late this afternoon.

FIRST BARBECUE IN EASTERN ONT. HELD AT STIRLING

Unique Event Attracts Hundreds Of Visitors

Stirling—A real innovation was introduced in this district on Tuesday when St. John's Anglican Church, Stirling, held a barbecue in western style Barbecue at the Agricultural Grounds. The Barbecue, a custom which originated in the Western Provinces a number of years ago revived that decadent tradition and is the first ever held in Eastern Ontario.

All day long, hundreds who had heard of the novel sight, flocked to the Fair Grounds to witness the strange spectacle of a gaping, mouthed ox roasting on a rustic spit suspended over a huge bed of glowing coals. The fire was lighted at 3 o'clock in the morning in an earthen pit ten feet long, four feet wide and four feet deep. The pit was lined with a five-inch covering of clay before logs of hard wood of maple cord wood. By 11 o'clock, a fine bed of coals was in readiness and the ox was mounted on the spit.

Before doing this, however, iron spreaders were inserted in the animal to keep it in shape and prevent it from burning on the spit. The ox and front legs were tied to an iron whippletree as were the hind legs, with wiring through the knees fastened to the iron bar. The iron pipe which acted as a spit, is 12 ft. long and 2½ inches in diameter was supported in position by two iron standards seven feet high and placed 15 ft apart with an adjustable horizontal bar through the spit-caged so that it might be raised or lowered according to the intensity of the heat.

From 11 o'clock until 7 p.m. when the ox was removed from the fire two men were required to slowly turn the carcass by rotating a 4-inch wheel like apparatus on the end of the pipe.

Hung before the supper hour the delicious aroma of freshly roasted beef assailed the nostrils but the ox was not removed until 7 o'clock so that an opportunity might be afforded all to witness the affair.

In the roasting process two cords of hard maple wood were used, a donation from the members of the church as was the ox itself. Provision was made for rainy weather and had it been necessary a canopy and had it been necessary a canopy of sheet iron was in readiness to keep off the rain. A small sheet of iron was placed over the coals directly below the animals ribs in order to keep that part of the meat from being overdone because of its greater proximity to the coals.

The cooks in attendance were Worshiping a heavy iron two prong fork, two and a half feet in length with which they periodically "tried" the meat.

A number were present from Belleville, Marmora, Madoc and other neighboring towns and enjoyed the buffet luncheon with the main item beef and sandwiches, served by the ladies of the church. Ice cream and other attractions drew a large crowd and at 9 o'clock, the dance was begun with a local orchestra supplying the music.

Another motion was also adopted that the council call for one hundred feet of new fire hose. The superintendent of the Waterworks will also be instructed to make a test of the water in Trout Creek station's well and if it is found unsatisfactory, to seek a new supply of water elsewhere.

A few minor questions were brought up such as repairing culverts on the streets, and the final motion was passed that the council advertise for applicants for position as night watchman, and constable, the accounts having been ordered paid, the meeting adjourned.

Grape Crop in Niagara Area Ruined by Starlings

St. Catharines, Ont., Oct. 4—(CP)—In an unusual invasion of the rich Niagara Vineyard, starlings have caused half a million dollars damage and further depleted a grape crop that was reduced from wind and rain and later drought, it was estimated today.

Starlings have been present in the Niagara District, most of the time during fall months but their numbers have come in swarms. A hurried census of several Niagarans showed that only stems are left where grapes hung only a week ago.

Clemens said one seven-acre vineyard has been stripped since Sunday morning. Another grower who expected to cut tons will take only 10 tons from the vines. Another predicted a week ago he would cut 100. Today he said 30 would be all he could take.

TWO LOOTERS ARE KILLED

Storm Over Havana Leads to Looting by Residents

Havana, Oct. 5 (AP)—Storm barricades were removed today with the passing of an 82-mile-an-hour hurricane that caused slight injuries to 20, sank small vessels in the harbor, and led to an orgy of looting.

Soldiers ended the robberies by killing two looters. At the height of this storm one trooper and one sailor were killed and one civilian wounded by snipers who fired on them while they tried to disperse thieves.

The disturbance was reported moving west slowly but with considerable force. Heavy seas continued this morning but the danger was believed past.

Politics was at a standstill during the storm, but Colonel Fulgencio Batista, chief of the army, and American Ambassador Sumner Welles conferred earlier. The former assured Mr. Welles that the lives and rights of officers captured Monday in the National Hotel battle would be respected.

The government announced plans for removing all officers from prisons to the Isle of Pines prison.

All available soldiers were posted in the centre of Havana under orders to kill anybody suspected of looting. The injured were taken to an emergency hospital which, like the rest of the city was without electric lights, and physicians operated by the light of kerosene lamps.

FIRST NIGHT IN FILMLAND

"Ladies They Talk About" is Enjoyable Film at Capitol Theatre

"Ladies They Talk About" is an absorbing "crook" film at the Capitol with many new and humorous twists affording Barbara Stanwyck with one of her best vehicles to date. As the beautiful and lovelorn feminine criminal is splendid and with Preston A. Foster, who has graduated from "crook" parts to play that of an earnest young evangelist, affords Capitol lovelorn audiences with really good entertainment.

Barbara is first seen as the clever accomplice of a daring gang of bank robbers and when she is caught refusing to reveal the identity of her confederates, Preston Foster preaching a crusade against crime and corrupt politicians becomes interested in her case and finding that she was formerly a girl from his own home town offers to take charge of her parole believing she is innocent of the bank robbery charge. Barbara confesses that she has been deserting him and the righteous young minister refuses to sign her parole papers, Barbara is sent to San Quintin penitentiary.

Here the devoted theatre-goer gets a shock. After seeing recent films on reform school horrors, penitentiary abuses and ill-treatment, the ladies of the Big House seem to be attending a fashionable college rather than an awesome prison. Their rooms are the last word in comfort. They are allowed to lounge around in French finery in their leisure moments. Their recreation hours afford them every novelty. Whether this is a glorified idea of life in women's prisons or the real thing, it is rather astonishing.

Inside prison walls, Barbara finds intrigue, fun, malice and staunch friendship. Lillian Roth, the well known blues singers, affords merry moments singing and kidding. Meanwhile the young evangelist, infatuated with Barbara attempts to see her and finally Barbara decides to use him to help her friends escape from the men's prison.

The plot fails and Barbara believes that Preston has double-crossed her. Once out, she seeks revenge but realizes that she really loves him and all ends happily.

The film introduces some interesting characters in the prison sequence, while Lyle Talbot is very good as the leader of the bank robbers.

A revival of old film scenes shows very interesting historical events while a "Two Black Crows" comedy and News are also on the bill.

PRESENTATION TO MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM RAY

On Tuesday evening, October 3 about a hundred friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Ray to spend a social evening and to welcome Mrs. P. Ray to their community. Mr. Cecil Ketcheson called the gathering to order, and Miss Ruth Brough read the address after which Fred Sills and Floyd Sheffield presented Mr. and Mrs. Percy Ray with two beautiful occasional chairs. Mr. and Mrs. Ray replied in a very pleasing manner, each thanking the community for their gifts and extending to all an invitation to come and see them in their new home. After singing "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows", lunch was served and a social hour spent, much enjoyed by all. The following is the address read:

Halloway, Ontario.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Ray,

Dear Percy and Helen:

Having learned of your recent marriage, we, your friends and neighbours, have taken uninvited possession of your home this evening, to spend a social hour with you and your wife, and also to express in a tangible way the high esteem in which you are held in the community.

You have always been so willing to help in any of our church or social gatherings. Your companionship has proved you a neighbour and friend, ready to give cheerful and willing assistance in time of need. We hope that you will continue to exert these influences in the community in the future.

While Helen is not a perfect stranger to us, yet knowing you as we do and having the confidence that we have in your good judgment, it is again with pleasure that we greet and welcome Mrs. Ray this evening.

We wish for you and your wife every possible happiness and prosperity in your new venture and may the sun never cease to shine, henceforth on your pathway of life.

We ask you to accept these chairs as a slight remembrance from your friends and neighbours.

Signed on behalf of your friends and neighbours.

Fred Sills, Grant Lott, Floyd Sheffield.

HEADACHE IN LITIGATION

Juryman's Pain In Head Weakened His Resistance

Chicago, Oct. 5 (CP)—The pain juror Joseph L. Meyers says he had in his head may have been just a headache to him, but to Sally Rand, the fandancer, it may prove to be an asset.

It suggested the possibility that she may receive a new hearing on a charge of giving an indecent exhibition, for which she recently was sentenced to a year in jail and to pay a fine of $200.

The headache entered the litigation yesterday when attorney Samuel Berke filed an affidavit by Meyers, a member of the jury that convicted Miss Rand, saying he wished to acquit her but was overwhelmed by the arguments of the other jurymen and was anxious to get out of the jury chamber because of his aching head.

The affidavit was used in support of a motion to set aside a previous order which denied the dancer a rehearing.

Produce of Farm, Home Viewed by Thousands at Madoc Annual Fair

Over 6,500 Crowded Into Grounds to See Exhibits

MANY CONTESTS

Officers Congratulated on Results of Their Efforts

From near and far visitors assembled at the Agricultural Grounds at Madoc, Wednesday to view the Madoc Fair on its terminating days. Not in years has the fair been so representative in exhibits or spectators as in 1933. There were 1476 entries, 600 more than a year ago and over $1400 was the gate receipts of Wednesday, when 1200 cars were parked in the grounds alone. On nearby streets and roads about two hundreds of cars also, and one fair estimate of the number viewing the events of yesterday afternoon would be 6000 to 7000.

Although the day looked anything but favorable, rain held off and the afternoon proved all that an autumn fair could want for. The countryside proved its interest in agricultural matters and rest in the Madoc Fair as never before. President Fred Curry, secretary Will Hill, treasurer Elan Hollins and the directors of the fair board were a most pleased, though tired, body of officers last evening. They had attempted and accomplished much and on every side the complimentary remarks of visitors was indicative of the appreciation of what a widespread exhibition these hard working executives had furnished for the benefit of exhibitors and sightseers.

With the countryside splashed with autumnal colorings of yellows, reds and browns and a fall tinge in the air it was an ideal afternoon to view the exhibits from the farms of this and neighboring counties. The band of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment in their red uniforms lent further color to the Fair Grounds and the bandsmen gave unstintingly of their music during the afternoon.

Although the entries for the speeding events were not numerous, there was plenty of good racing and the public heald called for an interested gallery of spectators.

Hauling Contest Popular

The hauling events was divided in two classes with three teams entering for each and it was some time after sundown before winners were decided. W. Rodgers received 1st award, W. Woods 2nd and J. Miller 3rd.

Both Tuesday and Wednesday evenings the Trinity Young People's Society of Madoc presented their play "Over the Bridge" in the Masonic hall and both performances received splendid patronage. Wednesday night's contested with a dance at the conclusion of the play and fittingly finished one of the best if not the very best fair ever staged by the Madoc District Agricultural Society.

On the other side, science and organized effort go forth with more confidence, extending the breadth and depth of operations on the strength of the material fact that gold today is worth 70 per cent. more in American dollars than it was a month or so ago.

INTERVENTION POSSIBLE IN R. R. STRIKE

Federal Action Rumored Likely Say Story From Ottawa

TODAY'S MEETING

Statement May be Issued Shortly After Conference

Ottawa, Oct. 5—Belief that the Dominion Government will intervene in the dispute between Canadian railways and their employees over the proposed wage reduction was strengthened last night when Minister Manion held a long conference with S. J. Hungerford, President of the Canadian National and Frank Hall, Vice-President of the Canadian Pacific.

It is understood further discussion will take place today between Mr. Bennett and representatives of the men, whose recent vote on the question was said to be overwhelmingly in favor of a strike rather than acceptance of the second reduction of 10 per cent below the basic rate of pay.

No official information was available but it is believed possible a statement may be issued shortly indicating what has been done to alleviate the situation.

E. W. Beatty, K.C., President of the Canadian Pacific, who has been on an extended tour of Western Canada, will be in Ottawa tomorrow on his way to Montreal and will no doubt confer with the Prime Minister.

Associated with this problem and considered in some quarters as of similar importance, is the matter of appointing new trustees to replace the Canadian National Board of Directors. The legislation demanded a minimum of co-operation between the two great systems, and to reorganize the Canadian National, went into force on August 3. It called for the appointment of a board of trustees to replace the Canadian National directors.

LINDBERGHS SEEK PRIVACY IN LONDON

London, Oct. 5 (AP)— Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh won a game of hide and seek today with persons who wanted to know where they were staying and how long they intend to remain.

Some newspapers speculated on those newspapers speculated on various rumors and others, respecting the travellers' desire for privacy, merely printed photographs of their arrival at Southampton yesterday from Stavanger, Norway.

Colonel Lindbergh told questioners he had no statement as the couple underwent customs and immigration formalities and later left in different automobiles for unannounced destinations.

It was rumored Mrs. Lindbergh was enroute to Cardiff, Wales, to visit relatives.

RESPONSIBILITY FOR MEDICAL SERVICES

Toronto, Oct. 5.—Responsibility for seeing that indigents receive adequate medical care is that of the municipalities, Premier George S. Henry stated yesterday in relation to the statements made by Dr. F. A. McDonald, President of the Academy of Medicine in Toronto, that the Province should compel the municipalities to see that physicians and surgeons receive pay for the care of those who are unable to pay for medical attention.

The Premier also stated, with respect to Dr. McDonald's assertion that people were dying because of lack of proper medical care, that he believed indigents were being provided for in some form or other. While admitting that there was a trend toward State medicine, he did not think that the time for this was yet ripe.

MYSTERIOUS BLAST

Niagara Falls, Ont., Oct. 5.—A large two-story duplex house was completely destroyed by an explosion early this morning, and an adjoining house was badly damaged by fire, spread from the blazing ruins. The blast was so terrific that debris was thrown over a wide area, and the front door was thrown forty feet away as the walls were blown out and the roof up.

The house, valued at $18 Peroration Avenue, owned and occupied by George Chianpi, was reduced to a mass of splintered wood.

Huge Sea Serpent 80 Feet Long is Claimed to Have Been Seen on Coast

Victoria, Oct. 5 (CP)—A 120-foot serpent, not the modest 30-foot ogopogo of Okanagan Lake, but a true son of the sail-ors, 80-feet long, 20-feet thick and with the profile of a camel, is claimed for Cadboro Bay, Vancouver Island, by A Victoria Barrister, his wife, and a yachtsman, who prefer to remain anonymous, claim to have seen the creature.

According to their story they saw a huge head rear out of the water near the rocks on the north side of the bay. It was shaggy, with a long tinderslung jaw, while the body made monstrous undulations seeming to stretch 75 to 80 feet. The serpent reared its head, settling comfortable to scratching it on the barnacles of the rocks.

It then made off in the direction of Chatham Island, while the observers went to examine the abnormal tracks made among the barnacles.

Current Attractions at Local Theatres

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

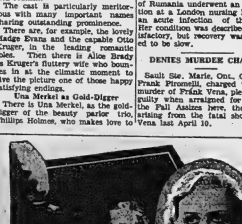
AT THE BELLE

Every once in a while there comes to the screen a picture that makes every appetite in entertainment.

"Beauty for Sale," at the Belle today and Friday, matinee daily, is just such a picture. It has everything in the way of popular appeal. It packs a human, dramatic punch as well as racy, swift comedy. It has simplicity and sophistication. And, most of all, it has a popular background in the beauty salon locale.

As in "Our Dancing Daughters" and its equally successful companion picture, the new film deals with the lives and love of three young women.

Herein the Faith Baldwin story, they happen to work in an ultra-smart beauty establishment.



Every woman knows the secrets told in the intimacy of such feminine sanctuaries. Therefore it is not at all surprising that the picture is teeming to gossipy and spicy moments that result hilariously. Director Richard Boleslavsky has tackled this from the men's angle, as well as the woman's, and the result is a happy combination of satire and realism.

There are, for example, the lovely Madge Evans and the capable Otto Kruger, in the leading romantic roles. Then there is Alice Brady as Kruger's fluttery wife who bounces in at the climactic moment to give the picture one of those happy satisfying endings.

Una Merkel as Gold-Digger

There is Una Merkel, as the gold-digger of the beauty parlor trio, Phillips Holmes, who makes love to Scene from "The Secret of the Blue Room" Gloria Stuart in inset, opening with John Wayne in "Somewhere in Sonora" at the Capitol on Saturday.

AT THE CAPITOL

Every theatre manicurist; May Robson, Una Merkel, Mary Boland, Ruth Hussey, Hedda Hopper, Florine McKinney, Isobel Jewell, Louise Carter, John Beck and Charles Capwell are in other featured roles.

Particularly interesting are the back-stage scenes in the beauty parlor. The settings are lavish and expansive and the outdoor views add pictorial charm to the production.

"Tail Spin" is the title of a very funny Thai Boys comedy to be presented on the same program with the Belle News, with its up-to-the-minute events, and "Sing Sister Sing," a comedy cartoon with delightful harmony and melody moments.

JAPAN WANTS MORE MONEY FOR ARMY

(Question: Are you in favor of this city taking over the Arena?) (Asked at random throughout the city)

W. B. Deacon, Manufacturers

"If we don't do something to help save it, we will always regret it. I'm sold on Belleville. I believe we should do everything we can to push it along. Letting the Arena go like that wouldn't help it very much. Times are going to get better. Things are not going to be like this all the time. I believe they do get better, then we'll appreciate something like a nice Arena more than ever. It's a good bargain."

Henry Wordener, Laborer:

"Yes, by all means. Even now we spend in a few years on outdoor skating rinks every winter almost as much as it would cost now to buy the Arena. I have a couple of kids myself that I'd like to see kept off the bay, and some of the rough house open air skating rinks, and I can't think of a better place for them to skate than the Arena where I know they'll be safe."

Reg. Mesorief, Manufacturer

"Even looking at it from a business point of view, the Arena would be a good investment. It isn't often you can buy property only a few years old for one-third of its former value, and I believe that the city would be well repaid in a very short time if they did take it over. Certainly the Arena shouldn't be allowed to go like that. It certainly will do torn down or demolished unless we can stir up enough interest to save it. It's a good investment and I'm certainly in favor of the council doing something."

C. M. Hall, Hardware Merchant:

"If the Arena is to be used only as a skating rink for two or three months in the winter, then I'm not so concerned over it, but if it is to be made a paying proposition, I think that the city should take it over and put the thing back on its feet. I believe it could be made to pay in a number of ways by making it an all-season indoor hall for various events. It doesn't need to be closed up as soon as the cold weather is over. In any event I would hate to see it go out of the city."

F. C. Clark, Mechanic:

"If we did let it go it would be the biggest black eye this city ever had. For the past several years the ice in the open in this district hasn't been strong enough to hold up a small boy, and then you have to wait until some time in January before even the ponds freeze up. In the Arena you can skate after work almost any night. Besides that, what would the city be like without some place to have a hockey match. Hardly a town in the country that hasn't some place to hold matches. That place could be made to pay even in the summer time with any kind of a manager."

MAIN STREET

Ramblings.....

A gentleman who does considerable driving around the country had a friend with him on a long trip to a neighboring city the other day. The friend owned a car behind the other driver had. Always when he passed another car on the road the driver had been, invariably it didn't seem necessary. So he questioned the driver. "It's the law", stated the other. "Any time you pass another vehicle you must give warning. Then, if there is any accident, and you have followed your rule, the law says you are acquitted. When the friend got home he consulted the blue book. Sure and sure enough there it was in black and white. He should have known it was, however. His friend who drove the car is a local lawyer and he knew his points.

The class was droning away in one of the rooms of the Collegiate Institute the other day. The teacher had outlined one of the lessons a few moments before, and had then left them with their consciences and the books in front of them as their only aids. Suddenly a door swung open. A gentleman walked in briskly, approached the teacher's desk, held a short, whispered consultation, and then left the room in the same brisk, high-stepping manner in which he had entered. As the door swung shut again the teacher, ever on the alert, stood up and addressed the class. "As an impromptu observation test I want you to take your notebooks and pencils and write me a lightning description of the gentleman who was just in here. Special marks will be given for the one who makes the correct hand in which he carried the cane." Of the thirty or more students who passed in the varying descriptions of the gentleman, over one half named the right hand as the cane carrier. The remainder named the left hand. The gentleman carried no cane or stick of any description.

The jig saw puzzle, as a casual observation of my stationery showed in the city hall the other day, is on the way back to the living room table. Since early spring those fascinating little jagged pieces of card board have been the rage of almost on deserted shelves around the living room. But now the days are getting shorter. Light bills are getting longer. People have more time on their hands for indoor sports and the jig saw is making its expected comeback. It won't be long before dad and the kids begin to build their fences in the yards. Others may mill scenes right on their own table. Manufacturers, however, are ready for you this season as in the past, and have been since midsummer. The jig saw puzzle already made for his last year's stock out, and is ordering them in a big way. Figures the rush will be gue soon, and wants to be ready for it. Puzzles this year may be a little different from last year. Manufacturers are making them harder, but giving good prizes to spur the addicts on. The simple ones, however, are still in demand. One manufacturer-salesman teacher declares she wouldn't know what to do with a living scene of the really simple ones on hand.

How often does the average man in the course of a day's business get a shinplaster. A local bank teller says he should get one or two of them every day. There's lots of them around. So many in fact that recently he began saving a bit weary of looking at and handling them. They don't "count" as nicely as the regular sized money. They're harder to manage and a bit of nuisance in a bank teller's life. Ottawa is all around. According to a recent count at Ottawa, there are approximately 3,080,000 of them worth $1,270,000 in circulation at the present time. The local teller who has been doling a bit of shinplaster investigating finally found the definition of the word in a large dictionary. Shinplaster is "a slang term for a piece of poorly secured paper money especially if great depreciated in value." The original name however came from the fact that "shinplasters" also is a piece of paper saturated with vinegar or tar, and was formerly used as a poultice for sore shins.

IMPROVEMENT SHOWN IN FINANCIAL AFFAIRS

Presbyterian Church Enjoys Good Year

Westville, N.S., Oct. 5.—(CP)—Despite hard times, the Presbyterian Church in Canada showed improvement last year in its financial condition, the Maritime Synod was told at its annual session by Rev. Dr. Norman A. McLeod of Brockville, Ont., Deputy Moderator of the General Assembly.

"Last year," he declared, "was a better year than the previous one I don't think there is another church in Canada about which that statement can be made truthfully. In 1931 we closed our books with an indebtedness of $188,000; this year it stands at $180,000—a reduction of $18,000.

"Besides, there were certain obligation incurred during the year which we met successfully and had a little balance to the good. This was accomplished by cutting expenses to the bone. Yet, we have travelled a million miles annually from the field at home or abroad and there has been no closing of a church from the Atlantic to the Pacific."

ISLAND GIRL

by FRANK R. ADAMS

The change in the yacht's course has the end of all non-pertinent conversation. In fact they said little about anything. Both heard Hardy Ipin the fascinating void ahead. Although there was nothing to see.

Vern was not sure but he thought he heard the pounding of surf. It was not likely with the wind in that direction but still there was a thundering undercurrent that scarcely seemed imaginary.

"There is a narrow break between two reefs," Irene informed. "The tide is high and running fast. We may hit it."

Vern nodded. He had understood all along that she had had some such desperate objective. Her theory, if she had any, was probably that the swiftness of the water running through the inlet or whatever it was might draw the yacht with it, like a feather being sucked into a vacuum.

There was little chance that it would work. little chance even that they were within a mile or two of the needle's eye she was desperately hoping to pass through.

The noise of the surf grew unmistakable. It was not far away now. There was no other menacing noise, save were the hiss of the wave cresting as they stroked the flanks of the yacht in passing, licking their chops with white slathering tongues in greedy anticipation.

There was late to turn back even if they had wanted to. Hell was just ahead and a rifle bullet started on its course down a gun-barrel could as easily have changed its direction.

Vern leaned toward Irene.

"Do you want to take the wheel?" he asked mostly by gesture.

They waited.

He looked at Irene inquiringly.

She turned her eyes toward him. There was a strange light in them, a self revelation of a serene brave woman character which Vern, ironically, never expected to see in the modern world.

She inclined toward him. "In case," she whispered, he did not need to hear—in case there should be no hereafter or—"

He leaned over her lips.

"My dear—"

CHAPTER 17

It was so quiet beyond the reef that it seemed as if, perhaps suddenly had snatched them across its borders. The surf was still booming but it was behind them and the wind still howled but int was overhead, deflected by the reef with the slight rise of the reef island.

Still the steady throb of the two splinter disturbed in the calm assured them that they were still sailing terrestrial waters.

Irene was the first to laugh. "If my father could have so much luck as that we'd be almost famously in the world."

No reference to their recent approach to reverent sentiment. There wouldn't be, couldn't be. Vern could see that. With equal delicacy he sealed his own lips and his heart, but with a golden memory in it, and joined her on the crusting ice of conversation once more.

"That was more than luck. It was marksmanship that would make William Tell proud enough to write another overture about it."

Irene thanked him with a pressure on his arm. She had been afraid perhaps, that he would not understand her shift of base. that he would presume on her recent giving way to emotion.

"I'll take the wheel now," she suggested. "I know where we are and no one else could steer the course.-It is rather tortuous."

"How far?"

"It will take several hours. When you go below to turn in give the engine plenty of oil around and connect up the deck control so I can handle the throttle and clutch from here."

"But I'll not go to bed now."

"Please do."

"Listen, captain, it isn't right or fair—"

"I'd rather be alone, Vern. You probably understand and you'll humor me won't you?"

Of course he would. And he was afraid he did understand. To be together now would not only be painful but it would subject them both to teasing temptations that would be at direct variance with the path of duty upon which she had set her feet.

So he went below.

He had no intention of sleeping. He would keep out of sight. In accordance with Irene's wish but he would be ready in case she needed him.

So, as soon as he had attended to the wants of the motor and connected up the controls as she had requested, he sat down in the engine room to await developments.

Vern had not calculated on the fact that he had been awake for nearly forty-eight hours and most of that time in a high wind. Nor did he take into account that his nerves had sagged after a tremendous emotional experience. Nor that it was warm below decks, warm and comparatively quiet.

He fell asleep sitting up.

When he wakened it was broad daylight, the motor had stopped and the yacht was riding at anchor motionless.

The engine room was stuffy, a little hot, and Vern opened the port to let in some air.

The view was landward a vista of low brush and weeding five-oak not someway an especially inspiring picture. The beach looked as if it might be treacherously swampy and the forest background was altogether too dense for cheerfulness. Clear out the underbrush perhaps and you might achieve the effect of innocuous semi-tropical langoor; as it was the feeling it gave was of a depressing monotony and a chaos that might close around you as you entered it.

Most of the trees were of the monodocuous stupid dwight fortunately attained by live-oaks with just slender exclamation points of pines that reared their startled height above the dead level.

One of those tall pines had been denuded of its lower branches and shot up in shamed nakedness to a small feathered tuft at the top.

There was an old woman who lived in a shoe,
She had so many children she didn't know what to do;
'Till she advertised the want-ad way,
And got a maid without delay.

BRINGING UP FATHER

OCT 5 - MR. AND MRS. - "SOME TIME" AND NOW

TARZAN, LORD OF THE JUNGLE

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

As the Knights of the Sepulcher drew abreast of Prince Gobred's loge, the disguised knight leaped into it from the rear. Grabbing Galinda in his arms he tossed her quickly to the man waiting to receive her and himself leaped into the saddle of the horse held in readiness for him. Then the three riders wheeled and spurred away before the surprised Prince or those about him could raise a hand to stay them.

Behind them swept Bohun and the Knights of the Sepulcher, out toward the camp among the oaks. Instantly all was pandemonium. A trumpet in Gobred's loge sounded the alarm. The Prince ran from the stand to the spot where his horse was being held by a groom. The Knights of Nimmr, ignorant of what had happened and not knowing where to rally or against whom, milled about the lists for a few moments, exhilarating to be borne. That she was good to death, or worse, with the acknowledgment of that caring fresh between them was even more intolerable.

It couldn't be. God couldn't let their love—yes, why not call it by the right name?—perish in the bud that way.

And yet her prohibition by heavy on him. She was right. If "Dunmy" Squalks was the ruthless person she had described and there had no reason to suppose that he was not the first move to frustrate his plans would result in the death of Irene's brother and then Irene herself, because Vern knew that this girl, who had taken possession of his heart and imagination, was of a mettle that would not endure in shame after the cause for anything she had loved.

Truly it was a desperate situation for a man who had the strings of destiny in his hands, doubly desperate since he also loved the woman who had just stepped off the plan of civilization into a jungle pit. A wrong move might, at any moment, stir up the beasts to a decision.

What to do?

Vern started up the companionway. There were port-holes, but too small for a man to crawl through. So long as it was daylight and that marksman stayed on deck Vern was caged. He would be of no use to Irene if he got himself shot. Or even wounded right away. He must save whatever of life and strength was in him in case there might come an opportunity to place them at her service.

It was a long, hungry morning. The four men in the cabin hashed each other cordially by the time the sun had climbed to a position from which there could really heat up the interior in earnest. Vern had stuck his head forward and watched for developments on the beach.

For a long time there was none. Vern noted a curious phenomenon. The tall pines, with the exception of the one which had been denuded of its lower branches, tossed restlessly back and forth. Apparently that a high wind prevailed outside, cut off from the lowlying levels by the denser of the forest barrier. But, that being the case, why was not that one pine affected by the disturbance? There must be some logical explanation for it. Vern, watching that tree and speculating on the cause of its immobility, therefore did not at first see the signs of activity on the beach. Not until a small boat pushed off from a few spiled planks moved across the lower half of his range of vision did he realize that something was afoot to happen.

Stops the Headache

Thousands of people, who once suffered from headache, do not suffer now. They take one ZUTOO TABLET, as harmless as soda, and are relieved in 20 minutes.

Zutoo

Closer and closer to the fleeing Knights of the Sepulcher, Blake spurred his charger. So thick was the cloud of dust upon the plain that Lucy were almost hid from him and it made them alas unaware that they were being pursued. The'American carried no lance or shield—only his sword clattering at his side and his forty-five. Since he had entered Nimmr, Jimmy had carried this weapon of another age and world.

Then their Prince came spurring swiftly before them. "Bohun has stolen the Princess Guinalda," he cried. "Knights of Nimmr—" But before he could say more, or lance pokers to his followers, a black knight spurred roughly through the ranks of the surrounding men and was away after the retreating Knights of the Sepulcher. Jimmy Blake was off to rescue beauty in distress!

OBSERVE 70TH ANNIVERSARY OF BETHEL CHURCH

Special Services Held; Rev. Johnson Preaches

Plainfield—The seventieth anniversary services held at Bethel United Church on Sunday and the mid-meeting on Monday evening were a decided success. Rev. H. E. Johnson, of Sidney circuit who was the special speaker for the Sunday services delighted his audience with two inspiring addresses, a large crowd being present for both services.

The chicken supper on Monday evening was served in the church sheds which have been recently inclosed. Tables with a seating capacity of one hundred were comfortably arranged. A kitchen in which was a stove was separated from the dining room at the east end. The evergreen and maple boughs in the bright lights of the coleman lamps gave a very attractive appearance. The receipts amounted to about $60.00.

Some two dozen boys from Belleville under the leadership of Mr. Thompson and Mr. Harold Brooks with Mr. Houston occupied the choir loft and rendered several numbers for the program, singing "Men of Harlech", "I passed by your window", "Passing by", Gently Lord, O lead us" and "Glendin Roads." Mr. Howard delighted the audience with two solos. Miss Jean Cook, of Belleville gave two readings and Mr. Phillip Carr, of West Huntingdon pleased the people with four, supplying the comic for those whose tastes ran in that vein. The selections of James Allison on the violin were deeply appreciated.

The "Knox Hide" chorus boys so named they so often were found peaking through knot holes at hockey games, baseball and fall fairs were introduced by Mr. Thompson.

About the middle of the program a birthday cake which had been made by Miss Mildred Ketcheson, arrayed with seventy candles to also the number seventy and, which was sitting on a table at the front and centre of the church was then approached by Miss Ketcheson and Miss Hannah Nicholson, of Belleville, who lighted the candles and extinguished them. Miss Nicholson placing the knife in the beautiful cake. Mr. James Phillips read a brief account of the erection and opening of the church seventy years ago. About $800.00 has been spent in re-roofing both the shed and the church which now covered by subscriptions and cash on hand.

An interesting program was given by the Young People's Society on Sunday evening. In the absence of the President, Miss Mildred Ketcheson, Mr. Everson announced the hymn and led in prayer after which Mr. Everson the christian fellowship convener took charge. Mrs. Sherman Parks read the scripture lesson from St. John, 17. Mr. Everson explained the lesson pointing out the way in which Jesus regarded and used prayer.

A solo was given by Mr. Edward Goodyear. Norval Barker read a paper on prayer. Mrs. Everson dealt with the topic "Enrichment through prayer". Papers bearing on the subject were given by Sherman Parks, Mrs. Robert Rollins and Miss Ruth Dunning. Mrs. Julian Moore was appointed to take the Thanksgiving service next Sunday which is an extra there being five topics in the month of October.

NEW ACTIVITIES OF SALVATIONISTS AT TWEED SEEN

Tweed—Since the coming of Captain Royle and Lieutenant Pindred the local Salvation Army has undertaken some new activities. The latest is the Harvest Festival. For the past two weeks the Captain and Lieutenant have been gathering the fruits of orchard, field and garden which they have assembled in a splendid display on a series of shelves at the front of the main room of their hall. Occupying a central position was a sheaf of wheat made from bread dough and/or baked by Mr. Fred Arber, local baker. This was an ingenious piece of work. Flanking it on either side and below it were cabbages, citrous apples, jars of fruit and various other splendid specimens of fruit and vegetables.

An interesting contest was arranged by the Captain. The contestants decorated and filled baskets with fruits and vegetables of all kinds. For this contest Mr. W. E. Timmons, Mr. Hall generously donated three prizes. On Saturday evening the baskets were judged by Mr. Timmons and Mr. R. H. Connor, who awarded the prizes as follows: Mrs. Alexis Bradshaw, first; Miss Ethel Rodgers, second; Mrs. Miss Wright, third. The entry of the first named in particular was a work of art. The large square basket was tastefully decorated with colored crepe paper, and filled with products of the harvest. In four small square baskets placed at the corners of the large one and each divided into four compartments, were seeds of various kinds from which the harvest is obtained. Across the handle was the inscription "What Shall The Harvest Be."

Special services were held on Sunday and on Monday evening the fruits and vegetables on display were auctioned off.

Mrs. M. G. Sales was operated on at Belleville General Hospital on Tuesday for the removal of tonsils. She returned to her home on Wednesday.

Mr. W. R. Bateman, who has for several years owned and operated the Drug Store in town, recently disposed of his business to Mr. Rupert of Madoc. Mr. and Mrs. Bateman are at present visiting friends in Toronto.

WALLBRIDGE W. I.

The September meeting of the Wallbridge Women's Institute was held on Wednesday afternoon, the twenty fifth, at the home of Mrs. John Chisholm.

The meeting was opened in the usual manner by singing the Institute Ode, followed by the Lord's Prayer with the president, Mrs. L. J. Ketcheson presiding. The secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Edgar Lane, then read the minutes of last meeting and called the roll which was well responded to, with a potato recipe. Several items of business were discussed and a quilting was arranged for November. All members having quilt blocks were asked to have them ready for the October meeting.

Mrs. Archie Sine, chairman of Proper Economics then took charge of the meeting. A reading "Inquiries Octavius" was given by Mrs. Clarence Holmes. Mrs. Sine then conducted a very interesting question drawer, dealing with questions on Home Economics, such as "My Main Hobby in Economy", "How to can pumpkin for winter," "How to prepare milk for marmon," "My favorite cake recipe", "Am I extravagant in my homes" if so why, where?" "How to set your table," etc. Miss Freda Hinchcliffe then gave a reading "The Ballad of Mary Brown."

Collection was taken and the meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem. The hostess assisted by Mrs. C. Chisholm, Sr., served a dainty lunch and a social half hour was enjoyed.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered the hostess for her hospitality and also to Mrs. Sine for her very interesting programme.

ARCTIC VESSEL LOCKED IN ICE

Sailors running a low line over the ice to the famed Arctic trading vessel C. D. Holmes after she had been caught in the ice off the northern tip of Alaska. At the other end of the line the U. S. Bureau of Indian Affairs motorship North Star towed the Holmes nearly 100 miles through the ice to Point Barrow, Alaska, where both vessels discharged cargoes comprising the winter supplies for the natives of Barrow, one of the most northerly settlements. Conditions in the Alaskan Arctic were described as the worst in years by skippers returning to Seattle.

Britain Blasts German Stand on Minorities and Ethnic Nationality

Teutonic Ideal Attacked by Spokesman of Britain

JEWS' CONTINUITY

Free Association of Free Peoples British IDEAL

(By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Geneva, Oct. 4 (C.P. Cable) — With ball, book and candle Great Britain today bluntly rejected the whole German conception of ethnic nationality and the treatment of minorities, declaring the Jews deserved the same fair treatment as any other citizens or nation to which they were attached.

Before the political commission of the League of Nations investigator Dr. Friedrich von Keller of Germany, had proclaimed the Hitler government's belief in an ethnic German nationality transcending all geographical limits and beyond Germany's frontiers, and he argued Germany's treatment of the Jews had nothing to do with minority rights because they were neither a racial nor a linguistic minority. The theory of ethnic nationality "could carry us very far," caustically commented W. G. A. Ormsby-Gore, Britain's Dominions Secretary of State, who replied for the United Kingdom.

"If we accept it I hesitate to think of the responsibility of my government for all those in the United States who claim descent from the original pilgrims in the Mayflower."

Rejection

The British delegate flatly declared: "We, in the British Empire reject absolutely the conception put forward by the German delegate. Great Britain herself had been invaded since twelfth times by the most mixed blocks. In Britain there were still three distinct races — Welsh, Scottish and Irish — and they might again be subdivided into racial groups.

"This aryan doctrine and the doctrine of aryan homogeneity cannot apply in the British Empire," said Mr. Ormsby-Gore. And the German argument implied a doctrine of racial supremacy which the British delegation equally could not accept.

It had always been a cardinal principle of the British Empire that no person should be debarred from holding any office under the crown or practising any profession by reason of creed or race. It was that doctrine which held the British Empire together.

Free Association

The British Empire, he continued, did not conceive itself in terms of racial unity but as a free association of free peoples encouraged to develop their national tendencies within the greater framework.

And the best guarantee for all minorities was free, self-governing institutions. "We have always set self-government even above good government," said the British delegate. "We believe in a parliamentary system by which all opinions can be heard, we believe in a free press.

"We have had institutions of parliamentary government in our country for 650 years and we are not going to abandon it now either in the name of democracy or anything else."

Mr. Ormsby-Gore challenged the German theory on Jewish minorities, citing the great Disraeli, who although baptized in the English church regarded himself as a Hebrew of the Hebrews, like St. Paul.

Jewish Continuity

"I say," said the British spokesman, "there is a sense among the Jews of their historical continuity throughout their universal, and that they do form a racial minority which deserves the same fair treatment as is extended to other loyal citizens of the nation to which they are attached."

The commission applauded him. As it had done Senator Berenger of France when, during the day, he described the German thesis as directly opposed to the league conception.

No More Piles

You Can End Your Awful Misery Quick Without Cutting or Salves

Thousands of Pile sufferers do not know that the cause of Piles is internal—bad circulation of blood in the lower bowel.

That is the scientific truth about Piles—the real reason why salves and suppositories do not give permanent relief, why cutting does not remove the cause.

Your internal bleeding or protruding Piles will only go when you actually remove the cause, and no one minute before. External treatments and even an internal medicine should be used. HEM-ROID, the prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, a well known good drug-gists everywhere, succeeds because it stimulates the circulation, shrinks out congested blood, heals and restores the almost dead parts.

Dr. Leonhardt's HEM-ROID has an almost unbelievable record of success right in this city. So why waste time on external treatments or worry about an operation when Mr. J. B. McKeown invites every Pile sufferer to try HEM-ROID with guarantee of money-back if it does not end Piles, no matter how stubborn the case!

FIRST MOLLISON TAKE OFF ATTEMPT FAILS — WILL TRY AGAIN

A combination of unfortunate circumstances again jinxed the famous flying Mollisons when they attempted to take off from Wasaga Beach, Ontario, for their flight to Bagdad. A slight cross breeze sprang up on the beach where they shouldn't have been, and a heavy load of more than 600 gallons of gasoline combining to thwart Capt. Jim and his wife Amy. However, in typical British style, they accepted their fate and announced that they would try again. The ABOVE layout shows Capt. Mollison, Capt. Mollison and Mrs. Mollison walking along the beach to their plane, Seafarer. II. At top RIGHT, the Seafarer tearing down the long stretch of hard sandy beach at 70 miles an hour attempting to get into the air. It did manage to get a foot or so off the ground, but came down when Capt. Mollison, fearful of a swerve back to avoid the two speculators and to keep away from the water, lower RIGHT shows the Captain and his wife scanning the early morning skies studying the weather that baffled them. Charlie heretically Mrs. Mollison accepted the blame for the failure declaring that she shouted to her husband to "throttle down." This, however, was not given as the main reason.

PROBABILITIES:
Moderate variable winds; fair today and part of Saturday; probably followed by showers.

Prince of Wales, Master of Himself, Master of Half World Says Le Jour

Paris, Oct. 6—(CP Cable)— The new Parisian daily newspaper "Le Jour" appeared today with an eulogistic editorial on the Prince of Wales. "The Prince, with the physical resistance of an athlete, enjoys with extremely keen intellectual faculties, remains unshaken by adversity, is the master of himself as he will one day be the master of half the globe" it said.

"What one likes about him is that besides being the heir to a vast empire he is a man strong and independent, sure of himself and alleging watching his destiny approaching him."

Thirty-five bodies were recovered and many more were believed to have perished in the raging inferno of flames which swept over Griffith Park here late yesterday. Most of those burned to death probably never will be identified. More than one hundred fire-fighters were taken to hospitals and treated for burns, some serious, after being trapped in a blind canyon which was enveloped by the blaze. This photo shows flame-scared survivors receiving treatment at the first aid station established just outside the fire area.

DOSE OF MATHEMATICS BRING RELIEF TO COLD SUFFERERS

Three Years of Colds And Then Change in Fourth Year

SYSTEM'S CHANGES

(By Howard W. Blakeslee, Associated Press Science Editor)

Baltimore, Oct. 6 (AP) — By giving the common cold a dose of mathematics, Johns Hopkins University investigators have discovered a hopeful fact for the person who catches cold easily. He has a fair chance to get over his weakness.

There has been a widespread belief that the person who has three bad colds a year is just naturally subject to that many, and can't do anything much about it, while there is another section of the population which has only about one a year, come what may.

At Johns Hopkins the John J. Abel Fund for Research on the Common Cold after several years, has accumulated in addition to evidence that the cause is a virus, a lot of statistics about students and Baltimore families which had colds. These statistics have been subjected to mathematical analysis by William M. Gafafer and James A. Doull, who announce their preliminary findings today in science.

They, like all other investigators, found that some of their patients had several colds a year, while others had only one or two. They followed the common cold experiences of these patients for several years.

First, they noted if a person had several colds in one year, he was likely to remain in the same class in the next year. On the third successive year, whatever change in his cold catching status took place, was too slight to be significant.

But on the fourth year there was a difference. Then, when two years had intervened since the first observation and the final one, the cold catchers were no longer uniformly victims.

There was likewise a similar probability that by the fourth year the original few-cold persons had slipped and were catching more.

Nowhere did they find any tendency for the whole group to escape the average number of colds for the country's population, which is less than that of the easy catchers, and a little more than the near-immunes.

The figures, they suggest, indicate that resistance and susceptibility to colds is likely to change from time to time in the average individual.

TO IRON OUT WAGE DISPUTE ON RAILWAYS

Employees of Running Trades And Lines to Negotiate

STATEMENT MADE

Negotiations For Settlement Will be Resumed

Ottawa, Oct. 6 (CP)— Railway employees in the running trades and the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways will endeavor to iron out their wage disputes. The negotiations are to be "resumed without delay."

The trouble broke out several months ago following a majority report of a conciliation board for a second 10 per cent reduction in wages from May 1. The previous decrease of 10 percent from the basic rate had been in effect for a year. A recent strike vote taken by the men carried by a large majority favoring going on strike if an agreement could not be reached.

A statement announcing that negotiations for a settlement would be resumed was issued last night by Premier R. B. Bennett.

HUNGRIEST MAN EATS WHOLE HOUR

Port Erie, Ont., Oct. 6 (CP)—The hungriest man Port Erie has seen in many years, John Rush, 43, colored United States army veteran, is back in Buffalo today in the care of the American Legion which will try to find him a job.

Asleep in a box car when it was sealed at Diver, Pa., several days ago, Rush was looked in the car and only released when it was opened here yesterday. He was so weak he could hardly stand. But at the expense of the immigration department he ate steadily for one hour.

ONE-HUNDRED MEN TO START RELIEF WORK ON TUESDAY

Storm Sewers And River Will be Projects Started First

Unemployment was dealt the first blow in this city at the special meeting of the city council held last evening.

With three major projects which had been outlined by the engineering official sanction by the Secretary of the Unemployment Relief Committee, at Toronto on Thursday, two of these which will absorb the bulk of the unemployed of the city will commence on Tuesday, October 10.

Over one hundred men, whose names will be taken from the lists at the local Central Relief Office will be despatched from the city hall on Tuesday morning, completely equipped to begin the first of the work which is expected to continue throughout the winter. Rate of pay for all work will be the standard at 40 cents per hour.

One shift of fifty or more men will be sent to a location named at some point along the upper river bank where they will be put to work at once clearing and shifting the loose stones and islands in Moira River above the old Lett's Dam.

One other shift with an equal number of men will be divided between Foster Avenue, West Moira Street and South Front Street, where the work of laying new storm sewers will be commenced at once.

Post List at Hall

On Saturday a list of names of men, who will be called for work, will be posted on the glass of the doors of the City Hall at the Central Relief Office, naming those who have been called to work, and advising the workers at which point to collect to start work on Tuesday.

ODDITIES IN THE NEWS

STATESBORO, Ga., Oct. 6. —(AP)—This is a tale about a cat that didn't eat the rat, but adopted it.

The story goes that a large house cat at Alfred Dorman's Wholesale Fruit and Produce Company became the mother of several kittens. Some of the kittens died. A baby rat appeared on the scene, but the lonesome cat's mother instinct overcame any desire it might have had to eat the visitor. The rat became one of the family.

Walla Walla Wash., Oct. 6—W. K. Jenkins built a fire in his stove and got "hooted" for it. Pulling off a back cover he found a small owl had crawled in, possibly falling down the chimney. He took the visitor out alive, but somewhat singed.

East Moline, Ill., Oct. 6.—(CP) —Richard Hamel, a professional crystal gazer, asked the police to find his wife, who disappeared.

Topeka, Kas., Oct. 6.—(CP) —Plans for Fire Prevention Week just had to wait.

As the committee was taking up its work the night bell went off and Fire Chief William Lesher dashed away. A second alarm came in and the members spent the next three hours watching Chief Cawker's boys fight the worst fire in months.

Rome Built Sewers Back in 130 B.C. Economic Crisis in Days of Gracchus

Philadelphia, Oct. 6 (CP)—Way back in ancient Rome they had depression, too, and from the findings of an Archaeological expedition just returned from Italy it would seem they had 20th Century ideas of curing them.

Jotham Johnson, Director of a University of Pennsylvania museum expedition which spent two years at Minturno, Italy, says excavations offered proof that Rome was the first nation to inaugurate public works programmes in a drive for better times.

Coming back to Philadelphia, Johnson brought a varied assortment of sewer pipes unearthed at Minturno, which he says were laid during the rule of Tiberius Gracchus around 130 B.C.

"Gracchus had a large following among the labor classes of the Roman people," he explained. "And our excavations indicate he installed the sewer system during an economic crisis to put the laboring group to work."

Dismantling Ice Plant in Arena is Sequel to Meeting of City Council

Dismantling Ice Plant at Arena is Begun Today

Acting upon instructions from head office four experienced workmen from the Linde Refrigeration Company of Montreal, started operations at the Belleville Arena today to dismantle the local artificial ice freezing plant which has been sold by the Linde Company to the St. John's N.B., Arena Company.

Mr. Richard Chappell and Mr. John Hass, two foremen sent to Belleville to complete the removal of the local ice plant, informed the Ontario Intelligencer this morning that they had been in the city since early Monday morning but following the receipt of telegrams from their head office had not started to disassemble the ice plant until following last evening's meeting held at the City Hall. It was at the termination of this gathering that the final decision was made by the company and the ice plant is definitely to be removed from the Belleville Arena.

All morning long the brine was being drained from the brine tanks while the workmen were busy dismantling the large ice freezing machinery and by noon today the greater part of one machine had been completely torn apart. The pipes on which the ice is frozen, will be later removed, section by section. The entire plant will be packed and shipped by freight to St. John's N.B., where it will manufacture ice for the arena of that city.

After four years of continuous and enjoyed privileges enjoyed through the facility of an artificial ice freezing plant in the Belleville arena, the lovers of winter sports in the Belleville district today find themselves without an Arena IN for winter sports as the present Belleville Arena was not built to manufacture natural ice. The present ventilation facilities were not included in the specifications for the building making the possibilities of a natural ice arena or rink impossible.

Long Discussion at Council Meeting Over Rink Proposition

CRISIS PROVEN

News of Last Night's Results Sent to Linde Co. Who Act at Once

The City Council is willing to stand behind the recommendations passed at a previous meeting "that taxes and water rates will be remitted to the Belleville Arena for the present year in lieu of free skating rinks for the children" if the Linde Company, who are threatening to remove the ice plant from said Arena will leave same in the Arena until the election in December, the Council will have a bylaw prepared on Tuesday next at council meeting and submit the question of purchasing the said Arena by the city.

This was the decision of the council in committee on Thursday night after they had been interviewed by directors of the Belleville Arena, members or the Chamber of Commerce and representative citizens. Mr. S. R. Burrows informed the council that he would get in touch with the Linde Company, who now have mechanics in the city to take out the freezing plant, the result of a deal made with Saint John, N.B., and if the ice company are willing to delay the sale until that time, the question will be put to the people.

Mayor's Explanation

After the council had concluded their business on Thursday night in the Council meeting for Tuesday night, the members filed into the council chamber in lieu of the meeting in favor of the council taking some steps to prepare for the youth of the city the excellent facilities that are afforded by the Arena. Mayor George O. Tice in opening the discussion informed the delegates that members of the council were all agreed that the rink was an asset to the city but in their position nothing legally could be done except wait for the result of the vote in December. His Worship explained the interest that former councils had taken in the rink, stating that, two years ago the city advanced the water rates and taxes and last year the same procedure was followed by the agreement that the citizens should have the rink free after the purchase of the Arena for a price of $100,000.00. "At that time," said Mayor Tice there was a determination as to what parties would pay for advertising of the rink and the council met the Arena Company half way by agreeing to pass, at half of the election expenses, but the matter was allowed to drift and now we are in the same situation confronting the council, which has been thrust upon them in the last minute. The council this year is willing to remit the water rates and taxes and to provide for the skating hours for the children, thus carrying out the intention of the rinks, prepare a bylaw for the purchase of the Arena and put it to the people, and I think it is fair."

CANADA GEESE REST IN BAY

Four wild Canada geese the first seen in this district this season, plumped down into the still waters of the harbour near the government dock early this morning, where they spent a short time feeding and resting some distance from shore. Several workmen at the government dock enjoyed the novel sight. Just before 6 o'clock these birds rose into the air and flew south.

ROADS ALL IN GOOD CONDITION

The latest weekly report of road conditions throughout this district, as given by the Department of Public Highways indicates that it will be plain driving for all motorists in this section throughout the holidays, except for a small section of road near Actinolite now under construction. One rough section of road just north of Madoc is also indicated by the official report.

COUNCIL MEETS TUESDAY NIGHT

Owing to the observance of Monday, October 9th, as a holiday in this city, the regular meeting of the city council will be changed from that date to Tuesday evening, October 10th.

NO MORE FLIES THAN FORMERLY

"There aren't any more house flies this year than there has been in any other average year," stated official of the local Dominion Entomological Laboratory, when he was questioned. This year, however, their numbers appear to be greater owing to the changeable weather. They've been flocking into the houses and offices during the recent cool weather, giving the impression that this is a considerably greater number than there really is." Housecleaning and steadily increasing heat increase year by year, and are merely content to hold their own. Whether any parasite could be developed to control or decrease their numbers remains to be question, stated the experts.

HARBOR WORK NOT FORGOTTEN

"Just because we are going to make a start on that other work, doesn't mean that we have forgotten all about the harbor improvement scheme," stated Mayor Geo. C. Thoy today.

The other work, however, is available immediately, and the men have to get work of some kind so that is the reason why it comes first. In order to get official sanction of the harbor development we'd have to apply to a different governmental department and that would mean more delay," we're quite inspired.

Advisant Martin and other members of the local Corps are most appreciative of the kindly sentiments expressed in the letter appearing in Wednesday evening's issue of this paper relative to the music furnished by the Canadian Legion Pipe Band and the Citadel Band and so nicely expressed in the writer of the communication.

Raspberries Grow Their Second Crop

From the garden of Mr. J. W. Coulter, Redoubt Road, the paper received, Friday morning a fine bouquet of raspberries. Throughout the district numerous patches of raspberry bushes are bearing their second crop for the season.

Mr. Gatcum College street also has presented this office with specimens of potatoes, the second crop of these vegetables grown on the same garden plot, the first crop, "Cobblers" were harvested at the end of June and the second planting made of "Rurals" which are now being dug by the proud proprietor of the vegetable plot.

SONGSTERS TO VISIT CITY

The St. Catharines' Songster Brigade, attached to the Salvation Army Corps in that city, which is announced to visit Belleville during the coming Thanksgiving holiday week-end consists entirely of Salvationists, of first class musical ability, and is directed by Leader Eric Beard.

The music used by the Brigade, as with all Songster Brigades in the Army, is either in composition or arrangement, the production of the Musical Board of the Salvation Army.

It should be remembered that Salvation Army musical organizations exist for evangelistic purposes only, and not merely for display of musical ability, and the object of their visits is to attract their hearers to the more glorious scenes of the Gospel and Salvation Invitations. Therefore, Praise God that many hundreds of souls have as a result of this principle, been won for Christ. The satisfaction derived by the Army in the return that is received by them, for in every instance, not excepting the financial, is the consideration most freely to the cause.

Special collections are issued of a real musical treat during this campaign and will enjoy the public ministry of Adjutant Winnie Moore. All citizens respond with overflowing attendances. The visitors will be greatly inspired.

Adjutant Martin and other members of the local Corps are most appreciative of the kindly sentiments expressed in the letter appearing in the Wednesday evening's issue of this paper relative to the music furnished by the Canadian Legion Pipe Band and the Citadel Band and so nicely expressed in the writer of the communication.

BARBADOS, ISLAND OF CORAL, AS RESORT

Canadian Lumber and Vegetables Imported into Island

Presentation Made To Departing Member

Sister E. Locker, who is making her home in Montreal, was at the last meeting of the Daughters of England, presented by Worthy President Sister E. Hagley with an cushion ring as a token of appreciation of the efforts and members of the long and happy associations of the lodge members with Mrs. Locker. The recipient voiced regret at the severance of the ties binding her to the Belleville lodge and at the same time told how delighted she was by the gift underneath of the goodwill of her friends. A Diamond

MAY be "a gem of purest ray serene"—crystal clear in coloring, exquisite in cutting, and yet be ruined by a clumsy setting. On the other hand even a small stone is much enhanced by a beautiful setting chosen by an expert to throw into relief its best points.

And so in selecting diamond jewelry, whether the occasion be ring or pin, careful consideration should be given to this important factor.

At MOFFETT'S competent advisers will be pleased to point out the individual charms of the various faultless stones on display there.

Belleville Boy Sees Relics Taken from Old Temple Ruins

Arnold Brown, Jr. Describes Scenes in Field Outside London

CO-EDS AT WORK

"I was very interested to read the article headed 'Ancient Temple Found Within 20 Miles of Modern City of London,' in Tuesday evening's paper—particularly as there is only three weeks ago yesterday that I spent a most interesting morning being shown over the excavations of the ancient Roman city on Verulamium," writes Mr. Arnold Brown, Jr., to the Ontario Intelligencer. He continues:

"To reach the excavations, we left the fine large square in the centre of the City of St. Albans and following the road to London passed alongside the ruins after five minutes brisk walking. We passed The Bungalow Coed Du, the oldest in England and continued past the ornamental lake, following a sign pointing to our destination. We were now just on the western outskirts of the city surrounded by typical English countryside.

Mosaic Floors

"We entered the office building and were shown all the beautiful mosaics which have been unearthed since the excavation was commenced. I procured several pictures of these magnificent designs which make attractive colors having been used and perfectly fired. Some of the floors were as large as 30 feet square, one having a remarkable centrepiece representing the figure-head of the Sea God—a most ferocious horn-capped spectacle, his face almost hidden with a wild flowing beard. Here, too, we were shown the skeletons of the bones in their small clay coffins, as well as pottery of all description. We were registering sudden amazement at this wonderful display, shihking we had known the artistic skill when the attendant approaches and told us to pass out through another door and follow the pathway in the field behind this building.

Five Acre Field Trenched

"Stretching before us, we could see the excavations in actual progress. A field anything from four to five acres in size was almost entirely scarred with deep trenches, some four feet, some eight and some 12 feet deep, and one or two even deeper. Stepping over these ditches wheeling loaded wheelbarrows, using picks and shovels, plenty energy was a veritable army or shorts-clad university girls and archaeologists. A brovace of tents at the far end of the field provided the accommodation for these young research student who were devoting their holidays and their services freely in an effort to reconstruct the dwellings and the Temple once lived and worshipped in by the Romans.

"At random we looked down into several of the trenches. In each, we saw two or three of these scientists with a fine dusting brush and a pointed knife delicately brushing away the earth, each handful being carefully sorted for "finds." The operation was apparently a most tedious one requiring inexhaustible patience. First a careful turning over of a few inches of ground with the trowel, then the fine brushing of the dirt thus loosened in the palm of the hand. Then being progressed so far as to even have the streets marked out throughout the length of the city. Every few yards we could see the foundations and floors of old wooden houses, which in that age were equipped with hot-air heating system almost as scientific as those used in these modern times. I brought away with me a piece of mortar and a piece of the walls—a petrified granite composition.

Photographs of Temple Remains

"At the other side of the field, closed off from visitors we could see them photographing the newest discoveries in the Temple which is being restored. We stood as near as we were allowed when one of the archaeologists, in a khaki shirt and shorts, browned by the open-air work, came out carrying an armful of what appeared to be pieces of charcoal. We asked him just what they were and he surprisingly told us that they had just found them by the side of the sacrificial altar which had previously been unearthed, and that they were he burns and charred bones of sheep and oxen. He handed us a piece and told us that we were holding in our hand the remains of a sacrifice 1800 years old.

Chamberlain Views Bones

"Then very kindly he allowed us to wash his dirty hands and ran off the bones of various animals which had been found beside an oven in one of the dwellings. Bones of dogs, cattle, goats, and fowl were all separately listed and tagged. We thanked him for his elucding remarks and turned away in time to see the man in charge of the excavations giving some further instructions. And the man in charge was a negro; a negro in a bright blue shirt and grey trousers; a negro with remarkably long curly hair, and with an exceptionally intellectual forehead. Indeed, he was a very handsome negro. I noticed particularly his long slender fingers and his pleasing eyes as he demonstrated to three young girls how to manipulate a trowel.

"Our tour finished, we walked to the gate, and passing a long line of Reila Royce, Morris Cowley and Vauxhall motors belonging to the workers, went on our way to the St. Michael's Church and the tomb of Sir Francis Bacon."

BUILD CHURCH 60 YRS AGO

Kingston Road United Church to Celebrate Diamond Jubilee

In 1873, just sixty years ago, the Kingston Road United Church was built under the direction of Bridge Street Church, Belleville, and dedicated by the Wesleyan body of the Methodist Church of Canada under the pastorate of Rev. Wm. Bland.

It will be of great interest to many to read the early records as given in the Bridge Street Church Minute Book of very early date.

At a meeting held on June 8th, 1872, it was moved by Wm. Wensley, seconded by R. Richards that it is desirable to procure a site for the erection of a Sabbath school house on the Kingston road in the vicinity of Bleecker school house.—Carried.

Moved by R. Richards and seconded by J. H. Meacham that Wm. Wensley, Wm. Brenton and Stewart Caverley, Wm. Brenton be trustees to take steps toward the erection of said house and report to next Board. Moved Wm. Lingham to assist the committee. Thomas Holden, Recording Steward.

February 15th, 1875, Board Meeting:

After discussion it was decided to constitute Bleecker St. and Kingston Road Churches a Mission Station for 1875 and that Belleville contribute to the funds of the new circuit for the year 1875. Rev. Mr. Bland be asked to take the superintendency of Kingston Road Mission School.

For two years it was supplied by local preachers. On May 3rd, 1875 Rev. Mr. Cullin's name was appointed to this charge, being the first appointment. The Official Board consisted of Wm. Wensley, Wm. Brenton, J. E. Carscallen, W. A. Foster and John H. Pashley, Stewards, and Wm. Brenton assistant Steward of Point Anne charge where it continued to be supplied by the Trustees Board of Point Anne to the City Mission Board of Bridge Street to hold services there, at which time Rev. W. Farnsworth was appointed supply.

Two years ago the church underwent improvements. The old roof was torn down and a neat building for storage was built. The frame work was painted outside and the interior was nicely decorated. Electric light was installed and a piano bought with other furnishings which makes the church comfortable and attractive.

There is now a splendid Sunday school of about 80 and a very active Woman's Association.

Too much cannot be said of the faithful service of many of these people, who in the spirit of love and sacrifice have rendered valuable service of great help throughout the community.

ONE HUNDRED MEN START WORK

in alphabetical order or according to number of dependents has not been worked out by the city engineer and relief officials as yet.

It is expected that the work of reclaiming the upper river will take at least one month's steady work. Fewer work is expected to care for an equal number of men for the same period.

With the completion of this work on the river and storm sewers, then comes the major project, the Zwick's Island project will be started. This work will care for a larger number of men and may be carried on throughout the winter without a halt in the work.

"That the necessary procedure be taken at once in order to provide labor on relief projects on Tuesday, October 10, by commencing work on the Moira River, and also storm sewers on Foster Avenue, South Front Street, and West Moira Street".

Oct. 5th, 1933

Gentlemen:

Re Unemployment Relief Work

Your Special Committee appointed to interview Mr. A. A. Ellis, Provincial Unemployment Relief, at Toronto, beg to submit the following report.

After being received by Mr. Ellis at Parliament Buildings at 2.30 p.m. on Wednesday we submitted our programme of proposed relief work for his consideration. Due to the fact that delegations were also present from Consecon, Ketchener, London, Galt and Sarnia, Mr. Ellis informed us that he would check over our projects and estimates and would discuss matters with us on Thursday morning at 9 o'clock. At the final meeting all the details regarding direct relief work were explained to us. Mr. Ellis stated that our programme consisted of worthwhile and sensible undertaking to provide work for our unemployed citizens, but reminded us that although our whole programme would be submitted to the Government for approval, we must bear in mind that each Municipality would receive its quota after the government had taken into consideration the total expenditure of all the municipalities applying for grants. Positively no assistance will be granted if the government rewards the purchase of materials, supplies, tools or equipment; therefore the municipalities must decide on doing whatever work will provide the most labour in order to minimize the city's expenditure on materials.

Mr. Ellis also stated that the object of reconstruction local relief labour is to provide means whereby the unemployed citizens can earn just enough to live on instead of receiving direct relief, and therefore the municipalities are urged to take all eligible able bodied workers off direct relief and put them to work. These workmen are to be paid by cash for the amount of work they do and their monthly wages must be sufficient to provide for the family maintenance including provisions, shelter, fuel, etc. Single men, if necessary, shouldn't other than those on direct relief are eligible for the work and all workmen employed must carry out their work in an unselfish and efficient manner by co-operating with the municipal councils and all civic officials.

Mr. Ellis informed this committee that he was greatly assisted in handling the City of Belleville's relief work in the past by the co-operation which he received from our civic departments and stated that he hoped, therefore, to receive the same assistance and co-operation at all times.

Respectfully,
Geo. C. Thoe, Mayor.
H. R. Stock, Chairman of Finance.
H. R. Stock, City Treasurer.

J.A. MACHRAY DIES IN JAIL

Served But One Year For Defalcations of Anglican Church Funds

Winnipeg, Oct. 6—(CP)—Death Thursday put an end to the prison term of John A. Machray, once a leading figure in financial, educational, legal and church affairs. Ill with cancer and debtroned from his high position in the community by financial defalcations running up to $1,000,000, Machray entered Stony Mountain penitentiary a year and two weeks ago to begin serving a seven-year term for theft.

At that time it was freely predicting he would not come out alive and he died Thursday after spending most of his months behind the bars on a cot in the prison infirmary. Machray was 68 years old.

The funeral will be held quietly and privately tomorrow. While arrangements have not been fully completed the service will be conducted by Rev. Henry D. Martin, pastor of St. George's Anglican Church, and burial will be in St. John's cemetery. Machray's defalcations almost depleted the endowment funds of the Church of England but the church officials declined to press charges against him.

He pleaded guilty to theft $500,000 from the University of Manitoba, and $60,000 from a former law partner at a brief trial before Magistrate R. M. Noble.

As audit of the books of the Machray firm showed systematic defalcations dating back many years Even as his great investment business was growing he was withdrawing capital from trust funds to pay interest on money lost through faulty investments which he always kept secret.

As chancellor of the diocese of Rupert's Land he had charge of the great endowments of the Church of England in Western Canada. Following the downfall the church had to launch a national campaign to raise money to meet its obligations. Then, as bursar and chairman of the board of governors of the University of Manitoba he had in his keeping other large endowment funds, which also suffered heavily.

The rapid succession of startling events following sinister rumors late in August, 1932, which led to his imprisonment less than a month later, staggered members of the community where he was a leading citizen, known as a successful lawyer, shrewd investment banker, philanthropist, prominent educationalist and devout church worker.

It was the esteem and confidence in which he was held that permitted Machray, as shown by investigators, to misuse for 26 years funds and securities entrusted to his care.

BRONX WING BACKS McKEE

O'Brien's Chances For Re-election as Mayor go Glimmering

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—(UP)—Tammany Hall, long one of the most powerful political organizations in the United States, was rendered a deadening blow when organized Democrats of the Bronx threw their support to Acting Mayor Joseph V. McKee, who is running for mayor on an independent Democratic ticket.

In the face of this secession, Tammany is faced with the immediate task of perfecting its own organization in the Bronx to further the candidacy of Mayor John P. O'Brien and the organization ticket. And with the Bronx lined up against him, Mayor O'Brien, it is believed, has only the shadow of a chance for victory.

The bolt by both Tammany and the fusion movement which has Fiorello H. LaGuardia for its mayoralty candidate announced today that Chief Magistrate Paul Windt will be on his ticket as candidate for district attorney of Manhattan. The addition of Feuerer, who has become nationally prominent as counsel to the senate stock exchange investigation, was the second major coup for McKee during the day.

The Bronx desertion of Tammany was announced by Edward J. Flynn, Democratic leader for that borough who by inference has the tacit approval of James A. Farley, state and national chairman and political spokesman for the Roosevelt administration.

McLEANS ARE GRANTED STAY

Younger McLean to Appeal Against Death Sentence

Edmonton, Oct. 6—(CP)—Under sentence to die at dawn today, Kenneth McLean, 24, and his 21-year-old son, William, Thursday night were granted a stay of execution.

The application was granted on behalf of the younger McLean, and in order to permit defence counsel, Cecil Primrose, to make an appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada.

The father, it was pointed out during the special session before Mr. Justice T. M. Tweedie, is escaping the gallows, because he may be needed as a witness during the appeal to the higher court.

For the first seven months of this year, 31,335 head of cattle, 145 calves, 158,000 chogs, and 33,746 sheep were shipped from Western to Eastern Canada.

BOYS AND THE FUTURE

The rising generation is one on which the future must depend. But the rising generation is not quite like what rising generations have been in the past and concern has been expressed on many occasions as to the influences which are at work among the younger folk today.

Magistrate Mikel, who has a close touch with the youth of the city and district in his capacity as judge of the Juvenile Court, in a letter to the press refers to the anomaly of the present situation. Here are youths and boys to whom some day will be entrusted the control of affairs, municipal, provincial, federal, and international, and yet among them is a considerable body who have got out of adjustment with the laws. The appearance of six boys in court on Saturday last and fourteen on the previous Saturday is the proof of a situation which calls people to think. The offences with which they were charged were serious enough as they concerned the rights of person and property. Theft is too common.

The magistrate does not offer an explanation of the cause of this condition which finds so many at variance with the observance of law, but he names influences which some thinkers believe may possibly be at the root of the trouble. But what he does do is to offer a plan which will impress upon the boys of Belleville and the district a sense of responsibility. He suggests the creation of a boys' board of trade or similar organization which will bring boys together socially, make them feel their social responsibilities as they approach manhood and furnish them with an intimate knowledge of organization such as affects the whole of the national life.

Mr. Mikel believes that the youth of the city and everywhere in Canada will respond to any task which places a responsibility upon them. The parental control which today for some reason or other has weakened will find under such an organization as the judge of the juvenile court offers, a valuable aid in the self-imposed burdens which youth will undertake. Boys want something to do. The giving of them that task may direct some, he points out, to the highest offices in the gift of the people and all to the possibility of a greater contribution to the municipal and national life.

The question is a great social one. The age is at the crossroads in many young lives. Give them something to fire and fill their minds and there will not be room and time for the careless or wanton lapse from the path of restitude by so many boys.

The boys who have come before the local juvenile court judge are not marked with the stamp of mental inferiority. They are in full possession of their faculties, but they want to use them and unfortunately a good number find no direction and no encouragement along the right line.

Magistrate Mikel's suggestion should be taken up by social organizations in the city. Every young life is too valuable to be allowed to drift. Lapsing youths are an indictment against individuals and the society in which they live.

It is worth while that there are numbers of persons in Belleville who will be only too glad to assist in organization of the boys of the city who are willing to be pursued. There is no time like the present when the young are flexible and when the present trend is not yet firmly established. Especially in this autumn of the year, is an apt time to launch some such project.

The future of Canada and of every centre in Canada rests with those who have not yet made a contribution to Canadian life, the boys and girls who are to carry the load which the present adult generation has found its way for itself to bear, debts, problems, of social amelioration. The way is clear and that way is the way of a law-abiding citizenship. Boys must be made to see when they close their eyes to the allurements of wrong-that the greatest possibilities of life lie within the observance of the law, which means only a social protection. They will see that the restraint of the law is not a handicap to the just and upright but an opportunity.

A real response to the ideal of Mr. Mikel may be looked for.

My gems are falling away: but it is because God is making up His jewels.—Wolfe.

Laws are silent in the midst of arms.—Cicero.

A prince that falleth out with laws breaketh with his best friends.—Saville.

The finite mind does not require to grasp the infinite at truth, but may go forward from light to light. —P. Bayne.

What do I owe, my times, to my country, to my neighbors, to my friends? Such are the questions which a virtuous man ought often to ask himself.—Lavater.

We are under solemn obligations to the children of those who have loved us.—Poincelot.

SIDELIGHTS—
GRAVE and GAY

OCTOBER

October leads her radiant train
O'er all the countryside,
In trappings gay her cavalcades
In proud procession ride;
Her flaming banners float and fling
Their splendor 'gainst the sky,
As in these sun-filled languid days
Her brilliant train glides by.

And when we see her banners float
From every scarlet tree,
When weirdly calls the plover's note
Across the fallow lea,
Our spirit answers to the call,
Our gypsy pulse beats high;
And we, too, join the cavalcade
When Autumn's train sweeps by.

For who can view the magic scene
Of this October days—
The trees in scarlet, green and gold
Veiled in the lilac haze,
The placid waters of the stream,
The tender blue of sky—
Unheeding of the mystic thrill
As Autumn's train sweeps by?

"WORLD'S SERIOUS" will not be reported this year by Ring Lardner, the fall page writer of baseball who always looked for a laugh in everything and passed it on to his thousands of readers. Ring was especially strong on the World's Baseball Series and his reports were classics of Yankee humor. Ring lost his battle with the T.B. terror but he laughed right up to the last and went to Baseball's heaven with a smile on his lips and a heart full of joy and kindness and bright with expectation of a better world than this.

SWEET ADELINE is enjoying a revival, washed up on the crest of 3.2 beer, not over-sweet but very expectant of barber shop and lamp-post quartettes when the hard stuff returns to Uncle Sam's land. "Sweet Adeline" did not chord well with the stuff and in speakeasyish, but is piping up almost in the old-time manner under the influence of 3.2—practising for the real stuff later on when the gin and ginger gets working.

NO BABE RUTH in the World's Series, no interest for many old time baseball fans in the baseball classic. Sfunny how the Bambino has built up such a strong box-office attraction and radio interest—a colorful, likeable gent, not only a good ball player but an actor capable of winning thousands of staunch admirers in the seen and unseen audiences of the sporting world. As Babe Ruth nears the end of the road as a bright and shining star in the public eye, worth it's weight in gold, Rupert and his associate owners of the Yankee baseball team of New York City, $76,000 a year or more, there is no likely successor on the baseball horizon. There may be some who can hit as many homers, but they won't have the personal attraction which Babe Ruth built up.

OLD ALBERT COLLEGE as a hostel for families on relief (Toronto) is worthy of the consideration of a reader of this column. Says he, "The old college building is ideal for small families, with many bedrooms, heating plant, etc., and might be operated at a considerable saving to the city in relief expenditure." That's an idea. The City Fathers are sure, are always grateful for suggestions re civic business, it shows that citizens take an interest in the business of the city as attentive listeners to Council. So, if you have a good idea tell us and we'll pass it along in black and white to whomsoever it may concern.

While the young suitor was waiting to take out his young lady, the latter's little sister suggested to her mother:

"Did you know my sister's got three other boy friends?" said the child.

"Really!" he said, in surprise. "I haven't seen any of them."

"No, you haven't," returned the child, "but she gave me a quarter to tell you."

CRITICISM OF LABRATORY IS INADVISABLE

Medical Laboratory Sets Out to Test Body Function

By Louis E. Block, M.D., Ph.D.
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

Sometimes a person visits his doctor, willing to pay a reasonable fee for a medical examination, and before he leaves he is astonished to find that a lot of laboratory tests will have to be made, for each of which he will have to part with additional dollars. I do not mean that the average patient one consults, under such circumstances, that he has been imposed upon, but often he feels that the physician might perhaps have arrived without all these laboratory aides in arriving at a diagnosis.

Yes, from the medical point of view, the more tests the better. Often it is absolutely impossible to discover what ails the patient without one or more such tests. In case of any doubt, the laboratory often is the only way to settle it. Sometimes one or more tests will point the way when all symptoms and physical signs elicited by the doctor by direct examination are negative. What is more, the laboratory is of the greatest help in determining the progress of a malady even after it has been correctly diagnosed. And lastly, many diseases which can only in the beginning stages be brought to light by means of the laboratory, but which defy the most expert examinations made by the physician is able to master.

The medical laboratory sets out to study the products of body functioning, its wastes, and its various ferments.

Examination of the urine is a familiar procedure to most people. By this means the presence of albumen, sugar or pus may be discovered, as well as other pathological evidence of disturbed kidneys.

Placing a drop of the patient's blood under the microscope not only can determines an anemic state, but is also of invaluable help in infectious conditions, surgical as well as medical, even whether the system is putting up a losing fight or not. In scientific states the blood may be diminished in its red corpuscle content or in the amount of hemoglobin, the coloring matter it normally contains. When an infection is the issue, the white blood cells are increased in amount and the so-called "differential count" may be of greatest significance, as regards treatment of the illness and the chances thereof.

The "Wasserman test" is another blood test that reveals the presence or absence of a dangerous blood parasite. Other tests of the blood rather too complicated to be entered into here, are available which otherwise might be a medical conundrum.

Many laboratory tests are made for the purpose of preserving health and preventing disease. Among these may be mentioned inoculations, the latest protection against smallpox, toxin-anti-toxin to establish immunity against diphtheria, vaccine to safeguard the individual against these dread diseases, typhoid and paratyphoid, the Pasteur inoculations to protect against hydrophobia, etc.

Use of vaccines made from a person's own blood is a novel one, to create so-called "anti-bodies" as a kind of safeguard. In this connection, rather boils may not develop, is another distinct and highly-specialized laboratory procedure.

Finding out what foods irritate the system, by means of skin injections, the City Health Department is engaged, for example, with the object of preparing a vaccine to prevent the recurrence of hay fever—Well, there are many wonderful things in the world and the medical laboratory has to offer, and of course, should be consulted with the use of X-rays, the fluoroscope, the stool in which radium can be put, and so on.

Truly, when one comes to think of it, one wonders what each and every one of us should not visit a medical laboratory at least once anyway, to see if something that requires correction may be discovered by these marvelous means.

OFF COLOUR? HOW IS YOUR LIVER?

—Without Calomel

Your liver's a very small organ, but it secretes and empties daily, depending on your diet, two pints of bile into the intestines to pour out its load of impurities. If this bile is not flowing freely, foods decay and poison the system, causing sick headaches, constipation, acid stomach, gas, sallow skin, dizziness, coated tongue, bad breath and a miserable feeling all over. Don't dose with salts, calomel purgatives or mineral waters. Get Carter's Little Liver Pills and see how much better you feel. Only 25c at druggists. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. DON'T BE SATISFIED WITH LESS THAN 8 CYLINDERS

The trend is toward the V-8. It's the coming car. And the Ford V-8 gives you eight-cylinder performance WITH ECONOMY . . . . . .

NEW FORD V-8 $650 up

(F.O.B. East Windsor, Ontario. Bumpers, spare tire and taxes extra. Small down payment. Convenient terms.)

NO DOUBT OF IT — the V-8 is the coming car. It has the smooth speed and power that you've always wanted. And Ford has found a way to combine eight-cylinder performance WITH ECONOMY.

When we say economy we mean economy all down, the line. Low first cost. Owners report 22 to 25 miles per gallon. Low up-keep cost. (Ford parts cost less than other low-price cars and Ford flat labor rates are more than 30% less.)

And remember this . . . when you buy the Ford V-8 you are protecting your investment. You are buying the coming car—a car that is at least a year ahead in design and performance. It won't depreciate quickly or be out of date a few months after you buy it.

There isn't a low-price car on the market today that comes even close to the Ford V-8 in quality, speed, safety, comfort and all-round motoring satisfaction. It has many extra-value features not found in any car selling under $1500.

All we ask is this — See the big Ford V-8 with the 112-inch wheelbase and ride in it. Compare it point-by-point with any other low or medium price car. Take it out on the road for the most grueling tests you know how to make.

You'll know then why so many owners say — "It's the finest car I have ever owned — regardless of price."

Little Benny's Note Book

After supper pop took off his collar and tie and started to look comfortable in his private chair, and ma said, Gladdis dropped in this afternoon. Whipum, and I remarked that this room would probberly look better if the sofa was back in its old place where the bookcase is now, and vice virtue, and Gladdis thawt so too.

Let her think about her own fern stuare, yee gods, do you know what the thermometer registered today? Neither 66 F. but I know it's darn hot, pop said. This is not a day of weather for furniture moving. It's on days like this we should all take example from the Hindoos and sit quietly with minds and muscles relaxed and let ourselves gently sink into a calm sea of meditation. Do you think any Hindoo would move furniture in weather like this, if he had ferniture? pop said.

O, all rite, my goodness there's no special hurry, he's jist an idiot, there's no necessity for dragging in a lot of Hindoos, ma said.

With just then the telefone rang and ma answered it, saying Hello, very well thank you, I'll tell him, good by. And she said jo pop. If you happen to make your watch it seems you left it around at Peet's Bowling Parlors before supper when you stopped in for a little exciting meditation as you hurled a few dumen relaxed bowlsthrough the imaginery alley. It must of been divine, on a day like this sinking blissfully into a calm sea of perspiration, she said.

Okay, one verse is enough what's all this stuff you want shoved about, let's get it over with pop said.

And he moved the sofa — then the bookcase was and pushed the bookcase back where it use to be, then he moved the bookcase and ma not being quite sure whether she liked it quite as good or not.

PIROMELLI IS GUILTY OF MANSLAUGHTER

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont. Oct. 6.—(CP) — Frank Piromelli was Thursday night found guilty of manslaughter in connection with the death of Frank Vena, and will be sentenced at the end of the present sittings. Piromelli emptied a gun into the body shortly after the latter had been acquitted of shooting Tony Piromelli, brother of Frank.

In his defence, Piromelli claimed Vena had telephoned him on one occasion, and on the night of the shooting had pointed a dark object at him and said: "Now you will get what Tony got. Afraid Vena had a gun, Piromelli then opened fire, he said.

"I shot as long as there were shells in the gun, and Vena faced me all the time,' Piromelli told the court when he took the stand in his own behalf.

The Summer Hair Dress Styles Carried Over to a New Season

(BY HELEN FOLLETT)

Sitting in at a beauty show, where stunted pretty ladies all doled up their exterior observed that coiffures follow along the summer lines to a certain extent. The nape line is concealed, either by means of side-swept locks or small curls. Ears are undressed and unashamed out in the open. All right when they're small, but no matter what the mode, large lobes should be curtained.

There's still a war on between short and tall, those that favor the hanging on to pigtail material for dear life. Though the effect is for short hair, and most women prefer it, there's something unattractive and pickaninnyish about flowing tresses. The dobs and sub-dobs love 'em.

Even make-up for evening is naturalism now. Eyes are shadowed, yes, but slightly. One seldom sees heavy dark smears that cause them look like bruises. Lips in a blanket.

Cheek coloring has almost disappeared. Powders are as rich and dark, as the cutaneous surface will accept. Lip rouge isn't pink-red, but cherry or geranium. There's a frenzy now for getting the moist looking effect which is attained by using cold cream as a base before the lipstick comes near.

Time was when women endeavored to cure beauty ills, now they follow out a policy of prevention. Deep wrinkles, for instance, are almost impossible to erase without surgery, but they can be warded off until birthdays bank up into appealing figures.

One preventive measure is the balanced diet. Delete fats, starches and sweets and the soft tissues of the face will lose substance, the skin surface falling into accordion pleats. Speedy reducers must keep that danger in mind. Oiling the complexion every night acts as a preservative. Gentle tapping improves circulation and stimulates all the skin functions.

Chin up, but not too upped. Let it drop and neck muscles become relaxed, lose tone. Tissue atrophies. The results are not the kind that improve the lady in the mirror.

Hold chin high, turn it from side to side with a strong hard pull on the fibers. After a few turns, clutch yourself at the throat and keep on with the side to side movement. Throw the head far back, and on the return movement, do not send the chin far down. After this exercise, slap on a Turkish towel that has been wrung out of ice water.

Before trying to detach cuticle from the nail base, soak the hands in warm soap suds for three or four minutes, dry and anoint with cold cream, which sticks better than any oil.

Never push back the flesh. Lift it gently. Have the orange wood stick cut to a rounded point, so it won't tear the skin. Snip off hang nails with the pointed scissors.

If the permanent wave is on your calendar of beauty duties, ask the operator to test out the grand array of coiffure pictures with which every beauty parlor trims itself these days. Select the style of hairdress that makes the subtle appeal, have the hair cut to conform with it. Then your wave will come up ringlets where they properly belong.

No matter how beautifully the ornament is sobbed when ends are clipped they never behave as well as when they come fresh from the boiling kettle.

The first water wave is important. Ever after, it should follow the same design. This becomes life changing operators and the pattern of the undulation sends a permanent into a state of tantrums. It doesn't know what is expected of it.

The girl who hasn't enough energy to massage her complexion can resort to a face pack. It is the lazy girl's salvation for certain manipulations and it does help one along the path of prettifying.

Can some health, which is Fuller's earth made clean and usable, in a saucer place two level tablespoons, adding enough water to form a paste that can be handled. Spread over a clean skin surface, remove with tepid water when it begins to flake. Cleanses pores and has a mild bleaching effect.

Some women make a great to-do about salt and pepper locks, say they yearn to hasten the transition period, be silver-streaked soon. Fie with it.

Well, it's no odd thinking about it. Any whitening agent strong enough to change the dark shafts is strong enough to have a bad effect upon them. These variegated heads are handsome by themselves. An enchanting lights and shadows. Anyhow, time will do the job.

This is the season when hair needs to be reconditioned. Rub in hot olive or mineral oil the night before the shampoo, friction the scalp.

Every night release your tresses from clasped down finger wave control. Fluff lightly with finger tips, give it an airing.

The Failure-Habit is Started in Childhood

(BY CONSTANCE CAMERON)

We are going to begin at the ending of this story rather than the beginning so that when you've finished it, the beginning of the motivation will be fresh in your mind and you will remember it when even the suggestion of such a start with your child.

The man a husband, and the father of two children was a child once, of course. And his whole life, including his present status and conditions turned that immature childhood.

He was found by police authorities blissfully sleeping on a filthy mat in a bare, pitiful shack. The wife was doing a little work, such as scrubbing, etc., whenever she could. The other family members drop in door to door for food. And through it all, the man served faithfully at his mat not worrying especially when he did wake up long enough to realize the condition of his family.

Couldn't Stay Awake

When informed that he was to be arrested, he yawned and replied, "Aw right. Maybe the state'll take care of the wife and kids then. I can't. I can't do anything. Can't even stay awake long."

But his fate, instead of being decided by the police, came into the hands of a naughtily physician.

"The man is sick," he said. "There's a reason for his conduct. Let me talk with him."

And the talk revealed that from the time that man was a tiny boy, he had been developing the failure habit. He was given tasks that were beyond his capabilities and he was punished for failing on them. He was slow in school and slipped back in his studies. Then he developed the habit of oversleeping. It was almost impossible to get up in the morning, he said. And now, it has truly become all but impossible for him to wake up.

It is his way of shutting out a life comprised of a long list of failures.

Danger of Constant Failure

The friendly doctor has arranged for him to go to a correctional school where he will be taught to do some simple work with his hands—something at which he will not be allowed to fail!

He could so easily have had this correctional treatment at a child!

Mothers must not sit by and watch a child fail at one thing after another, for constant failure breeds a host of unsavory defense mechanisms.

Give your listless, sleepy, discouraged, child some easy task to do, and praise him lavishly for his small success. Encourage him also with younger children for a while, children in whose company he feels equal if not even superior.

If he does not respond, he has to wake up to go there, investigate and see if he isn't struggling in a battle too high for him.

Fall Battle On Tan Is Underway

Beauty Seekers Begin Task of Undoing Work of Old Sol

(BY HELEN FOLLETT)

They're crashing the doors of the beauty shops nowadays. Oak forming in line getting through coiffures, new coiffures, having finger nails tinted. All set they'll be for the winter festivities, the velvets and glad togetherness which demand a fairer skin, chapeaux that cry out for a change of hairdress.

Backs are being handed free of tan and anointed with bleaching creams. Defreckling of arms is going on space. Every night the pretty darlings are getting clammy with the cold cream, doing what they can to push their beauty houses in order. Maybe next year they won't do so much sun bathing. That's the autumn resolution. Next spring they'll flirt again with old sol.

But, in due course of years they'll get so brown they'll never whiten. A dire prediction likely to come true.

No better season than right now for making resolutions to clip off the daily walk. There's no much strolling on soft cushions, too much jogging around in the limousine for the good of the feminine shape.

Get into easy shoes, start at a brisk gait. Hold the head well up, turn back your hips where they perfectly well belong. Don't have a pigeon tummy, inflate your chest, let arms swing naturally, and you'll have a lot of fun. Walk fast enough to get the skin moist. That is what the Lord's prayer in unison. Whole List Has Decided Spotty Appearance Profit Taking Brings Shading of Prices —Dome at $40 a New High Price—Features Lacking on Toronto Board

NEW YORK FINANCIAL

New York, Oct. 6 (AP)—Stocks generally shattered meaningfully today as speculative and investment sentiment was of a mixed and highly cautious character.

In the early hours equities shifted from one foot to another and minor gains and losses gave the list an decidedly spotty appearance.

Some specialties showed a tendency to improve at one time, but profit taking in the metals brought a later shading of prices in most categories. Bonds maintained a fairly firm tone.

Aside from the heaviness of Canadian mining shares, other stocks, such as Canadian Pacific and International Nickel were a bit easier. Aluminum Company Warrant was somewhat firmer, but Lake Shore surged. Dominion Government 4½s and 5s yielded small fractions and the 4s were unchanged. The Canadian dollars held to its previous rate of 96 13/16 cents.

STANDARD EXCHANGE

Toronto, Oct. 6—(CP)—Led by Dome the Standard Mining Market got away at a lively clip today and registered considerable gains in the first half hour but tired before noon and surrendered substantial portions of the gains. Dome bopped up to $40, its record top price in the first 10 minutes of trade, then fell to $39 for a net loss of 25 cents in the second hour.

When the buying quieted down Lake Shore drifted back to $50, off $5. Hollinger, Teck and Wright Hargreaves dropped 5 cents each, McIntyre held a gain of 10 cents and Pioneer was unchanged at $12.

Nickel slipped back to 30.25, Noranda, Base Metals Corporation and Sherritt were unchanged. In the allvers-Nipissing dropped 5 and Kirkland Lake 10 cents each.

TORONTO EXCHANGE

Toronto, Oct. 6 (CP)—Features were lacking in the Toronto stock market today as trading took a pronounced slump, an early flurry in the distillery issues flattened before noon and the gains were only held in part. Metals lost ground, and gold but held its. Volume was low in general with fair turnover only in British American Oil, Waiconnon and Nickel.

At noon Walkers common, Distillers Seagram and Industrial Alcohol were all up 1-4 to 1-2 and the Brewery shares were irregular. Interlisted shares were steady except for a weak trend in International Nickel which sagged to 30.10 off 50 cents. Brazilian held at 13 3-4, C.P.R. at 14 and Ford at 13 1-2.

SCHOOL PLACE OF TRAINING

Rev. Dr. Semple Points Teachers to High Responsibility

Meeting in convention at Queen Alexandra School today the members of the Teachers' Institute of South Hastings heard a program of great interest and value to educationists, a number of the addresses and reports of the past year, discussion on various phases of teaching and the presentation of addresses by prominent Belleville speakers. Miss Irene Orlin, president, was in the chair, and after the opening devotional exercises by Rev. T. S. Naylor, pastor of Tabernacle Church, Miss Orlin introduced Mayor Geo. O. Tice. Mr. Tice in his usual happy style, extended a civic greeting to the teachers and expressed the hope that their convention would be a successful one.

Mr. C. I. Frederick, secretary-treasurer read the minutes of the last annual meeting and presented the financial statement. The nomination of executive committees was called as follows—Nominating—Mr. Adamson, Miss Irene Orlin, Mr. Walkem, Rev. Sr. M. Edward; Resolutions—Mr. Bird, Miss Bird, Wallace, Mr. Ostrander and Press—Mr. Brown and Mr. Cousins. On the recommendation of the above committee, their report being submitted by Mr. Bird, the following officers for the new term were elected as follows:

Honorary President—W. M. Mott. President—E. M. Bird.

Vice Presidents—Miss Bateman.

Alternate—Rev. Sister Rodriguez.

Auditors—Mr. Christie, Mr. Powter.

Secretary Treasurer—C. I. Frederick.

Executive Committee—Belleville—Mr. Falconer, Miss Irene Orlin, Miss Thurlow—Miss Morrison; Trenton —Mr. Sherbert; Separate Schools—Rev. Sister M. Edward.

Address to Convention

Miss Irene Orlin's address on interesting address to the teachers, Miss Orlin, following the delegates to the O.E.A. in Toronto gave a carefully prepared and concise report of the various sessions. The address was given by Mr. John A. Cook of Guelph, president of the O.E.A., Rev. Crossley Hunter who spoke on "The Challenge Extraordinary", Mr. S. Richardson, B.A., Toronto whose subject was "Character Building", Miss M. C. Wilson, Toronto, "The Teacher in Public Affairs", Mr. Frank Sharpe on "Censorship of Motion Pictures" and others. The suggestions and ideas advanced at the convention discussions were presented by Miss Hughes in an interesting way.

Inspector's Address

Mr. H. J. Gladstone, B.A. Public School Inspector for South Hastings had an intimate message for the teachers, dealing with the main points in their work and his advice was heard with close attention by the teachers.

Miss Mildred Lloyd delighted the delegates with an enjoyable reading.

The social session at the noon hour session was Rev. S. Semple, S.T.B., T.D.D., who, in his searching address, showed a high appreciation and a deep knowledge of the problems and possibilities of the teaching profession.

Developing the theme "The world moves forward on the feet of little Children", Dr. Semple brought four ideas before his audience. The right of every child to be well born, the right of every child to have a home in which to play, the right of every child to a liberal education and that education must be Christian.

Key to Future

"Our children hold the key to the future. It will be as they make it," said the speaker. Speaking of the right of every child to be well born, Dr. Semple spoke of the blessing of a godly father and a godly mother, the right of a child to strong body and a healthy mind and the right to chance to take a rightful place in society.

Quoting the best definition of recreation as "play is what we do when we are free to do what we want to." Dr. Semple showed that in supervised games and healthful sport the child's character as well as his body is formed. Excessive indulgence, lack of high standards, the tendency to materialize the world of recreation, he warned, are to be guarded against. The results of wholesome sport are the cultivation of courage, fearlessness, self confidence, honesty, fair play and courtesy developed in the child character. World friendships are cemented by the bond of international sport and individual character defects are often corrected by sports. The ability to meet people pleasantly and easily sawing one the tragedy of going through life without being able to get acquainted, is often acquired through play.

School System

In this age boys and girls are afforded the golden opportunity for a liberal education and the cause of education is the most prosperous of any cause of the day in which we live, as evidenced by the amazing number of wills in which educational endowment funds are remembered.

The greatest single agency in developing human character being the home, the home is the public school system, the speaker said, adding that while Sunday School teachers feel that they are doing much to teach religion during the Sunday classes, the work of the day teacher, the days in the home must not be overlooked. "Education must be Christian" continued Dr. Semple. "The church must be the pioneer in the realm of education. This can be shown from the history of education in the United States and in Canada. Every school has to express the debt of gratitude owed to Egerton Ryerson for what he accomplished on behalf of public school education in Ontario."

All religious education is not Christian. Germany in 1914 was the most cultured and the most Protestant nation in the world and yet its people became the greatest butchers on the continent of Europe. The Kaiser perverted the system in public schools and the public school teacher had to teach it.

Dr. Semple concluded the speaking of the special task that faced you and me in the days before these boys and girls the value of right living.

Inspector Clarke moved a vote of thanks to the speaker, seconded by Mr. Wilkin.

Letters to the Editor

103 Dundas Street East, Belleville, Ontario, October 6, 1933.

Editor Ontario Intelligencer, Belleville, Ontario.

Dear Sir:—

The Canadian railways carry United States and Minnesota Black Rock to Belleville at $1.50 per ton. Our answer in regard to the freight rate on United States anthracite has been increased 40 percent, over the Rutland line, to Belleville out of Rochester.

British coal is carried from Montreal to Toronto, 115 to 140 miles further than Belleville and district, at 20 to 25 cents per ton less, the rate to Belleville being $1.70 and subject to an increase of 40c per ton December 1st next. Ignorance in the U.S. and Canada and bituminous are in force all year.

Intra-Empire trade will not make the necessary progress until such outstanding grievances are adjusted.

Yours truly,
W. C. Springer.

POLICE COURT

James Oliver, transient, appeared before Magistrate Mikel in Police court this morning charged with common vagrancy. Oliver was not asked to plead to the charge and desired a week's enlargement in which the accused man will be held in custody.

A motorist appeared charged with infractions of the Highway Traffic Act and was fined.

Geo. W. Young, No. 7, Rossmore, reported to the police the knocking down of a small child near the Belle Theatre last evening. Mr. Young was driving north on Front Street when the small child suddenly darted out from the curb and ran directly in front of the Young driven automobile. The little tot fell to the pavement but was apparently uninjured as he immediately got to his feet and scampered off. Mr. Young reported the incident to the police, informing them that he failed to ascertain the little fellow's name, apparently the child was uninjured.

Mr. H. A. Ross, 282 Foster Ave., reported the loss of a fine silver table that had apparently been stolen from the verandah of his Ross home. When the Ross family retired last evening the table was in its place on the verandah but had disappeared the following morning. The police are investigating.

The BEST way to stop CONSTIPATION

Nothing like Fruit-a-tives

"I was in a very bad way with constipation—my head ached, I felt dizzy and had no appetite. Doctor treated me for a long time but I had severe pains in my joints and muscles.

I was getting very sick and depressed. Indeed, I felt so wretched that I thought of giving up work. Today my health is excellent and I certainly feel that Fruit-a-tives saved my life." MRS. ALBERT LEBLANC, Tracy Island, 25 Mile Creek, N.B.

4,000 STAY AT TOURIST CAMP

Number Not as Great as Boom Year, But Better Than Last

Nearly four thousand tourists, representing almost every part of Canada and the United States were guests of Belleville this year at the city tourist camp during the season. Almost nine hundred cars-register-regulations have been kept in the camp record book, were necessary to transport this total of visitors whose numbers are almost equivalent to one third of the population of this city.

While no official check up has been made of the exact number of camp guests, it is expected, that the total this year will compare favorably with that of other years, although less than the record tourist year of 1927-28. Several factors have contributed to the number attendance at the local camp, it was explained. This year and last year, owing to slack times south of the border, the number of middle class tourists has been kept down. There has been about the usual number of large cars, but fewer small cars, but overnight stops, which may be taken by the lorry are generally made at the end of one's travels, side tourist home. Municipally owned camps, of course appeal primarily to the "tin can" tourists, who enjoy the freedom in light and inexpensive cars, and live cheaply on their travel. This camp has seen a slight revival of that class of tourist, but their numbers have not been as great as in former years.

Although during the past week or so the number of visitors stopping at the local park has shown an increase over that of a few weeks ago, it is expected that the camp will close at the end of this week-end, possibly Monday, including Thanksgiving day as a day of grace for the travellers.

SUBSTANTIAL GAIN IN COMMERCIAL LOANS SEEN

First Time Since Recovery Program Put in Effect

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—(CP)—The first substantial gain in commercial loans since the United States Credit Expansion Programme began on August 9, was reported today by New York reporting Federal Reserve Banks in their statements for the week ended Wednesday.

The advance, an increase of $63,000,000 was reported in What Street as tangible evidence that the Federal Reserve's intention of pumping credit into business channels is being realized.

The increase raised the total of such loans in the Metropolitan district to $1,666,000,000, as compared with $1,589,000,000 in the first week of the Credit Expansion Campaign.

DEFALCATIONS IN HURON

Goderich, Ont., 6.—The report of T. H. Gibbs, C. The report covers the period from Jan. 1, 1928, to August 18, 1933, the date of the treasurer's arrest, both years inclusive. Mr. Young took office in the Fall of 1927.

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

THANKSGIVING AT THE CAPITOL

A program of exceptional merit arrives at the Capitol Theatre tomorrow (Saturday) for a three-day engagement, and this program comprising two features and the Canadian Sound News will find immediate favour with Belleville.

You have thrilled to the flesh-devouring fiend of "Doctor X", you have been chilled by the eerie figures of "The Mystery of the Wax Museum," you have gasped at the unerring antics of an overpowering Mr. Hyde.

Now you are to have Lionel Atwill in his most harrowing of all screen thrillers, "Secret of the Blue Room," the first feature on the Capitol's attractive holiday fare tomorrow.

Imagine an old, musty castle. Imagine a sinister master of the house, a beautiful girl, a newspaper reporter, a youth presently in love and a handsome marine officer all hopelessly entangled in a web of unseen death, all striking blindly at a leering something that seeks to destroy them, one by one.

But for an even greater thrill imagine such stars as Lionel Atwill, Gloria Stuart, Paul Lukas, Edward Arnold and Onslow Stevens in the principal roles in this picture—which also includes William Janney, Elizabeth Patterson, Muriel Kirkland and James Durkin among its players.

A Yew Western

The second feature on this outstanding bill is John Wayne with Duke, his miracle horse, in the treatest western drama yet, "Some where in Sonora."

Here, like "Secret of the Blue Room," all you have to do is to sit tight and watch a thrilling story with all the action in the world being unfolded—every reel gaining in thrills and suspense, until the end brings respite and satisfaction reigns supreme.

The complete shows on Saturday, Monday and Tuesday will commence daily at 2.45, 7.15 and 9.15.

Monday and Tuesday are Dinnerware Gift Days for Ladies.

Tonight

Barbara Stanwyck appears with Preston Foster in "Ladies They Talk About," for the last times tonight at 7.15 and 9.00.

AT THE BELLE

"Doctor Bull," the Pox Film production of the famous novel, "The Last Adam," by James Gould Cozzens, will be presented at the Belle tomorrow (Saturday) and Monday, matinee, daily. It presents Will Rogers, with what is reported as the outstanding role, of his career.

The acquisition of the Cozzens novel culminated an extensive search by the Fox company for a story that would afford Rogers a worthy successor to his memorable role in "State Fair." It will be remembered as the volume received instant fame with the selection by the Book-of-the-Month Club, and has already sold over a quarter of a million copies.

In "Doctor Bull," the new title having been chosen by the star himself, Rogers is seen as a country doctor. He plays the role of a scientifically shrewd philosopher who blend together a changing village, and who views with distaste the conditions that turn his home from a "town to live in" to a "place on the highway." The role is said to be the perfect outlet for Rogers' original humor and keen, philosophies, and the youthful romance interest is well maintained as it was in the book.

The principal feminine role opposite Rogers is portrayed by Vera Allentown, recruited from the New York stage especially for this picture. The supporting cast includes such prominent figures or the screen as Marian Nixon, Howard Lally, Berton Churchill, Louise Dresser, Andy Devine, Rochelle Hudson, Tempe Pigott, Elizabeth Patterson, Nora Cecil, Ralph Morgan, Patsy O'Byrne, Veda Buckland, Effie Ellsler and Helen Freeman.

It is a great story, and John Ford has brought it to the screen with a fine feeling for the human drama latent in every day life.

Dix All-Time Star

The Richard Dix of old —the two-fisted, handsome, impetuous, virile, gay, dashing, stalwart hero-is back again in a gripping melodrama "No Marriage Ties," featuring Dix and Elizabeth Allan.

Dix is a Hollywood paradox. After ten years' stardom, he caps his climax in a versatile characterization of a lover and advertising genius, merrily snowballing on his way into the ladies' hearts to the delight of the spectator. As Bruce Fowler, inebriate and ex-journalist, he meets Peggy Wilson, and a star advertising agency job through which later he becomes affianced to Adrienne Deane, society woman.

When Bruce attempts to straighten out his heart affairs, he loses both, women. With the loss of one's woman's love and his agency position, he learns the meaning of true love and business ethics.

Richard Dix is equally magnificent as the romantic and business powerhouse. He animates his role with color, fire and realism. Elizabeth Allan was doubtlessly the most intelligent choice for the role of Peggy. Young and fresh, she lends a wholesome note to her light o' love role. In contrast to Miss Allen's role it that of the society woman sincerely a scoundrel, is convincingly portrayed by lovely Doris Kenyon.

Laurel-Hardy Comedy

A brand new laughfest by the screen's funniest team, Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy will be presented on the same program in their new comedy hilarity, "Them Thar Hills."

Faith Baldwin Novel

Faith Baldwin's popular novel "Beauty for Sale," featuring Madge Evans, Una Merkel and Alice Brady is at the Belle tonight, with a program of excellent short offerings.

FOUNDATION CAVITY FEARED AS MENACE

The Unfinished Terminal Project Danger, Says Agent

Montreal, Oct. 6.—A huge hole in the centre of Montreal, due to take foundations of a proposed, but abandoned, Canadian National Railways terminal, is a menace to life and property in the vicinity, Douglas Bremner real estate agent, declared in Superior Court here.

Property in the vicinity is in grave danger of collapse because it has been drained and the clay is settling, Bremner stated. "This large hole has lowered the water-table level, and, as the soil is clay, which when wet, retains its shape and bearing value but when drained of the water level has resulted in this soil becoming dry and compact, which has caused cavities to form under foundations of many buildings," he said.

"Some of the buildings are so out of plumb line that they will come a time shortly when, for the safety of life and limb, the city will require that some action be taken to protect the public".

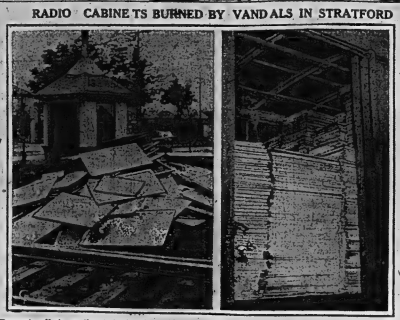
SELF DEFENSE PLEA ENTERED

Piromelli Admits Shooting But Says Victim Pointed Gun

Sault Ste Marie, Ont., Oct. 5—(CP)—Frank Piromelli took the witness box at his own trial for murder today and admitted shooting and killing Frank Vena last April 10. He pleaded self defence, saying Vena pointed what appeared to be a gun at him.



Piromelli said he had carried a gun since April 8 when he received a phone call from Vena. He was told he had 24 hours to get out of town. Piromelli testified, se he would be shot.

Two nights later he was out for a walk, Piromelli said, when he saw two men standing under a street light. One appeared to be Vena. To avoid Vena, he turned up a lane. But later he came on Vena standing in a doorway with J. Palbo. He said he heard Palbo say something about a man having been killed.

Vena, he said, approached him and said: "now you are going to get what your brother Tony got," at the same time pointing a black object in his hand. Piromelli: "The alleged murderer said he drew his revolver and shot.

"I shot and fled as there were shells in the gun, and Vena faced me all the time," he said.

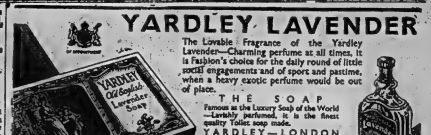
PRICE ALONE MAY RECALL

Stay of Troops at Stratford Rest With Attorney General

Ottawa, Oct. 5 (CP)—The recall of the troops from Stratford lies solely within the discretion of the Attorney General of Ontario, officials of the National Defence Department said here today. A detachment of the Royal Canadian Regiment is still quartered in the armouries of the Perth Regiment at Stratford, sent there from London, Ont., in connection with the strike there.



Officials made it clear today that the Militia Act vested the military authorities with no discretion either in the matter of calling out the troops to aid the civil power or of returning them once the soldiers had been "mobilized." The civil authority which, under the act, must also give the word releasing the troops from their duties.

Brantford, Oct. 5 (CP) — Stratford Trades and Labor Council today addressed a letter to the Minister of National Defence, protesting the presence of troops in Stratford during the strike there of furniture workers. Tom Moore, President of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, was asked to forward the council a copy of his letter to the Stratford Council, made public this week end which charged the Workers' Unity League affiliated with the Red Internationale in Moscow.

MAIN STREET

Ramblings . . . . . .

A well known local mechanic with a nair for model-making on a very small scale, after months of infinite patience and arduous labor, will soon exhibit to an admiring world a complete internal combustion engine—so small that it could be comfortably housed inside the skin of a fair sized orange, and with a rating of several fly power. It is patterned after a standard make engine, complete with generator, carburator, tiny spark plugs and all the equipment of a modern gas engine. When a little purified ether is put through the tiny carburetor and the starter turned, the staccato exhaust sounds like rapid fire from a miniature machine gun. Several of the smaller parts were made with jeweller's tools after weeks of work. That's pretty small.

Work in miniature, however, is not confined alone to this century. Over one hundred years ago craftsmen of that age vied with each other in the making of miniature objects. Some of them so small when compared with present day products that wonder exists how they were created with such far from modern tools of a century ago. A reprint from The New York Sun, dated Tuesday, September 9, 1833, calls attention to some Wonders of Littleness which were advertised then.

Pliny and Elian relate that Myrmecides wrought out of ivory a chariot, with four wheels and four horses, and a ship with all her tackling, both in so small a compass that a bee could hide either with its wings. It is also recorded in English history that in the twentieth year of Queen Elizabeth's reign a blacksmith of London, by the name of Scaliot, made a lock of iron, steel and brass, of 11 pieces, and a tipe key, all of which weighed only one grain. Scaliot also exhibit to an admiring world a complete internal combustion engine, and a tipe key, all of which weighed only one grain. Scaliot also exhibit to an admiring world of forty-three links, which he fastened to the lock and key and put it around the neck of a flea which drew the whole with perfect ease!

Hadrianus Junius saw at Mechlin in Brabant, a cherry stone cut in the form of a bastril; in it were fourteen pair of dice, distinct, the spots and number of which were easily discernable, with a good eye.

But still more extraordinary than this basket of dice or anything yet mentioned, must have been the set of nursery shown at Rome in the time of Pope Paul the Fifth, by one Shad, of Mitelbrach, who had purchased it from the artist Orvaletus Northimerus. It consisted of sixteen hundred dishes, which were all perfect and complete in every part, yet so small and slender that the whole could be easily enclosed in a peppercorn of the ordinary size. The Pope is said to have himself counted them, with the help of a pair of spectacles, for they were so very small as to be almost invisible to the ordinary eye.

Turrianus, or whose skill so many wonderful things are related, is said to have fabricated iron mills, which moved of themselves, yet so minute in size that a monk could carry one in his sleeve, and yet was powerful enough to grind in a single day, corn for the consumption of eight men!

Curbstone Opinions

Sidney Nelson, Caretaker, City Tourist Camp:

"Out of the thousands of tourists from all over the continent who have stopped at the city camp during the past season, I could almost count on the one hand the number who haven't been more than friendly and courteous. A better spirit seems to have gripped them this season. Here's another curious fact. You'd be surprised to know the number of car owners who can't remember the number of their car license when they come to check in. Even tourists who have come all the way from California and other points can't remember either car or license numbers. They have to dash out and look at them before they can mark them down."

J. P. Clark, Gas Station Proprietor

"Gas station men are among the first to see the depression lifting. It wasn't so long ago since we were doling out the gas in one and two gallon measures for a lot of motorists, even the local ones. Now they're saying 'fill her up' again. When a car owner used to get just enough gas to see him there and back again, now he's filling up the tank again, and more frequently. We've noticed that the tourist trade is still hanging on this year."

Wm. Ross, Roslin:

"The outlook for the farmer isn't one-half as blue this year as it was one year ago. Even if the field crops were burned and parched by the sun, and feed is to be scarce, there's a better feeling in the country. Farmers are getting a little courage over conditions when look a whole lot better, not only here but everywhere. I actually know one farmer who is buying new machinery, and another one who is having his house and barn reshingled. They wouldn't have thought of doing either one year ago."

Flawless Hurling and Hitting in Pinches Put Senators Back in Series

Defeat Giants 4-0 in One of Best Played Games so Far

SENATORS SMART

President Roosevelt With Friends Stay Till Last Out

(By Edward J. Neil, Associated Press Sports Writer)

Washington, Oct. 6 (AP)—All the Washington Senators had to do today to get back on even terms with the New York Giants in the World Series was to beat Carl Hubbell, the southpaw master of the screw ball.

From a neutral point of view that looked not one whit more difficult than any of the fabled 12 labors of Hercules. The last time the Senators saw Hubbell, which was also the first time, they scarcely saw him at all. He mowed them down with five hits in the opening frame at New York, 6 to 2.

But today a powerful change had swept over the Senators' picture, a change so threatening that Bill Terry, leader of the National League champions, turned as he had done all through the past season in similar crises, to Hubbell, the tall, angular Oklahoma southpaw, the pitcher of the year in the league.

From a stunned, shaken, struggling team, wandering dimly about, bats were found in the face of superb pitching, the Senators recovered their ranks yesterday under the familiar scenes of the home ball field, under the eyes of President Roosevelt, and swept the Giants back in the thing game with a wave of the hard hitting, brilliantly aggressiveness that overpowered the American League champs.

Flawless Hurling.

Behind the flawless pitching of Earl Whitehill, veteran ace, the Senators stepped out and clubbed down the Giants, 4 to 0. Then the Giants had slugged Wally Stewart and "General" Alvin Crowder.

Great as was yesterday's 4-0 triumph, it could bring little ultimate satisfaction to the Senators unless the recovery, in the shadow of the Legislative halls, where one of the greatest recovery programs of all time was enacted, carried on to-day. Therefore Cronin entrusted his pitching to young Monte Weaver, the Virginia mathematician, who, through the closing days of the American League season, tossed the best ball of any man on the Washington staff.

Weaver, a cool, calculating young man with a grand curve and fast ball, has been Cronin's ace in the hole, and the Senators believe he can beat the Giants, even with Hubbell pitching. Should that baseball miracle happen, the teams will enter the third and last game here tomorrow tied at two victories each, the series then continuing in New York with a sixth game Sunday, and a seventh Monday, if required.

Batting Team

A continuation of the power that flogged Pittsburgh, the knuckle ball veteran, for two runs in the first inning, one in the second and a final marker in the seventh, would do for Hubbell, of course, as it would for any pitcher. But they was any pitcher. But they was any pitcher. But they was

ISLAND GIRL

By FRANK R. ADAMS

CHAPTER 19

There was a single figure in the boat. Another, Vern observed, remained on the beach.

As the canoeman drew nearer it became clear that he was a color-ed man and by the short stiff strokes which he took with the oars he slammed himself a man of many rheumatic years. Age plus a dugo climate had made him a wooden jointed being animated as if by strings from overhead.

Vern rather sadly identified him as Krebs from Irene's earlier description of the members of the island's household.

"There is somebody coming out from shore" he called to the passengers in the main cabin. "Probably some sort of communication from the enemy."

Several boat lengths away from "Wings" the clanking of the oars ceased. "Ahoy" a quivering voice hailed.

Vern's port hole was the only one that was open and he called back, "What do you want, Krebs?"

"One of you gentlemen is to come ashor."

"All right, Krebs. Any particular one?"

"Yes, suh a most special one, suh. The old darkey was attempting to be genial and natural but it was evident that he was suffering from some paralyzing emotion. "Which one?"

"Mr. Squales said that, did he?" "Yes, suh. And that's him standing thesh on the rail with a gun in his hands."

Vernon felt sure that the old colored man had pointed out the presence of "Dummy as a sort of explanation of his own manner and also as a necessity for caution so far as conversation was concerned.

"What's the idea? Vern demanded more to gain time than anything else because he knew what the idea was right away. "What does he want the minister for?"

"Ah don't know suh. He told me to fotch 'at preacher man and nobody else. He said if anybody but 'at preacher man come on deck he kwine to drop him plum kwiff ovee boahd."

"And I take it Krebs, that you think he means it?"

"Yes suh, I shure does. 'That Mistuh Squales can shoot. He is the shootinest man yet a ribs this old man ever seen."

Krebs tried to laugh with a pretense of reminiscent jollity but the apparatus creaked and croaked a great deal like a raven suffering from bronchial trouble.

"All right, Krebs. The minister will be ready to go ashore in half a minute."

"Yes, suh. When he comes on deck he kwine to row cloter and fotch him."

Vern closed the port hole, an automatic action perhaps to shut out eavesdropping.

He stepped into the next room.

"Dr. Snyder I will have to trouble you for your outer clothing including your collar."

"No!"

"Don't stop to explain now. You will be able to guess what's up when you think it over. If anybody asks you, your name is Vernon Meade and I am the Reverend Doctor Henry Snyder. Burn that into your brains, all of you, so there will be no mistake. I think one or two lives may depend upon it."

It was rather fortunate that Doctor Snyder belonged to the more formal branch of church men and that his clothing was a distinguished mark. It was also fortunate that Vern was not much more robust than the older man with whom he was making the exchange. The garments fitted passably enough. Vernon was thankful that his black eye had practically returned to a normal hue.

Dressed in the borrowed apparel Vernon ascended the companionway for the second time that morning. On this occasion his appearance on deck was not greeted by a shot.

CHAPTER 20

"Good mo'nin' suh." The darky ferryman greeted Vernon again as if he were a new and different person, sociality. "If you will put yo' step forward I'se gwine to come alongside."

Vern understood that manoeuver clearly enough. Krebs had been instructed to take on his passenger from the forechain so that considerable distance would intervene between the place where the boat touched the side of the yacht and the after companionway from which would have to emerge any party bent upon seizing the emissary from shore. Before anyone could cross the deck space from the companionway to the bow the marksman on the beach would have about three chances to stop him with a rifle bullet.

Vern smiled. The precaution was useless. He knew that none of the old men below decks was apt to start anything. But doubtless, the strategy had not been designed for the old m'n but for himself.

Krebs came closer in the old boat and Vern standing near the bow lowered himself over the side into it. While he was getting himself in the stern seat the old darkey made frantic but unsuccessful movements with his lips which Vern finally translated into a message that he should not ask any questions of the man on shore could hear.

Therefore, the return to the beach was accomplished in silence. It was a distance of three hundred yards from the apparently deserted yacht to the beach which was by no one to welcome him but a white man with a rifle in the crook of his arm.

Vern felt that it was a drama for unseen eyes. In the yacht's cabin that the three old men were watching, big in their personal property with avid interest and probably too in the underbrush there were other eyes, perhaps guns. Without the boat as it slowly crept toward the beach, Krebs' every move by his stiff, jerky strokes of the aged oars.

At last the keel grated on the beach. Krebs stepped out and with shaking hands pulled the boat a little higher so that his distinguished passenger could disembark without getting his feet wet. Vern got out and, assuming an insteadiness which was not quite natural to him in a boat, stepped gingerly over the seats and into the bow.

There, awaiting him, was 'Dummy' Squales, a figure that is was by without inquiry. There was a sort of smooth immovability about the creature who confronted him that tallied with the impression of him which Irene had been at pains to convey, not so much with words as by her terror of him.

This man was curiously of a very low order of intelligence. He had been very poorly equipped by nature in the first place—his shaggy, long arms, the shape of his face and head all proved that.

Back of all other emotions which this man aroused in him Vern felt an intense pity. Surely by no chance did a creature like that have in his hands the weapon at hand to be against him. Civilization could not allow his wishes to prevail.

Vern had been prepared for the fact that he could not speak but the silent scrutiny of this scarcely human creature was rather startling none the less. Perhaps anywhere else or under any other circumstances Vern would have been less inscrutable but with that island background which some way gave one the impression of a steamy jungle inhabited by uncivilized, prehistoric beasts the figure of this man stood out like that of a materialized specimen of the place. Heavy, and clumsy, he nevertheless moved as silently and with a certain celerity.

Vern felt that he was being severely questioned by the many small eyes of the master of the island.

Apparently Vern's impression stood up under the momentary test for at last the burly, stooped giant motioned that Vern should climb with him up from the beach. He pointed first up Krebs, meaning that he should lead the way and lastly to himself, laughing silently as the old so and patting the rifle. The meaning was perfectly clear. Vern was to follow where Krebs led and if he or three sides. A platform had been built out on the level of the second floor and divided what might have otherwise been a majestic sweep of architecture. This platform now sagged in several places and constituted an air of forlorn disrepair which was quite the opposite of inspiriting. The house, which was very large, needed painting badly. It needed so many paint would only have emphasized its decrepitude and air of belonging to other times.

There were immense, blue-green shutters on the tall windows. Many of them were closed.

In the yard, in the space where the jungle had been cut off, stood the tall pine, denuded of its lower branches which Vern had seen from the yacht that morning. The secret of its stability was revealed. Running from the bases of some five or six pines which also stood in the clearing, up to a point on the trun not far from the top were four guy-wires of wire. The pine with its little Christmas tree tuft was held erect in the manner employed in stabilizing flagpoles or supports for wireless antennae. Vern thought that perhaps this tall tree had been a support for an aerial. He remembered that Irene had spoken of having had a wireless apparatus in the past by.

Whether or not it had been employed for that purpose there was another reason for the existence of the tree in the clearing. Up at the top, practically concealed by the branches which had been left, there was a small, roofed platform reached by ladder-like cleats bolted through the trunk of the tree. This crow's nest had apparently once been used as a lookout. Vern suspected that from it one could see not only the harbor, but also the main body of the Atlantic Ocean across the otherwise low-wooded reef RIP. This supposition was borne out by the fact that the Tolloc, laughed as he thought how neatly he had folled his brothers daughter in her attempt to warn the ape-man. Even as he chuckled, a hand reached out of the darkness and clutched his throat. He felt himself being dragged into the beyt that had been set up for Tarzan. He struggled to scream, but was powerless in the grip of steel. A voice whispered in his ear: "Cry out, Tolloc," it said, "and I shall kill you."

Tarzan of the Apes should die.

Tolloc's blood from, for he recognized that voice as that of Tarzan. He lay still as the hands began talking about his wrists and ankles and a gag fastened securely in his mouth. He felt the folds of his own burnous drawn across his face, then—silence. He heard Silmbol creep into the beyt . . . and thus died Tolloc, brother of the sheik—glad he had planned that

Knowing what Tolloc's fate would be, the ape-man swung southeast through the forest, searching for Jimmy Blake. Now that he had discovered the young American was not with the Beduins, Tarzan became eager to get back to the locality where Blake's boys had told him their lwana had disappeared. Though his uncanny senses aided him in wresting secrets from the jungle, it was three days before he found where Jimmy Blake had made his gun beach.

Here he discovered Blake's paint spoor, leading north. That looked bad to the ape-man, for he knew that only uninhabited forest lay in that direction. Scarcely believing that Blake could have survived, Tarzan followed the spoor two days and came at last upon the great stone mound built in the centre of the ancient trail. Moving cautiously as the beasts move, Tarzan halted in the embankment of some bushes, examining this mysterious relic.

ICE PLANT DISMANTLED

a black eye to the city to have this ice plant removed and there is not one member in the council who wishes to see it go but the question still remains, "what will we do?" Legally we are in a bad position and if any way out can be devised and the council are willing to accept the cost, I will stand with the council."

Chance to Sell Plant

Mr. S. R. Burrows, the next speaker told the council that the Linde Company had a chance to sell the plant and the directors unable to carry the load further told the company to take it. "I think that the city should have the first say as it can be used for market purposes and properly managed can be a revenue producer," said Mr. Burrows. "Last year the rink would have made money but a mistake was made in removing it in March. I have received a message from the Linde Company to advise them as soon as the council meeting is over as to what actions they intend to take as at the present time there are mechanics in the city ready for removing and dismantling of the plant.

Charles A. Payne, K.C., expressed the opinion that it was not fair of him to express a legal opinion as a city solicitor would advise the solicitor as to the law. He did state, however, that it was in the power of the council to acquire lands under a certain section of the Municipal Act and the only one who could take exception, was the Attorney General. The speaker admitted the seriousness of the situation from the council's point of view but he had no doubt the council could purchase the Arena under the section mentioned.

A Citizen's View

Mr. E. V. Illsley told the gathering he was present in a personal capacity having an interest in the situation. "The question has now resolved itself into a municipal enterprise and it is emergent that the council should act," said Mr. Illsley. "I do not believe the Linde Company has been hasty in the matter and we are all indebted to William J. Hume, who has been a public benefactor to this city, giving a substantial sum to the Belleville Club and placing over $50,000 at the disposal of the Directors of the Arena. Right now," continued Mr. Illsley, "speaking as a father of a family, for groups of young men and as a taxpayer, I think some means should be found to help the Arena out of its difficulties. We have always felt the arena was never run with the utmost economy and I am in favor of having a hockey team of home boys and not in favor of paid players in and particular. Each year about $1,500 is expended for open air rinks by the council and I believe this money could be set aside to help pay the purchase price and build up a sinking fund that will take care of the rink and with competent management can be made to pay its way. The spending of a huge sum on the Toronto waterfront was never questioned by the citizens of Toronto, and I think the council can in some way save the Arena for the younger generations of the city and the promotion of clean sport in the city."

Feeling Out City

His Worship told the meeting that two months ago Herman Jacobi, manager of the Arena last year, was in the city and in conversation stated that he had been sent by Mr. Hume to find out the council on the remission of water and taxes, "and I told him as far as I was concerned I would help the Arena with the majority of the council. This situation has been brought on a moment's notice and even the mechanics were here when the council was notified. The agreement between the directors and the council, when the taxes and water rates were remitted last year was to the effect that the city would have a chance to put the question of purchase to the people at this coming election and the agreement has not been carried out."

S. R. Burrows—"I placed a letter in the paper two weeks ago stating that the Linde Company was going to remove the plant and the council did not take any action."

Mayor Tice—"Yes, at the next council meeting, the council passed the recommendation that before you and that is as far as the council could legally."

J. C. Donnan, K.C., and one of the prime movers in having an artificial ice skating rink in this city, stated the question was not what had been done in the past but whether anything can be done right now to alleviate the present situation the directors find themselves in. "The council has no strict legal right to buy the plant," said Mr. Donnan, "as each member of the council would be jointly and severally responsible to the citizens but the position of alderman or mayor is only one office and surely there are enough men in the council to forego their seat on the council to help out the situation and where is the man in the city that would prosecute any member for the sake of preserving this much needed arena? There are twenty men in the city who would go on a bond to contribute for any money any alderman is liable for if he takes the step to purchase the Arena tonight. This is an emergency that seldom arises and it lies with the governing body."

Crisis Before Council

Mr. W. B. Deacon stated it was the biggest question the council has had to deal with in many years. He recognized the responsibility attached to the decision but told the council that on many occasions they had handed out money for other purposes and it is a crying shame if the rink should be allowed to close. "We have an overflow meeting," said Mr. Deacon, "and there are scores of ways that the arena could be used in the off season. I have always contended that the Arena never worked to its fullest capacity and had there been normal times the men who took over the project would have had clear sailing but the four years of depression have hindered those who subscribed for stock. In paying for the same but the great majority of the taxpayers feel we should not take this addition to the life of the city. The Arena would be an adjunct to the municipal system and the council should take a broad, lenient view of the situation and dispose of the matter tonight."

Alderman Woodley — "What are the terms under which the plant was bought?"

A. P. Allen—"It cost $24,400, of which one-half was paid and the remainder was to be paid in one and two years with interest at six and seven per cent. The council can give to sport at any time and there is no reason why a substantial donation could not be made at this time."

P. H. Wills suggested that an offer be made to the Linde Company for the time being, he being satisfied it would be accepted but Mr. Burrows was of a different opinion. It was also explained that if purchase of the plant was the city's right arrangements could be made between the directors and the council for the remainder of the year. The council retired and resumed to give the information previously to the delegation.

PRESIDENT TO MEET LEADERS

Effort Made to Bring Peace Between Workers And Employers

New York Oct. 7.—(CP)—With coal and steel strife areas in a state of comparative calm the eyes of industry today turn to Washington where new moves are under way to bring peace between United States workers and employers.

As President Roosevelt met with leaders of the steel industry in an effort to settle their dispute that spread Western Pennsylvania Mine strike, pickets quietly maintain vigil under the watchful gaze of law officers.

The picketing continues at steel mills in Ambridge and Clairton, Pa., and at Steubenville, O., scene of violent clashes between deputies and workers demanding union recognition.

Hope for solution of difficulties through application of the coal code was expressed by Donald Richberg, N.R.A. counsel, as he conferred with miners and owners after an outburst of mine-union warfare in Southern Illinois.

At Harrisburg, Ill., National Guardsmen patrolled the scene of rioting and shooting with one mine closed by order of Governor Horner.

ODDITIES IN THE NEWS

Victoria, Oct. 7.—(CP)—Barkerville mining town of the Cariboo Country, will arise and it will take a complete readjustment of titles in the old claims to straighten things out. A special government survey has established, showed no building was located on the lot it was supposed to occupy.

Waterville, Maine, Oct. 7 (CP) —Charles Morrison's buggy left automobiles behind in a cloud of dust in his dash to win a race with a steer.

"Boys," pleaded Morrison, leaping from his seat, "my wife wants a doctor to give birth to a child. Please let me through."

Traffic parted and waved impatient motorists to the side of the highway. Morrison's buggy rattled by on its frantic errand.

Kansas City, Kas., Oct. 7 (CP) —Charles F. Scott, Iola, Kas., publisher and long-time prominent Republican, tells this one on William Allen White, fellow-publisher and neighbor. During a recent our of Europe, Scott said White cabled his son William (Terry) Scott, White at Emporia:

"Cable me enough money immediately; mother has bought everything but transportation home."

San Rafael, Calif., Oct. 7 (CP) —Aerial manoeuvres at Hamilton Field, the United States army bombing base, were hailed by hungry hogs. The porkers gathered from surrounding ranches, swept down upon the field and gobbled up the paste and paper targets prepared for bombing planes.

HOLLYWOOD AGOG OVER STATEMENTS

Los Angeles, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Johnny Weissmuller, one of the Tarzans of the films, and Lupe Velez, vivacious little Mexican actress, had Hollywood guessing today.

Weissmuller, who only yesterday had his final divorce decree from Bobbe Arnst affirmed or entered in court records, countered with the statement;

"That is out of trouble and believe me, I'm going to stay out."

Miss Velez and Weissmuller have been close friends for several months in the summer replacing Clary Gable per, the actor, in the affections of the actress.

SAYS MAYOR GIVEN SPLIT

Ross L. Beckett Alleged to Receive $600 as His Share

Brantford, Ont., Oct. 7 (CP) — Possibility that Ross Beckett, former mayor of Brantford, would be called to the witness stand in the investigation into city affairs was seen today, following the testimony yesterday of W. W. Smythe, salesman for Canadian Musolineum, Limited, who declared he had "split" $620 commissions with former Mayor Beckett after the city paid $14,000 for 68 burial crypts.

Before the deal was completed whereby the city bought the crypts, Smythe said he got $1 from Mr. Beckett $620. He told the inquiry he usually paid at least half his commission "to anyone who gave material assistance," and said this was "an established practice on my part."

He had visited the mayor's office, he said, and the matter of remuneration was discussed.

"Was there any consideration for anyone other than yourself?" he was asked.

"Yes, it was agreed an amount would be paid to Mr. Beckett."

"Was any amount mentioned?"

"Yes—approximately $600," he said.

Donald McLean, an official of the company, had cashed a cheque for $620, which, he said, Mr. Smythe went to Mr. Beckett's office, saw him privately, and paid him the full amount.

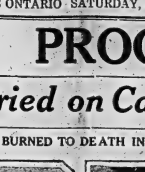
Primo, Fat White Rat Kills Seven Rattlesnakes by Fluke, Says Prof

Grove City, Pa., Oct. 7.—(AP)— Now awesomely placed "primo" Carnera" because of the wallop he packs, Primo, the snake-destroying white rat is in training for a return bout.



In the rat cage in the Biology Department of Grove City College, "Primo" fat and sassy since he killed seven young rattlesnakes and a copperhead, heavyweight champion two weeks ago, is getting in shape through sham battles with a rodent "sparring partner."

"Primo" rules the rat cage with a stand, and stalwarts figure he will be "in the pink" when he is matched with seven more snakes again—in about a fortnight.

Professor Ross Arbaugh, the badly-beaten ratlers, but Prof. A. C. Wood, head of the department, points out that everything depends upon the snakes' appetite.

The fight that brought little fame to "Primo" started after Prof. Wood offered the rat to the snakes as an evening meal. He neglected to tell the "primo," the Professor reveals that the victory may have been a trifle fluky. It seems the two big raidders weren't hungry.

EIGHTY WORKMEN BURNED TO DEATH IN BUSH FIRE—SUSPECT ARSON

More than 80 men were burned to death in a fire which swept over 250 acres of Griffith Park, Los Wells Canyon in the park and were overtaken by flames and smoke when the wind suddenly shifted. At least 60 other men were burned or were overcome by smoke and were rushed to hospitals. Gasoline soaked rags led the police to believe the fire was caused by arson. At left, workers fighting the blaze that claimed the lives of at least 80 men. At right, the injured receiving first aid.

AUTOMOBILE HITS CROWD NEAR PALACE

One Dead And Seven Injured Near King George's Residence

CONTROL LOST

Crowd Witnessing The Changing of Guard at at Time

LONDON Oct. 7—(AP)—One person was killed and many others were hurt seven seriously today when an automobile struck a lamp post and skidded into a large crowd gathered outside Buckingham Palace where the King is in residence to witness the colorful spectacle of changing the palace guard.

Three badly hurt were taken to St. George's Hospital nearby. King George sent an equerry down to inquire about their conditions. The others received treatment for superficial hurts and shock.

The car got out of control while ascending Constitution Hill from Hyde Park Corner. It proceeded a considerable distance in a mad course and finished by demolishing the lamp post on the Palace side of the road.

Persons standing several deep by the Palace railings were rushed indirectly but a number of them were hit and knocked down by the onrushing vehicle.

Ambulances were rushed to the scene and took the injured to the hospital.

Changing the guard at the palace is a popular daily spectacle when the Royal family is in residence and a large crowd had gathered today, as usual, to witness the picturesque ceremony.

As the automobile skidded into the light post it knocked down several persons, while screams rose from the crowd. The guards' band, which was playing the customary military music, stopped.

Two of those taken to the hospital were not expected to survive. Another sent amputation of both feet. One had a compound fracture of both legs; another suffered a fractured skull and a broken right leg. Still another had a fractured right leg.

A sentry who was standing at attention near the scene was felled. He was taken to the palace steps up and resumed his rigid pose, although nothing had happened.

Thanksgiving

With gratitude the spirit sings
For all life's common little things—
For sun that warms the frosty air,
For folks who wish us daily fare;
For busy day and peaceful night
With friends around the home-fire bright;
For corn in shock and grain in bin,
And Autumn's fruits all gathered in;
For neighbor's light across the way,
And children's laughter, bright and gay;
And oh! for all the countless things
The dawn of every new day brings.
We bring, O God, our thanks to Thee—
Oh, grateful may we ever be!

TWENTY FIVE PERCENT INCREASE IN WORK

Toronto, Oct. 7.—(CP)—Employment in Ontario has improved by approximately 25 percent this fall over the corresponding period last year, according to Hon. Dr. J. D. Monteith, Ontario Minister of Labor.

Many men it is reported have found at employment offices during the past few weeks to have their names crossed off the list of applicants. This is believed to indicate jobs are less scarce.

Reports that employment has showed definite improvement were verified by the Ontario Government Employment offices, where, it was announced, orders are definitely on the mend, improving "definitely and persistently."

CONSUMPTION OF HYDRO IS ON INCREASE

Attorney General Gives Resume in Hamilton Address

ON UPGRADE

Will Add 4,000,000 to Reserve Fund This Year

Hamilton, Oct. 7.—Reporting a 6 per cent. increase in power consumption for 1933 over 1932, Attorney-General William H. Price, speaking before the Macdonald Conservative Club here Friday evening, stressed the point that the people of Ontario—in fact the whole Dominion of Canada—should be reassured that when additional Hydro power and light are being consumed "we are on the up-grade."

"It is another reassuring sign," stated Col. Price, amid applause, "that we are getting into our stride again and if we continue to pay less attention to the pessimists and more attention to the optimists who believes in Canada and its people, we can take greater advantage of the improvement in business as it rolls up from year to year."

According to the chairman of the Provincial-Power Commission, slated for 1934, Hydro is enabling Hydro to maintain the same record of progress it has achieved in the past.

Additional Reserves.

"It is estimated," he added, "that Hydro this year will add 4,000,000 to its reserves. Decreasing the rates on the consumers, giving rebates to the municipalities, and yet this organization is able to pile up a reserve.

Who can say, demanded the attorney-General, that the management of this great provincial-municipal undertaking has not 'all the earmarks of sound, honest business?'

"Let us examine," said he, 'what Hydro has been able to accomplish. Seventy municipalities in Ontario are practically out of debt; that is, they have paid up their capital

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 7 (CP) —The bearded bride of Perry Bar—Malvina Perry, also—decided to join her husband Joe Cheesman recently. The heavy work around her household chores and the constant smoke from the coal she purchased for the family stove she took part in the pursuit of Joe, her missing mate.

But though she'd heard he was in Chicago, she couldn't find a trace of Joe—and the people told her that they'd seen a man who looked like him Captain Perry came back home aboard another train, and she told a mournful tale last night, and this was her refrain:

"I've smashed out chairs upon my head, I've knocked out men in fights; I've faced many a storm at sea, I've stood by watch at nights. There's nothing touch enough to do but what I have done. I can, but now despite my might and main, I can't get back my man!"

PROPOSES COL. FONTON FOR MAYOR

Dear Sir—We are now only a comparatively few weeks from nomination and no one has definitely announced himself as a candidate for Mayor.

I would, therefore, take the liberty of suggesting that this honor for 1933 be tendered to Col. W. R. Fonton, K.C.

He has now been relieved from the burden of his Masonic duties as Grand Master. His widely known ability would make him a desirable Mayor for the Centennial Year. Having served as Alderman, High School Trustee and Chairman of the Board of Education and as an officer in the Board of Trade for many years and having taken a deep interest in municipal affairs he would be well equipped for that office. He is a property owner and has a reputation for reasonable economy in public affairs.

I have no doubt that if any other person was thinking of entering the contest for Mayor, he would willingly stand aside for one year to enable the Colonel to be elected by acclamation.

Yours truly,
W. C. MICKEL.

WAR RELIC OF BARBARIC AGE

Mrs. Proctor Shows All Previous Leagues of Nations Selfish

The October meeting of the Bridge St. W.M.S. was held in the church parlors on Friday afternoon, Oct. 6th. Mrs. Aikhop presided and opened the service with the use of the hymn "Jesus is tenderly calling thee home" followed with prayer.

The busine- of session consisted of the minutes of the previous meeting and reports from the treasurer, corresponding secretary, supply secretary and Missionary monthly secretary. The President announced that there would be a meeting for sewing on Tuesday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock for the purpose of preparing clothing for needy folk in the West and in Northern Ontario.

Mrs. Deroche and her group were in charge of the program which consisted of two parts, the first one suitable to the season of Thanksgiving. This opened with hymn "For the beauty of the earth etc." leading with Mrs. Tomalee. The Scripture lesson was taken from different parts of the Bible arranged giving thanksgiving for blessings received. There followed a season of silent prayer concluded by Mrs. Deroche. Then various members of the group responded to the roll call with passages of Scripture verses from hymns or poems, each one breathing the spirit of thanksgiving. The closing morning hymn "Fills the sky", with its refrain "Let Jesus Christ be praised" closed the first part of the program, one act drama entitled "So This is Geneva" was produced with the following ladies taking part—Miss Brown, Mrs. Foster, Mrs. Proctor, Mrs. Deroche, Miss Bleecker, Mrs. Deroche and Miss Knight. Miss Brown as "Spoons" for the League of Nations and replied to questions and criticisms of the utility of the League. Mrs. Foster maintained that the fighting instinct was inherent in humankind and that war would never be done away. Miss Brown showed that war was a relic of a barbarous age but that like other evils would have to give way before progressive and enlightened world. Mrs. Proctor tried to prove from history that there had been other Leagues of Nations and that they had all proved failures as well, but had often engendered it. This argument was disproved by showing that all previous leagues among nations had been formed for self-interest in municipal affairs but would be well equipped for that office. He is a property owner and has a reputation for reasonable economy in public affairs.

I have no doubt that if any other person was thinking of entering the contest for Mayor, he would willingly stand aside for one year to enable the Colonel to be elected by acclamation.

Yours truly,
W. C. MICKEL.

SPRAGUE'S CLOTHES RENEWAL METHOD

The success of the past three weeks has proven two things to us, the need of faster service with present help, and absolutely guaranteed work done on silks and all fine garments.

To do this we decided to put in a new Greyhound Washer for this work exclusively, and for the use of high compression soaps and chemicals necessary for a perfect finish on all silks of the lighter fabrics, thus eliminating that extra strain on our Filtration System, and giving more contact to all stains without extra worry after.

We will be very much more confident for the future than we have been in the past of removing those the Cleaners' chief grief, in all Ladies' fine clothes.

And we invite the Ladies of Belleville this coming week to try the work done by this machine. We will give you from the plain dress to the night ensemble a Deluxe Finish at $1.00 to $1.50. All Top Coats at season prices. All Suits, Dresses, Overalls or fur trimmed or heavies, extra.

key thought that the politicians would prevent the League from being effective while Miss Bleecker wanted to know if the League had really accomplished anything toward the peaceful settlement of disputes among nations. Miss Brown gave nine instances of such and some have never been made without recource to war.

Mrs. Deroche wanted to know if there were any sanctions and what they were. Miss Brown replied that Miss Knight wanted to know whether the expense involved in supporting the League could be sanctioned. The reply to this question was that the cost of one battleship would defray the expenses of the League for five years. Mrs. Proctor spoke again as much for the cleaning of her streets. Modern instruments of war could blot that whole city out in a very short space of time.

The program was closed with the singing of the hymn "God bless our Native Land". Refreshments were served by the group in charge and a social half hour enjoyed.

This was followed by some rhythm exercises, the programme including with a few of the graceful and always popular costume dances. In the absence of the Inspector, Mr. Bolster early afternoon and the great kindness displayed by Mr. Petterly, Miss Ford and the other members of the staff in making their visit so enjoyable and profitable.

On Sunday, the 22nd, some twenty four pupils will go to Oshawa in charge of one of the churches there, and on Monday evening will stage a varied programme in one of the school auditoriums.

On Tuesday evening the members of the staff were entertained to a corn roast by Mr. and Mrs. Petterly at Willowood, their always hospitable summer cottage on the bay shore. A very delightful evening was spent, during which the new members of the staff were duly initiated into the happy school family by being required to perform various amusing stunts.

Mr. Petterly on behalf of the staff extended a hearty felicitations to Mr. and Mrs. Holmes, who during the summer had entered into the matrimonial sea, and presented the bride with a silver tea service as an expression of their esteem and good wishes. He also expressed the regret they all felt that Mrs. Blanchard had retired after eight years of faithful and efficient service, and to her a gift was presented as tangible evidence of the regard and good will of her former associates. Miss Ford, President of the Association added a few felicitous remarks and they were all very glad that though Mrs. Blanchard had ceased to be an active member of the Association, she would continue as an honorary member, and be free to participate in all of their social activiti-.

OBITUARY

LATE JAMES LITTLE

Trenton, Oct. 7 (Special)—For nearly 85 years a resident of Trenton or its near vicinity, James Little, one of this town's outstanding citizens and philanthropists, passed away Thursday at his late residence, York Road, following a short illness. Mr. Little had not felt in the best of health for a week prior to his death, but Thursday morning he arose, dressed and had breakfast as usual but later took a turn, which caused his death.

The late Mr. Little was born 95 years ago, one mile south from his late residence. He was the son of the late John and Ann (Abbott) Little; his father was born in the County Down, Ireland, and his mother of United Empire Loyalist stock. He was the eldest of a family of eleven children, three brothers of whom survive. Mr. Little was a member of the United Church and a staunch Conservative in politics. He made a success of life and gave freely of his means to all worthy causes; his charity was carried out unostentatiously, but all Christian work received his hearty and generous support. In Mr. Little's passing this city loses a benefactor, a figure and a beloved and respected member of the community. In all this district of Quinte, he was a man of kindly and charitable disposition, a man with many friends, respected among the citizens of Trenton. He was an active and zealous Churchman, and his services were much in demand at the community of worthy undertakings. An outstanding figure in the community is the poorer for his death.

Surviving are two brothers, W. H. Little, R.R. 4 of York Road, and Dr. Homer Little of New York City, and a sister, Mrs. Annie Little, residing at home also remains.

The funeral was held privately this (Saturday) afternoon from his late residence. The Rev. Mr. Edmonds, pastor of Bridge Street United Church conducted the service. Interment was in the cemetery.

Acting as bearers were Messrs. H. M. Stafford, G. J. Asis, A. Blakely, H. E. Bowerman, George F. Little and James B. Little.

A Mediterranean Pilgrimage or Sights and Scenes About the Great Middle Sea
By F. T. GRAFTON
Letter No. 4 — MALTA

MALTA has been so closely identified with war, romance, Crusader and Biblical history, and is so unique that tourists can hardly help but find a visit both profitable and enjoyable. There are other islands in the group but Malta the main one, is about eight miles broad, and seventeen long, being therefore less than one hundred square miles. As its population is almost a quarter of a million, it means nearly 2,000 to a square mile; consequently the most congested area (outside of a city) in the world. Most of the people are of Arab origin, though mixed with Italian, and are enterprising, industrious, and expert seamen. In spite of this most of the people are very ignorant, superstitious, and only about one in ten are able to read or write. The educated classes are, however, polished and attractive in manner. The women make an effective picture in their "ridges" resembling an American sunbonnet, with a large loop on one side extending down the back.

In religious matters there have been various missionary societies at work; preaching stations sustained by the Colonial Society of England and Scotland. The Roman Church however, has a monopoly, having two bishops and about two thousand clergy, or one to every twenty families. It and the government permit marriages at twelve and thirteen years, and funerals are conducted often before these ignorant child parents are of age. This, with the squalid conditions and frightful over crowding, especially in Valetta, the main city and port, makes the infant mortality the largest in the British Empire.

HISTORY

If ancient myths were true, Malta was one possessed by a race of giant Cyclops, "tall humans half divine." Here lived Calypso, daughter of Atlas and enslaver of Odysseus, and her cave is still shown. In historic times Malta was first occupied by the Phoenicians; conquered by Rome, 256 B.C. later by Vandals, then by Arabs in 870 A.D. It was granted to the Knights of St. John in 1530. In 1800 it was surrendered to Napoleon by Von Hompesch, the last Grand Master of the Knights, without a gun being fired, conditional on full honour of life and property. This was violated, Napoleon himself setting an example of pillage. It was a highly dignified policy. The incensed Maltese rebelled, and within a year the French had to capitulate to English forces who came to Malta's rescue. The Treaty of Amiens provided for the return of the Knights but the people preferred British occupancy, and by their free will decision it was ceded to Great Britain by the Treaty of Paris in 1814.

THE KNIGHTS

The Knights of St. John, better known as the Knights of Malta have had a most romantic history. In the days of maritime trading in the Levant, obtained leave of the Caliph of Egypt to build a house in Jerusalem for pilgrims. Afterwards they built a hospital, which accounts for the name "hospitallers" by which they are sometimes known. They were constituted as a military order by the Pope in 1113, and six years later defeated the Turks at Antioch. They removed to Acre in Syria, later to the island of Cyprus in the West-ern Mediterranean. Finally in 1310 they took the Island of Rhodes where they remained firmly entrenched for over 200 years. Hence they are also known in history as the "Knights of Rhodes". They were so successful against the Ottoman, so successful against the Ottoman, so successful against the Ottoman, be-cause of the high calibre of the Knights as a military order, and the fact that they were celibate, and had no families to consider. Admission to the Knights being granted them by Charles V they removed hither and abandoned Rhodes.

Within a few years the Knights were again so successful against the Turkish sea pirates that in 1565 Soliman Solyman led a large force of 40,000 men in 138 vessels against Malta. After desperate assaults with the loss of 23,000 men he was compelled to retire. The Knights lost also, besides 7000 Maltese men. The Christian world rejoiced and relief from the knightly gallantry and heroic defense.

La Valetta, the most famous of all the Grand Masters of the Order, became leader of the Knights. The city of Valetta, which perpetuates his memory, was founded on a commanding point in a strategic bay, and fortifications began, which still remain in part unrivalled. The Knights in turn took to the sea, and became such a power that the Turks made tables against their Moslem aggressors.

The Knights became now the sea pirates instead of pirated. Organized expeditions against all Mohammedan vessels on the Great Sea. They looted, plundered, broke their power, carried away slaves and pillaged their treasuries. In fact it was these sea-captured slaves, and fortunes largely utilized that built and struct the mighty and innumerable fortresses with which Valetta is surrounded.

Malta is today, as formidable a fortress as Gibraltar, far more useful, and the strongest link in the chain which unites England to her eastern possessions. It requires 25,000 men to man all the forts, and about half that number are often there. The finest and largest of the Mediterranean harbor, with capacity for many of Britain's fleets, and very valuable dock establishments.

With the increase of wealth and power, the Knights became lax in their vows of temperance and chastity. Vice and luxury encouraged base adventurers and libertines from Europe to flock to their standard. Though they lost high moral and religious standards, and doubtfully merit the full glamour of romance often shed upon them it must be remembered that this was but in accord with the immoralities of their times, above which some of the high dignitaries of Rome even did not rise. Scenes of murder and rapine tended to make men brutal, in this barbarous age.

Nevertheless they did a mighty service for Christianity. But for their strong hand, the Moslem power would have swept over Europe with the same devastation that it did over North Africa, where but for which time had spared of a good and great civilization, was swept into the discard. So without question the unsparing lash, or the too thick mantle of charity, it must be conceded that the "White Cross" banner floated victoriously over many a scene of strife where great issues for the Kingdom of our Lord were at stake.

It may be interesting to add that the Order of the Knights is not wholly extinct. Pope Leo in 1879 made Grand Commanders of them the Grand Master, and there are a number of local societies in Europe and America.

VALETTA

Landing at Valetta, chief port and city of some 80,000, the visitor finds it necessary to ascend the steep shore cliffs to the city. Lucky he who takes an aeroplane, otherwise he might join Byron in his famous "Farewell to Malta".

"Adieu, ye crowded streets of stairs,

How surely he who mounts you swears."

The Church of St. John is the most conspicuous object in Malta. Its tombs of the Grand Masters, its lovely marble and mosaic pavements, its 400 marble memorials of the Knightly dead, and its many curious emblems of old heraldry all combine to profound interest. In one chapel is a railing, in front of the altar, made of virgin silver. It escaped Napoleonic vandalism because a quick witted priest painted it black. Besides this altar are the original keys of Jerusalem, Acre and Rhodes. In an adjoining chapel are many reputed relics, such as a thorn from the Saviour's crown, and the stones with which St. Stephen was martyred. The alleged right hand of St. John the Baptist encased in a glove of gold, and with a great Glamour rings on the finger did not so easily escape Napoleon. He slipped the ring on his own finger, and Europe much used the same engraving, "Keep the carbon".

In the crypt of the church lie the unburied bodies of the monks, the skeletons still wearing their ancient cloaks. There is a story that as a joke a young man pinned the cloak of his lady to one of these cloaks. The hideous thing seemed to rise and fell against her and the shock destroyed her reason. Some of the party who visited these underground recesses had photos of the chamber with made of the dead skulls in ghastly order.

In the Armory Hall of the Governor's Palace are many relics, among which are many suits of knightly armour. There may have been "giants in those days" but lest we think of the Knights as a giant Order, may we add that the usual armour in such the Order was but 5 ft. 6 modern warrior. Here also is a cannon 500 years old, made of barrel rope, strengthened by hoops. The "bull" of Pope Pascal, by which in 1113 the Order was founded under his protection, is here, as also the instrument by which it was ratified in 1330. And among other relics is the key of Rhodes, which sounded the surrender of Rhodes in 1522.

PAUL THE APOSTLE

MR. PICOBAC Arrives in the West

Having devoted several weeks to the study of smoking conditions in Eastern Canada, Mr. Picobac has now turned his attention to the West. At Regina the Picobac reception committee welcomed him to Saskatchewan and motored him out to see the threshing gangs at work.

Asked as to his views on the future of Western Canada, the philosopher from sunny southern Ontario picked up a wheat straw and thrust it through the stem of his pipe . . .

"As long as you can grow No. 1 Northern . . . on a long, strong, heavy, pipe-cleaning straw like that," pronounced he; "and as long as we can grow the quality of Burley which makes Picobac . . ."

Mr. Picobac threw away the straw, replaced his pipe at a defiant angle and left the rest to imagination.

Canada, both East and West, will go on and on.

Address on World's Fair Given Convention by Mr. J. O. Herity

The discussion of various class problems in grade meetings and an address by Mr. J. O. Herity of this city featured the afternoon session of the annual convention in Queen Alexandra School yesterday of the Teachers' Institute of South Hastings. Inspector Ketcheson is president of the Institute, presided.

Mr. Herity, in his interesting address recalled early and pleasant associations with Inspector Clarke when he attended Model School. Mr. Herity spent several years in teaching and his hearers listened with interest his reminiscences of early days in the profession. Mr. Herity's address was devoted to a description of some of the wonders of the Century of Progress Exposition at Chicago.

Transportation

Transportation has ever been greatest factor in the developing of a nation and Mr. Herity sketched in some progress made in various centres co-incident with the development of steam power for railway transportation. The severe competition the railroads are meeting motor car traffic has brought a crisis in this method of transportation. At Chicago are shown many of the crack trains of England and the United States and a model train of the "bull" of Pope Pascal, by which in 1178 the Order was founded under his protection, is here, as also the instrument by which it was ratified in 1330. And among other relics is the key of Rhodes, which sounded the surrender of Rhodes in 1522.

PAUL THE APOSTLE

St. Paul's shipwreck took place, in St. Paul's Bay, Malta, about seven miles northwest of Valetta. A visit here will repay. St. Luke's description in Acts XXVII. At the supposed landing place is now St.

Paintings

Mr. Herity spoke of the marvellous collection of painting at the "Palace of the greatest ever brought together on the American continent, and insured for millions of dollars. During the afternoon solos by Mr. J. D. Bankier, accompanied by Mr. Leo D. Craig, and selections by the Quinte Trio, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Hunter and Mr. Glenn Hunter were greatly enjoyed. At the morning session, Miss Isabel Lloyd recited and Miss Florence David played instrumental music.

The grade meetings which 'concluded the business of the afternoon were in charge of Miss A. M. McKay primary, Miss Olive Dixon, First class, Miss Norma Weston, Second Class, Miss Anna Kennedy, Third class, Mr. H. O. Walkem, Fourth class, and Miss Darling, rural.

Resolutions passed at the South Hastings' Teachers' Convention, yesterday were:

"We the members of the Institute tender a vote of thanks to the Board of Education for the use of Queen Alexandra School during the Convention.

"That Mr. M. W. Mott be made an honorary member of the association and that Mr. Anderson be congratulated on his election as the principalship.

"That we extend a hearty welcome to the new members of our Inspectorate.

Right to Be Well Born

"That the convention place itself on record as endorsing the work of Dr. Semple in the principles set forth in his address and that we lend our voices in swelling the message of the Rev. Dr. Gowanlock "that every child has the right to be well born.

"That we express our appreciation

Paul's Tower, and nearby is a chapel with crude paintings and frescoes depicting this shipwreck. The small arm of the bay answers to "a certain bay with a beach". The place "where two seas met" is also easy to identify. From these immortalized Paul has been the tutelary saint of the island. Absence of all venomed snakes, is explained by the legend that Paul put a curse on them. So even the poisonous snakes the Barbary pirates brought, immediately died.

Here we leave this island of legend, history and romance. May its future be yet more glorious. We can but pray it yet may have its consolidating civility as a free state under Britain's Colonian Crown.

THANKSGIVING

In the churches on Sunday and in the homes of the people of Canada on Monday thoughts will be directed to the harvest-tide, to the fruition of labor, and to the necessity of gratitude on the part of man to the Giver of all.

Thanksgiving in the practical sense is an enjoyable occasion for it means plenty and it means festivity. The inner meaning is likewise invaluable as it goes back of the realm of growth to the Great Cause.

In addition Thanksgiving becomes the time when families are reunited even if it be for but a few short hours or two days at most, recalling something of the festivals of older days when the gatherings of harvest-home were a feature of the life of other times.

Canada has even in a year when the strain of the past three years has left its toll, yet been a happy land as the people have had plenty and for those suffering from the ravages of depression there has been provision made for their welfare. Even those who have been on relief must feel gratitude for the help they have received however much they would prefer to have been in a position of comparative independence as far as this world's goods are concerned.

The harvest season which is marked by this festival is also a warning for the days ahead, when no birds sing and when nature enters upon the season of full rest. It is the time from which to look forward as well as the point from which to look backward to the seeding time.

It is well that in this day and age our Dominion sees fit to call for public observance of the time.

OTHER CIVILIZATIONS

Not many days ago a Belleville boy walked through the trenches and excavations a few miles outside London where the ancient Roman temple has been found containing remains of great value in recreating the history of the period in British Roman history a short time after the birth of Christ.

In the Ontario Museum in Toronto there are assembled great collections of relics of ancient civilizations which have played their part in the development of present day civilization.

Yesterday appeared a story in the press that there have just been discovered remains of ancient Roman sewers built in the period of the Gracchi brothers when there were great agrarian difficulties and a crisis such as the world faces today. Sewers were built according to a plan, it is believed, to provide work for the Roman unemployed one hundred and thirty years before the beginning of the Christian era, much as we provide such work today.

These statements are but a preamble to the thought that the study of prior civilizations so well recorded on the walls and in museums is invaluable in providing a proper perspective. It makes the past very real to know that people of other ages were human, very much like Bellevillians of today even though they lived in the iron and bronze ages and it intensifies the interest in our own day—to know that problems are always awaiting solution. High lights of civilization may disappear but the masses of the peoples are no better off than they used to be. One has but to look upon the wooden sticks bolted together by the ancient inhabitants of Palestine and used for ploughing in those days to realize that "by the sweat of thy brow" meant something in those days and that it means something even in this present age, which in time will itself be as far away from that which is to be.

The study of these remains of ancient civilizations in the present day is a pleasing ways for us as we realize what we have was attained through the effort of generations upon generations of men struggling from low heights.

The machine has come in for criticism, but surely it is unwarranted. In the past as revealed through the remains of implements, man has always been seeking after some engine or tool which would help him. And yet in this day of the greatest attainment of engines in world history, there is heard the cry of "Down with the machines." Well, man has always sought them and civilization has grown with them. Millions now living would never had been born had it not been for the fact that machinery made possible growth of population. The Fathers have left us a rich and lingering look behind, but after all the very many appliances which help man today are not highly to be cast aside. We may laugh at the crude ploughshare of the ancient Hebrew but even while that primitive implement was rending the soil, Hebrew religion was at work upon the spirit preparing to influence the entire world. Surely in our own age the blessings of the perfect implements we possess ought to influence and inspire man's thought and lead to an even happier age.

Proverbs are the literature of reason, or the statements of absolute truth, without qualification. Like the sacred books of each religion they are the sanctuary of its intuitions.—Emerson.

THE FADED TAPESTRY

Her life is like a faded tapestry
Whose colors have grown paler with the years;
Of every one-time vivid flower and tree
The shadow only, dim and vague, appears.
Day after day has shed its rays thereon
And the caresses of those golden beams
A part of sapphire, rose and jade have won;
The picture now as pale as moonlight gleams.

A faded tapestry, which takes from time
An added beauty as the seasons go;
So softened, rendered mystic and sublime
With loveliness no crude, new thing can show.

We see her life grown fairer at the end
Which glamour years, and years alone, can lend.

WHILE TO CALL the baseball championship games in the United States World Series games may be a misnomer it is undoubtedly the most interest in baseball in the games, newspapers in all parts of the world giving much space to the contests. In Canada newspapers give the games Front Page prominence and crowds gather on the street to hear the radio version of the game from stores selling radio sets. Baseball in the United States has been built up into a commercialized sport, well managed as a business concern returning dividends on the money invested in it. Recognized from the beginning as an out-of-professional sport there was no need to camouflage operators and operations and the game has been profitable from the beginning to all concerned.

WOMEN OUGHT NOT TO SEEK IMITATE MEN

Woman's Powers of Art Creation Not Granted to Man

By Lucie E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

It is strange that women should ever want to imitate men, yet undoubtedly there is a strange tendency on their part. Why they should not want to be distinctly themselves and to excel in their own their task may be in a distinctly feminine fashion peculiar to themselves, is really a puzzle.

It is, perhaps, that women by far and large are suffering from an inferiority complex, and that they are convinced that male standards are finer than their own. So, the secret word is out, that notion the better for themselves, and for the world at large; for women can do great things, as has been demonstrated time and again, and there can be no question but what their ability is often of the very highest order. During the war there were ample instances of women taking the places of men even indulging in arduous labor that would seem to be beyond their physical make-up and strength.

When women go in for such professions as law and medicine, as well as salesmanship, office and executive work, they usually, unless they have the "masculine of men" obsession, perform the work in a way that is highly valuable, but distinctly different from the way men do it. Now that women have the freedom of expression that ever, and are able to develop their inherent possibilities to the greatest possible extent, we should soon have women of outstanding ability who will shine in almost any of the fields of endeavor.

Particularly should this be true in any creative work, for women possess within her very make-up powers of creation that are denied the male. The ability to be a mother on the physical side surely carries with it mental corollaries. So it is not surprising that women have delight in fashioning beautiful things, or that all of them possess a certain degree of the artistic sense.

There are few women who do not enjoy making a dress or a hat, and when they go in for handwork in the arts, such as modelling or even working in wood, they fashion objects that are not like what men produce, provided of course that they are not deliberately setting out to follow an example. One handicap, if I may put it so, to women becoming famous is their natural trait of willingness to subserve themselves in a small to more or less stay in the background.

We know that women have inspired men to great deeds. They have soothed suffering, and they have uncomplainingly gone through trials and tribulations that actually accomplished marvels, but without the applause of the crowd. For a woman's unselfish devotion to duty is proverbial, and she usually does not care whether she gets credit for what she does. Such women have been truly great.

When So the other hand sex-ism are judged by the standards of the male, as if indeed masculine standards were worth while emulating, then women not only feel inferior, but oft times do actually seem to be so.

But so would man seem inferior if he were judged by feminine standards. How high would the average man succeed in life if to say, if fatherhood were to be the measure of success? Man's emotional life is so varied and so rich that there is no doubt but what any woman might be able to accomplish, if she would study herself and let her inherent possibilities come to the fore.

Inferiority, however, will never get women anywhere. What she should do is study her forbearance, creative new standards of her own and develop her own style and which in the end may be far more valuable than man has yet accomplished or hoped to accomplish.

Eyes of World Turn Toward Germany As Another Military Race Threatens

New Concessions by Other Powers at Geneva Inevitable For Sake of Peace

By HARRY LEVIN
Central Press Canadian Correspondent

Geneva, Oct. 7.—Stalled by universal economic suffering with most governments paralyzed, the disarmament conference assembles Oct. 10 to decide whether the nations are to plunge again into the mad military race of 1914.

A resurgent Germany, goose-stepping in legions of brown shirts, and denouncing its Versailles treaty shackles, paints for the rest of the world the old spectre of Prussian militarism.

And France, with too vivid memories of Germany's might, has entrenched fastest allies carved from the defeated Central powers to denounce every encroachment.

"We cannot approve any rearmament," Premier stated Joseph Paul Boncour, French foreign minister, on the eve of the parley.

Au^er ca is ending. Gone is the economic solidity of Germany and the ascendancy of the Hitlerites, whose very existence is militaristic, unmistakably shows new concessions must be made to maintain peace.

"We will fight for the principle of equality," former property Dr. Paul Goebbels, Nazi propaganda minister, at the height of Germany's power, "but we have military planes and other weapons, too."

The German army, already, which was held pistol-point to Germany's head by the latter in the Versailles treaty, a standing army of 100,000 soldiers and officers, enlisting for 12 and 25 years each, respectively. This was to prevent building up a huge reserve through short term service. War plants, tanks and heavy guns were forbidden, and during the past decade, paper covered tanks and dummy cannon were used in extensive Italian prestige. Hi-Duce's policy has been to back Germany in her demands for equality, but withholding actual support. Recently, however, he became cautious. Rome, gazing tolerantly at the Nazis' triumph as representative of the Fascist ideal, has no desire to see weak Austria-Hungary, thus pressuring to its own northern borders, a strong neighbor.

France Prepares

The main fly in the continental arms ointment always has been France's reluctance to surrender any of the military gains of the war. Not content with weakening Germany, she created by means of gold and military assistance an eastern allied belt composed of Poland, Czechoslovakia, Roumanian, Belgium and Jugo-slvia, ar a rib of armies throughout central Europe.

To Germany paltry 100,000 are opposed a combined peace time force of 1,600,000 men, with trained reserves of 11,300,000 more demanded since 1919. A militarized foe must never be permitted spring at La Belle France again. And Europe speaks in thundering accents to defend it, Locarno, and again fast friendship with Russia, Germany's summer, with Mussolini's four-power pact, and that Italy and Italy would reinforce the aggrieved nation.

France's answer to innumerable requests by Germany for equality of armies or somewhat threatening and rushing to completion the gigantic Maginot line of fortifications facing the Rhine. Rumors arose recently that Germany's high command was thinking of eventual conflict with the Nazis in the event of a military clash with Austria or southern France through Switzerland, as a defensive war.

Mussolini's Attitude

England always has supposedly given tacit support, but last week Sir John Simon, secretary of state for foreign affairs, stated she had reached the limit in guaranteeing security.

Then the Hitler war clouds loomed ominously last May, Count Hubert Ritter Von Lerchenfeld, of the Bavarian Peoples party, threatened Germany would withdraw arg rearm without awaiting approval.

The Hitler and British answer was brief and harsh. Any attempt contrary to treaty terms would be met by force to enforce the "sanctions" clause of the Versailles pact; allied troops would march into Germany.

With Hitler preparing his reichstag speech and France calling for increase in the army budget, President Roosevelt sent a message to Geneva asking for the "elimination of weapons of offence and an international armaments control committee."

It helped let off steam, and a slightly mollified France reiterated the principle, by advocating an international police force controlled by the League of Nations, to be used against aggressors.

MacDonald Plan

If just part may be adopted at the parley, the MacDonald plan seems likely. Urged as a "negative defence" arrangement, the British premier would have a basic total of 200,000 soldiers for Germany and Poland; Italy and France to number 50,000 and 200,000 more respectively for their colonial lands; Russia 200,000 and Belgium, with many permitted no war planes, the others 100 each. Air bombing forbidden outright. Austria and Hungary, ignored, presumably because of their existing formidable armies.

After much wrangling, Germany consented in the fall of 1932 to sudden storm strongers as 42,000 effectives, but insisted on the right to secure desire that the Reichswehr be curtailed.

But with the emergence of intense nationalism, it seems improbable a material reduction will result. France and every nation, galled by the war will wage desperately against rearming its enemies. Eventually readjustments with Germany by the allies must occur, but it will be the prelude to another great conflict, it is feared.

"Blondy" Ryan Hits Home Winning Run and Starts Double Play to End Game

Carl Hubbell Wins Tense 11 Innings Struggle From Weaver

GIANTS HAVE EDGE

Senators Had Glorious Chance to Win in 11th

(By Edward J. Neil, Associated Press Sports Writer)

Washington, Oct. 7.—Three nerve-wrecking New York Giants reached dizzily today for the baseball championship of the world, just a single step away after one of the most dramatic duels in World Series history had swung them three games up on the dazed Washington Senators.

Paper and ink and the feeble strokes of a typewriter scarcely seem adequate to the task of painting the picture of the exhausting 11-inning battle that roared for three full hours yesterday through the Clark Griffith Stadium. Hung just below bell and blonde John Ryan high among baseball's heroes, packed thrill on thrill until the nerves of 27,000 sang like fiddle strings, carried Monte Weaver to the height and then dropped him, and wound up with police smuggling an umpire safely from the park after he had put a player out of the game, that in itself almost unprecedented in series history.

Washington still reverberated with the after-effects of it today, and the citizens, just registering their votes, came out on their comas in full cry. Buried in the tumult was the series standing itself, all but over now as the rampaging New Yorkers, with a 9 to 7 victory, gained ability to close out the inter-league champions' struggle today behind the pitching of Carl Hubbell, Bessmacher, winner of the second game in New York.

"General" Alvin Crowder, Washington's veteran right hander who was accorded under the six run barrage that gave the 22 year old Schumacher his first victory, and Joe Cronin's probable pitching choice in the forlorn hope of keeping the series to a sixth game finding the series to a sixth game in New York Sunday, and by the miracle of the eighth, to a seventh game Monday.

Umpires on Carpet

But whatever the baseball fates held in store for this day, there will no longer be speculation that the diamond delirium of yesterday could be duplicated in the annals of the game to come.

For one reason Commissioner K. M. Landis had Umpire Charley Moran and his three mates on the carpet today confirming the action he brought about the expulsion of Fatima Manush, Washington left fielder, amid subliminal scenes in the sixth inning. So that was not like-ly to happen again.

It all started out as a pitcher's battle with Hubbell, the Giant southpaw ball master and the greatest pitcher of the game in many days past season, pitted after only two days rest against 26 year old Monte Weaver, the right handed native of North Carolina who gave up teaching, coaching and baseball at the University of Virginia to work his way up thru professional ball to the greatest day and most bitter defeat of his baseball career.

For five innings it went that way, and the only edge in Hubbell's favor was the tremendous home run Bill Terry hit far into the temporary bleachers in centre field to give him a 1 to 0 lead. Weaver held the amping, remorseless Giants back the rest of the time with a brilliance born of despair.

The Senators fought doggedly along with Weaver.

Many Huddles

It was obvious that Manager or later something was going to happen and the tension rose steadily. In the sixth inning Jackson broke the ice and the outburst that for 15 minutes turned the field into an arm waving arena where umpires and ball players mixed in a free for all with either. Manush wound up chased from the field of play, while the enraged Judge Landis looked on and and swore that Moran, who thumbed the outfielder away, would never get off the premises intact. He did, but only through the intervention of police who rushed him from the dressing room, drove him under the grandstand in a car, and did not leave him until he was safely on his way to a hotel.

Buddy Myer, Senators' second baseman, opened the sixth with a single through short and "Goose" Goslin sent him along to second with a neat sacrifice. With the chance to run in scoring position, 'Manush smashed a drive between second and first that looked like a hit. But little Hughie Critz got his hands on the ball and tossed to Hubbell, covering first, just as Manush crossed the bag. Moran, a National League umpire, ruled at the base and waved him out.

Hubbell Fumbles Ball

Enraged, Manush stormed after the arbiter and the entire band of Senators, feeling they had started Hubbell on the road and were being wronged, tore into action. Soon the various factions were holding each other apart. In the midst of the arm waving it appeared as though Manush's hand reached Moran's cheek.

If Manush was safe, and the impression of many was that he had beaten the throw and that Moran made his decision too hastily, poetic justice visited the Giants in the seventh when the Senators tied the two chiefly through Hubbell's own misplay.

With one out he bobbled Joe Kuhel's bunt and the Washington first baseman was safe on the error. Goslin Bluege sacrificed him to second and with two out, and first base open occupied, Hubbell was on the centre of one huddle after another of the Giants' board of strategy all afternoon, decided to pitch to Luke Sewell, instead of walking the dicker who had already nailed him for one clean single. Sewell singled again, a clean drive to centre, and Kuhel scampered across the plate with the tieing run.

From then on until Ryan, the boy who coined the Giants' battle cry, "They can't beat us" drove home the winning run in the eleventh, and Cliff Bolton,' a pinch hitter, drove into a double play with the bases full as the Senators staged a last pitch rally.

Crisis Follows Crisis

One crisis followed another with choking rapidity. Weaver or Hubbell, or both, were in trouble in the eighth, ninth and tenth innings.

Then came the Giants' 11 inning climax and the even more nerve wracking anti-climax that followed in the debacle of the Senators' half. Travis Jackson started it by beating out a clean bunt down the third base line that caught Oscie Bluege flat-footed. Gus Mancuso accredited him to second and up stroll Blondy Ryan, son of a Lynn (Massachusetts) policeman, spark-plug of this Giant team. He shot a line single to left, and Jackson was home with the winning run.

As if that were not enough for one day, the Senators managed to get at Hubbell in their final stand and the tenseness in that ball park was so great people couldn't loosen their throats to cheer. Schulte hammered a long fly left and Critz hit not only sent him to second and the ball skidded down to right. Terry waited too long on a bunt that never did roll 'foul. Bluege sacrificed them both along and reaches than risk Sewel hitting again. Hubbell walked the catcher and filled the bases.

Pat came Bolton, a substitute catcher, who had been a great pinch-hitter all season. He waited, swung and the ball skidded down to right already a hero.

Like a hound-legged kitten, Blondy was on the ball, whipped it to Critz to force Sewell at second and with a Cronin-to-Terry yell nabbed Bolton throw to Terry completing the double play.

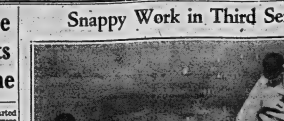
It was minutes before the crowd could move and roar freely. By that time Cliff Bolton's name was through the dugout, the world champion pandemonium at the University of Virginia to work his way up thru professional ball to the greatest day and most bitter defeat of his baseball career.

For five innings it went that way, and the only edge in Hubbell's favor was the tremendous home run Bill Terry hit far into the temporary bleachers in centre, field to give him a 1 to 0 lead. Weaver held the amping, remorseless Giants back the rest of the time with a brilliance born of despair.

The Senators fought doggedly along with Weaver.

Many Huddles

It was obvious that Manager or later something was going to happen and the tension rose steadily. In the sixth inning Jackson broke the ice and the outburst that for 15 minutes turned the field into an arm waving arena where umpires and ball players mixed in a free for all with either. Manush wound up chased from the field of play, while the enraged Judge Landis looked on and and swore that Moran, who thumbed the outfielder away, would never get off the premises intact. He did, but only through the intervention of police who rushed him from the dressing room, drove him under the grandstand in a car, and did not leave him until he was safely on his way to a hotel.



Buddy Myer, Senators' second baseman, opened the sixth with a single through short and "Goose" Goslin sent him along to second with a neat sacrifice. With the chance to run in scoring position, 'Manush smashed a drive between second and first that looked like a hit. But little Hughie Critz got his hands on the ball and tossed to Hubbell, covering first, just as Manush crossed the bag. Moran, a National League umpire, ruled at the base and waved him out.

B. C. I. Juniors Defeated by Trenton 10-3 in First Grid Battle of the Season

Winners Show Too Much Punch For New Team

LACK COHESION

Game Well Played But Locals Shy on Good Condition

Pulling miserably in the line of scrimmage the local Belleville C.I. junior football squad bowed in defeat to the Trenton juniors by the score of 10 to 3 in the opening game of the Bay of Quinte group of C.O.S.S.A. football at the Trenton yesterday afternoon. Headed by a powerful attack of block leaders and liberals the "black and black" clad squad trod rough shod over the injustrated B.C.I. kids to register a decisive victory. With perfect cohesion, the better balanced and well coached Trenton team showed their superiority throughout, when Captain Shoniker at quarter for the winners and assisted by Dadswell, out-kicked the local hoolers and made substantial gains on each exchange of kicks during the running of Gray, Derry, Dadswell and Herwitz also proved too powerful for the locals, while the line plunging of Miller, Willemsen and Roberts proving an excellent group of ground gainers throughout.

Showing spasms of old time fight and football ability the tri-colre managed to stem the tide of ultimate defeat occasionally, when driven by quarter back Abe Tope, the locals managed to stage an early third period rally and threatened when Pat Blaker kicked a placement-kick that made the score 5 to 3 for Trenton. Their offensive now was short lived, however, as the Stickwell-coached outfit from Trenton rose to the occasion and staged a triumphant march, that resulted in the only touch down of the day for Dadswell, who plunged for a five yard gain through the heads like of scrimmage, the try not being converted. Two new faces, Bill and Morris L'Heureux, sons of Will L'Heureux of Port Arthur hockey fame, made a triumphant and much impressive debut during their first appearance in a local uniform. Morris is a finished forward pass tosser, while brother Bill also it a grabber of note. Abe Tope at quarter was the spark plug for the ranks of the Belleville C.I. eleven. Gold, Jeffery, McKinney and Smith played gamamodically in the line. Pat Blaker's trusty boot counted the only local points, when he booted a 25 yard drop kick for three points.

The Play

B.C.I. kicked off and on the very first return play Herwitz tossed a perfect 25 yard forward pass into the waiting arms of Davis. B.C.I held and Trenton kicked on a third down. The locals failed to complete an onside kick and lost the ball on their own 30 yard line. Dadswell booted over the local goal line and Hay was downed for a safety. Trenton, 1, Belleville 0 was the score at quarter time. On the second play in the next quarter Herwitz drop kicked a perfect one over the bar to make the score 4 to 0 for the yellow and black. The locals looked better just now and Pat Blaker's boosters let back early in the final minute of play, when Derry completed a 25 yard forward pass to Dadswell but the whistle blew for half time with the homesters on the B.C.I. two yard line.

The opening of the second half was like the opening same minutes, tial gains on extended eng runt but per failed to score until Dadswell booted one to the deadline for a point making the score 5 to 0. It was during this period that Shoniker, the home team's snap back man on the B.C.I. could not seem to capitalize on the opportunities that were theirs and the third quarter saw the score 5 to 0. To open the final stanza Merrit L'Heureux tossed a beautiful 30 yard forward pass into his brother Bill's arms. Ed Gardiner and Abe Hay made yards and on the next play Pat Blaker booted a beautiful drop kick over the bat to make the score 5 to 3. Over anxiousness then apparently settled upon the youthful B.C.I. kids as the homesters literally marched up the field for yard gains aplenty, until Dadswell crashed through the centre of the B.C.I. line for a five yard plunge, that resulting in a touch, that was not converted. The game ended 10 to 3 for Trenton.

MANY ENTRIES FOR CLASSES

Race Meet Promises to Be a Decided Success

The best in Canada. That just about explains the class of horses that will race at our agricultural park track on Monday and Tuesday. Mr. Roland Hartman, Railroad Magnate and President of the Trotting Horse Society of America once said that one good trotting race was worth all the parks in the country? We agree with Mr. Hartman that the sight of those trotters finishing a mile abreast with the style and action they show in right in the eye is a thrill that certainly stirs the blood. Well, we are going to have just that kind of a treat! There have been only four matched race meets held in Ontario this year and the one here on the holiday looks about the best. The matched race between Margaret Dillon, trotter that went Tolrog Ohio track in 2.07 1-2 and Walter Stone the free for all pacer that was never better in his life than he is right now) has set the pace against the West. The Same boys are willing to take home the whole Port Hope that the came trotter and pacer and the free for All pacer from the throne? An offer of $100 win or lose and the purse was tendered the owners of Ballchain but they would not have any of it! Some say we are looking for Margaret Dillon after the Lindsay race, when he had to break the track record to win! Dr. Riddle who represented the horsemen at Toronto and Buffalo Grand Circuit will be Presiding Judge while Wm. Armstrong, Hawkins and Robert Hamilton, Toronto will be the official timekeepers. The Judges and Stewards are E. Caudery, Cobourg, Jno. Lafferty and G. H. French, Belleville and the Secretary of the Course will be Hal. B. Watson, Toronto. Starter, Al. CURRENT SPORT

Walter Patterson's champion cities Service Hockey Club are again in the Kingston City League. So strong has the Limestone organization become that possibly a senior, intermediate and Junior group will be formed as a larger entry of teams than in previous years were on hand. Some of the new applications were not accepted at first, but it is understood that they will be.

According to Mr. Patterson, Kingston, Gananoque, Brockville and Smiths Falls will be the teams most likely form one powerful senior loop. If there is to be one team from Kingston the locals sincerely hope, that none of their players will be barred this year, but they will most likely open on Oct. 20th, with the schedule to be drawn in the near future. Although the local rink was the scene of a full house apparently will have much stiffer opposition this year. The Kingston City League is the channel of revenue enjoyed by the Jock Harty arena, it is now the only one organization had not been formed in Belleville three or four years ago.

To finally climax the club's most successful season two special events have been completed and have been arranged by the officers of the Belleville Golf Club.

Sporting broad bow orange and black uniforms the Trenton B.S. junior football team won a decisive victory over the B.C.I. boys by 16 to 2 score. The home team scored on both halves, Dadswell getting out and well deserved the honors. Abe Gardiner, Bill Hawkins and Ted Laughlin presented many new faces in the Trenton line-up and feel they were not disgraced as the result of the Stickwell-coached crew from along the Trent.

This lad Herwitz, who called the signals at quarter and did the majority of the kicking for the locals is a fair sort of a football player. He has been a regular throughout by Dadswell, Gray, Williams, Hay and Derry, who were on the local squad made an instant hit with all present, they being Will Dadswell, Jr. and Bert Gray and Bill. These lads fresh from the Trenton High School are the inner works of the locals and will be heard from in the future. Abe Tobe, the local's scrappy little quarter back showed his wares and owed by the brilliant Herwitz. Tobe threw himself into the breach like a little Trojan.

Occasionally the local line went well but on the whole they failed miserably. The local line and backfield squad remarked after the game—"Boy, we sure were up against some paper line." Oh, well the kids were not quite as bad as that despite the fact that they were beaten by a plungers found many a large carry to plow through for substantial gains.

When the senior squad take the field next Monday afternoon the senior team this afternoon they will be minus Lee Flagler. This makes the fifth player to leave the championa to be lost by the Shiels-Hawkins combination this season and this year's back field is equally as badly shot to pieces. Tuesday's scrimmage is yet an unknown quantity. Today will tell the tale, however.

The stage is all set for the big harness race meet on Monday and Tuesday. Monday will be the opening of the biggest race meet ever to be held in Belleville and the fastest one as that nothing but the best in the Province will be on the stop onto the track here Monday. Such well skilled racers as Honey Boy, Gratian, Jack Harvester and others will be here, then Margaret Dillon that great trotter is also expected along with one of the finest fields of horses ever to face the barrier in Ontario. If this two day race meet on the Queen Mary track is a success it will be repeated annually, we hear. All the stables at the Fair Grounds are filled with starters now.

Cities Service Hockey Team Enters Kingston City Loop

The Kingston Hockey League, as a general meeting held in the Chamber of Commerce on Thursday night re-elected the 1932 slate of officers for the 1933-34 season. Art Castleton, who has headed the destinies of the League for the past several years continues as president and the officers are as follows:

Vice-president—Melville Reid.

Secretary-treasurer — Herbert F. Tandon.

Executive committee — W. Lower, H. Bryan, Reg. Boyer, J. L. Smith and W. White.

The meeting present at last night's meeting overwhelmed the upper storey of the Chamber of Commerce building and so great was the crowd that many were forced to stand throughout the meeting and others who could not gain admittance beyond the stairway. It was the most enthusiastic demonstration of interest in City League hockey in the history of the organization.

There are more teams for the league than perhaps be accommodated and the executive as a result to be held over for another week and will decide as to what teams may enter and what teams may not enter. Last season in the senior loop were Sunbury, West End, Regionals and O'Connor, Portsmouth, Belleville, Napanee and Gananoque. In the junior loop were Shamrocks, West End, Portsmouth, Regiopolis College and Napanee.

So far entered in the Junior series are West End, Portsmouth, the Regiopolis College. It is not known if Napanee will enter a team in the junior section. However, there are four new applications for membership in the junior group from a new Shamrocks Club, Red Indians, Gananoque Canoe Club and Brockville. Only Sunbury, West End and Belleville remained at sure entries from last year to this year. It is not known if Napanee will enter a senior team or not while it is definitely known that Portsmouth will not. McGinnis and O'Connor will not be in the league this year but a team known as the Dark Horses, made up of the former McGinnis and O'Connor players has made application for a berth in the senior section. In addition applications have been received for senior entry from Brockville Maple Leafs, Prospect Hill, Kingston, Harrowsmith and North End.

If Brockville is accepted into the league along with Belleville, Kingston and Gananoque, it will make a powerful senior group. However, no intimation as to grouping could be learned until the entries have been finally disposed of. Entries will positively close on Saturday night and none will be accepted after that date.

It is understood that the league has in mind the operation of an intermediate section for teams which could not stack up with sufficient opposition for such teams as Belleville Cities service, Brockville Maple Leafs and clubs of their strength. That matter, however, will be dealt with by the executive as well as the matter of using Queen's players on other teams in the league.

Senators Put in Hole When Manush Banished

By ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor

Washington, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Henry Emmett Manush, the first ball player to be put out of a World Series game in the 12-year administration of Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis, today became the storm center of one of the hottest controversies baseball has known in years.

Certainly it provoking the wildest world series outburst since Sam Rice, another Washington outfielder, did a disappearing act behind an disputed catch of Hari Smith's drive as he scaled the right field wall in the 1925 series here with Pittsburgh. Then, as now, the issue was referred to the Commissioner although there is nothing Landis can do afterward, for the head of baseball has made it clear he will not reverse a decision a field is concerned.

"All I can tell you is that Manush will play in the fifth game today and that any action I take in regard to a fine, if any, for his run in with Umpire Moran, will be announced after the game," Landis declared the Commissioner.

All Umpires Called

Whereupon he summoned all four of the arbiters in the game to conference in his hotel suite this morning to drive fully in the circumstances of the four decisions at first base in the sixth inning of yesterday's game, the episode of which was a hot dispute between Manush and Umpire Moran and the subsequent banishment of the Washington slugger.

Moran made a formal report to Landis last night in which he is understood to have stated Manush was definitely out when Hubbell stepped on a spectacular stop and threw to Bill Terry. Giants' second baseman, to pitcher Carl Hubbell, who covered first on the play. This so-called "over act" by the Mickey-set Alabaman, the No. 1 batsman of the Senators, coupled with alleged threats and abusive language, caused Moran to order Manush out of the game, the first time in the history of the National League that such a thing has happened in a world series.

Manush took a punch at Moran, however, it was not discernable from the stands. The argument in which most of the Senators joined. obviously was heated and but it appeared Heinie was more vocalistic than physical.

No Words Missed

The Washington team, as well as hundreds of spectators, who rilled ground and stands, declared Umpire Moran's version of the fracas was not Manush's removal than over the decision itself, although no words were missed by the home camp about its alleged injustice.

Moran declared that he called the Senators as well as Will Mariidge President of the Washington club expressed the opinion Moran should not have put Manush out of the game. Landis, however, made a report to Landis for the Commissioner to act upon as he saw fit, by fine or otherwise. Feeling in American League circles is naturally no less keen because Moran is the "Uncle Charley" of football coaching fame and Manush is a baseball star.

The ejection of Manush changed the whole course of the game from the Senators' standpoint, declared critics. "Maybe we would not have beaten Hubbell, anyway, but it was the natural kind of a blow to us be a contest whose outcome hung on al-most every pitch in the last few innings.

"With Manush out, we were forced to use Dave Harris in the outfield and deprived of the opportunity to use Harris as the right-handed pitch hitter we needed against Hubbell. Harris did miss out, in the last half of the 11th, but he had left seven left-handed hitters and the one we tried, Cliff Bolton, hit into a double play.

The rotation of the umpiring staff puts "Uncle Charley" Moran in the role of arbiter in charge of calling the balls and strikes. To the suggestion that a precautionary switch might be made to preserve the peace, the word from the commissioner was: "Perhaps Moran will be behind the plate."

What is forecast as the greatest boxing attraction in years is the scheduled bout between Barney Ross (left), and Jimmy McLarnin, Canadian sensation. The bout is scheduled for New York early summer and is conceded to be a "natural"—a battle between a Jew and an Irishman.

CANADIAN POET HEARD AT B. C. I.

Wilson P. MacDonald Gives Reading of Poems

Wilson P. MacDonald distinguished Canadian poet, visited the city yesterday and gave a reading of his poems at the Collegiate Auditorium last night, under the auspices of the Belleville Collegiate Literary Society.

Mr. MacDonald was introduced by a college master, Mr. A. C. MacLaurin, principal of the school, who expressed the pleasure all felt in having an opportunity to hear the poet.

In an interesting introduction to the reading of his poems Mr. MacDonald spoke of the discouraging attitude many Canadians adopted towards Canadian poetry and of the warm reception Canadian poets receive in the United States.

"I believe that if Miss Carman had been loved as much in life as he is in death he would have lived another fifteen years," said the poet.

Those who love beauty in nature love poetry. The cowboy loves athletics, children, love it, and those who have attained higher spiritual life. Many were packed in North-ern Ontario to hear Mr. MacDonald's poetry. So delighted were his close ones to nature and love beautiful things.

Mr. MacDonald gave a program of readings from his works and the lovely poems, many well known to his hearers, acquired new charms and significance as the poet personally explained the setting and inspiration for each one. His readings were well planned to please all groups in his audience. So delighted were his hearers that they appealed for "just another" and the close part of the program and the poet very graciously consented and read more.

Miss Ida Bell thanked the reading of "Roses" "What a Wee" "Ni-agara," "Granary" "Lace-Maker" two in the French-Canadian manner, "Sedlam's Brook" "Angels Schwartz" and "I Love Old Things".

WOMEN'S AUXILIARY OF HASTINGS DEANERY MEETS

Mrs. H. P. Lowe, Diocesan President, Principal Speaker

Roslin, Oct. 7 (Special)—The annual conference of the Women's Auxiliary of Hastings Deanery, was held at Christ Church, Thomasburg on Friday, October 6th. The church was beautifully decorated with flowers and bright autumn leaves.

The conference was opened with a service of Holy Communion at 10.30 a.m. with Rev. F. C. Besser as celebrant. There were a hundred parishoners of Holy Communion.

Rev. A. B. Caldwell of Marmora, Rural Dean of Hastings delivered a very appropriate sermon basing his remarks on the Collect part of the 24th verse of the 3rd. chapter of Paul's Epistle to the Colossians, "Before ye are the Lord Christ."

Other ministers assisting with the service were Rev. Canon W. G. Swayne of Tweed; Rev. Brazil of Bannockburn.

Luncheon in Hall

At noon the ladies of Christ Church, Thomasburg, served a delicious luncheon in the I.O.O.F. hall. The afternoon session opened at 1.30 p.m. with the Deanery Secretary, Mrs. J. Sweet of Stirling, presiding. The opening hymn was "The Love of Christ Constraineth," which is the Dominion Motto of the W.A.

The address of welcome was given by Mrs. Albert Porter of Thomasburg W.A. and Mrs. Ella Brown or Bonarlaw, made a very suitable reply. This was followed by the reading and approval of the minutes of the last Deanery Meeting. The roll call showed members present from the following branches, Bancroft, arches 4, Juniors, 2; Bonarlaw, 3; Christ Church, Thomasburg 14; Roslin 7; Rawdon 8; Stirling 8; Frankford 3; Tweed, seniors 7, girls 3, juniors 1.

Reports Given

The reports given by the various branches were most encouraging.

Mrs. H. P. Lowe of Kingston, Diocesan President, who was present, was then addressed the gathering. Mrs. Lowe brought greetings from the Prince Edward Deanery where she had attended their annual meeting, held the previous day. Mrs. Lowe gave a report of the Dominion annual meeting which she attended recently. She urged each branch if at all possible to provide an outfit for a child in one of the Indian Schools. A special day of intercession was planned for November 11th, which will be very wide.

Second hand clothing will be needed again this year for people in the drought areas in Western Canada. At the annual meeting Mrs. Lowe's address, Rev. Mr. Beazer sang a solo, "Lord for Tomorrow and Its Needs I Do Not Pray." Mrs. Lowe was then asked to preside for the election of Deanery Secretary. The following were nominated, Mrs. Sweet, Stirling; Mrs. Ella Brown, Bonarlaw, and Mrs. J. S. George, Bancroft. Mrs. Sweet tendered her resignation as she is moving, withdrew her name. Mrs. J. R. Brown was elected as the new Deanery Secretary.

Meet at Bonarlaw

Mrs. Brown extending an invitation to the Deanery to hold the meeting next year at Bonarlaw. The offerings for the day amounted to $14.61. An interesting feature of the follows, $5.00 towards the Dorcas work $7.00 to the Indian School by Post and the remainder with the previous year's balance to be left in the treasury.

Miss Edith Van Straubenzie, Girls' and Candidates' Secretary, then spoke of her work with the girls, urging the need or enlisting the girls in the work so that in the future they will be ready to take the place of the seniors.

A vote of thanks was given Rev. Rural Dean Caldwell for his inspiring and helpful sermon at the morning service.

The hymn, "Soldiers of Christ Arise" was sung and Rev. Canon Swayne conducted the closing prayers. The Thomasburg ladies again invited all to the hall where supper was served. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered the members of Thomasburg W.A. for their kind hospitality.

B. Y. P. U. Holds Election of Officers

Last Monday evening the Baptist Young People of Ridge Avenue Church held their annual banquet and election of offices. The program consisted of the banquet interspersed with the singing of famil-iar old songs. Immediately following the banquet the election of officers for the year 1933-34 took place. The results of the election were:

After announcement of the other officers for the coming year the young people enjoyed a delightful social hour. Mr. William Hudson, the speaker for the evening, Rev. W. E. Reid, was introduced and the company under the direction of Mr. Reid travelled through and visited the prominent cities of France via a lantern lecture. These slides accompanied by Mr. Reid's vast knowledge of the cities and not infrequent humorous accounts of experiences in them made the evening a very pleasant one. Miss Phyllis May rendered a beautiful solo after which the pastor closed with prayer.

Beauty .... By Helen Jameson

Slenderizing The Waist Line

They're all making for the waistline having a race, as it were. With skirts kindly and concealing, legs are nothing to worry about. With summer done for and autumn arriving in all its red and golden splendor, don't slacken in the terribly much, they'll be pretty well sleeved from now on. But waists my dears, they are the same old problem. And fashion says never more for fat pos. Fashion says curve where you will but be ready for the middle. And it's that middle we mean when we talk about the middle aged shape.

These discouraging sessions with the tape measure! Every woman who jogs up the scales about 130 is friendly with the tape measure. How satisfying it would be to slip off the listbes, to total a neat twenty-four without having to hold your breath and look like a famine victim.

A trim waistline a woman must have, why—why—eating or sleeping. Those that have the outcurves—instead of the incurves must buckle down to hard work. They've got to take tucks in their tissues and make muscles elastic, or else coming winter is not going to be a red letter season for them. And the slims won't mind getting slimmer-ed. They never do.

Here's a good bending exercise that's a huge improvement on the old one of touching the floor without bending the knees. Bending of course is the silhouette ticket. But bend as the hip. Hips are hinges. Bending at the waist line defeats the purpose.

Palm these instructions on your looking glass. They will remind you. And whenever you see the reminder, get busy and DO.

Take the soldiers' position, chest and chin up hips back. Clasp hands, fingers pointed downward. Bend. Touch the floor just in front of the toes, but keep the legs rigid. Swing to the right until you fingers are on a line with your right heel. If you're still on your feet, swing to the left, touching the left heel. Back to toes again. Lift hand above the head, rest, repeat.

Whatever movement twists and turns the muscles of the torso will help acquire adipose tissue and train muscle to keep as much as possible.

Here's an easy ooh which might be called swaying with the wind—in case you have a yen for naming things.

Stand erect, hands clasped high over the head. Swing forward and slightly, then do a back swing keeping the hands high. The big point is to stretch the body away from the hips, you don't have to stretch your legs, although it is rather inspiring to come up on your toes and down again. Always keep the head lifting below the floating ribs, it will knock it galley-west.

The president, Miss Mills, opened the meeting with a song service after which Mrs. Ross Rev. W. R. Merrick for prayer. Miss Myrtle Johns then read the Scripture Lesson taken from the 105th Psalm. The President asked the pastor to take charge of special programme prepared for the evening which consisted of a delightful solo by Miss Jean Pope, followed by a piano duet and reading by Mrs. Don Williams on the subject "Is it Possible by Being Thankful for what we have, to be free from fretfulness over what we have not". A very sweet duet was rendered by Mrs. Irving Bell and Master Caleb Garrion, accompanied by their mother, Mrs. Geo. Garrion on the piano. Then followed a most interesting and educational address by Rev. Mr. Brown who has recently returned from a mission field in the Belgian Congo. He is a very able and most interesting speaker. In his address on the customs of the Egyptians today, with many stories of the survival of many ancient customs and beliefs which are common to the Egyptian mode of living, marriage, burial and their fear of the evil eye. He also spoke on the ancient customs of the dress anil customs worn by the well to do people, as well as the poor people in Egypt and also showed a great number of very interesting articles in common use among people. He entertained by singing in costume a hymn in the native language which was very much enjoyed. At the close of the address Mr. Brown explained that his chief object in addressing gatherings was to create more interest in Foreign Missionary Work. Mr. Roy Pound moved a very hearty vote of thanks, seconded by Mr. Palmer Phillips on behalf of the Y.P.S. to Mr. Brown for his delightful missionary message. This was very enthusiastically endorsed by all present. The meeting closed with a thanksgiving hymn and prayer by the pastor.

HOW TO FIND THE ANSWER

It is said that before the famous painters were about to start their masterpieces they consulted a physician to find out the exact temperament of their trip. "I want to know," he told her, "if our venture is going to be a success." The oracle obligingly told us," replied the old woman, who forthwith proceeded to lay the cards on the table. Now there are five things to be found in the picture and the fortune cards seem right here to give a report. So I have laid the cards in five rows, each row spelling the name of the thing you must look for. The cards are shuffled. After the cards were all laid out the aviator examined anxiously. "Why, there we are!" he exclaimed, pointing to the five things necessary to win. "And the cards," replied the old woman, "said we will succeed."

"You see," said the fortune teller, "each row of cards spells out the name of the thing and the same letter of that word. For example, if a card is the Ace, or anything else, of spades (Chloe, Hearts, Diamonds, or Spades) that card represents A or C. If the card is a two-spot, it represents B or L, and so on. Now, you see, Colette, you must spell out the names of the five things you must have to successfully fly the ocean, and if you can read them in the right order you will be awarded

Ed. To help you a bit the second word is TRUE. Now you have your puzzle. The solution is

Quebec, Oct. 6—Adelarde Gingras was in hospital today after saving his eight-year-old daughter, Fernande, from burning to death last night when his home caught fire.

Gingras was removing paint from a downstair window when the gasoline torch he was using exploded and set fire to the lower part of the house. Fernande was asleep upstairs and with the flames already starting upward, he climbed up a pole along the front of the house and climbed into a window. With the child in his arms he jumped to the pavement, repeating slight injuries. The house was completely destroyed.

FRONT ROAD LADIES' AID

The October meeting of the Front Road Ladies' Aid was held on Thursday afternoon, October 5th, at the home of Mrs. Shelly Anderson, with a splendid attendance.

The afternoon was spent in making quilt blocks, continuing the work started last month.

The president, Mrs. S. Snider, then called the meeting to order when a short service was held, opened by singing "Stand Up, Stand Up, for Jesus" with Mrs. Ed. Reid, Brown at the piano and followed by the Lord's Prayer repeated in unison.

Mrs. Noble Brown read the Scripture lesson, the 8th chapter of the Gospel according to St. John. The secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Doris Reid, read the minutes of the September meeting and gave an itemized account of the receipts and disbursements of the pie social held on the preceding Tuesday evening under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid and in connection with the 60th anniversary of the church. The receipts amounted to over $32, which, after deducting the expenses left a balance of $26.40.

Roll Call followed, the members responding to a verse of Scripture, containing the word "love." There were 18 members and one child a few visitors.

Mrs. Snider invited the Aid to be hostess for the November meeting when the Scripture responses for the roll call are to contain the word "peace."

Collection was taken and the meeting closed by singing "Bringing in the Sheaves" and the Mizpah Benediction.

The hostess then served a very dainty lunch assisted by Mrs. Ed. Reid, Mrs. H. Greatrix, Mrs. N. Brown and Mrs. Snider, and a social half hour was enjoyed by all.

CONSUMPTION ON INCREASE

outlay. Fifty municipalities in this limited year of the depression have been given rebates to the extent of $250,000. Because of legislation in this third year of the depression have decreased their rates to the consumer. In the years 1930-31-32-33, Hydro has increased its own reserves by $18,000,000. This is an amazing accomplishment which should silence those who speak of great public ownership organization. It should be gratifying that the Commission has been able, during this period, to decrease the average cost of power.

From time to time, declared the Attorney-General, there have been criticism about the power Hydro had bought for the purpose of making sure that Ontario's needs were well provided for a period of years. There no doubt, be added, would be other points of criticism of administration.

Pay Day Months Late

Chicago, Oct. 7—(CP)—Pay day for Chicago's employes is just a bit late but appreciated. For the—work they did during the first two weeks of July the city's treasury will divide approximately $1,900,000 among themselves next Wednesday.

MOTOR LICENCE VENDOR COLLECTS OLD PLATES

Seventeen Plates, Dating From 1911 Have Been Assembled

Numerous hobbies have been reported through and breadth of the county but, a new, interesting pastime has been unearthed by George Ketcheson, local vendor of motor licences. Mr. Ketcheson is today the proud possessor of 17 Ontario motor car licences all bearing a different year mark.

The earliest licence plate marker, that has been collected by Mr. Ketcheson is one of 1911 and then he has one of 1913 and another of 1916, while the remainder date from 1920 to 1933. Taking into consideration that Mr. Ketcheson first conceived the idea but a few weeks ago, and has fully enquired into the whereabouts of local motor licences of an ancient date, his collection is rapidly increasing.

With the exception of the 1911 licence plate marker, all of them are practically alike, the same material as used today. The 1911 plate however, was manufactured from a fair heavier and more substantial metal than is used today. The plate was enamelled thickly but appeared as though the manufacturing proved either impractical or too expensive as the idea was abandoned by the Highway Department in 1912 and the present system of paint and lacquer adopted.

SULPHUR WELLS RUN DRY

Simcoe, Oct. 7.—One of Simcoe's important landmarks, a sulphur well which for several decades has attracted scores of persons believing in the efficiency of the water, this week dried up. The well was drilled years ago by a company seeking gas, the sulphur water being found at a depth of about 1,100 feet. Cause for the cessation of flow is given as the water drilling operations of a local industrial concern which is believed to have tapped the supply.

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE BELLE

Will Rogers comes to the Belle today in his latest picture, "Doctor Bull." It is the screen presentation of the famous novel by James Gould Cozzens, "The Last Adam," best-seller and recent Book-of-the-Month selection. It is reported as the most appealing picture the popular philosopher-comedian has had on the talking screen.

The story concerns a physician in a small town who, in addition to ministering to the health of the community, acts as its unofficial father confessor. None of the town's secrets escapes him. He knows the inner life of every one of its inhabitants. But it is not as a gossip that he finds himself interested in the private lives of the villagers. He is a mellow gentleman whom everyone's reactions are an interesting bit of human document.

The film does not present the story of one character. Like "State Fair" the last of the Rogers screen plays, it deals with many characters, each typical of its kind. It is more than the story of one town. For it is the story of thousands of similar towns all over the country.

Vera Allen, star of the New York stage, has the leading feminine role opposite Rogers. She was specially engaged for this role, and advance reports of her performance have been so favorable that she is considered destined for a brilliant career in pictures. Others in the cast are Marian Nixon, Howard Lally, Berton Churchill, Louise Dresser, Andy Devine, Rochelle Hudson, Tempe Pigott, Elizabeth Patterson, Hobart Bosworth, Paggy Wood, O'Byrne and Helen Freeman.

Dix in Lovers Role

The perennially popular Richard Dix and his latest film "No Marriage Ties" is the second feature offering on the same program in which stars him once more as a ladies' heart-breaker and business man's bane-breaker.

It is the favorite Richard Dix in "No Marriage Ties", dashing, smiling, virile he-man soul. His infectious smile, restraining forcefulness and magnetic personality are in harmony with an interesting woven theme.

Elizabeth Allen lends a spirit and charm to a splendid depiction to the early romantic sequences. Her sex English beauty makes a lively contrast to the serene picture portrayed by lovely Doris Yeuyen in the society woman.

Laurel-Hardy Comedy

The scream team of the screen, Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy are appearing on the same program in their latest side-splitting comedy, "Twice Two."

Charlie Chan" Next.

The character of Charlie Chan, Chinese-Hawaiian detective, is one of the most popular on the screen. Motion picture audiences have followed his career through such successful pictures in the past as "Charlie Chan's Chance," "The Black Camel" and "Charlie Chan Carries On". Now his latest adventures are to be depicted on the screen of the Belle, commencing Tuesday, where "Charlie Chan's Greatest Case" is to be shown. Warner Oland has the feature part, with Heather Angel cast in the leading feminine role. Thrills and laughs galore are offered mystery fans, formerly co-starring Ralph Lynn and Tom Wallis.

AT THE CAPITOL

Headed by Warren William, a splendid cast was assembled for "Lady Killer," at the Columbia picture adapted from the Damon Runyon story, "Madame La Gimp," showing Wednesday next for four days at the Capitol Theatre. May Robson, "Grand Old Lady of the American Stage," plays the role of "Apple Annie."

The story deals with an old apple-woman who conceals her wares in the metropolitan theatrical district, and, unknown to her associates is supporting a daughter in school in Spain. She is giving her child the impression that she is wealthy and socially prominent, and has a splendid husband.

Suddenly she learns the daughter is on her way to America, with a young Count who wants to marry her, and the count's father, of the Spanish nobility. "Apple Annie" appeals for aid from her friends, the most conspicuous figures of the White Light district. They rally to her rescue.

"The Dude," a gambler, borrows a rich man's apartment and installs Annie in it. "Missouri," a night-club hostess, has the apple-woman beautified. It is necessary for her to have a temporary husband, so "Judge Blake," a pool-shark, is pressed into service.

After a series of hilarious happenings, the masquerade works out perfectly. The Spanish nobles accept all of Annie's pretensions and take the daughter back with them for a magnificent wedding in their ancestral home.

Warren William, fresh from triumphs in half a dozen Warner successes, plays "The Dude." Glenda Farrell, brilliant young comedienne, plays "Missouri," a night club hostess. Bald rotund Guy Kibbee, who shone in "42nd Street" and many other pictures, is cast as "Judge Blake," the husband for a day, and Ned Sparks is "Happy," a "dumb sidekick" for "The Dude."

Frank Capra, Columbia's ace director, whose last picture was the artistic "Bitter Tea of General Yen," directed the picture. He was responsible for many of the company's greatest successes, including "American Madness," "Platinum Blonde," "Dirrigible" and "Submarine."

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was pushing crooked things straight at the breakfast table, crooked and pop was looking at the evening paper, saying, "Ain't it something I'd like to have around the house, this sounds good, listen to this."

Meening a savertisement, and he started to read it out loud, saying, The Merfy Marvel, combination hammer, saw, screw driver, chisle, pliers and munkey wench all in one handy tool.

Now Willyum dont tell me you're going to send for something like I never saw before, I'm sick to savertisements, you just seem to go bound hand and foot for anything your eye lites on, ma said, and pop said, that's really exceptional, listen.

And he kept on reeding it, saying With the Merfy Marvel always ready and waiting, it is a real pleasure to repair your house in order. That loose shelf, that Wobbly chair, the irritating drip-drip of that leaky tap, a few moments of spare time and the Merfy Marvel to lend its willing aid, and everything is shipshape in the twinkling of an eye. Ten days free trial, send no money unless you're satisfied. Well I couldn't lose anything on that deel, pop said.

Ma looked at the broken chair that shaky leg on the dining room table, Benny will bring you all the tools you need and stand there and hold them for you, so the effect will be just as cod as a Merfy Marvel, Do it like away while you think of it, Willyum, she said, and pop said, I'm not the one that's thinking of it, I mean, yes gosh, tomorrow or some time.

But G. ma, the carpenters fixed that leg yestiday when he was here dont you remember you told him so? I said, and ma said, Hee hee.

Proving she just wanted to prove pop wouldn't use a Merfy Marvel if he had one.

Warner Oland plays his most famous role of Charlie Chan depicting the latest adventures of that charming detective, "Charlie Chan's Greatest Case", coming to the Belle, Tuesday.

COLORS, CASH AND COURAGE NEEDED FOR RACING STABLE

But Picking Out Stable Colors Would Drive Owner Crazy But for "Color Genius" of Toronto Woman—Knows "A Il" Colors Left

By ARCHIBALD NEWMAN

Thundering hoofs kerplikit-kerplokit down the straightaway. A mad scramble at the last turn, two hundred thousand eyes strain to catch a fleeting glimpse of bobbing colors glistening in the sun above the fence rail.

A flash of gold as the favorite takes the lead, white dotted gold-jacketed rider bursts from the melee close on his heels.

"They both have gold blouses, which is which?" excitedly gasps the fair racing fan as she clutches at the arm of her ruddy-cheeked escort.

"The one with the Alice blue sleeves and cap is Queensway, owned by Cowie, and the other one, which you notice has what they call dark blue hoops and an alternately light and dark blue quartered cap, is Skyrazer, owned by R. S. Mc-Laughlin," patiently explains the old Timer.

"Hoo-ray!" she shouts as she jumps up and down hugging her small fists in the small of his back. "He's won! Wowie, that was a close shave!"

"Now what was that you were telling me about the colors?" she asks sweetly after she has recovered from her excitement. "Do tell me all about it. I'd like to know what they have colors for, and oh! all about them!"

With just the slightest hint of a bored expression on his face he turns to look into the blue, blue depths of her beautiful eyes.

"Yes, indeed, the colors," he ejaculates, as he suddenly recollects that this is his niece, and that he is the "reprobale old uncle." "Well, let's begin at the beginning," he remarks, "and suppose that you are going to start up a racing stable. Now the first thing you have to have, next to a horse, and plenty of spare cash, is a set of racing colors. For not only must you have those colors to identify your horses, but, unless you obtain permission you must use these colors all the time.

Colors Must Be Distinctive.

"Now you might go ahead and pick out what you would think would be a smart combination of colors, say red, white and blue, or what have you, and if you're racing your horses on the big Ontario tracks, you take your color to Mrs. C. Casserly, secretary of the Independent Canadian Racing Association in Toronto.

"She looks up your choice in her little book, and, if nobody else has ever decided on the same colors, everything is hunky-dory. You pay your money, and your colors are advertised to the executive of the I.C.R.A., and everything is run—unless the executive happens to disapprove of your choice.

"And, oh yes," he continued as he saw she was about to interrupt, "You'd be surprised how many selections can be raised to your idea of a nifty set of racing colors, apart from the fact that they are flattering on somebody else's choice. So that your horse may not be confused with some other steed, you have to choose colors that can be seen at a distance, and that are not apt to fade off into a close resemblance to other colors.

"That's not so difficult a matter, in Canada, but in the United States where there are thousands of horses registered it's mighty difficult to pick out something different. Even here with nearly every large stable owning their colors for life, it's not such an easy matter to get a really smart set of colors chosen. And that's where Miss Casserly comes in.

"With the aid of a dictionary and a woman's eye for color, she is always ready to give of her time and experience in helping prospective stable owners to make a suitable choice.

Don't Pick Maple Leaf.

"But just in case you never want to start a stable, there's a little tip. Don't pick on a maple leaf for part of your color design. There are ten chances already, done in brown, yellow, gold, silver, green—nearly every shade of green, and don't you choose an 'all' color, that is, jacket and cap of all green, all blue, all red, or what not. There are practically none of the 'all' colors left, so if you do, and in New York they say there are none at all."

His blue-eyed companion began to look restless and made as if to interrupt him, "But, Uncle Archie, you're going to ask me," he rattled on. "You're wondering what they do when they run more than one horse of the same stable in the same race. Well, that's easy. They change the caps. For instance Seagram's, whose colors are black with a yellow sash, use a black cap for their first entry, red for their second and if they have a third they use green.

"I was talking to Charlie Eames' Ayres the other day on the subject, and he told me that the most beautiful set of colors he ever saw were those of the Foshead Mews stable from the States. While with a gold foxhead on the back, they certainly made a striking appearance when the horses were paraded in front of the grandstand.

"In England and France they go in for more elaborate colors and designs than anything you'll ever see over here. They use braids across the breast of the jacket with frogs like you see on pyjamas. Very beautiful they are.

"Oh, how smart!" she exclaimed as she turned her glance away from the young man standing in picturesque pose on the grass area in front of her. "Now what was it you said about how the horses got their colors?"

MAJOR LEAGUE HOCKEY STAR MAY BE BIG TIME PITCHER

Leroy Goldsworthy, Winnipeg's Star Hurler, Plays His Hockey With Detroit Red Wings— Offered Try-Out With Major League Club

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

Leroy Goldsworthy, who travelled the long and torturous road that eventually led to stardom with the Detroit Red Wings, is engaged in a similar race with a birth in a major league baseball pitching staff as the goal of his desire.

In other words "Goldie" aims to create a record of being the only big time puck-chaser ever to break into the exclusive ranks of Class A baseball.

He's on his way now, quite content to spend as many years as were required to land him in the front rank of hockeydom.

For "Goldie" has just finished his first season in organized baseball as a pitcher with the Winnipeg Maroons of the Northern Baseball League, and by virtue of his fine performance is considered to be of major league calibre. Several American and National league scouts have looked him over this year, but Byron Hean, former major pitcher, who owns the Winnipeg club, is not ready to part with his star flinger. He wants to build a winning corps around him next season, which will elevate his team into the play-offs, instead of the second place they finished this year.

Roy not only wound up the season as the set of Uncle Byron's starting corps, but he topped all pitchers in the seven-team circuit with 22 wins against six losses. Unfortunately for the league records, he's not indicated earned run averages.

Hails From Edmonton.

The Northern Baseball league was revived this year, after a lapse of 12 years. Seven teams, viz: Glenn Vitic., owned and managed by Jimmy Mosill, the former Chicago White Sox star, Superior, Wis., Pappadeonats, East Grand Forks, Crookston, Winnipeg and Brandon, played a split season. Superior won the first half and will play Brandon for the league title.

Not only did Goldsworthy prove himself a good hurler, but during the early part of the campaign he was a formidable batsman as well. On the opening day he got four for four and hit at a .350 clip until the season was over, considerably off his fall to a batting slump, from which he emerged only momentarily, to finish the season around .285.

Born in Two Harbors, Minnesota, Goldsworthy was left in Edmonton as a child, where he received all his schooling, as far as his talent in hockey and baseball. He started out to be a catcher, but switched early and found his true place on the mound.

It was not until this spring that Goldsworthy seriously considered baseball as a summer livelihood. When he became a professional hockey player in 1927 the ranks of amateur sport were closed to him as he played with semi-pro teams in baseball tournaments in Alberta during the summer.

By Lee Patrick.

This spring he learned the old northern league was to be revived, so he wrote to Bruno Haas in St. Paul, asking for a tryout. Haas replied that the only course open to him was to hop a train for St. Paul and show what he could do. Goldsworthy's performance satisfied Haas that he had a pitcher in the making.

Goldsworthy broke into professional hockey in 1926 with the old Western Canada league. Lester Patrick bought him for the New York Rangers and farmed him out to Springfield in the Canadian-American league for experience. Patrick's scouts, however, had overlooked good enough for active company the following year.

"Goldie" reaches the heights of major league baseball he will be the first puck-chaser to do so. "Babe" Ruth, the old Toronto sharpshooter, advanced as far as the International league, but his hopes were dashed by Jack Dunn on fire a year Jack Adams of the Detroit Red Wings handed him and purchased him in the middle of the 1930-31 season. He finished that season with the Olympics in the International league, but was considered

TO TRY AGAIN FOR STRATOSPHERE ALTITUDE RECORD

Lieut.-Commander T. G. W. Settle, well-known navy balloonist, plans a second attempt to reach the stratosphere from the Chicago world's fair in an effort to surmount the height record of 11 miles, 1,405 yards (62,335 feet) set by three Russian scientists, Prof. Geo. Prokofiev, Ernest Brinbaum and C. D. Godunow. The new mark of the Russians is more than a mile higher than the distance attained in the flight of Prof. Auguste Piccard, Belgian scientist and the first man to reach the stratosphere. Settle's first attempt ended when his balloon failed to keep altitude.

By FRANK R. ADAMS

The unnerving silence of sheltered repression was clasped down upon the clearing like a pall.

Still communicating by signs Tommy motioned Vern to wait. He should enter the house.

With a murmured prayer for good luck Vern mounted the rickety steps and passed through the front door which was held open by the old obsequious servitor.

The door was panelled black and bronze, colored glass panels with a formal design in the center and over there was a skylight with leaded sections.

Inside was a spacious hall apparently entirely surrounded by doors most of them closed and up from the deep well of which sweep a long, wide stairway flanked by a broad slightly carved walnut balustrade terminated at the bottom in a newel post which had once supported a lamp now long since relegated to the lash heap one gathered that at present the hall was not illuminated at night.

Vernon passed through — it was what was apparently a drawing room. At any rate it was ornamented by a French eighteenth century doll length console an assortment of decayed furniture and a marble fireplace which are the accustomed trappings of Victorian formal magnificence.

On two of the chairs sat Warner Ferguson and his daughter.

For a moment a look of startled surprise crossed their faces fleetingly when Vernon murmured "How do you do?" but that was all. Apparently they had composed themselves for almost anything and the shock of seeing him in his native clothes did not upset them beyond a quick recovery.

Vern though that he detected a slight shade of the head on Jessie's part as if she deprecated the rash attempt and wishes to assure him that there was no hope of saving her.

"I trust I can of some real service to you Miss Ferguson", Vern began in what he thought was a pretty fair imitation of a clergyman's unctuousness.

Irene seemed born between a desire to laugh and an almost tearful despair.

A tapping at the door arrested Vern's alienating and ogled Irene's herself just as she was about to speak.

CHAPTER 22

The source of the taps was obvious. "Dummy" Squales himself stood there in the open portal rapping on a panel. His face had the measured irregularity of the telegraph code. Vern could read it like as well as anyone but he thought it best not to admit that. It was an accomplishment not apt to have been taught in a theological seminary.

Irene inhabited it anyway, "Mr. Squales wants me to tell you why you have been brought ashore. It is for the purpose of performing the marriage service which will unite him and myself as man and wife."

Vern of course had known all along what was expected of him. But the statement of Miss Irene's made his aimed more than he could bear. She seemed so hopeless and worn down by the weight of the responsibility that rested upon her that it clawed at his heart to witness her distress to contemplate the endlessness of the ordeal through which she seemed about to plunge.

It was in a measure a relief to that he was there although he did not know just what he could do for her. His mind cast about frantically for some expedient to extricate her trouble or at least to delay the climax temporarily until help might arrive from outside.

"A marriage service" he inquired in mock surprise. "Are you sure you wish to marry this man?"

Irene inclined her head. "Quite sure."

"And you her father are you prepared to give her away?" He asked the usual formal question of Mr. Ferguson sitting over there very on the other side of the room.

"I am unable to do so" the gentleman started out and then at the signal of a tap on the door wilted. "Yes I suppose I must."

Vern's mind sparred for time. "Your mother is dead I suppose?"

"Yes, for many years."

"You have no other guardian?"

"None."

"You have a license I presume." This was a masterly touch. Vern had just thought of it. Perhaps he could delay the ceremony a few days today visited the mainland for a license.

"I don't know," Irene began but was interrupted by a series of laps almost like mechanical laughter.

Vern looked at "Dummy". The latter produced from the left breast pocket of his coat a soiled slip of paper which he handed to Irene. Vern read it. It purported to be a certificate of marriage issued by the county clerk.

"Apparently your husband to be has thought of everything", Vern told Irene with despairing mock admiration. "Where is the minister supposed to take place?"

"Right aboard ship", Irene faltered.

Vern felt like a trapped animal. This thing that he had done seemed as useless now. It was quite true that any marriage that he might perform between Irene and this ruffian would be illegal but he had placed himself in a position where he simply could not refuse to act.

And yet he must not go ahead. No man could marry Irene if that man he loved into the predicament which Irene was facing.

"I am going to return to the yacht for my Bible," he began weakly. "Of course when I came ashore I did not realize—"

The tap, tap, tap. The message finished Irene translated it. "There is a Bible here."

"Dummy" indicated to Krebs that the latter should go and get the Holy Book. The servant returned presently with a large gilt-edged Bible which he placed on a marble topped table by the window.

Vern took the position behind the table which memory prompted him was the location assigned to the presiding clergyman.

Irene got up and came toward him. "Dummy" took his position by her side and Mr. Ferguson stood back of Irene.

With a sense of elation Vern noted

OFFERS CHOICE MATURITIES IN NEW LOAN

Oversubscription Expected Within Short Time

OFFERED TUESDAY

Official Announcement of Details Not Given as Yet

Ottawa, Oct. 7.—Backed by the best security in the country—the credit of the Dominion of Canada—a choice of two-year bonds yielding about 3.75 per cent., six-year bonds at 4.20 per cent., and 12-year bonds at about 4.35 per cent., will be laid before the investing public on Tuesday morning when the Dominion Government opens its $225,000,000 refunding loan campaign.

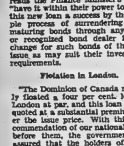
Postal clerks hurry back and forth between Parliament Hill and the post office as government officials got under way their huge task of mailing out the $250,000 forms which must be ready in every part of the country when the first subscriber makes his application on Tuesday morning. To 3,700 branch banks and 450 head offices, ranged from coast to coast, the forms were despatched, weary bundles being timed to reach its destination no sooner and no later than the opening gun of the big drive on Tuesday.

Official announcement of details of the loan was withheld until the publication of the prospectuses now going out to the 5,000 selling depots but it was understood here that the yields would be from 3.70 to 4.25 per cent. With two, six and 12-year maturities offered, it was considered that the investor was being given a generous choice of terms.

Bondholders Appealed To.

Holders of the $170,000,000 Victory bonds due on Nov. 1, to whom the main force of the drive is being directed, are being sent an appeal by Hon. Edgar N. Rhodes, Minister of Finance, to accept one of the new maturities for their present bonds. A letter from Mr. Rhodes was timed to reach these investors on Tuesday, being enclosed with the first interest cheque on these bonds.

Contrary to the general impression that the securities, which are income tax free, are largely held by the banks, it was pointed out here that there are no less than 221,000 registered holders, each of whom will receive Mr. Rhodes' special letter. These forms, it was stated, are to be found in all parts of the country.



In his letter to the bondholders, Mr. Rhodes explains that the loan was primarily to meet the issue held by them due on November 1, and to retire treasury notes or $40,000,000.

"Holders of the 5 per cent. bonds due 1933, of which you are one, needs the Finance Minister's letter, "have it within their power to make this new loan a success by the simple procedure of surrendering their maturing bonds through any bank or recognized dealer in exchange for such bonds of the new issue as may suit their investment requirements.

Flotation in London.

"The Dominion of Canada recently floated a loan for cent. bonds in London at par, and this loan is now quoted on the substantial premium on the issue price. With this high commendation of our national credit before them, the government is assured that the holders of 1933's will be quick to recognize that the conversion privilege which is now about to be offered is in accordance with the general trend of interest rates and that the present bondholder of Dominion of Canada bonds who has the welfare of the country at heart will clearly see the refunding operation which is requisite in the interest of our country, will in the long run prove beneficial to the interests of the bondholder.

"Accordingly the government makes its appeal to all holders of November 1, 1933, bonds to accept swiftly and gladly the offer about to be made for the exchange of their bonds into a new Dominion of Canada security, public announcement of which will be officially made on October 10."

COUNTY NEWS

INCE again with the arrival of autumn the whole countryside is transformed into a series of gorgeous pictures of vivid colouring. Although the turning of the leaves sounds the death knell of summer, autumn is kind and autumn is fair in all its brilliancy.

All signs point to the advent of the fall season. The call of the hunter echoes from the woods and the staccato crack of the rifle and boom of the shot gun ring out through the clear air. Even the small animals respond to the urge of the season and may be seen scurrying here and there storing up their supplies for the coming winter. The artist appreciative of the natural beauty of fall scenery hurries to take advantage of the season before it closes, for the time is not long till the splendour of the trees in their mantles of gold and crimson will be gone, not to return until another year has passed. The imagination of the poet is stirred by the rapidly changing season and the philosopher becomes inspired with new thoughts.

The northland is calling and Canada with its vast recreational attractions invites the visitor from other lands to participate in the activities of the season. The national and provincial parks are never more beautiful than in the fall of the year when the lavish hand of nature bestows upon them the irresistible charms of autumn. Vacationists are beginning to realize more each year the advantages of an autumn holiday when the traffic is light upon the highways and the more popular summer resorts are less congested. This is indicated by the large number of requests for road maps and other literature directed to the National Parks of Canada of the Department of the Interior, a governmental office at Ottawa, Canada, which supplies information to prospective visitors to that country. While much has been written of autumn in Canada, only personal experience can one truly appreciate the spirit of the season's revels at their height and cannot adequately describe the thrill of its magic spell.

MOLASSES FOR LIVE STOCK SOLD BY LOCAL FIRM

Of special interest to farmers and dairymen is the announcement of Maclennie & Co. to act as local sales agent for W.I.B. Molasses.

Maclennie & Co. have found no introduction to the grain and feed trade and is interesting their new line and feel they are meeting a need that has been for a long time.

Pure cane molasses is nothing new as a stock food, but owing to its former high price has not been in general use. Recently the Dominion West Indy Molasses Co. Ltd. has succeeded in arranging a system of distribution that permits of this valuable feed being sold at a very moderate price.

Farmers and husbandry experts have found that it is pure cane molasses, economically and profitably be fed to all classes of live stock, and that it is specially useful to make roughage and other coarse feeds palatable. Also due to its mineral content, that it is of considerable value in promoting growth and prevent anemia.

Their son, played by Jackie Cooper, grows up and joins the act. Later this son is played by Skeets Hardie. He marries Madge Evans, and the story is then brought up to modern days with the action centering on the grandchildren who becomes a Hollywood star. The silent star shows the old grandfather teaching his errant grandson that the first grave of vaudeville. It then goes down time to the reign of Lillian Russell with "Diamond" Jim Brady gleaming from a theatre box, and shows three generations of "troupers" marching proudly down the years.

STONES, BOTTLES FLY AT STRIKEBREAKERS

Three Arrests Follow Disorders in Toronto Before Picture Plant

Claim Made Some Employees Paid Only Ten Cents an Hour

"REDS" BLAMED

Police Guard Breakers in And Out of Factory

Toronto, Oct. 10 (CP)—Three men were arrested when police broke up a missile-tossing mob in front of the National Picture Framing and Art Company plant at Richmond and Walmut streets today.

When a truckload of alleged strike breakers was being taken to the factory, one hundred strike sympathizers began hurling stones and bottles at the truck's occupants and blocking entrance to the plant. Mounted police took action and no one was reported seriously hurt.

More than twenty women were included in the gathering of strikers. Several of them were reported struck by stones thrown by giber strikers.

A company official said the employees went on strike last Friday, under direction of the Workers' Unity League, the same organization that sponsored the walk-out of agriculture workers at Stratford more than three weeks ago.

John Lees, league organizer, said some of the workers were receiving only ten cents an hour.

Strike Breakers Stoned.

A second load of strike-breakers came. These also were accorded by the police intervened and eight or nine got into the building, strikers were waiting outside for them to come out, it was reported. The police lent these men a hand to get more strikes are due in Toronto early today, but will not state at what factories.

The picketers are patrolling the sidewalks around the factory and crowds of them are in reserve in nearby buildings. They carried sticks, their necks cardboard signs, headed "we are on strike".

"Red agitators are responsible for the strike," M. A. Aldridge, manager, said. "Two young men who came to work for us within the last two weeks have been stirring up trouble among our employees, some of whom have been working for us for thirty years.

Wages Paid At Issue.

"We have about sixty employees," he went on. "Their wages have been from 15 to 18 years of age, who are earning 10 or 11 cents an hour. Two men earn 45 cents an hour, five earn 17 cents, five earn 18 cents, five earn 25 cents, twenty earn 25 to 75 cents and the remainder are girls, two of them office workers and one in the picture frame department. I cannot understand why our employees should adopt such an attitude. We have been paying the highest possible under present conditions."

Twelve strike-breakers entered the building under police escort, the manager said and are now being employed. It is expected today that will guard them when they leave the building.

It was reported that on a complaint laid by an outside person recently, the minimum wage department investigated the plant and found by the three girl employees, and ruled that they were receiving a fair wage.

ODDITIES IN THE NEWS

Ada, Okla., Oct. 10 (CP) — If Judas had created a trust fund, of one dollar and interest at four per cent. had been compounded annually and allowed to accumulate, the estate today would be worth $10,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000 —John N. Cameron, Northwestern State Teachers College Mathematician, figured it out.

Chicago, Oct. 10 (CP)—Apparently Charles C. Bilzner is the kind of man who takes your pet in his work. He testified before Federal Judge James H. They had more silver in them than the new ones the mint issues and the design was just as pretty." Result, years in prison was the court's way of making answer.

STEEL ORDERS 114,704 TONS DOWN IN SEPT.

New Low Level in Backlog Reached by U. S. Steel

NRA CODE

Drop Compares With Small Gain in Sept., 1932

New York, Oct. 10 (AP)—Unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation decreased 114,704 tons in September to a total of 3,173,142 tons at the end of the month, the corporation announced today. In August the backlog was down 129,681 tons.

The September decline brought the backlog to a new low mark since figures have been published.

Some Wall Street quarters expected a decrease but it was thought the drop would be moderate because of slightly improved buying during the latter week of last month.

Steel trade circles point out that the industry's code may be expected to benefit because the penalty is imposed now on buyers who cancel orders. The code also was adopted the steel companies allowed purchasers to withdraw freely from their commitments.

The September tonnage compares with the previous month when the 941,002 tons as of March 31, 1933, when the present policy began. The Corporation's backlog changes in September have been irregular. There was a small increase last year.

Doctors More Concerned with Human Values Than Financial, Says Expert

Chicago, Oct. 10 (AP) —The American College of Surgeons turned to a study of cancer today after hearing the retiring president, Dr. J. Bentley Squier of New York, voice an attack upon any attempt to socialize the medical profession.

Any major change in medical economics should be opposed, he said, and then declared that the profession is "more concerned with human than financial values." despite a report of the committee on the cost of medical care which declared it cost the public more to be sick than it could afford.

The other speakers at yraterday's opening sessions of the annual convention, Dr. William H. Walsh, Chicago, and Robert, Jolly, Houston, Texas, hospital superintendent, favored the group hospitalization plan, entitling members to Hospital care, if needed, upon payment of an an nulment fee.

52 MILLIONS SUBSCRIBED BY NOON TODAY

Full Day's Subscriptions Likely to Touch 75 Millions

BLOCKS TAKEN

Railway Chiefs Voice Optimism as to Loan Results

Ottawa, Oct. 10 (CP)—While the official total of the day's subscriptions to the $225,000,000 Dominion refunding loan cannot be computed until a late hour tonight, the known total of conversion subscriptions at noon today was $52,000,000.

With this total already in, the belief was expressed in financial circles that the full day's subscriptions might total as high as $75,000,000.

Loan headquarters here announced that heavy subscriptions had been received from all the Canadian banks closing, and that advices had received this morning included: Imperial Oil, Ltd., $2,000,000; Canada and Dominion Sugar Company, Ltd., Chatham, $500,000; Confederation Life Association, $1,000,000; Standard Brands of Canada, Ltd., $500,000; Canadian Order of Foresters, Brantford, $200,00; Robin Hood Mills, $100,000.

Response Satisfactory.

The early response to the loan was regarded here as highly satisfactory. It confirmed the feeling of confidence as to the loan's complete success, an official statement said.

From R. W. Beasley, president of the Canadian Bankers' Association, and H. Hungerford, acting president of the Canadian National, came words of optimism as to the response.

Mr. Beatty said:

"The substantial total of early subscriptions so far refunding loan indicates that this important undertaking is to meet the prompt and complete success which has been hoped for and expected. I should think that very few of the bond holders will neglect to exchange their maturing bonds for the new issue. I know of no other step they can take which offers them such definite advantages both from an investment point of view and as a matter of individual welfare which every Canadian will share."

Mr. Hungerford commented as follows:

Liberal.

"The splendid public reception of the refunding loan in the first hours of the campaign is good news to every Canadian. It is of course not surprising that Victory bond owners are taking advantage of the opportunity to continue their satisfactory investment at the moderate rate, to render an important national service but it is encouraging to know that their response is so prompt as to constitute very striking demonstration of public confidence. The complete success of the loan will be an important contribution to the national economy and a definite factor in continued business recovery."

PERSONS WITH INCOME NEED NOT LOOK FOR RELIEF JOBS

Those on Relief And Needy Unemployed Only to be Given Work

MUST PROVE NEED

The system under which unemployed in the city are being allotted work under the relief program, which commenced in the city on Tuesday morning last, was outlined by Mayor Tice and officials of the Belleville Relief Office.

It has come to the notice of officials of the city, that numbers of unemployed men have been applying for work in spite of the fact, that they are not on relief, and even have small incomes from pensions and other sources.

It is a waste of time for this class of unemployed to report for work, stated Mayor Tice.

"The work we are undertaking is primarily relief work. It is meant to care for those men and families, who are at present on relief and is not meant to provide for all the unemployed of the city. They will be cared for later. Just now our main idea is to provide for those men, who really need the work. The government is quite strict about this angle, stated the Mayor.

"Any unemployed man, who can show the city Organization the need for work is welcome to apply at the office in have his name taken down, but unless he can stamp the investigation it will be a merely a waste of time. Later we hope to be able to care for all."

EX-MAYOR AND WIFE INJURED

Four in Party Narrowly Escape When G. A. Reid's Car Burns

Ex-Mayor George A. Reid and Mrs. Reid of this city, are in the Kingston General Hospital today as the result of injuries received when their car left No. 2 Highway, about four miles east of Kingston early last evening.

Two other passengers, Mr. and Mrs. Frank McKeown of this city, escaped with minor injuries and are at present at their home here, still suffering from the effects of the shaking-up.

It is not believed that the injuries suffered by Mr. and Mrs. Reid are severe, although it is expected that a two day stay or longer will be necessary in Kingston hospital. Slipperiness of the wet road, and the dazzle of lights from approaching cars on the crowded highway was given as the cause of the accident.

Skidding on the soft shoulder of the road, the car turned over twice after it left the highway, and ended on its side a blazing mass. The passengers were extricated with considerable difficulty from the blazing machine.

According to Mr. Frank McKeown who was questioned today, after his arrival in the city, the party had been on the way home from Perth which they visited earlier in the day, and had proceeded to a point about four miles west of Kingston. Behind them with the glare of the lights, Mr. Reid, driving the machine, attempted to keep well to the edge of the road. At this particular point a rise in the road deflected the front lights and the car the machine lost of control.

"We commenced to slide, and as we slid the machine began to roll. The minute it struck the bottom of the ditch a mass of flames enveloped the rear of the machine," stated Mr. McKeown.

"I managed to pull Mr. Reid from the car. He was slightly dazed from the shock but appeared to be uninjured. Then I extricated the other passengers. None of us were actually touched by the fire, although the flames were fairly close.

"I summoned a passing car and had Mr. and Mrs. Reid removed to the hospital. Then after seeing they were made comfortable, we returned home.

Advice received at the office of Mr. Reid today was to the effect that while Mr. and Mrs. Reid had been shaken up, no internal injuries were believed to have been sustained.

NEAR-INDIGENT REAL PROBLEM FOR DOCTORS

Doctor Explains Why Non Paying Patients Sent To Hospital

MAYOR'S VIEW

Supervisor Says Direct Medical Relief Working Well

Although other parts of the province are now considering the question of direct aid for medical services, whereby the doctor is given fifty per cent. of his usual charge when attending a patient in his home or in the doctor's office, Belleville has been working under this system since the order-in-council was passed some months ago. Two-thirds of the cost of this scheme is paid by Provincial and Federal relief funds.

"Doctors through their indigent patients are given vouchers just the same as the people on relief," said Miss H. Lynch, relief supervisor, speaking to the Ontario Intelligencer in explanation of the system.

Too Many, Mayor

But, not the number of indigent patients sent into the hospital is large in the opinion of Mayor Geo. O. Tice. "Too many," he said, "as these could be treated in their home. Doctors agree that this is true but state that the expense is no serious to them financially that they can do nothing else but send these patients there. It costs too much in gasoline, too much in the use of automobiles, and in time to attend these patients in their homes. But the main item is the expense to each one of these patients costs the city one dollar and seventy-five cents a day besides the overhead charge on the maintenance of the municipal relief."

"We are going to take up the question right now in the council," replied Mayor Tice to an inquiry of the reporter. "The patients are sent in on a doctor's order and it costs the city $1.75 per day for them. I am in favor of a hotel and a fee for hospital and for supervision in and out of the hospital.

"We feel that many of these could be treated in their own homes and money saved to the city."

Direct Medical Aid

Miss Lynch explained that the indigent person on relief who required medical attention or medicine was given a voucher by the central relief office, this to be given to the doctor treating the patient. She was at pains to explain, that the medical aid covered not only the attention or attendance in the home, but direct relief cases attending cases in the hospitals, though it does relate to those who had left the hospital

ARMS PARLEY TO CONTINUE

Full Assembly of Conference Will Resume Monday

Geneva, Oct. 10—The full assembly of the World Disarmament Conference will be resumed next Monday as planned, the steering committee of the body has decided, buoyed up by a statement of the determination of the United States to continue its efforts.

Before the vote was taken, Arthur Henderson, president of the assemblage, warned that any postponement would lend weight to reports that the nations had no intention to make a real attempt to disarm. Such a postponement, he continued, would result in suspicion.

225 Million Refunding Loan Offered to Public by Minister of Finance

Expect Today's Subscription Will Reach High Total

MANY TO CONVERT

Premier Urges Support of Loan To The Limit

Ottawa, Oct. 10 (CP)—Canada's $225,000,000 refunding loan was offered to the public today. Opened last night by Prime Minister R. B. Bennett, and Hon. E. N. Rhodes, Minister of Finance; a campaign of bond selling was proceeding actively, across Canada thousands of Canadian bank branches and hundreds of bond houses were handling the issue. In financial circles confidence in its success was expressed.

The terms of the loan were announced last night by the finance minister. The bonds are issued in three maturities, two-year, six-year and twelve-year. The yields were announced as follows: Two-year, four per cent and a half per cent bonds at 99½ yielding 5% per cent; six-year, four per cent bonds at 99 per cent and yielding 4.59 per cent, and 12-year, four per cent, at 96½ yielding 4.38 per cent. The 12-year bonds, it was announced, would be issued in denominations as low as $100.

Expectations were that today's subscriptions would reach a very substantial total. Large institutions, such as banks, insurance companies and trust companies had said they already indicated their intention of converting their maturing Victory bonds. The issue will be closed, it stated at loan headquarters.

The individual investor, it was felt would be very likely to follow the same course. Interest, it was intimated, would in all probability consider the yield of 4.38 per cent. on the 12-year bonds as an attractive return for a long-term investment.

"As an investment, the new loan offers many bond holders and cash subscribers an opportunity to obtain unquestioned security of principal with a safe, regular income at an exceptionally low and attractive rate," asserted the finance minister in opening the campaign.

"Canada today has no stirring crisis of war," he added, "but the fiscal and financial crisis of peace needs no less real and no less urgent aid.

Prime Minister Bennett urged the Canadian people to support the loan "to the limit of his or her ability."

In connection with the loan terms which were announced by Mr. Rhodes, it was stated that the banks have agreed to assist in financing cash subscriptions to the extent of subscriptions for six months at 4½ per cent per annum.

Ottawa, Oct. 10.—Details of the Dominion of Canada 1933 refunding loan of $170,000,000 Victory bonds due Nov. 1, 1933, and $40,000,000 Victory bonds due Nov. 15.

The new refunding loan bonds are dated Nov. 1, 1933, and are issued in three maturities with yields as follows: Two year 3½ per cent. bonds at 99½ yielding 5 per cent.; six year 4 per cent. bonds at 99 yielding 4.59 per cent.; 12 year 4 per cent. bonds at 96½ yielding 4.38 per cent. The 12 year bonds are issued in denominations as low as $100.

The new bonds are obtainable in exchange for maturing Victory bonds or by cash subscription.

Victory bond holders who convert receive a cash allowance representing the difference between the full face value of their maturing bonds and the price of the new bonds, subject to accrued interest adjustment as Oct. 16.

Extra cash allowance of $2.50 per $1,000 bond will be paid to Victory bond holders converting promptly into the new 12 year issue. This concession will lapse in any cash after Oct. 16, or earlier if the subscription books are closed before that date.

An accrued interest advantage will also be obtained by those who convert immediately into any of the three maturities. No accrued interest will be charged to those who convert on or before Oct. 16, after that date, interest will be charged, accruing from Oct. 15.

Victory bond holders are allowed to detach and retain their coupons due Nov. 1, and thus receive a bonus of a half month's interest, as the new bonds bear interest from Oct. 15.

Banks have agreed to advance to cash subscribers up to 75 per cent. of their subscriptions for six months at 4½ per cent per annum.

The books of the loan, both for conversion and cash subscriptions may be closed at any time at the discretion of the Minister of Finance.

City and District News

HEAVY TRAFFIC ON RAILS ON HOLIDAY

Holiday traffic on both the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways reached almost old time proportions through this city over the week-end. At both depots from Saturday afternoon until late Monday evening taxi men of the city reported a bumper harvest of fares arriving and departing from the city. In some cases, to take care of the large numbers of passengers from Montreal and points east, taking advantage of the Canadian National Railways excursion rates to Chicago, extra coaches and sleepers had to be added to the trains.

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK NOW ON

Official notice has been received by Fire Chief Wm. Lynch of this city that the week of October 8 to 14 has been named as Fire Prevention Week, observed by all municipalities throughout the Dominion. Authoritative statistics set the amount of annual loss of insurable property in Canada at over forty-five million dollars per annum, and that more than three hundred persons annually lose their lives as the result of fire, according to the proclamation from Ottawa. The proclamation further asks that all dwellings be inspected for fire hazards, rubbish cleared from sheds and buildings, and that firedrills be held in schools, halls and public gatherings.

ONLY ONE RUN OVER HOLIDAY

One lone alarm to a chimney fire in Snelly's Terrace on East Moira street at the city limits on Saturday was the sum total of runs for the fire department over the week end. No cause was ascertained by the latter blaze.

DUCK HUNTING GOOD IN BAY

Evidently frightened from their fall feeding grounds in the northern lakes by the invasion of partridge hunters, whose shot guns resounded through the woods on Thanksgiving Day, flocks of ducks were observed passing over the city throughout the day Monday, headed in the direction of the lakes. Hunters who were in the nearby marshes on Monday reported a greater number of ducks seen in the bay since the season had started. Hunting was good, they reported.

RESIDENT BITTEN BY LARGE DOG

Clarence Salisbury, 246 Charles street, reported to the police yesterday that he had been bitten by a large dog. The young man stated that he had been attacked by the canine and bitten below the left knee. The imprint of the dog's teeth were quite noticeable and blood had been drawn. The police ascertained from Mr. Salisbury as to the owner of the dog, that the police are investigating further.

MORE THAN BIRDS SEEN ON TRIP

Partridge hunters from this city scouring the uplands of the northern section of the county on Thanksgiving Day, on at least two occasions met more than the birds they were after. One local party while driving along a side road two miles east of Actinolite early Monday morning had an excellent view of a large flock of partridges calmly browsing by the side of the road. In route from Belleville the same party saw a large wolf that had been trapped by one of the settlers of the district.

Due to the heavy rain storm and biting winds, the racing card for the second day of the fall meet sponsored by the Harness Horse Association was cancelled. Many of the horsemen left for their homes as soon as the races were called off.

3 ACCIDENTS OVER WEEKEND

Wet Pavements Cause With No Injuries ported

No serious accidents were reported to have happened on the local highways over the holiday. Three minor accidents occurred, however, in which some property damage was reported.

James McKenzie, Belleville, suddenly applied the brakes of his car as he approached the C.P.R. crossing west of Belleville and skidded into the wig-wag standard. — Mr. McKenzie was proceeding westward and when he approached the railway crossing the wig-wag signal at that point suddenly swung into motion. The driver at once applied his brakes and as the pavement was wet the car crashed sideways into the wig-wag standard.

The standard of the signal was badly damaged as was the McKenzie car. The damage is estimated at over $200.00. The signal was put out of operation, during which time no light, and day luminaire have been posted at the Cemetery Crossing.

James Naphin, Deseronto, apparently lost control of his automobile which he was driving and it skidded into west ditch about two miles south of the Bay bridge on Highway about 7.30 p.m. Sunday. Naphin sustained slight injuries while Mrs. Barber, also of Deseronto, escaped uninjured. The car was quite badly damaged. The men were attended by Dr. Boyce of Deseronto.

Geo. E. Page, Cobourg, escaped uninjured, when the car which he was driving turned completely over in the ditch on the south side of the highway about one mile east of Marysville on Saturday. His wife, Mrs. Page and their ten year old daughter, Joyce, sustained slight injuries during the accident.

Mr. Page was attempting to pass a motor transport, when his car suddenly started to sway and before he could right the vehicle it had taken to the south ditch, where it turned over. Mr. Page sustained a severe cut on the head, while Miss Page also was bleeding profusely when discovered. The body of the Page car was a complete wreck.

Belleville S. A. Corps Presents Fine Musical Organization

MANY SERVICES

Citizens of all classes joined in unanimity to express appreciation of the music rendered by The Salvation Army band and Songster Brigade of St. Catharines during the Thanksgiving holiday week. Songster Leader Eric Beard has developed a very efficient band of cadets and he presented local audiences with a series of high-class programs of vocal and instrumental music, on the lines laid down for Salvation Army presentations. Every program opened and closed with Bible reading and prayer.

The initial event of the campaign took place in the Citadel on Saturday evening during which Civic welcome was tendered to visitors by His Worship Mayor Geo. O. Tice who also presided over the opening session of the meeting.

Sunday was a busy day. Separate open-air services were conducted by local and visiting forces, and in addition to this, the Male Quartette of the St. Catharines Brigade, accompanied Adjutant Martin to the regular service held in the Penitentiary Hall, this being much appreciated by all.

Two festival programs were given on Sunday at the Citadel; one in the afternoon at 3 o'clock with Capt. A. Reid in the chair, and in the evening at 8 o'clock with Adjutant Martin presiding.

Adjutant Winnie Jones won all hearts in the services conducted at the regular hours, and attended by large congregations, the building being filled to capacity at night.

The final festival was held in Bridge Street United Church (by kind courtesy of Official Board) to a large and responsive audience. The climax of the Songsters vocal offerings being "Handel's Hallelujah Chorus. Mr. H. B. Fetterly occupying the chair.

In the morning the visitors were taken by friends to the Ontario School for the deaf and treated to a specially arranged demonstration.

Festival programs of unusual beauty won high praise for the St. Catharines Songsters who visited the city over the week-end. The program for Sunday afternoon included instrumental selections, choruses and vocal numbers. The numbers were as follows:

Selection, "The Lord is My Light"-Songster Brigade; March, "Winnipeg Citadel"-Songster Instrumentalists; Soprano Solo, Songster Secretary, Mrs. R. Gillingham; selection, "The Whole Armour of God"-Songster Brigade; Cornet Solo "I Love Him Every Day"-Bandsman H. Beard; Male Quartette, "Goodbye Egypt"; Selection, "The Call of Calvary"-Songster Brigade; soprano solo, Songster D. Strobridge; Strobridge; Eb Bass Solo, "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep"-Bandsman A. Hogan; hymn Tune, "Calvary"; Songster Instrumentalists; selection, "Wonderful Promise"-Songster Brigade.

The festival program for Monday evening was equally appealing, the most popular solo number being the beautiful vocal solo "Stranger in Galilee," by Songster Mrs. Lewis. The numbers were as follows:-selection, "Majesty," Prince of Peace"-Songster Brigade; male quartette, "Christ is King"; party; March "New Zealand Warriors"-Songster Instrumentalists; selection "Divine Protection" Songster Brigade; Cornet Solo "Carnival of Venice"-Bandsman H. Beard; Mixed quartette, "I will exist Thee"; Party; Selection, "Hark! The Glad Sound"-Songster Brigade; Instrumental quartette, "Glory and Praise"; four bandsmen; selection, "I was Glad"-Songster Brigade; vocal solo, "Stranger of Galilee", Songster Mrs. Lewis; March, "The Quest"-Songster Instrumentalists; Hymn tunes, "Deep Harmony" and "Prayer", Songster Brigade; male quartette "Lead Kindly Light"; Party; chorus, "Hallelujah" (from Handel's Messiah), Songster Brigade.

The visit of the St. Catharines' Songsters was a source of much enjoyment to music lovers, who turned out in large numbers to hear them.

PARTRIDGE HUNTERS OUT IN FULL FORCE

Every Sidereal Hrs Quota of Motor Cars

A dawn to dusk barrage of shot guns laid down in the bush and wood sections of the northern part of the county by well over one hundred partridge hunters from this city alone, sawdered the northland on Thanksgiving Day, and accounted for hundreds of the birds. Early on the morning of Monday almost every main and side road between Bannockburn and Ashcroft were reported lined with parked cars, while owners and passengers of the makes instead through the underbrush in search of the elusive birds. While the partridge were fairly numerous, many hunters declared them wily and gun shy and hard to approach. The majority of parties, however, were enabled to bag their limit with little difficulty.

THANKSGIVING IS OBSERVED

Churches And Homes Mark Occasion Duly

In every church of the city and in the countryside, Thanksgiving was celebrated with festival music and of harvest-time, and appropriate sermons on the subject of gratitude towards the Giver of all blessings. The congregations were large and thankofferings in a number of the churches were bountiful.

At Bridge Street United Church, Rev. Dr. Semple preached on ingratitude as one of the greatest of sins, which causes the soul of man to shrink and darken.

At Emmanuel Reformed Episcopal Church, Bishop Marshall spoke on the thanksgiving theme, having his sermon on the subject of the ten lepers, only one of whom returned to thank Jesus for their cleansing. Holy Communion was celebrated at the morning service.

The churches were beautifully decked with the season's harvest and with the foliage of trees and with flowers.

Many visitors were in the city and many former citizens were back in their old rooms on Sunday and Monday, having come home for the annual Thanksgiving family reunion. In most homes there were the evidences of the old-time festivity and plenty on the tables.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

NEW YORK - TORONTO - WINNIPEG

TORONTO EXCHANGE

Toronto, Oct. 10 (CP)—The distillery shares provided the only note of cheer in the morning session of the Toronto Stock Exchange and even in that group some of the issue lost all the morning gains before noon. With a few exceptions the trend was moderately towards the down side. Trading was in low volume.

Walkers common turned over actively and was up two points in the early trading but at noon had slipped back to 40¼ where it showed a gain of 1¼. Industrial Alcohol at 18¼ was unchanged.

In the first hour Nickel pushed up to $30.50 but at noon the price was down a little at $30.25. C.P.R. weakened to 13¾. Four "A" was off to 11⅛ and Brazilian unchanged at 13¼. Oil shares held about steady with only a few scattered sales.

Prices gradually worked lower in the first three hours of trading today, with exception of the distillery shares which were able to retain only a small fraction of early gains. Walker's common had a two point gain at one stage but less than half a point of the gain by early afternoon.

All other industrial shares were pulled back by a receding trend in Wall street.

STANDARD EXCHANGE

Toronto, Oct. 10 (CP) — The Standard Mining Market found difficulty in working up steam today, following the holiday and prices had a downward slant in general with volume low. Selling pressure, applied to Macassa, helped to give the secondary gold group a weak tone and recessions were general. Base metal and silver shares held about steady.

Losses were narrow in the senior gold section except for McIntyre which dropped $1.50 to $42.50. Wright Hargreaves lost 20 cents to $8.05, Dome 15 cents to $26.75 and Teck Hughes was practically unchanged, selling ex-dividend at $6.50. Macassa heavy trading worked down 90, off 5 cents.

In the base metals nickel advanced 30 to $30.50 but Noranda fell 55 cents to $35.10 and Sherritt dropped 5 to $1.30. Base Metals Corporation firmed 5 to $2.20.

The price level of the gold shares was undermined by weakness in New York and the leaders, including Dome and McIntyre lost ground easily. The slump came on top of a substantial advance in the price of bar gold in London.

Base metal shares responded to the cut in the price of copper by weakening generally all along the line. Nickel sold be-w $30 and Noranda worked down o $35.

WALL STREET FINANCIAL

New York, Oct. 10 (AP)—Bad and indifferent influences today apparently failed to stir enough interest from a lethargy that held prices generally in a narrow and trendless range.

Minor irregularities spotted the stock list in the early hours and the activity was about as low as that of yesterday. There were occasional flurries, both upward and downward, but none of them seemed to get very far and most of the the side-liners to wait for "something to happen." Bonds were mixed, although some of the utilities improved.

Minor recessions predominated among Canadian securities. International Nickel eased ¼ point while shares of Dome, McIntyre and Canadian Pacific were ¼ to ½ lower. On the curb Lake Shore Mines was unchanged while Hiram Walker slipped a shade. Dominion Government 4½s were unchanged while the 3s ruled ¼ lower.

Utility shares generally were steady to firm. Consolidated gas, Public Service of New Jersey, North American, Columbia Gas, American Water Works and National Power and Light were up fractionally to a point. Dupont, Montgomery Ward, Santa Fe, Johns-Manville and some others were moderately higher.

Livestock

Toronto, Oct. 10 (C.P.) — Cattle trade the opening of the Toronto Livestock Market today was slow with few killers moving. There were 900 western cattle included in the heavy run of 4400 head. Calves opened steady, hogs unsettled, sheep and lambs steady.

Receipts as reported by the Dominion Livestock Branch were: Cattle 4400, calves 1170, hogs 1880, sheep and lambs 4510.

Fed calves sold steady at $7.00 to $7.50 for choice. Canner cows brought $1.00 and a few bologna bulls $2.50 to $3.75.

The calf market was steady at $6.50 to $7.00 for choice vealers with a few tops at $7.50. Grass calves ranged from $2.25 to $3.50. Heavy calves were plentiful but were not in demand.

Hogs opened unsettled with packers bidding $5.00 f.o.b. for bacons and $3.50 off car. Salesmen were asking 10 cb 15 cents more.

Lambs opened steadyTat $6.00 for good ewes and wethers with culls mostly at $4.50. Sheep were always at from $1.00 to $2.50, according to quality.

WINNIPEG GRAIN EXCHANGE

Winnipeg, Oct. 10—(CP)—Almost total lack of offerings on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today held wheat prices steady, despite weakness in outside markets yesterday, and further easiness this morning. At the end of the first hour values were 3-8 higher to unchanged from previous closing levels.

October wheat traded at 60, November 60 3-8; December 60 7-8 and May 64 7-8 cents. Trading was extremely quiet. Export sales of Canadian wheat over the week-end was very disappointing, and little buying in this connection was evident in today's operations

BAR GOLD

Montreal, Oct. 9 (CP)—The price of bar gold in London today was $32.09 an ounce in terms of the Canadian dollar, based on the London price of 133s. 9d and the quotation of Sterling in Montreal at $4.98¾. Saturday the equivalent was $32.00.

ASTHMA

Asthma is a condition where the patient is suffering for want of oxygen. The moment this is artificially eyeful the used air from the lungs do not function properly and consequently the patient can absorb very little fresh air due to the fact that the lungs are already full of air.

It is the little nerve fibres in the muscular cells that cause muscles to contract and relax. So sufferers of Asthma should have the necessary correction made so that the nerves that supply the muscles of respiration would function properly.

FURS

The Burtol process has achieved an outstanding success in cleaning of Furs. Expert Furriers, though biased against any but the old "sawdust method" of cleaning, have only the highest praise for the Burtol Process.

The method of operating on Furs in the Burtol Process was fixed by an expert Furrier, after making the most thorough tests, and Furriers, one and all, who witness the process are astounded at the results.

The pelt is left beautifully soft and pliable and the bright, fresh, new appearance of the Fur is remarkably perfect. No artificial glazing is needed, the natural glaze produced being far superior.

MEN CROWD TO WORK TODAY

Dripping Skies Hold Work Up After Early Start

Dripping skies shortly after nine o'clock Tuesday morning temporarily halted the first day's work of the relief work programme which had its initial start today.

Eighty men who had applied for work on the three projects, were given tools, but were enabled to work just one hour and a half when a halt was called until noon when the skies had cleared and work had again started.

Equipped with rubber boots, picks, shovels and wheelbarrows, fifty men who met at Memorial Park at eight o'clock in the morning were marched to the bed of Cobbs Mills River just above Lott's Dam where the first of the work of clearing the loose stone and shale, and levelling the trees and weed over-growth banks in the centre of the river was commenced. From these mounds and piles of loose rock, the material is being wheeled to the east end of the bridge where the excavations and hollows are being filled in.

On South Front street at St. Paul Street, a start was made with another gang of men on a storm sewer to be constructed on that street. Here, too, a halt was called shortly after the start.

The third gang will construct another storm sewer on Foster Avenue.

Handicapped by the lack of sufficient shovels, a large number of men who put in their appearance on the jobs early in the morning were unable to be placed, but with the arrival of new tools on Wednesday it is hoped that the registered number of one hundred and sixty men at present on the relief lists will be cared for.

Jubilant at the prospect of work again after months of idleness, the men were in buoyant spirits on Tuesday morning, and were able to smile broadly in spite of the drenching rain.

"Feels like old times again to get a shovel in my hand," loudly stated one of the workers as he stalked from the tool box to work with the new shovel in his hand.

Although some crowding was noted at some of the tool boxes where there were not sufficient tools to care for all, the men were again stowed in the hold of the steamer Glen Allne for shipment to Montreal. A quantity of apples and canned goods also made up part of the cargo.

UNEMPLOYED GIVEN PRAISE

Mayor Tice Voices Appreciation of Response to Work.

On the first day of the relief work programme in the city, which is expected to care for the majority of local unemployed throughout the coming months, Mayor Geo. O. Tice today in a statement to the Daily Ontario Intelligencer, paid an appreciation to the manner in which the unemployed responded to the invitation Thursday morning by the city to take up the outlined programme of work for relief.

It was noted by Mayor Tice, that the number of men at present receiving relief from the city, who did not appear at the various locations ready for work on Tuesday morning constituted a very small percentage of the number called. The majority of this small number had a good excuse for their non-appearance, Mallingers, it was reported, were in the small minority.

"It has been my contention all through these past few lean years during which time work has been so scare that men do not want relief—they want work," stated Mayor Tice, "now that we have provided work which will probably keep them through this coming winter, the ready response the men have made supports my contention. I have noticed more smiles among the men of the city during the past day or so than I have seen for some time."

Mayor Tice paid tribute also to the efficiency of the various civic departments, who arranged the relief work programme without a hitch.

COUNTERFEIT U.S. BILLS

Hamilton, Oct. 7.—With the arrest of a man giving the name of Frank Koerner, a citizen of the United States but who has been living in Ontario for some time, local police hope they have stemmed the flood of counterfeit United States bills in this province.

Letters to The Editor

MAYORALTY 1934

To the Editor Ontario Intelligencer,

I gratefully appreciate the nomination of myself as a candidate for Mayor of the City for 1934 by my friend Mr. W. C. Mitch, K.C., as published in your issue of Saturday, and his all too generous estimate of my experiences and qualifications. I hasten to state that I could not aspire to this office of opportunity and responsibility this year. I have nothing but the most pleasant remembrances of my service as Alderman and as a Member of the Board of Education and Board of Trade for many years with my colleagues.

W. N. Fonton.

A HYMN WRITER

A well known son of Hastings County who is commissioner of the Workmen's Compensation Board, Mr. George Allen Kingston, of Chestnut Park, Toronto, has written a group of devotional hymns, copies of which have been received in this office. These include "A Hymn of Meditation," "Lord of Heaven and Earth and Ocean," which is No. 547 in the hymnary of the United Church, "Lord of Creation's Wide Expanse," "Eternal Father by Thy Grace," and "Dear Lord the Strength of All Our Days", all of which possess not only melody in the rhythm, but also a serious and abiding content of thought and spiritual emotion. The inclusion of one of his compositions in the official hymnbook of a church, composed of the greatest hymns of all ages is a tribute on the part of the editors of the hymnary to the richness of the devotional sentiment which is so marked in this hymn, sung to the traditional Welsh melody. This hymn is as follows:

"Lord of heaven and earth and ocean,
Great God above,
Sanctify our hearts' devotion
As this we prove;
Guide us while through life we wander,
Keep our hearts for ever tender.
To the needy help us tender
Service of love.

"As the years increase upon us,
For this we pray.
Lend Thy light and lamp to lead us
All down life's way.
When the shadows long are creeping.
And our eyes are dim with weeping,
May we know we're in Thy keeping
At the close of day.

"When the day at last is ended,
Set is our sun,
Failed in much so well intended,
Light almost gone,
From the tomb do Thou reclaim us,
Send Thine angel guard to name us,
Heaven's best on high acclaim us,
Life's victory won."

A more recent hymn of Mr. Kingston's is "Lord of Creation's wide expanse," which may be sung to "Melcombe," "Wareham", or "Winchester New.". This selection recently published in the New Outlook follows:

"Lord of creation's wide expanse,
Whose will the winds and seas obey,
Whose power extends through every clime,
And o'er all lands whose rule holds sway,
"To Thy high throne we now approach,
Unto Thy Presence we draw near;
Thy acceptr sign do Thou extend
That all may come and none may fear.

"As subjects, Lord, we homage owe,
Our loyal tribute here we bring.
Preserve us now before Thy face
And own Thee Master, Lord and King.

"Thy Kingdom come in all our hearts,
Thy gracious will by us be done,
And may Thy all-forgiving grace
Be realized by every one.

"As unto Thee we pledge our love
We know Thy promise freely given;
Life here on earth with blessings crowned,
Then the enduring home of heaven."

The other two hymns in the group are also marked by the same fervor of spirit and sense of devotion as well as musical diction.

Mr. Kingston has also written a number of secular poems which are known to the people of the Bay of Quinte section.

YOUTH NOT SO FLAMING

"Many evidences are at hand to show that the young people of 1933 are looking ahead with a clearer notion of 'what it's all about' than did their parents. They recognize froth for what it is," says the Rotarian.

"A smart magazine, popular only a few years ago with college students, has, in the vernacular, 'folded up' for want of support. The football hero of yesteryear isn't lionized quite so much as he was. Why? 'We see him in the classroom,' one young lady smilingly told an inquirer. Athletics are increasingly regarded as means of acquiring personal enjoyment and health and not as public spectacles alone. In short, a new youth, not quite so incandescent as his older brother or sister, is emerging from these late depression days.

"The plain fact of the matter is, however, that the whole world is getting over a giddy headache, brought on by the World War. It is seeing more clearly than it did. The response to the National Recovery Act is in itself testimony of a growing understanding of the troubles of economic and social health. Newspapers are printing less news on 'sex, money and crime,' to make space for news on science, business, religion and education. Labor controversies are being settled more and more by arbitration and less and less by violence and bloodshed. In short, youth is but one of many signs of the times that a new epoch is emerging."

"IF" KIPLING HAD WRITTEN IT LIKE THIS

If you can see what some folk call "dope"
And not be crazy;
As nothing but a spin of Fortune's wheel;
If you can keep your poise and self-possession
No matter what you think or how you feel;
If you can view a stupid situation
Without getting up with "ifs" and "aws" and "buts"
And take it at its proper valuation—
A challenge to your common sense and "guts";
If you can rise above the mess and muddle,
If you can glimpse a rainbow through the cloud
When Doubt and Dread and Fear are in a huddle
And Hope is being measured for a shroud;
If you can keep a saving sense of humor
For stories that are slightly inexact;
If you can disregard Report and Rumor,
And not accept a statement as a fact;
If you can spread the gospel of successes,
If you can stir the spirit that instills
The latent life in lathes and looms and presses
And lift the stream above a thousand mills;
If, briefly, you can spend an extra dollar;
If you can pry the sacred Roll apart
And buy another shirt or shoe or collar
And act as if it didn't break your heart;
If you have faith in those with whom you labor,
And trust in those with whom you make a trade;
If you believe in friend and next-door neighbor,
And heed examples pioneers have made;
If you expect the sun to rise tomorrow;
If you are sure that somewhere skies are blue—
Wake up and pack away the futile sorrow,
For better days are largely up to YOU!

PHINEAS TAYLOR BARNUM was a colorful character, a great showman and the first business man to realize fully the great value of advertising and how to use printers' ink to the best advantage. Barnum believed that all advertising was good advertising, only some advertising was better than others, and Barnum, unhesitatingly gave first place as a wide margin to newspaper advertising, all other methods being but auxiliary aids to the main advertising attack in the newspaper. Barnum had a genius for making money, but like many other good business men came a cropper when he stepped outside of his own business to boost. Connecticut clock company in which Barnum was induced to invest money ruined him financially and struck a blow to his pride which he never fully recovered from, although he soon recovered his fortune by exercising his talents as the Greatest Showman on Earth. Barnum was born and brought up in Bethel, Conn., one of the quietest and sleepiest villages possible to imagine, and he won fame and fortune as a showman from headquarters at East Bridgeport, about twenty-five miles from Bethel.

ABOUT ONE HUNDRED MILLION PENNIES are invested every day in newspapers in the United States and Canada, according to one of those mechanical arithmetic guys who estimated that the pennies aforesaid placed one on top of another would stack up 3,225 miles in the air. Personally we think he's goofy but have no time to do the stacking and prove he's wrong by a thousand miles or so. If we did go to that trouble he would probably counter with the statement that he meant placed end to end, or on their rims, or some such evasion.

Boost Empire Trade and the Bay of Quinte Route to the Sea

John Bull Addressing Jack Canuck

"MY DEAR YOUNG MAN:—

"Empire Trade is a subject very dear to my heart. My Welsh Coal is the best product in the world. I have been told that your Ontario Cheese, Butter, Bacon, Canned Goods, Tobacco, Apples and Honey are also the best in the world: I would suggest loading a ship with my coal for the Bay of Quinte and you return the boat with a full cargo of Bay of Quinte Farm Products."

Jack Canuck Replying

"A very excellent scheme, old boy; send her direct to the Bay of Quinte—the Narrows will be dredged before her arrival and we will load her to the rail with Farm Products. Tell your friends in Wales to get ready for a treat. Cable the name of the boat, and probable date of arrival. Of course it is Anthracite we want. We should sell six thousand (6,000) tons this year and fifty thousand (50,000) tons by the end of 1935."?

The "mooching" business—he resented the word "panhandling"—has been better this year than last. But, he says, it's all in the manner of approach whether you can make the grade or not. It's trite and hackneyed to chant the popular refrain of a "dime for a cuppa coffee". It's better for the moocher to step right up to the prospect and say: "Mister, I need a quarter for food and night." The sob stuff about home and fireside and "job doesn't click at all. He outlined a few tricks of the trade: Don't stop a man who is walking rapidly. Don't approach him with a grin. Don't give the prospect a long spiel—he might start asking questions. The Literary Digest in a recent article removes all lingering doubt and lists the seventeen wealthiest men in the world, and says also that it would be possible for them all to get together some time and pay all the national debts of the world. It is listed them as followed:

1, Ehiel Ford (U.S.); 2, Henry Ford (U.S.); 3, Edouard de Rothschild (French); 4, Duke of Westminster (British); 5, Alphonse de Rothschild (German); 6, The Gaekar of Baroda (Hindu); 7, Sir Basil Zaharoff (Greek); 8, Simon Patino (Bolivian); 9, Lord Iveagh (British); 10, Prince Agha Khan (Moslem); 11, Maharajah Hyderabad (Hindu); 12, Q. de Wendell (French); 13, John D. Rockefeller (U.S.); 14, John D. Rockefeller (U.S.); 15, Louis Loiz-Dreyfus (French); 16, Andrew Mellon (U.S.); 17, Fritz Thyssen (German).

Curbstone Opinions

Wm. F. Burke, Salesman:

"During my travels throughout this district I see many old cemeteries which are reverting back to miniature jungles for want of just a little care. Weed overgrown in many instances, and with headstones tumbling and fallen, they present a poor picture in any community. In many of those old cemeteries early pioneers who originally settled this country lie forgotten. It seems a poor end for many an illustrious man or woman who did so much to put this country where it is now. The graves of those early pioneers, at least, should receive perpetual care."

Spencer Huffman, Grocer:

"The Saturday market is one of the most pleasing sights of the city. Each week from the countryside the whole district come the farmers' cars and rigs, heaped high with all manner of fresh produce from their farms. The city has the distinction of having the best market of any other city of its size in Ontario, and buyers as well as sellers come considerable distances to attend it. A photographer who could capture a picture of the market day in full swing, and have it mounted on post cards should be able to sell a lot of them."

Harold Read, Fisherman:

"Fishermen are looking forward this season to one of the best catches of whitefish for some time. Every indication at this season points to a good run. Some years they are particularly scarce, and other years they seem to run in unlimited quantities. This year will be a good year, it is expected. If we get cool weather during the next two or three weeks we can expect the fish to have the time for the inland waters of the Bay of Quinte some time around the end of this month."

Weak Line Prevents B. C. I. Seniors from Scoring First Win in Lake Shore Group

Lindsay C. I. Play Sunset Football to Win 6-3

GOOD GAME

Cole And Morgan Main Strength on The Defensive

A blocked kick followed by a subsequent fumble behind the local goal line cost the champion Belleville Collegiate seniors their initial victory of the current season when they bowed in the hard driving Lindsay C. I. squad by the score of 6 to 3 at the Exhibition Park on Saturday afternoon in a Lake Shore group fixture.

Forced to rely on the line of scrimmage the local squad were the victim of the only two successful offensive team, that were the tri-color last season and succeeded home to a CONSOLA. Failure in their rather feeble efforts to split the Lindsay end spelled defeat for the locals, while their lineman were unable to stop the ball carrier through the middle for consistent gains.

Campbell, Gallagher, Tripp, McKee and White shone out for the Bronze—and Green, while Cole, the Scrapp Miner, while their line of scrimmage held the locals in check when local victory seemed assured in the last quarter. The only booting of White and Tripp was one of the features of the game although Dick Morgan, the elusive Lindsay halfback who kicked for the locals with the assistance of Jim Dan had scored up a win matches. Weaver and McMichael for the Shiels facing the reconstruction of an entirely new team in preparation for 1933 found the task one of disappointment but was in no way discouraged in the least. They now expect his powers to team to eventually materialize up to the standard of his last years champions.

THE PLAY

B.C.I. kicked off and for the better part of the first half were among the Bronze-coached outfit from Lindsay swept the locals bottom them. Once B.C.I. penetrated the gridiron-wise, however, they were of the situation to make any headway. Pollwell, Hilton and Simpson, Campbell, Gallagher, McKee and Tripp was gowned for a safety making the score 1 to 0 for Belleville. Hilton punted from the 25 yard run as the quarter ended.

The second half saw Lindsay kick on their first down and better intercept a pass that would put Ostrom out tackling well this quarter and long-headed stopped the visitors on the Bronze. Next a Lindsay kick some over the line Pollwell held the ball over the line and Tripp was downed for another safety making the score 2 to 0 for Belleville. Campbell blocked a long kick on Belleville's 30 yard line and Tripp booted over the line for a goal line, which was fumbled and Wakelin fell on the ball for what the only touchdown of the game. It was not converted and the score stood 6 to 2 for Lindsay at half time.

Although the visitors opened on the offensive in the last quarter the locals rose to the occasion and after a nice run by Hilton, Tripp booted once over his opponent's goal line and Ostrom fumbled recovering for another safety, making the score 5 to 2. Over anxiousness on the part of the local backfield in the final quarter lost for them a perfectly good football game and time after time they failed to complete end runs or line plunges that the Lindsay boosters held that Tripp but a few minutes to play Tripp booted one to Lindsay on the final scoring. But two penalties were piled out on Campbell and the ball was brought back to Simpson, the visiting quarterback and Lindsay attended.

The line-ups—Lindsay: Forwards—Hughes, Bulger, White, Campbell; quarter, Lamb; snap, Hembrow; middles, McGillivray, Wakelin, middles, Bigley and McKee; outsides, Grundy and Simpson; halves, Wakelin, Morden, Gallagher, Cole, Beall and Frederick.

Belleville: L.—F.W. Cook; halves, Hilton, Pollwell and Sproatt; quarter, Ostrom; snap, Cole; inside, Watson and Saunders; middles, Morgan and Weaver; outsides, McMillan and Tripp; subs, McMichael, Kelley, Ketcheson, Bradford, Shelcher, Cummings and Campbell.

"BIG TRAIN" THRILLS CROWD WITH DISPLAY

Pitcher Walter Johnson Injured in Show of Glory

Toronto, Oct. 10.—(CP)—Lionel "Big Train" Comacho, one of Canada's most versatile athletes and noted as an outstanding halfback when playing amateur football, thrilled a huge crowd with his speed. The "Big Train" returned to a football field for the first time in any absence of 10 years and thrilled a crowd of 8,000, who turned out to see Canada's Davis Cup tennis team open.

Comacho Clark, went down before tackles of Argonne by a score of 25-24, but it was the old "Big Train" who scored two of his team's touchdowns and kicked the other.

The Davis Cup battle scores were not included with former exhibition of the tennis world's greatest players, but the crowd was treated to a thrilling baseball game between Walter Johnson, veteran baseball pitcher of the Canadian Baseball League, and a team of baseball players.

Johnson, who pitched for the Washington Senators for 20 years, was injured in the first inning when he was struck on the left arm by a batted ball. He was taken to hospital and X-rayed, but it was found that no bones were broken.

McCORKINDALE MAKES GOOD

Proves Gameness by Slugging Perroni For Decision

New York, Oct. 10.—(CP)—Don McCorkindale, Canada's heavyweight boxing champion, showed the first streaks of what may turn out to be championship form here tonight.

The tall heavyweight from South Africa, who will battle Jack Sharkey for the undisputed decision over Paolino Uzcudun, Spanish veteran, in the Madison Square Garden last night, displayed an aggressive left hand and a good deal of ambition to succeed in a heavyweight division where the champion, Max Schmeling, is the only outstanding United States boxer to have stepped out of uncertain business since the 1929 depression.

Jack Dempsey, Jack Dempsey, Dan's fine defence Perroni was unable to appear to fight without his usual punting dash. After the Dan had scored up a win matches. Weaver and McMichael for the Shiels facing the reconstruction of an entirely new team in preparation for 1933 found the task one of disappointment but was in no way discouraged in the least. They now expect his powers to team to eventually materialize up to the standard of his last years champions.

HAMILTON TIGERS NEED ONLY ONE MORE WIN

Ottawa Opposition Is Stopped This Week, Next Weekender

Vancouver, Oct. 10.—(CP)—Two veterans already tucked away Hamilton Tigers' Grey Cup pennant for the season as they strolled through the Ottawa Senators' defence here today to win the Dominion Lacrosse championship and the Minto Cup.

After winning the first game of the five-game series 15-5, the East-ern champs, Saturday night, Tigers brought another home last night to win 12-8 and the total of 27-13 and so sewed up the works in the line. In the playoff contest with the score standing 5 to 5 and the ball being on Lindsay's 20 yard line in the second's possession why a placement kick was not tried is still puzzling the fans. With a couple of additions to the line of scrimmage the B.C.I. will yet be heard from in C.O.S.S.A. football circles. Two good linemen would do the trick.

BERNE CASTLE'S LAST DANCE

Chicago, Oct. 10.—Mrs. Irene Castle McLaughlin, former dancer, has dropped the light fantastic again—for the first time in more than ten years. She was one of Fatherland's members in the dog fraternity. She strolled in the "ranch hall" and the proceeds went to the Orphans of the Storm, a home for friendless dogs.

Mrs. McLaughlin said it would be her last appearance as a dancer.

CURRENT SPORT

Both the Belleville Collegiate football teams started the current season in reverse fear. After the junior squad dropped a closely fought game on Friday last the senior set to be out-done by their younger brethren, practically handed the Lindsay C.I. gridders a victory on the well known plaster.

The Bronze-coached outfit from Lindsay carried the win by their efforts to the tune of 6-3, after a week less and altogether too many penalties by the local's paved the way for the Lindsay victory. From the odd-set the locals seemed jinxed. First the game was scheduled for 2.00 p.m., but when the referee arrived the visitors wished to start earlier so as to be able to arrive at Peterboro in time for supper. Then it was discovered, that the Lindsay sweaters were a brilliant scarlet and practically the same as the B.C.I. Coach Shiels scurried around and had later tussle up with ten Utica Service sweaters and by the time the teams got on the field, they were 20 minutes late.

On the other hand Coach Shiels frets, that his charges will more than hold their own, when they strike their stride. On the play Saturday the local backfield carried more than their share of the battering. With a couple of inches to go and the works in the line, in the second quarter with the score standing 5 to 3 and the ball being on Lindsay's 20 yard line in the locals possession why a placement kick was not tried is still puzzling the fans. With a couple of additions to the line of scrimmage the B.C.I. will yet be heard from in C.O.S.S.A. football circles. Two good linemen would do the trick.

"Better pitching" is alleged to have won the 1933 world series for the New York Giants. Memphis Bill Terry's Giants assumed the offensive from the start and never let Mr. Cronin's charges even in the limelight. Previous to the opening of the series we compared the Giants with the Athletics, which compared with the Giants of 1914, when the Boston Braves, rank outsiders, took the mighty Athletics, four straight. Well the Giants slipped up one game when Earl White-hill proved master of the situation, then the Giants and the Senators were "just another ball team."

Adverse weather conditions played havoc with the attendance at the harness races at the Exhibition Park on the holiday. At that a goodly crowd were on hand and saw some real heated races. Especially of note was the 2.26 pace. From what we could gather the honors were with Margaret Dillon but Louis Bennett's Walter Stone was just a little too good. Apparently the mare could not stand the strenuous pace set as she broke twice during the heats. In the other two heats Janet D. in the classified trot and Daisy Patch, in the 2.19 pace showed their heels to the entire field.

What impressed us most was the snappy way in which the races were run off. The entire card was completed in less than two hours and one half. Today's "ladies day" with Miss Ruth Prince as admitted free and undoubtedly a large turnout of the "fair sex" will be on hand. Mr. H. Wicks, the sponsor of the meet, should be congratulated on the manner in which the meet was conducted.

Besides the 2.17 and the 2.24 classes this afternoon they are holding three dashes—the half mile, one mile and one and one half mile dash. These dashes are something new along here and should attract considerable of attention. The bookmakers apparently did not attract any too much attention as the patrons were not fully acquainted with the procedure. If Mr. Wicks repeats his efforts in Belleville next spring we imagine, that he will be fully recompensed for his efforts.

Apparently there are two pretty fair southpaws in Ontario. Despite the fact, that Picton downed them 1 to 0 at Southampton on the holiday "Wrapy" Phillips demonstrated his ability in no uncertain manner. Over 5,000 fans witnessed the tussle and the largest crowd to ever grace the Fare Fair grounds should be on hand for the return game. Phillips whiffed 9, while Goldsmith registered 11, at bat. Many thought the "Fishermen" would run home in an easy victory over Jake Tanover's pets but, Monday's game goes to show that the Picton club are far from being counted out of the interprovincials finals. With a win to it neither team had an apparent edge on the other. Of course Phillips and Goldsmith will hook up in another pitcher's duel on Friday.

PICTON DEFEATED BY SOUTHAMPTON

Southampton, Oct. 10 (CP)—Southampton Fishermen won the first game of the O.B.A.A. intermediate "B" finals Monday from Picton 1 to 0. A stumbling double into the crowd in right centre field by Ross Baker, followed by a clean single into centre by Kugler scored the single run of the game in the seventh inning and broke up a magnificent hurling duel between Lefty Goldsmith of the home forces and Wrapy Phillips of Picton.

Goldsmith set Picton down with one hit, a single to right field by McQuade in the fourth inning, but his mates contributed four errors to the game and kept him in hot water in the early innings. He struck out 11 players. Two lightning double plays by Picton and one by Southampton cut off potential scoring threats.

There was no heavy clouting done from Phillips' delivery, either. His portside slants took right on a third strike and allowed but four hits. The crowd of more than 4,000 was the largest ever to attend a ball game in Southampton.

LOCAL DOG IS CHAMPION

C. R. Tilbrook, breeder of Springer Spaniels and owner of Motra Kennels is today receiving the congratulations of many dog lovers in the city on his winning the Canadian Championship award for his female Lady Waldron, now two years old. Scoring to win 10 points before a championship can be awarded, this female won 12 points at Ottawa, Lansdowne and Hamilton shows against some of the best dogs in America of that breed. Mr. Walter Reeves, noted dog judge stated today that to win is all the more remarkable from the fact that competition at show in the Springer Spaniel class is the stiffest of any class and an owner must have a real dog to win top honors.

"Lady Waldron" was bred by Mr. Tilbrook being one of a litter of five the sire being "Trent Valley Jack-light" secured by Mr. Tilbrook at Ogdensburg, N.Y., and "Motra Valley Here Again". At present Mr. Tilbrook has a six months old son from Lady Waldron, that he intends to show at the Royal Winter Fair and competent dog men state he is the finest specimen of his breed they have been privileged to view. The winning of the championship is all the more noteworthy in that the female completed her winning performance in less than a month. A certificate for the award is now being engraved by the Kennel Club of Canada and will soon be forwarded to Mr. Tilbrook.

RACE MEET A SUCCESS

Favorites Got Down in Front in Every Class

Under threatening weather conditions, which kept the attendance down, the Harness Horse Association meet held at the fair grounds on the holiday was much enjoyed by the patrons of the sport in this district. The sponsors of the meet arranged a well balanced card, there was no dearth of horses and arrangements for the carrying on of the meet was almost perfect. For the first time in this section, the double starting system was used and it worked most satisfactorily. Mr. Al Proctor controlled the barrier some distance from the stand and after the horses were aligned, the barrier was released. The horses then being controlled by the starter, George O. Tice until the word was given.

Before the starting of each race the horses were paraded in rotation according to their numbers on the program and introduced to the patrons, which was a pleasant innovation. The racing was forceful and favorites got down in front in every class. The anticipated battle of the afternoon between Walter Stone and the good looking mare Margaret Dillon did not materialize as the Port Hope gelding had too much foot for the game mare. The next going was just to the liking of the brown pacer and although the mare made him go a heat in 2.10 1-4, Walter Stone always appeared to have a slight edge. The horse was bought by Mr. Bennett, veteran horseman of Port Hope, for nearly a year ago at the Dufferin last fall and he has more than made good, due to careful handling and the recipient of good drives in all his races by Jimmy Eason.

Ruth Patch, the star of the 2.19 classes in Western Ontario had no difficulty in adding to her string of victories by winning this class from a good band of pacers. Catherine Firstman, owned by the Quinte Stables in Belleville was never in a tough race and the going not being to her liking, she finished the meet made every post a winning one in amassing the classified honors. Opposition was offered by Ruth and Frances the Great. Lee Hanover, which however was not albe enough. The summary:

MEAGRE GRID MENU SERVED

Sarnia Shows Strength in Downing Balmy Beach 26-6

Toronto, Oct. 10 (CP)—It was a meagre football menu served to fans in Eastern Canada on the Thanksgiving day holiday, the only senior league game being played here, Sarnia defeating Balmy Beach, 26-6, to take the lead in the Ontario Union race.

Montreal Football Club and McGill University engaged in their yearly tilt for the city championship of the eastern metropolis, the Big Four outfit emerging on top by a 13-0 score. Carl Ferina and Stevenson scored touchdowns for the winners and three singles completed their total.

Sarnia's tanks failed to impress at Toronto but the Imperials were quick to take advantage of Beaches mistpays, scoring three of their four touchdowns as a direct result of these.

Beaches battled furiously for three periods and were only trailing 7-6 going into the final quarter. A comedy of errors then ensued and the champions quickly increased their total by two converted touchdowns, the first from a blocked kick, the second the result of a wild pass behind the Balmy Line.

Bobby Porter, 19-year-old Beaches backfielder, gave an astonishing display of catching and running back kicks, receiving good assistance from his two youthful partners, Jimmy Murchie and Ross Lipsell. It was his misfortune, however, to figure in two of the errors which gave Sarnia their large margin.

Hugh "Bummer" Stirling, Imperials' stellar kicker, was in the forefront of the fray and along with Norm Perry, Ray Brown and Alex Hayes, gave the winners a well-balanced backfield.

St. Thomas Yellow Jackets started their drive for another Dominion intermediate title by downing Sarnia Wanderers, 3-1, in the mud and rain at St. Thomas.

Fashion Flashes

(By Alice Alden)

A RUSTLING WHISPER in the ballroom denotes the presence of taffeta frocks. One of the nicest of the new dance frocks is in a delightful printed-colored taffeta. The deep back decolletage is edged with a ruffle that covers the side and at the hemline in front. There is a short train in back.

✦ ✦ ✦

JUST LIKE FLOWERS are some of the newest nighties in their resemblance to evening frocks. Hardly to be distinguished from a formal frock is a nightie cut on long slinky lines. It is in pale gray crepe romain with a lacy yoke, sleeves of pale gray lace and a girdle of gray velvet.

✦ ✦ ✦

MIX COLORS if you want your clothes to be different. A dress made of silk and wool with a fine ecrue stripe is in a deep purplish blue. This color is set off by over-sleeves and a guimpe of Alaska seal dyed a light gray. A lovely frock to call day after in Autumn.

✦ ✦ ✦

A NICE COMBINATIONSHIP is that of the woollen suit and the satin blouse, the favored combination this Autumn. Nice with a dark blue Jean Parker's tailored woollen suit is blouse of geranium red in heavy slippy satin. This has a collarette finished with a big bow at the neck of the jacket.

✦ ✦ ✦

A QUILTING BEE is in order as quilting becomes popular for trimming. A chic suit of black woollen acquires extra charm by an enveloping collar of quilted black satin. The collar reaching almost to the mid-arm. There is also a quilted satin muff.

✦ ✦ ✦

WHY NOT two different furs in one costume. Delightful and different is a coat of nutria, a collarless, loose swagger model. This is worn with a double-breasted waistcoat of leopard skin, with wide revers and a collar that goes over the nutria coat.

Current Attractions at Local Theatres

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE CAPITOL

A Screen Masterpiece

To the Columbia Studios, to Director Frank Capra, to scenarist Robert Riskin, to Damon Runyon, the author, Warren William, the star, to May Robson, Guy Kibbee, to the cameramen, props and technicians: to all of these to anyone who either directly or indirectly took part in the production of "Lady For A Day" go the plaudits of the movie-going populace for having turned out one of the most entertaining pictures of this or any other year.

"Lady For A Day," which, will have its initial performance next Wednesday, locally, at the Capitol Theatre, is destined to occupy a prominent niche in screendom's Hall of Fame. Like "Seventh Heaven," "Broken Blossoms" and "Street Scene" it possesses that indefinable quality that distinguishes greatness. It has tremendous universal appeal as a charming fairy story that will strum on the heart-strings of the entire world. Hard-boiled men and tender hearted women, sweet young ladies and sophisticated flappers, lisping youngsters and sleepy-eyed elders will laugh and cry and thrill alike to the touching, pathetic story.

The story opens in Times Square, New York, where Apple Annie vends her wares to support a daughter in Europe. Petchogen gave the girl to get into difficulties when her daughter writes that she will visit America with her fiance and his father, a Spanish Count, who is headed to crack up on the family pedigree.

To save the Dude (Warren William) a big shot gambler who considers Apple Annie his charm, comes to the rescue. He installs her in a wealthy playboy friend's apartment, supplies her with true grand dame style and provides a temporary husband in the person of Guy Kibbee who portrays a glib penny ante shark.

The deception almost proves a bust when the police hold Dave and the pack of dames for shedding three society reporters on the eve of an important ante reception planned as a farewell party to the Count and his son. Dave gets in touch with the Mayor and the Governor at a formal official function and they indicate their intentions to attend the belated reception. The Count, however, is not attired in a large body following which the Mayor and his engaged couple embark for Spain.

May Robson, "the grand old lady of the American stage" attains her greatest success in fifty years of trouping as the apple vendor in "Lady For A Day." It is her greatest characterization and one that will endear her to all.

The picture has a natural unity, a continuity of action. Direction of Ned Sparks, the druggists of Guy Kibbee, the dames of Glenda Farrell give the picture a finish of excellency that will make the smiles chase the tears in numerous sequences.

The remainder of the cast is exceptionally well chosen. They include Jean Parker, Walter Connolly, Nat Pendleton, Barry Norton, Ward Bond, Robert Dorworth and Wallis Clark.

"Lady For A Day," will open today (Wednesday) for a four day engagement at the Capitol Theatre, with additional matinee "shorts" and news included at each performance. Times of exhibition and prices of admission as usual.

Tonight

The programme which 'stood them out' at the Capitol Theatre over last week-end, explodes its highly successful run tonight. Complete shows at 7:15 and 9:15.

The programme is headed by "The Secret of the Blue Room," (you'll love being scared to death!) and

AT THE BELLE

Charlie Chan's Greatest Case."

The new Fox Film depicting the most recent adventures of that bland Chinese detective from Hawaii, opens today (Tuesday) at the Belle Theatre and is scheduled to remain for engagement of two days. Warner Oland, famous for the portrayal of Charlie Chan in past screen successes again has the role of the philosophizing policeman who fathoms where others deign to tread.

This latest story from the vigorous pen of Earl Derr Biggers, is considered by far the best of the Charlie Chan saga, and takes Chan over the most difficult trail or crime and clues it has ever been his experience to tread. Stopped at every point by closed doors and fearful associations, Chan falls back on his mellow philosophy to the solution of a crime that has the public backed against the wall. In his suave, kindly manner Chan proves himself more than ever to be a man of iron will and biting intellect.

The leading feminine role is in the hands of Keye Luke, a beautiful newcomer to the screen, and she is said to acquit herself with the success of a veteran. Among the audiences achieved their first glimpse of this star in "Pilgrimage," but

John Wayne in "Somewhere in Sonora."

CAR CRASHES INTO CURB BUT PASSENGERS ESCAPE INJURY

Iron Lamp Post Broken And Cement Base Dislodged

TRENTON, October 10—(Special)—Three people escaped death miraculously early Monday morning, when a Ford coupe driven by John Tomkin Hall of 27 1-3 Turnbull St., Belleville with Wallace Swallow, of the same address, and Miss Isobel Tugnutt of Trenton, as passengers, crashed into the curb on West Dundas Street Hill near the residence of Dr. Parker. The car jumped some twenty-four feet and struck an iron lamp post breaking it in three places at the base, an eight-inch cement base holding the pole, out of the ground. The car then turned over three or four times finally landing on its side on the Canadian National Railway tracks at the foot of the hill.

The passengers were uninjured with the exception of Miss Tugnutt, who received a cut upper lip and a few scalp injuries. She was attended by Dr. Parker, who gave her relief to her residence.

Hall was arrested by the Trenton police after the accident and appeared before Magistrate T. Jarrett yesterday morning, charged with causing bodily harm by the negligent operation of a motor vehicle. He was not asked to plead and was remanded without bail.

Stuart Hall, father of the boy, a resident of Waterville, P.Q., was the owner of the car which was completely demolished.

The boy has been resident in Belleville at present but their homes are in Quebec province. They were returning from the dance at Melody Inn.

TEACHERS CONVENE AT COLBORNE

Local Teachers Again in Belleville Inspectorate

Teachers from the Trenton schools assembled in convention at Colborne on Thursday with Mr. V. P. Carswell, principal of College Street School, and President of the Teachers' Association of Mr. A. A. Martin's Inspectorate in the chair. An innovation was introduced in the programme in that, instead of the usual address on opening day, the teachers gained some practical experience in the various centers taught classes in the Colborne public school under Principal Mr. Geo. Cracknell and the rural teachers taught in the nearby rooms of country school. Constructive criticisms were made and much useful experience gained.

At six p.m. the convention assembled at a banquet served locally in the town hall with the ladies of the Women's Institute catering. Following dinner a fine programme was heard, which opened with a vocal solo by Miss Helen Macdonald of Campbellford, Mr. Robt. Dawson, President of the Trenton Rate-Payers Association, spoke briefly. A reading by Miss Lela Black of Murray Place followed. Miss Fern Weatherill, of Campbellford, gave a violin solo. Mr. Amos, Secretary of the Trustees and Ratepayers Association spoke. Miss Laura Johnson, of Trenton gave a reading. Next was a musical selection by Miss Hazel of Cramahe township.

The speaker of the evening was Deputy-Minister of Public Welfare, Mr. M. A. Sorsoli, M.A., of Toronto, who gave a very excellent resume of the activities of this newest of government departments which looks after the Mothers' Allowance, Old Age pensions and all social welfare work in the province. Mr. A. A. Martin introduced the speaker.

The concluding session of the convention was held on Friday morning on the Sunday School room of the Baptist Church. Rev. Mr. Stirling officiated at the opening. Reports of the committees and short addresses preceded the election of officers for the ensuing year.

Miss Jennie Dilworth of Warkworth was elected President.

At this session Inspector Martin announced the impending change in the Inspectorate in Northumberland again comes under the Belleville Inspectorate. In making announcement, the inspector expressed sincere regret on losing the Colborne teachers. The change takes place on December 31st.

STILL SWIMMING

Gordon Pearce, 17 son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pearce of Delaney St. North Trenton, doesn't seem to mind the cold water of the bay.

On Sunday Gordon took a swim in the Trent Canal for about fifteen minutes while a small gathering stood around and shivered. He is a regular swimmer and has seldom missed a splash or two since his babyhood days.

Leo Augur of Trenton, usually holds the record for first in June last, but Bur Gordon seems to be a little later than Leo this year.

NEAR-INDIGENT REAL PROBLEM

where attention and often medicine were required.

"A good many municipalities have taken advantage of this provision for direct aid for medical service. But the doctor is faced with only fifty per cent. of his aupid fee. The medicine is limited to certain supplies—she said, citing cough syrup and such other preparations. "Under the law we find that the medical assistance have been well looked after."

Year-Indigents are Problem

From a medical man who has had some of these vouchers, but who has not cashed one of them, "because it is so much trouble," as he said of it, it was learned that it is not so much the indigent but the near-indigent who are the problem of the doctors of Belleville and other places, he has to do. "Here is a man who owns his own home and has all he wants to go to get along, using up his money as he goes to meet his expenses. Then he develops sickness and it is just too bad for him and the doctor. He has no money and has to go on relief. The result is doctors cannot afford to run their cars and start seeing these people in their homes because the lack of time and the expense are too great. What we feel is the need is that the hospital care. In this doctor referred to a reference made to his system in a letter from City Clerk Holmes to Aid. Woodley, in which he said: "When the notice of an admission of patients is received I have the majority of them investigated and if I find that a great number of these people have been told by the doctor to be sent to the hospital that it will not cost them anything while there."

Cannot Blame Doctors

"Of course that is true but you cannot blame the doctors" said the newspaper's informant. "I have had patients say: 'I have told them to go to the hospital, but they have said 'We cannot pay.' I have advised that the city will take care of them. What else are we to do? It is no crime for a doctor to see that these cases are treated. We cannot afford to go from home to home, without any hope or receiving some remuneration, when we have just as much right to go to the hospital. But they must have treatment.

"The municipality cannot expect that we can be running all around the city looking after patients, buying gasoline, wearing out our cars, and taking up so much more of our time. We do not get any compensation when attending these people in the hospital.

Profitable to Both

"Here is how the matter appeals to me. If the city council will agree to pay us a fee we can keep a good many of them out of the hospital. It would pay the city, too, for it costs $1.75 per patient daily and there is the running expense of the hospital which figures up to two dollars and a half a day.

"If the doctors were compensated in a reasonable manner not only for these indigent cases, but also for the attendance upon their intermediate class who have no money for medical attention and medicines, the near-indigent, both municipalities and doctors would be better off.

"No municipality contends that real dealers in groceries should supply fuel and groceries to the poor without charge, but where doctors are concerned a different view seems to be taken.

"It seems to me that a number of municipalities are trying to 'slide out from under' and blame the doctor for sending the indigent to the hospital. But we are not responsible for this condition. The city cannot expect us to treat dozens of people in a day and go without some compensation. We cannot afford it."

State Medicine's Value

"Has any one taken any keen interest in regard to state medicine?" the doctor was asked.

"No we have not taken any steps

but of course this question of state medicine has been discussed again and again for ages among doctors. A man on relief wants a ton of coal and it is sent him and the city and government pay for it. Then we have to pay our taxes and why should we not receive for this full amount of our fees? They should not be restricted and persons should be permitted to choose what doctor they like and not break associations for years and perhaps a generation with a family doctor. Today they are not going to one doctor.

"But it is not the indigent' which are affecting us so much as it is the near-indigent as the person with just enough set aside, but with no money for sickness. We just have to go on without money and treat these patients. That is where state medicine would come in and be of benefit to the greater number of doctors. That is how it is worked out in England. Persons receiving under a certain salary are attended under the state medicine plan in the Old Country and so the doctor is not made to work for nothing in such cases as he is here."

"How do you get paid for such cases who cannot pay for treatment in the hospital, doctor?" he was asked.

"We don't get paid at all and we never have been paid."

What is the amount of free medical service given the people of Belleville? This physician estimates that from $36,000 to $40,000 per year would be a very low figure for the free attention given in the wards of the Belleville General Hospital.

Giants fans groaned when Joe Moore, star outfielder of the Terry clan, was tossed out at first completing a double-play in the first inning of the fourth world series game at Washington. Moore, first man up, walked and then Hughey Critz lined into Buddy Myer's glove for the double killing.

To the Victors—

Jubilation reigned supreme in the giants' clubhouse after the final game of the series in Washington. Bill Terry (right) and Mel Ott share their delight for the cameraman. It was Ott's homer in the tenth that won for the Terry clan.

Winthrop, Mass. Oct. 10.—(CP)—The United States Coastguard Station at Winthrop early today picked up a wireless message from the Italian steamer Montello reporting the sinking of the Greek freighter Annoula and the rescue of the Annoula's captain and four of her crew.

The Master of the Montello said he picked up one of the Annoula's small boats last night. The Greek freighters captain George Cuvelios, and four of the crew aboard the boat, the message said. The Montello was proceeding to Philadelphia with the rescued men. Twenty-one of the Annoula's crew were reported missing.

The message said the Annoula sank at about 24.30 north, 69.40 west on Saturday, Oct. 7 at 1.30 a.m. The position, given Coastguard officers said, is approximately 600 miles east of Cape Lookout N.C.

The Winthrop Coastguard Station broadcast a message to all ships in the vicinity to keep a sharp look out for survivors and wreckage of the crew.

HANDLING OF JUNK BECOMES BIG BUSINESS

Considerable Handled And Shipped From This City

TRUCKS USED

Junk is Reclaimed, Re-Fashioned and Used in Many Ways

Junk is "big business" now, and Belleville is rapidly becoming one of the more important centres in Ontario for the handling and shipping of that necessary commercial product. A once despised occupation, whose symbol was the grimy "junk man" with his little old cart piled high with cluttered odds and ends, has dressed up in the latest clothes and is now blossoming out as a respectable rival to brother industries.

The buying and selling of old metal is a real business now, no casual trip through any of the dealers' yards in this city will disclose. Here lie tons of iron and steel, the scrap metal of all descriptions, now a vital part in the work of keeping the wheels of the world in balance. Junk is unpalatable, almost. No sooner does a piece of steel end its usefulness in one job than it is again boiled down, refined and forged and ready again to assume a new life in a role vastly different than the one before. Yesterday that bent piece of steel channel was part of the chassis of a gleaming motor car whose rolling wheels had carried it thousands of miles over paving and concrete roads, tomorrow it may be part of the armor plating of a Japanese battleship. Only rust or a watery grave can end its career.

Use Trucks Entirely

Throughout the country travel the trucks of the modern junk man. Each village and town and farm house of the county provides its little or big quota of the scrap metal. Each cross road b'ackSmith shop accumulates its little pile of scrap for the buyer. It is a far cry these days from the bearded junk man of old to the modern buyer, who sits at a desk superintending the collection of the replenishing flood of material from a thousand and one sources that send back their waste to be reclaimed.

In a steady stream throughout the week trucks arrive at the large storage yards and deposit their loads in graded piles. Here is cast iron, the parts of old reapers, combines, and various other types of broken down farm machinery. Here in another pile is the cast off steel in bars and lengths, once part of motor cars and other expensive machines. In other piles lie the carefully guarded collection of copper and brass and lead, now so much in demand by manufacturers throughout the world.

At one yard a huge machine with sharp, heavy jaws munches its way through the plates and bars and rods of steel that are fed its gaping maw by workers cutting it up to easily handled lengths. With monotonous precision and exactness the heavy knives bite through the hard steel and iron like a tailors' shears through cloth. In other parts of the yard men toil with heavy sledges, breaking up the brittle cast iron into smaller sizes. Still other workers are sorting and grading the more expensive metals of lead and copper and brass. Over it all lower the huge piles of old metal that is finding its way back to the blazing furnaces of steel mills where it will again emerge in its useful form.

Carloads Shipped

From Belleville car loads of the used metal and scrap finds it way on heavy railroad flat cars and gondolas to points as far as the Pacific Coast. Recently Canadian buyers and shippers were given an order for thousands of tons of old rails and other steel for the Japanese and Russian governments. Part of the shipment went from Belleville. Huge blast furnaces in this country and in the U. S. need their constant supply to fill the demand for steel throughout the world.

In lesser importance comes the buying and selling of old rags and paper and rubber and bottles. These too find a ready market throughout this and other countries. All these will undergo other types of reclamation methods, which will give them a new life of usefulness. From the old wool will come blanket's and other manufactured cloths; the linen rags will provide the best of notepaper; other rags will be used as the basis for other paper. Old bottles will be ground and broken into sand enough as the chief constituent of abrasive paper or "sand paper." From the old tires may provide the sooner class Chinese with durable footwear, made by cutting the rubber into sole-shaped pieces.

There's romance in the clash and bang and rattle of the modern junkyard.

STILL STORM-BOUND

TORONTO, Oct. 7.—(CP)— No power! Barred, than they were a week ago. James and Amy Mollison famous English fliers, were still storm-bound here awaiting a favoural clearing-up of weather so they may make their long-delayed start for the Iraq City.

Rev. G. G. Wright Says Many Persons Break This Primal Law

Harvest-time in all ages and in all religions has been particularly observed by all races, remarked the Rev. G. G. Wright, rector of Christ Church on Sunday morning at the annual harvest festival, which coincided with Thanksgiving. "The mystery of the increase of the things of earth" was ever present in the minds of the people, especially the Hebrews. This is one festival which Christianity shares with other religions. This season was the time the ancient Jew left his home and went out into the booths or shelters for the feast of the ingathering," said the preacher.

The Jew recognized the place of God in the harvest, the minister went on to say, and also remembered the poor for whom he left the gleanings. So Jesus in his summary of the commandments places that referring to the recognition of God and one's fellowmen as the two great commandments.

Our Fathers' Share

Harvest celebration to the Jews was marked by a thanksoffering. Today it must be recognized that the city-dweller like the Jew who left in the wilderness, still is a sower of seed and reaps the harvest of the seed he sows, and like the Jew he recognizes that harvest is more than the reaping of seed sown, it is the direct product or a series of heroisms on the part of the pioneers of predecessors. "Our fathers have their share in this harvest," noted Mr. Wright. "We thank God for the harvest and also remember the sacrifices of the pioneers."

Some Give Tag End

The fact that the Jew brought a peculiar kind of thanksoffering, "the first fruits," left the preacher to point out that we have drifted away from the Jewish idea, and from a great many people God gets the tag end. If we have nothing to do some of us decide to go to church.

Mr. Wright saw in this very tendency of mankind the reason why the church has to resort to business means to raise money to carry on its activities. "I wish we did not have to have teas in the church. I think it is a kind of a nuisance. But after all our hands are tied. There are many people today who do not make an offering to God, but pay in church for what they get. With a sense of devotion and thankfulness to God, these things would not be necessary and we should be carring out the church's obligation with freewill offerings.

Blessed Are Taxpayers

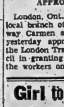
It was with a touch of wistfulness that the minister referred to the manner in which the machine age had wiped out some of the finest traditions, such as that of the "forgotten sheaf" for which the Jewish farmer might not go back for that was the property of the poor. Mr. Wright said, "Out of the machine has come business. Business to Christ is not merely setting oneself down to a set of books and making money. That is a killing process and has killed many people. I know we tax ourselves to keep the poor and one has said that there might be a new beatitude 'Blessed are the taxpayers' that is those who recognize their duty to their neighbor."

The preacher called for a new proportion in our spendings. We spend too much on ornaments. The idea of Thanksgiving is to spend or subsidizing what we now spend on destruction, if carried out, what a happy place this world would be—a brotherhood of peace!"

Special Music

The music was characteristic of the day and the choir under the direction of Mr. Cyril Waite, organist and leader, sang an anthem.

CANNOT BE DECENT ON WAGE RECEIVED



Bishop Seager Refers to the Strike Situation

Chatham, Ont., Oct. 10 (CP) — "Such a thing is outrageous. No one can be decent on 7½ cents an hour," declared Bishop C. A. Seager referring to the Stratford strike situation before 400 laymen of the Kent Deanery at the men's service held in St. John's Anglican church, Morpeth. His Lordship declared that it was generally known that the wages of the strikers were between 7½ and 21 cents an hour, and even then, he asked, many of the employees were only on part time.

APPROVE ACTION

London, Ont., Oct. 10 (CP) —The local branch of the Order of Railway Carmen at a special meeting yesterday approved the action of the London Trades and Labor council in granting financial support to the workers on strike at Stratford.

Cub Wrestles With Youngster

Mother of Three Year Old Boy And Dog Best Bruin

Bancroft, Oct. 10.—Hearing the cries of her three-year-old boy, Mrs. James Vance, Bancroft, rushed into her front yard and saw the child valiantly trying to escape from a six months old bear.

She rushed to the rescue, calling for Buster, the big hound that watches over the Vance home. Buster cases tearing in from behind the barn, hurled himself on the intruder and was getting the better of the argument when the still-snarling bear retreated to the safety of a fir tree beside the house.

Mrs. Vance picked up her terrified boy and carried him to safety. Meanwhile the hound bayed at the foot of the tree, while the enraged and frightened cub snarled back at him. Mrs. Vance, 23-year-old son of Mrs. Vance, arrived on the scene, and, fashioning a snare from a long, stout pole and a piece of rope, dragged the cub from his perch. He is now a chained captive.

"He might have only wanted to play, but he stands over three feet high when he gets up on his hind legs. If we hadn't been there the child might have been hurt," Mrs. Vance said. The cub was very young, even for his size. The way he fought the dog showed that. Buster has a few claw marks to show for what he did."

ISLAND GIRL

By FRANK R. ADAMS

And yet it was an incredible situation. For, after all, the war the United States, not a South African jungle, the law of the land of liberty prevailed and on the mainland, not over three or four miles away there were plenty of efficient officers sworn to uphold those laws.

This illegal seizure of the island and the capture of its inhabitants was as much an act of piracy as any deed which Captain Kidd might have perpetrated on that very coast, in the lawless days of two centuries ago.

Here was a demonstration with a vengeance of the theory which Vern himself had propounded to his friend Dodd. Speed in the matter was the all-important thing, and that it is the man on foot who comes into contact with life.

This was a situation that had to be met without deprivation de lay of policemen, the fire department or a file of marines. Whatever they could not do themselves, either by the strength or strategy innate in their beings, was not worth the doing. The only law which prevailed on Little Key was the law of the upper hand.

The thing that made the inviolableness of the monument especially intolerable to Vern was the conviction that Irene would not allow herself to live any longer than was absolutely necessary to save her brother's life. As soon as he was in a place of safety she would not endure the degrading attentions of the man who planned to be her lover. She could not exist as "Tommy's" wife. That was as obvious as the most elementary addition in first grade arithmetic.

Whatever was to be done to save Irene from the fate which she was facing with a serene calm that was doubtless the result of civilization and breeding over a quieting primitive terror must be accomplished immediately. In a very short while it would be too late.

CHAPTER 24

Vern rather cursed himself for the foolish masquerade he had started. At the time he had first taken Dr. Synder's place he had thought the sacrifice for a minute had been a ruse on Irene's part to gain time and make a covert appeal for help. Now he realized that she had really wanted the ministrations of religion for the sacrifice she was about to make and that she had wrung that as a last despairing concession from the monster who had her in his power.

Now Vern had upset Irene's tactics and unless she confessed his trick and consented to submit meekly back to the yacht the only thing he had done was to make her more than ever the only tiny prop she clung to as a solace to carry with her into the terrifying future.

It was rather a question to Vern's mind whether anything would be gained now by revealing to "Dunny" that he was not an ordained padre, and it certainly would have the effect of putting him immediately out of all chance of the situation and the possibility of taking in hand in case anything violent happened.

Evidently Irene guessed the self condemnatory thoughts which were going through Vern's mind for she said: "Never mind, dear all I'd as soon be married by you as anyone. It doesn't really matter in a case of this sort, does it?"

To Vern nothing mattered, save that she was being torn from him, but to women he knew that weddings did matter. They are instinctively and by bitter experience the custodians of the conventions and rightly so. To them a legal marriage is an anaesthetic which can make endurable the most dreadful nightmare of a distasteful mating.

Still masking his real emotions under the language of a churchman Vern told her: "I was afraid that you might be unhappy about having the ceremony performed by a clergyman who was not of your own denomination."

"That," Irene assured him, "is not tremendously material."

Vern looked at her sharply. Was the girl jesting or did her speech convey a hidden meaning? It is exasperating to be obliged to talk in riddles this way. There must be some practical subterfuge which would gain a few moments of straight-forward conversation with the girl who, incredible as it seemed, had kissed him the night before.

"While we are waiting for the return 'of the witnesses," Vern suggested, "I should like very much to be shown through your house and grounds. They are charming and steeped in a mellow flavor of the old time south which has not been so well preserved in other cavalier colonial homes which I have visited."

Irene was visibly distressed. "I should like very much to show you around but I think I ought to stay here while my brother is up in the tree-top. Not that I worry exactly but I want him to know where I am."

"Oh," Vern comprehended. "Perhaps at some—"

"Tap, tap, tap-tap."

Irene stopped short in her speech and made a sign to Vern to be still too.

Two dots. That was I in International Morse. Vern could guess that the master of Can Key was at a sort of "Attention!" signal when he wished to communicate immediately. In a very short while it would be too late.

"Tap-tap-tap" came again. It was being rapped out on the floor somewhere.

In taps came the message.

Vern could translate it himself but he thought it best to let Irene communicate the permission to him.

"He says that I may show you over the place," she told him.

"That will be very interesting. I'm sure. It will seem good to walk about a bit after being on shipboard for several days." It was strange how difficult it was to confine his remarks to commonplaces. Irene was bursting with questions he wanted to ask the girl full of things he wanted to tell her, one of them being that the Ape Man forced her to. He had ever known and that he adored her, and all he could actually say was the sort of thing one might address to a complete stranger.

"Father," she was saying, "you will say how's you, until the others arrive?"

Certainly. Let's see where is that deck of cards that—"

"In the little drawer of escritoire," Irene told him with decision.

"And your solitaire score is right with it, I'm sure. Don't move before we left."

Mr. Ferguson was already running the spindly desk.

"This doesn't seem right, he mumbled, consulting the penciled record. "This says I owe the Canfield bank over two thousand dollars and I thought it was only fifteen hundred."

"No" Irene explained. "Don't you remember that run of bad luck you had just before we sailed?"

"No", he replied truculently, "I don't remember any special run of bad luck. I've never had any other kind to compare it with. But I suppose the figures are right; they're in my own handwriting. It will take me all day to go over the debt even if I win every time."

"You should not play for large stakes." Irene suggested.

"I guess I will. I'm feeling lucky at last. Here goes say a thousand dollars a point."

He was already absorbed in the layout as Irene and Vern passed from the room.

"It doesn't really matter how much he has to lose," Irene explained with a slight grimace. "That's one debt which neither of us has to pay."

Vern wondered where "Dummy" might be. That he was somewhere within earshot he was quite certain —probably within "Dunny's" earshot, too. It gave the expedition the unusual thrill of exploring a haunted house.

CHAPTER 25

The rooms were large enough, in all conscience, for an eavesdropper to be hidden anywhere. And they were cluttered with huge pieces of useless furniture in a bad state of repair. Vern felt that he was moving hopelessly for the return of a bygone day. One felt that there was never quite enough light anywhere by day or night. The trees were and with waves of candles and a crowding too close to the house for the sun to do its full service during its day and the glass Shandrieu certainly was not of the dimly filtered light of day disclosing its ranks of empty chairs quite entirely to dispel the gloom of under man-made / caverns by night.

The house was obviously intending for a large family attended by a tremendous retinue of servants. Just two people in any one of the rooms seemed like a couple of marbles in the Coliseum.

Their very footsteps rousing a creaking echo and their merest whisper seemed to run around the dusty, high mouldings gathering force as it travelled and rushing outside like a frightened bat disturbed from its noon-day slumbers.

The dining room was perhaps the gloomiest of all the apartments on the main floor. Finished in black walnut which had grown dull from lack of care and designed to accomodate a three-generation family assembly it now had a forlorn air of disconsolate grandeur. Probably it had been wonderful once when mirrors shone and bright silver had relieved its polished dark surfaces, by day or night. The trees were and with waves of candles and a

The kitchen convenience, if they could be called such, were mostly of a by-gone pattern. Apparently there was, or had been, a storage tank for water somewhere because there were huge complicated faucets over a great iron sink flanked by pale, scoured-down drain boards. At one end of the sink was a cistern pump evidently supplying the kitchen.

Back from the kitchen were the quarters for the help, numerous single cabins now almost entirely stranded by the second growth forest.

At one side was a dog kennel which looked more as if it had been used lately. But there was no dog in evidence.

"What kind of a dog have you?" Vern asked idly. One does ask that question.

"Sandy was an Airedale but he died last week." Her voice was singularly colorless. From that Vern gathered that she was moved by considerable emotion and that Sandy in his lifetime had been well beloved.

"Died while you were away?"

"Yes."

Vern forebore any further question. He knew without having the picture painted for him that Sandy had not cared much for Dummy or Pete and that they had killed him while his mistress was not there to protect him.

A dog was something the landscape needed, now that his attention was called to it by the empty kennel Vern realized that there was no chuck of any sort around the place. Usually an isolated dwelling like that has a hum of its own, the contented muttering of fowl, pigs disputing the menu, pups and kittens playing ferocious jungle games underfoot and bees supplying a diapason accompaniment to the entire symphony.

But scrambling had laid a finger of silence on Cane Key. It did not affect the wind of the storm passing overhead did not disturb the fearful tranquility which prevailed below.

TARZAN, LORD OF THE JUNGLE

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Tarzan, decidedly surprised, saw a white man clothed in chain mail, coming down the trail, a dozen paces ahead of him trotting behind him. "Tell them to halt," commanded Tarzan. "Stop, I pray thee," cried the frightened black the Ape Man forced before him. "This is a friend of Sir James." The knight halted a few paces away from Tarzan unfeigned astonishment was written on his face. "Thou art truly a friend of our Sir James!" he demanded.

Tarzan nodded. "I have been seeking him for many days," said the knight, "and some unholy hellish thing has done that lost thy apparel?" questioned the knight. 'The Ape-Man smiled. "I go this way in the jungle and that in the jungle from the same country as Sir James!" demanded the knight. "No," replied Tarzan. "I am the Englishman." The knight's face beamed as he cried: "Thrice welcome then, to Nimmur! I am Sir Bertram. What is thy name and rank?"

Tarzan was mystified by the strange manners and garb of this seemingly friendly fellow. But he sensed that he took himself seriously and would be more impressed if he knew Tarzan was a man of position. So he answered truthfully: "They call me Tarzan. I am a Viscount." "A peer of the realm!" exclaimed his clothes fitted the ape-man well. Presently Tarzan of the Apes was garbed in the full regalia of a knight.

Taking Tarzan into the castle's outer courtyard, Bertram sent his squire to fetch raiment and a horse. While they waited, he told the ape-man all that had befallen Jimmy Blake since his arrival in Nimmur.

Sir Bertram was a stalwart fellow and it was found that Tarzan's clothes fitted the ape-man well. Presently Tarzan of the Apes was garbed in the full regalia of a knight

CHAPTER 25

"The rooms were large enough, in all conscience, for an eavesdropper to be hidden anywhere. And they were cluttered with huge pieces of useless furniture in a bad state of repair. It seemed in the mourning of hopelessly for the return of a bygone day. One felt that there was never quite enough light anywhere by day or night. The trees were always crowding too close to the house for the sun to do its full service during most of those man-made caverns by night.

The house was obviously intending for a large family attended by a tremendous retinue of servants. Just two people in any one of the rooms seemed like a couple of marbles in the Coliseum.

Their very footsteps roused a creaking echo and their merest whisper seemed to run around the dusty, high mouldings gathering force as it travelled and rushing back to bombard its originator disturbed from its noon-day slumbers.

The dining room was perhaps the least gloomiest of all the apartments on the main floor. Finished in black walnut which had grown dull from lack of care and designed to accommodate a three-generation family assembly it now had a forlorn air of discouraged grandeur. Probably it had been wonderful once when many linen and bright silver had relieved its polished dark surfaces. And with scores of candles and a wood blaze in the fire-place furnishing warm illumination. But it certainly was not cheerful now with the dimly filtered light of day displaying its ranks of empty chairs and only the ghost of an ancient fire betraying itself by a faint odor of musty wood-smoke.

The kitchen was a little better because there was a fire smouldering in the tremendous cookstove but it, too, was lonesome for the bustling crew which had formerly filled it with cheerful confusion.

The kitchen conveniences, if they could be called such, were mostly of a by-gone pattern. Apparently there was, or had been, a storage cistern below the windows because there were huge complicated faucets over a great iron sink flanked by pale, scoured-down drain ed boards. At one end of the sink was a cistern pump evidently supplying soft water direct.

Back from the kitchen were the quarters for the help, numerous cabins now almost entirely strangled by the second growth forest.

At one side was a dog kennel which looked more as if it had been used lately. But there was no dog in evidence.

"What kind of a dog have you?" Vern asked idly. One does ask that question.

"Sandy was an Airedale but he died last week." Her voice was singularly colorless. From that Vern gathered that she was moved by considerable emotion and that Sandy in his lifetime had been well beloved.

"Used while you were away?"

"Yes."

Vern forebore any further question. He knew without having the picture painted for him that Sandy had not cared much for "Dummy" or Pete and that they had killed him while the mistress was not there to protect him.

A dog was something the landscape needed, now that his attention was called to it by the empty kennel Vern realized that there was no livestock of any sort around the place. Usually an isolated dwelling like that has a dozen of its own, the contented muttering of fowl, pigs discussing the menu, pups and kittens playing ferocious jungle games underfoot and bees supplying a diapason accompaniment to the entire symphony.

But something had laid a finger of silence on Cane Key. It did not blow. The wind of the storm passing overhead did not disturb the fearful tranquility which prevailed below.

"No Government Can Remain Popular Through Depression" R.B.Bennett

Claims Administration Will Compare With Others

RECOVERY NEAR

Reference to Radicalism Few And Quite Indirect

By C. - BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Winnipeg, Oct. 10.—(CP)— No government could remain popular through a depression such as the world had been experiencing, Prime Minister R. B. Bennett declared here. But he believed in the words of Talleyrand—"a statesman should have the courage to be unpopular," and he was satisfied that the conduct of the present administration would compare favorably with any administration in the world over the same period.

Mr. Bennett made three speeches yesterday, to the students of the University of Manitoba, and their guests an afternoon tea, and to 1,000 to the guests at a luncheon, of the Winnipeg Women's Conservative Association and to a banquet tendered by the Conservative Association of Manitoba in the evening. The latter function was private.

Mr. Bennett held out as reasons for thanksgiving, the fact that not only Canada but the whole world seemed to be on the road to recovery and hoped particularly to impress the students, the need for service and ideals, declaring that the opportunity for the young generation had never been greater and probably never would be again.

The achievements of less than 10,500,000 people in a comparatively new dominion had been such as no similar population and country in the history of the world had ever accomplished, Mr. Bennett said. He asked his listeners to remember that fact, and to guard against any changes that might cast down what had been built up in that time.

Pleaded For Care

The Prime Minister's references to radicalism were few and indirect. He realized that new conditions brought new policies and changes were necessary, but he pleaded for care lest in cutting off the "noxious growth" the tree might be damaged beyond repair. He referred to the freedom of individual effort and opportunities for the Canadian to utilise to the full the talents he might possess.

Tonight, Mr. Bennett will speak before the Young Men's Board of Trade, delivering his key-note speech of the Winnipeg visit. It is understood he will then discuss the wheat situation, particularly the world agreement signed by Canada at London during the summer.

In his speech yesterday Mr. Bennett covered generally the happenings since his government took office. He quietened the apprehension of those who "snipe from long distance so those who are panic-stricken with the responsibilities of office under such trying times," and declared that every effort that a sincere and earnest desire to improve conditions, could devise and support had been put into action.

Never before in the history of the Dominion had this country's credit stood so high in London, Mr. Bennett declared, recalling the recent £15,000,000 loan in London which was heavily oversubscribed a minute after the books opened.

MAY SET A NEW RECORD

Batavia, Netherlands East India, Oct. 10 (AP)—Wing Commander Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith, who now seems definitely out to break O. W. A. Scott's record for an Englan-to-Australia flight, passed over Batavia this afternoon enroute to Soerabaya, Java.

As the Australian airman flew by, he dropped a note reading: "London to Batavia in six days, three hours. Short hop. Please advise Smoke Semaraog (in North Central Java) to have two gallons of petrol on the ground as I may have to land for refuel oil. Also inform Soerabaya about landing lights. Thank you. Cheers. Kingsford-Smith."

When he hopped from London Sir Charles said he was out to shave off Scott's mark of eight days, 20 hours and 47 minutes.

For BACKACHES have GONE!

Quick, sure relief with Fruit-a-tives

"For years I suffered terribly from backache. I could get no relief and was miserable. Then I was advised to try Fruit-a-tives. I did so and got relief at once. I continued taking them and soon my backache was gone. I can recommend Fruit-a-tives to all who suffer as I did."

MONS. AYLWARD DIES

London, Ont. Oct. 10—(CP)—Rt. Rev. Mons. J. T. Aylward, of Our Lady of Mercy Church in Stonis ted in St. Joseph's Hospital early Tuesday after a brief illness.

Mons. Aylward was widely known throughout Western Ontario, having served almost continuously in this district since his ordination in St. Peters Cathedral in 1886.

IMPLICATED IN PLOT

Alice White, blonde Canadian film actress and her fiance, Sidney Bartlett, above, have been summoned to testify before the county grand jury at Los Angeles in connection with an alleged plot to disfigure the face of John Warburton, insct, English movie actor. Two movie extras arrested following an attack on Warburton, implicated Miss White and Bartlett, asserting the latter wished the English actor disfigured because he once slapped the actress' face. Both Miss White and Bartlett denied any knowledge of the supposed plot.

THROUGH TRAFFIC IS AGAIN ON THE MOVE

12-Hour Holdup Follows Derailment of 19 Cars

Komoka, Ont., Oct. 10 (CP) — Trains of the Canadian National Railways thundered through this junction point today after a 12-hour holdup yesterday following the derailing of ten freight cars. Wrecking crews were back on the ground clearing away the debris, but the eastbound and westbound tracks were opened for traffic late last night.

William Thorne, Woodstock, only man injured in the crash, was recovering from a terrible ordeal. Occupying a signal tower near the diamond where the train was derailed, Thorne saw part of the wreckage strike his tower and rip it asunder scattering pieces of it far down the track.

Hard-working wrecking crews from Sarnia, Hamilton and Toronto had little time to think of the Thanksgiving holiday yesterday, for they were forced to feverishly hoist wreckage from the track to clear the way for the heavy passenger traffic.

PICKET MAIN PLANT OF FORD CAR COMPANY

Stickers, However Vote Against This Action

Chester, Pa., Oct. 10—(CP)— A group of about 75 of the striking employes of the Ford Motor Company's assembly plant here are on their way today by automobile to picket the main plant of the concern at Detroit.

Ignoring the plea of strikers at the Ford plant in Edgewater, N.J., to give up the plan, the pickets left last night.

SHED DEMOLISHED BY GASOLINE EXPLOSION

Two Injured and Property Damaged to Extent of $20,000

Dalemead, Alta., Oct. 9 (CP)—Two men were seriously injured and property damage of $20,000 caused by a gasoline explosion demolished an implement shed on Ezra Wilson's farm during the week-end. The shed housed 60 gallons of gasoline.

One injured was Wilson, 24, Van der Velde, owner of the shed, and Wm. Verbeke are in hospital here.

FOUR KILLED MANY INJURED OVER HOLIDAY

Motor Car, Street Car, And Hunting Account For Deaths

DROWNED IN CAR

Plunges Over Bank Into River, Three Escaping, Driver Drowns

Toronto, Oct. 10 (CP)—Four persons were killed and a number of others seriously injured in accidents of the Thanksgiving Day holiday. Two of the deaths occurred in Toronto where a youth was struck by a street car and an elderly woman was knocked down by a motorcar. A third death was caused by a hunting accident at Aurora while a drowning at North Bay was responsible for the fourth.

The body of Milton Whiteoak, Jr., 21, of Aurora, was found last night with a bullet wound in the head lying under some leaves in a bush a short distance from that town. The youth's rifle was by his side and it was believed he stumbled, the gun accidentally discharging.

Ovide Savoure of Hager, was drowned when his motor car plunged into the Seven River, four miles west of Verner. Three other passengers in the vehicle made their escape from the submerged car and were rescued by farmers or the district. Police of North Bay and Sturgeon Falls recovered the body yesterday.

Mrs. C. B. Jackson, 72 year old Long Branch resident, died in hospital last night, three hours after she was struck by a motorcar after alighting from a street car. The motorist was crossing to the sidewalk at the time.

Struck by a Toronto street car after he had apparently wheeled in front of it, 17 year old Arthur H. Payment suffered injuries which caused his death hours later.

A collision between two automobiles near Hamilton resulted in four persons receiving serious injuries. Mrs. Charles Mack, St. Mary's, and Miss Ollimore, Sarnia, suffered scalp wounds; Gwendolyn Mack, 17, daughter of the St. Mary's woman, and Charles Hurlock, Stratford, received facial lacerations.

Harold Atkinson, Hamilton, was shot in the abdomen while walking across a field in search of pheasants. A partridge rose in front of Atherton and a number of shots rang out one of them striking the Hamilton man. Other hunters went to his assistance.

WAR THREAT TO ARABIA

Sultan of Yenu is Menacing King Ibn Saud's Area

Cairo, Egypt, Oct. 10—Troops and munitions are being massed by King Ibn Saud, ruler of the Arabian Sultanate Kingdom, to defend the Asir and Nejran territories against the forces of Sultan Yahya Iman of Yemen.

Some skirmishes already have occurred, the last few weeks, but King Ibn Saud reportedly is determined not to surrender any of these territories to Yemen.

King Ibn Saud, "the puritan ruler of Arabia," is head of what he terms "the Sultanate Kingdom." The area includes the two holy cities of Islam, Medina, the birthplace of Mahomet, and Mecca, the Prophet's birthplace.

Rebels in Asir Province have marshalled forces against Ibn Saud many times, usually joined by other tribes.

PETER HEENAN NOT TO BLAME FOR 'HOT BOX'

Kenora, Ont., Oct. 10 (CP)—Engineer, the Hon. Peter Heenan, Minister of Labor in the Mackenzie King government, had a 25-minute conversation with the man in the wheat today. And, too, it meant a 25-minute delay to Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, premier, en route to the west.

A "hot-box" developed on the Prime Minister's car during the journey between Ignace and Kenora. Mr. Heenan sat in his locomotive cab, waiting the go signal. Mr. Bennett, back in the private car, was busy at work.

BODY FOUND IN RIVER

Kingston, Oct. 10—The body of Arthur Purdy, drowned off the steamer Wasbite late in July, was found off Wolfe Island Monday and brought to Kingston. Purdy was a member of an excursion party from this city en route to Clayton, N.Y., and on the trip home was taken ill, leaning over the side of the boat he fell over. His widow and child survive.

PLANS RECORD DISTANCE FLIGHT

Because he has other fish to fry, Bert Acosta (left) known as the "Bad Boy of the Air" turned down an offer of a trip to the Antarctic from Rear-Admiral Richard E. Byrd. Acosta, shown with Pilots Harold Illich and Max Heller (right) is planning a flight from New York to Buenos Aires, a distance of about 6,000 miles, in an attempt to win the non-stop, long-distance record.

IMMIGRATION PLAN FAVORED

Time Not Ripe For Scheme, Premier States

Winnipeg, Oct. 10 (CP)—An indication that the present government is favorable to an immigration scheme designed to bring the population of Canada more into proportion with its area was seen in the address of Prime Minister R. B. Bennett before the Student's Union of the University of Manitoba here Monday.

Canada, Mr. Bennett said, was a remarkable country, rich in natural resources and large in size. It required a great population to develop it and preserve it. The time was not opportune to start any great immigration scheme but it would come.

The Prime Minister stressed the importance, however, of ensuring that immigrants to Canada be of such a quality as would appreciate the privileges and traditional freedom of the Dominion, and work to preserve and make greater the institution and individual liberty that had made Canada one of the-leading countries of the world.

Beatly Favors Inflat

Montreal, Oct. 10 (CP)—Canada has nothing to fear from the steady immigration of a relatively small number of people per annum under conditions of land settlement which will be carefully worked out for their benefit and for the country's protection," said E. W. Beatly, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, commenting on his recent trip through western Canada.

Plans now under study foresee moderate, controlled and financially supported" immigration, continued Mr. Beatly. The problem of immigration unfortunately, was "confused in the minds of many with unemployment and with failures." The great importance of the problem was not being overlooked, however, "by those who realize that there is a close connection between unemployment and the establishment on the land of those who will form the permanent self-sustaining and therefore not a charge to the community.

"I think it should be one of the last in Canada to recommend anything which would accentuate our present unemployment situation," continued Beatly, "but I am satisfied that the kind of immigration now being discussed, involving settlement upon lands of men who will be adequately supported and would become self-supporting, is a problem which demands serious consideration.

"It must not be forgotten that no intensive flow of immigration is expected or desired, that even the most moderate of policies will require a year or more to become effective and that any plans made in 1934 will not be operative until at least a year later."

KILLED BY BROTHER

Grand Fonds, Que., Oct. 13 (CP) —David Boullanne, 15, is dead here as the result of a rifle in the hands of his brother accidentally discharging. When the charge failed to explode the boy examined the cartridge chamber and suddenly the rifle discharged, the bullet striking David in the stomach.

DEATHS MONDAY

(By The Canadian Press)

Cleveland, Stewart Henry Chisholm, 48, Montreal born organizer of the American Steel and Wire Company.

Paterson, N.J.; Russell Henderson, 74, one of the founders of the Anchor Steamship Company, now merged with the Cunard Line, cousin of Arthur Henderson, British Labor Party leader.

PERFECT DINNER

New York, Oct. 9 — The art of public dining, now lost for thirteen years, will be formally revived one day after the repeal of the amendment to the "society of sinogarge" at a meeting at the Waldorf. Astoria are carried into effect as outlined. The dinner song, the bleak food with worn out peas, and the speeches too evidently inspired by the water drinking that precedes them are to be no more. The society recently formed on the model of the English Pryth Blowers with vaguely charitable purposes, has chosen this as its first duty.

METEORS FRIGHTEN PORTUGUESE PEOPLE

Religious Processions Formed in the Smaller Villages

Lisbon, Oct. 10—Panic and terror seized thousands in Opido and many Portuguese villages last night as a result of a prolonged meteor display.

It was the grandest shower in years, the people of the region believing the stars were falling to the earth, fled into the streets screaming and invoking the mercy of heaven.

In some villages the priests had the church bells tolled and organized penitential processions in which hundreds joined, carrying lighted candles and singing hymns.

The popular fear continued throughout the several hours that the phenomenon lasted.

Berlin, Oct. 10—Spectacular meteoric showers, equal to, if not surpassing the brilliance and magnitude of those seen in 1833 and 1866, were witnessed by thousands shortly after 4 o'clock last night.

German observatories counted 200 showers in fifteen minutes, and described the direction of radiation as the constellations Cygnus and Cassiopeia. Astronomers said they believed the showers to represent disintegrated fragments of a comet driven from its track by the earth's attraction, and heated to visibility by friction with the atmosphere.

BOXING

Art Angeli, the "blonde slugger of Belleville", was the only local boxer to win his bout at the municipal stag' under the auspices of the U.C.A.C. at Slingston on Monday evening. The High brothers Wally and George were both matched against much heavier opponents and were defeated.

Art Angeli previously had matched to fight Sonny Duffy but, the "Foreign Legion" militaters would have none of the local lads competing thus bringing together Adgell and Bob Schroeder. Once again the local blonde youth saved a Kingston card when he and Schroeder battled five hard rounds before the judges were unanimous in their decision for Angeli.

Wally High, fighting the second bout of his career, was matched with Frank Smith, the 100 pound champion of Canada. These lads battled three fast rounds before Smith was given the nod. Brother George High was the favorite as in his bout with Whitehead, another provincial champ, was terminated by the officials in the third round. Whitehead enjoyed too much experience for the local mitster who is improving fast, however.

The semi-windup brought to the new C.A.A.U. new rules whereby the boxers are allowed five rounds instead of the old three round system. The new rules were duly appreciated by the large crowd present as they give the fighters a better opportunity to display their wares. A return match is being planned by the U.E.A.C.

GANGSTER IS GUNS' VICTIM

Gus Winkler As He is Entering Beer Depot

Chicago, Oct. 10—Gus Winkler, affluent and sinister power in the world of gambling, was assassinated Monday as his hand turned the door-knob of a beer-distributing depot.

Three killers motored down a North Side street in an old green truck, and Winkler strolled up to the door.

The truck slowed down. Guns were fired, and a blast of bullets shot poured into Winkler's back. He fell, and the shotguns were again. Sixty-five wounds had been torn into his body.

He lived 40 minutes.

"You're dying," the police whisperred to him at once. In Murphy Hospital. "Who shot you?"

Winkler mumbled never, for a clergyman. But, in spite of a rumor that he had been slain for betraying a criminal, he said no word about his killers.

FOX IN SING SING

Ossining, N.Y., Oct. 10—A red fox of inquisitive instincts and the ability of a Houdini "crashed" Sing Sing Penitentiary today only to end up bound and gagged at the hands of a prisoner who, the fox which somehow managed to get into the high-walled prison, was cornered by Joe Rumore, who confessed he didn't know a fox from a tabbycat, was bitten when he attempted to pick it up.

Many women drag around each day, unable to do their housework—worry with their children—they wanted to see friends—feeling miserable—yet not sick enough to go to bed. Robbers' Flight By Rear Exit

Police Put Out Dragnet and Believe Men Bottled Up In Peninsular County

Courage of Norville W. Kyle, manager of the Bank of Commerce at Wellington early today frustrated two secreted robbers in the bank and drove the pair into flight while his assistant, the teller, was tied up helpless in the office.

Provincial and city police are scouring Prince Edward County today for two masked bandits who, armed with sawed-off shotguns and a revolver, held up the Wellington branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce shortly after opening time at nine-thirty o'clock this morning, slugged the manager of the bank, Mr. N. W. Kyle, almost into unconsciousness with their guns, and after rifling the pockets of the teller, Mr. R. M. Watson, whom they had previously trussed up with binder twine, escaped with forty dollars, their sole loot.

They were unsuccessful in opening the vault of the bank after some attempts in that direction.

Entering the bank just a few moments before it opened, they surprised the teller, Mr. Watson, held him up at the point of their guns, trussed him up with binder twine in an gentle manner and then escorted him to the basement where they bade him "keep quiet." Then they entered the upstairs part again and spent some moments in an unsuccessful attempt to open the vault.

Brought Upstairs

Again escorting the teller to the upstairs part of the bank, after they had failed to make any impression on the vault or its contents, the two men who wore red bandanna handkerchiefs as masks over the lower part of their faces, repeated him to open the vault. Upon the refusal of the teller a short scuffle ensued.

It was at this point that the manager of the bank, Mr. Kyle entered. Opening the door, he was not immediately aware of the holdup until he saw a man in a crouching position at one side of the door with a shot gun and a revolver in his hand.

"Stick 'em up," shouted the flug in a menacing voice.

Although taken unawares, Mr. Kyle immediately started for the armed bandit and managed to close with him. Seeing the manager, the other bandit who had been guarding the trussed up teller, now seated on a stool in front of the counter, went to the assistance of the first one with whom the manager was struggling and beclubbed the manager over the head and arms with one of the guns. When the gun was finally wrested from the hands of one thug, both men then made a hurried dash for the rear door.

Guns Minus Fire Discovers Men

Following them with the gun in his hand, Mr. Kyle aimed in their general direction and pulled the trigger. A misfire resulted.

Both bandits then dashed out the door toward a blue, landau type sedan of light car type, and raced furiously out of the village toward the west. The engine had evidently been left running.

Interviewed by the Ontario Intelligencer at the bank shortly after the holdup, the teller, Mr. R. M. Watson, still visibly shaken by the rough handling he had received some few moments before, told a coherent and lucid story of the morning's startling events.

"I had come in a little early to open the bank," stated Mr. Watson. "Everything seemed all right, and then I had started to work to prepare for the day's business. As I was working behind the counter I heard a board creak. I paid no attention. Then I heard it creak again. I looked up.

"There, standing but a few feet away from me in a crouched-over position, I saw two men, with shotguns in their hands—one had a revolver—and with red bandanna handkerchiefs over the lower part of their faces.

"One of them stated in an easy tone: 'Keep quiet and you won't get hurt.'

"While one of them covered me, the other one produced some binder twine from some place and started to truss me up. I was so surprised, I wasn't able to put up any fight.

"After they had trussed the teller up, both bandits escorted him to the basement of the bank where they unceremoniously shoved him into the corner and after threatening him and ordering him to "keep quiet," left him. They returned upstairs with the evident intention of attempting to open the vault, and for several minutes they tramped around the office in their unsuccessful quest. The footsteps were plainly heard.

"After about fifteen minutes," the narrative of Mr. Watson continued, "they again entered the cellar and marched me upstairs. They went over toward the vault they ordered me to open it. 'We mean business, and one of them said. I told them I couldn't open it. For a minute they debated, and then ordered me to open it, and started to push me around. A slight scuffle started. One of the men then left me and walked over past the partition to the door. He was the man that Mr. Kyle, our manager, entered.

Manager's Story

Swathed in bandages and with his clothing still stained with blood Mr. Kyle related his share of the events. Of his own bravery in closing with the armed bandit he said nothing. Others, however, pointed out the desperate risk he took when, unarmed except for courage, he struggled with the bandit in defence of the bank's funds.

"As I opened the door in the morning," Mr. Kyle said in telling in his little village were far from my mind. I had no thought of anything but the fact until I had actually entered the bank and then I saw a man not four feet from me, over, crouched over, and with two guns in his hands.

"Keep quiet—don't make a move!" he said as he held the gun on me. I was startled and looked around. Then, I saw that Mr. Watson was also having trouble with another of the armed me."

Mr. Watson's narrative again switches to Mr. Watson who told of the cold courage of Mr. Kyle, his manager, when, despite the fact that two guns were trained on him, he struck out at them with the armed man and attempted to wrest one or the guns from him.

Kyle's Heroism

Mr. Watson continued: "As Mr. Kyle closed with the man, the other man who had been guarding me left me and went to assist his companion. Both men then started to beat Mr. Kyle over the head and hands with the guns. I was tied up and powerless to help.

"The struggle," continued Mr. Watson, "Mr. Kyle managed to pull himself away from the men in front of the bank. He then shouted for help, and tried to attract attention by pulling down a big glass sign in the window. It crashed to the floor. Both men were still beating him over the body with their guns. Suddenly one of the men took his shot gun. Mr. Kyle retrieved it from the floor and immediately both men started to run. I followed Mr. Kyle pursuing them and attempted to fire at them—and with red bandanna handkerchiefs over the lower part of their faces.

"Running out the door after them, Mr. Kyle tried to pursue them, but the men were quite fleet and hadn't doubled around the corner. He lost them. Then he returned and untied me. After that he telephoned the police. They were unable to get them from loss of blood and the beating he had received.

"I never in my life seen such a brave act as that performed by Mr. Kyle, stated Mr. Watson as he declared his startling narrative.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Oct. 11. —(CP)—A small sleel scow with a wooden pontoon lashed on top, has been lost by a tug with dredge in town about 15 miles from Marquette Beach, it was reported here today. It is believed the scow is a menace to navigation.

Robbers' Car is Discovered

This afternoon the car used by the bandits was found in a section of bush near Rosechurch Hillier not far from Lake Ontario. The discovery was made by police near the residence of Thomas Hillingham. State Constables are evidently on the trail as they have stolen another car.

The abandoned car was stolen in Toronto last night.

The car had passed over a small rock and the men had been unable to get it back over it.

HEAD OF REICH CHURCH IN NAZI SALUTE

Dr. Ludwig Mueller is robes of his new office, is seen at the opening of the National Synod at Wittenberg, just after he had been selected Bishop of Prussia, which is to say similar head of the German Evangelical church, receiving the customary Nazi gesture of congratulation. The powerful Nazi group in the German Protestant church, known as the German Christians, won a crowning victory in the selection of this close friend of Adolf Hitler to hear the Reich church.

GAS PROBE IS ORDERED

Charges of Combine in Canadian Industry to be Investigated

Ottawa, Ont., Oct. 11. — Charges that the Canadian gasoline industry is a combine in restraint of trade will be probed under the Combines Investigation Act, it was announced yesterday on the authority of Hon. Wesley A. Gordon, Minister of Labor.

No public hearing may not be opened for a fortnight yet, it was also ordered following the application of Mayor Cecil of Windsor and several aldermen of that city. Formal application having been made by the proper manner by Mayor Croll and his associates, the authorization of the probe by the labor department was automatic, such being the terms of the investigation act.

In his application, Mayor Croll charged that the several Canadian gasoline companies worked so closely together as to constitute a combine against the public interest. Competition, he alleged, was completely throttled and prices regulated at will.

The Windsor mayor's application was made two or three weeks ago shortly after the gasoline industry announced a price rise.

It remains for the Department of Labor to define the scope of the inquiry. Until that step is taken, no announcement can be made as to when the investigation will be commenced. F. A. McGregor, appointed under the Combines Investigation Act, or one of his officers, will probably conduct the probe.

Present indications are that the investigation will be held largely in private with few, if any, public hearings. The evidence is expected to resolve itself largely into an examination of costs and the connection between the different oil concerns.

In 1923 a committee of parliament conducted a searching public probe into the gasoline business. This investigation was started following the charges of a bloc on western Liberals that the companies were making undue profits out of gasoline and that the retail prices charged for the product on the prairie were out of all proportion to its cost. These charges were not proved at that time. In its report to parliament, the committee presented no evidence of undue profits. A subsequent probe for a board of trade inquiry in part was started by some of the M. P.s who made the charges but nothing but it fizzled out in a parliamentary tangle.

CESAREWITCH STAKE WON BY SEMINOLE

Lightly Regarded by the Betting Public

Newmarket, England, Oct. 11.—(CP)—J. E. Widener's lightly regarded Seminole today won the Classic Cesarewitch of the English turf.

The big chestnut gelding of the well-known sportsmen won by two lengths from a field of 33 of the best handicap horses training in Great Britain and on the continent and rewarded Miss Backers with the long odds of 100 to 6.

Second to Seminole at the finish was P. Johnson's Loose Sirife, also at the long odds of 100 to 7. J. Cooper's Roe de Paris was third. A strong wind swept the two and a quarter mile course at the big stake and kept the King at Sandringham. He had planned to view the race but was advised by his physicians to remain indoors. His Majesty's entry, Fox Earth, was nervy in contention and finished out of the money.

PREMIER OF P. E. I. DIES

Hon. J. D. Stewart, III More Than Year Succumbs

Charlottetown, Oct. 11.—(CP)—Prince Edward Island today mourned the death of her Prime Minister, Hon. J. D. Stewart, K.C., who died shortly before midnight from heart disease. He had been ill for more than a year.

Feeling improved in health in January, the Premier attended the Inter-Provincial Conference at Ottawa, but suffered a relapse following his return from the capital. He was able to attend only one session of the Legislature last winter and made his last public appearance in February.

Hon. W. J. P. MacMillan, M.D., Minister of Education and Public Health, led the Government forces in the Legislature during the last session. Dr. MacMillan is expected to succeed the Premiership.

Premier Stewart began his political career in 1917, He became leader of the Conservative Party in 1921, In the General Election of 1923, he led the Conservatives to Victory over Government of Hon. John Bell and was appointed Premier on September 5 of that year. Although his government was defeated in 1927, Premier Stewart was a personal victory and continued to lead the Opposition. At the next General Election, in 1931, he again led a victorious Conservative Party.

PLANE CRASH OF AIR LINER KILLS SEVEN

All Victims of Gruesome Tragedy Burned Alive

TERRIFIC EXPLOSION

One of Massive Wheels Found Suspended in Air

Chesterton, Ind., Oct. 11 AP)—The shattered bits of a giant twin-motored transport plane—one of the massive wheels hung suspended from a tree—gave mute evidence today of the crash of a New York to Chicago flight of the United Air Lines and the death of its seven occupants.

Just what happened when the all-metal ship with a top speed of more than three miles a minute crashed to earth in flames almost at dawn o'clock last night about five miles northeast of here, probably never will be known, but witnesses said they heard a terrific explosion.

A few minutes before while over North Liberty, Ind., company officials said it had radioed "all is well" and that before that it had landed at Cleveland and had passed over Elkhart.

Five of the bodies were recovered last night—the five was taken out after as the heat of the flames kept farmers, who flocking to the scene, back. They said they saw the victims milling around on the inside of the cabin unable to save themselves. Some said they even heard their screams.

Seven Killed

Records of the air lines showed the following were aboard:

Dorothy Dwyer, Arlington, Mass., stewardess.

C. F. or Fred Schoendorff, Chicago.

H. R. Burriss, Columbus, wireless operator.

H. R. Tarrant, Oak Park, Ill., the pilot.

C. J. Ruby, Chicago, co-pilot.

Miss Alice Scribner, Chicago, stewardess.

Due to the complete break-up of the plane and the wide area over which the occupants were found, the plane and the wide area over which the occupants were found, the exact identity of the dead could not follow the same path.

High Tariffs Not Fixed Policy but Imposed to Meet Conditions, Bennett

Put in Effect To Offset Surplus of Imports Over Exports

NO NRA

"Recreant in Duty" to Launch Program Now in U. S.

Winnipeg, Oct. 11 (CP)—Prime Minister R. B. Bennett, sped westward to Saskatoon today after leaving with the nation a message that Canada's higher tariffs were not the fixed policy of the Federal government, though necessary to combat conditions when his government took office.

Opening his western tour with an address here last night, the Prime Minister declared Canada would profit from the London Wheat Agreement. International finance drew his attention as he pointed to the decision of the World Economic Conference favoring central banks and its decision that gold was still the only yardstick for settlement of international accounts.

Increased tariffs, imposed at the start of his term in office, had been made necessary to protect the home market for home industries and provide work for Canadians. In 1932, he declared, the export surplus was $50,000,000 and for the year ended August last the surplus of exports over imports had increased to $114,000,000, and statistics, he added, showed that 85 per cent. of salaries now earned in Canada was being spent on Canadian products.

No Apology for Boost

He had no apology to offer for boosting the protective measures the Prime Minister declared. The tariffs had been imposed to offset the tremendous surplus of imports over exports and that had been achieved. Tariffs had been placed in their proper category by the Imperial Conference so far as the Empire was concerned and the Tariff Board were adjusting trade regulations to assure all efficient industries in the commercials would have a fair opportunity.

The World Economic Conference was not a failure and its benefits would become more evident as time advanced, he declared. The conference had declared in favor of the metal backing of currencies and that sound gold and silver both should be used. Domestic conditions in the United States which developed after the World Economic Conference had been called had resulted in an agreement being reached on currency stabilization. But this was fully realized by the 66 nations at the conference and there was no misunderstanding of the United States' attitude. Even though the conference had failed in the stabilization question the conference could not be termed a failure. Endorsing the metal backing of currency and was one of its great achievements, he said.

Agree on Central Banks

Desirability of all developed countries having central banks was agreed upon at the conference, said Mr. Bennett in discussing with the Royal Commission on Banking which has just concluded its work in Canada. He pointed out that was no direct exchange transactions between Canada and London except the value of the Canadian dollar in relation to the pound sterling was practically determined by transactions in New York.

Referring to the Wheat Conference, the Prime Minister said Canada had received the highest share of the estimated world export requirements gave the Dominion a slightly higher percentage of the world market than she enjoyed in the 10-year period from 1920 to 1930. One of the greatest contributing factors of the depression was the surplus of wheat and other commodities, he believed the wheat agreement would help to overcome.

The Prime Minister gave an account of the leadership of his government, dealing with relief administration, export trade and general economic conditions. Any government of Canada would be "recreant in its duty" if it attempted at the present time to launch a policy similar to that laid down by the National Recovery Program of the United States, he said. He had high admiration for the effort being made by President Franklin D. Roosevelt but Canada could not fol-

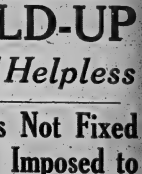
England-Australia Flight by Sir C. Kingsford-Smith Success

Wyndham, Australia, Oct. 11 — (CP & AP Cables)—Wing Commander Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith clipped more than 40 hours from the England-Australia flying record when he landed here late this afternoon to the cheers of a mighty throng of onlookers.



The famous airman, hero of a hazardous crossing and numerous other flying feats, left England last Wednesday with the declaration that he was not out to set a new record.

He found himself roaring along from stage to stage at such a pace, however, that he was well ahead of a record and burned up the airlanes in the dazzling accomplishment, registered today.

C. W. A. Scott, British aviator, set the old record of eight days, 19 hours and 23 minutes in a trip completed April 28, 1933.

Sir Charles, leaving England Wednesday at 6.38 p.m. (G.M.T.) landed here at 5.12 p.m. local time, for an elapsed time of seven days, four hours and 44 minutes.

BACK IN CITY AFTER YEARS

Mr R. E. Clarke on Visit to Relatives in Belleville

Mr. R. E. Clarke, of Raleigh, North Carolina, is in town on a visit to his sister, Mrs. E. P. Bocke, his brothers, Mr. Harry J. Clarke, B.A., Inspector of Separate Schools for South Hastings; Mr. Wm. P. Clarke, and his brother-in-law, Mr. Fred D. Diamond. Mr. Clarke is an old Belleville boy and he is being heartily welcomed to the "old home town" by many old friends. In early life, Ed. Clarke entered the employ of the late Andrew Knox to learn the grocery business and after serving some time in the retail branch of the business he obtained a position with the late W. R. McRae, who conducted a manufacturers' wholesale grocery business here at that time. Eventually ambition led him to branch out and conduct a business on his own account and he opened a grocery store at the northeast corner of Hotel Street (now Victoria Avenue) and Ann Street. Later he left Ann Hill location for some time he converted the lower part of the building into the retail west corner of Victoria Avenue and Charles Street to which he later removed his stock to that location. Here he carried on a large business for many years and twenty-nine years ago when he decided to go to Calgary, where he remained for some time, later going to Vancouver and Seattle in both of which cities he lived for several years. Thirteen years ago he came home on a brief visit and soon after he went south to Raleigh, North Carolina, where he has since made his home.

In early Ed. Clarke was active in sports especially sailing and bicycling. He was a lad with the late R. M. Roy, Sr., on the yachts "Katie Gray" and the "Oracle" and he was also a member of the old time Rambler's Bicycle Club. The high regard in which he was held by them and the members of the club, in their natty club uniforms, prestreigh a very attractive appearance and were much admired as they rode in procession upon some gala day in the city. Some of the members of the old Ramblers' Bicycle Club were: Ed. Clarke, Jack Bellville boys at that time as Tommy Treat, Bill Greatrix, Bert Cooper, Billy Lingham, Fred Foster, Frank Foster, Jim Bonar and "Chesney" Wray. The bicycle path was situated on Queen William and Ann Streets, and took in the great part of the block bounded by these streets and Victoria Avenue. Mrs. Clarke meets with a great welcome wonderful "scorching" was done upon the high wheels. One of the chief festivities in commemoration of Queen Victoria's Jubilee were the parade and the sounding of the "old boys soft girls" now residing in the city will remember with delight and pride and singing "God Save the Queen," "Rule Britannia," and "Auld Lang Syne" rendered upon that occasion.

One nice thing about going away from home is coming back again and Mr. Clarke is enjoying himself renewing with old friends and relating the scenes so familiar to him years ago.

SLOW RETURN TO NORMALCY

Economic Record of Past Year Shows Progress

Ottawa, Oct. 11—(CP)—Slow return to normal economic conditions during the past year is clearly reflected in the greater confidence and more hopeful outlook of the Canadian people, said A. O. Dawson, executive chairman of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, delivering the main address to the business meeting today of the Chamber's eighth annual convention.

Mr. Dawson said: "A definite improvement which has in the main been sustained," said Mr. Dawson, possibly by the most important feature of the recovery being the narrowing gap between Canadian farm products and the prices of manufactured goods. "Only when we realize that 46 percent of our population is classed as rural, is the effect of this better equilibrium to be brought home to us," Mr. Dawson stated.

Manufacturing activity has been quickened. Pig iron production made some progress during the second quarter of the year while producers of automobiles, textiles and boots and shoes have been "extremely active" and "more favorable markets are now looking in the United States and in the United Kingdom for our newsprint and lumber respectively." The unemployment situation had been relieved to the extent of 300,000 formerly idle men finding employment since April last.

ANAESTHETIC SUBSTITUTE FOR ETHER

Produces Relaxation Without After Effect Say Professors

WELL TESTED

Toronto Professors Are Credited With The Discovery

Chicago, Oct. 11.—(CP)—A new anaesthetic gas, developed by two professors of Toronto and which relaxes patients as completely as ether, was described to the Congress of Anaesthetists, here today by University of Wisconsin experimenters.

It is cyclopropane and was produced by Prof. V. E. Henderson and Prof. George H. W. Lucas of Toronto.

The gas said Dr. J. A. Stiles and Dr. W. B. Neff of Wisconsin General Hospital, is not unpleasant to take, seems to have no harmful effect on the heart, and has few uncomfortable after-effects.

It has been used in about 226 operations in the Wisconsin hospital, they said, and the surgeons plan to experiment at least another year before recommending cyclopropane for general use. Its chief value is its extremely expensive.

Simple Operation

The search in chemistry has been for a gas which would produce the deep relaxation which so far, the investigators explained only ether has been capable. The new anaesthetic, they said, promises to be sufficiently safe for many minor operations which have required ether.

A low-pressure gas, cyclopropane seems to be less dangerous than the other vapor anaesthetics, the experimenters said.

Another advance in quieting pain was reported by Prof. W. F. Jacobs of the University of Virginia who said experiments with "vinesthene" have given hope that it will induce a prolonged state of insensibility without rendering the patient unconscious. He said the progress it could be self-administered and promised a valuable gas for use during child-birth.

Forty Two Years Ago

Dr. Henderson, who is professor of pharmacy and pharmacology of the University of Toronto, and Professor Lucas, who is associate professor, started work on the gas more than two years ago.

Dr. Henderson explained, the gas does, great promise. "We have taken it ourselves and given it to animals in the laboratory in addition to the animal experiments and none of us is a bit afraid of it," Dr. Henderson told a reporter last night. "The only trouble that has kept us back so far is that we haven't yet found a cheap way of making it."

The major advantage of "cyclopropane," according to Dr. Henderson, is that very much less gas is required than is the case with any other kind. Asked if the gas had any drawbacks Dr. Henderson replied that so far as they knew, it had no drawbacks. He stated that the work with the gas in Wisconsin had been carried on with great care.

"Cyclopropane" or any other new anaesthetic would not be used in Toronto anaesthetists until it had first been established, it was explained last night.

CITY COUNCIL HOLDS SHORT SESSION AT REGULAR MEETING

Frank Street Residents Ask For Fire Protection

Owing to the special meeting of the Council one week ago, when the relief project was considered and protection made to the Front Street, seeking fire protection on that street. The delegation from the Army and Navy Veterans requested from the Council the rescinding of a recommendation passed at the special meeting that "Canadian Legion be permitted the Empire Day use of the Navy Veterans the administration of that building and to carry on the work some revenue must be produced. They admitted the council had paid the insurance but not including but they were trying to meet that obligation. They could not unless they had a source of revenue. Many of the council expressed themselves as believing they were trying to allow the Army and Navy Veterans the privilege of holding Poppy Day and also stated that since the Army and Navy Veterans were administering the affairs of the hall and in possession, they should have the right to hold this Poppy Day. At the conclusion of the meeting a motion was introduced rescinding the recommendation passed allowing the Canadian Legion the right to hold Poppy Day and granting this privilege to the Army and Navy Veterans. The motion passed without a dissenting vote.

A ratepayer representing the residents on Frank Street, appeared before the council asking that Frank Street be given the same protection as Henderson told a reporter last night. "The only trouble that has kept us back so far is that we haven't yet found a cheap way of making it."

The major advantage of "cyclopropane," according to Dr. Henderson, is that very much less gas is required than is the case with any other kind. Asked if the gas had any drawbacks Dr. Henderson replied that so far as they knew, it had no drawbacks. He stated that the work with the gas in Wisconsin had been carried on with great care.

"Cyclopropane" or any other new anaesthetic would not be used in Toronto anaesthetists until it had first been established, it was explained last night.

Apple Day, October 21

A letter was received from James Varley, Scout Master of the 2nd Belleville troop, requesting the Scouts to again take charge of Apple Day, October on October 21st. The letter stated that it was an effort to get the Canadians to eat more apples and at the same time produce revenue for the Scouts. The request was granted. The city treasurer also sent a letter to the council respecting city insurance stating that a saving could be made by having same under a blanket policy. It was recommended that the city treasurer and auditor give a detailed report on same to the council for their consideration and action.

A committee composed of Aldermen McCreary, Bennett and Armstrong was appointed by His Worship to interview the Directors of the Belleville Arena to ascertain if they desired the council to place before the ratepayers of the city at the next municipal election the question of purchasing the building. A recommendation has been passed by the council for this purpose but since that was passed, the ice plant has been removed from the premises and it would be well to know what further action the directors wish to take.

A report from R. R. Dafoe, Fire and Inspector of the city was received by the council which stated that the by law was being rigidly observed by all bakers of the city and there was only a little variation in weight, that cannot be avoided and that customers were receiving full value for their money.

A recommendation to purchase 150 feet each of 14 gauge 36-inch and 42-inch metal culvert from Belleville Sheet Metal Products Limited for Memorial Park drainage system and in conjunction with cleaning river bed as an unemployment relief scheme was passed. There being no enquiries, unfinished business and bylaws the council adjourned.

All members present were Mayor Tice, Aldermen McCreary, Donahue, Bennett, Foley, Brickman, Harker, Sale and Armstrong.

ROBBERS TAKE FORTY DOLLARS

Treats Subject Lightly.

Mr. Kyle, manager of the bank, was inclined to treat the matter of tackling armed holdup men lightly. "Perhaps anyone else would have done the same thing if they were in my position," he said.

"Often before I had wondered," he continued, "just what I would do if a hold-up man ever walked in on me. That such a thing would ever happen in Wellington. Then they simply walked in. Of course I had a fairly good look at one corner them somewhere where I would have help to hold them. Couldn't it have been the time I could have made a capture?"

Before the robbers left, during, it was business as usual for Mr. Kyle and Miss Watson, who calmly kept "carried out for a rest."

The two robbers were of slightly build, wore blue clothing, concealed their faces with red handkerchiefs, and were grey caps. There is no question of their dress or the manner in which they carried out the raid. Several eye witnesses, besides the bank officials were able to give a good look at them.

Standing in front of his insurance office, Mr. Harry Jolley of Wellington, observed a stranger stroll slowly down the street. He knew Jolley, the man who is now known to have been one of the bandits spoke a "good morning" greeting. Mr. Jolley said little attention. Strangers are no novelty in Wellington.

Some time later, Mr. Jolley heard a commotion in the bank, rushed in that direction, observed two men run out, immediately felt there was trouble and then at once phoned to the provincial police in Picton, and the city keepers of the two bridges, one at Belleville and one at Trenton.

This disposes of the theory that the bandits had been waiting in the bank an hour or two before and had lain in wait for the latter. It is further strengthened by the story told by the janitor of the bank, Mr. Robert Trimble, who stated that he had left the bank at the noon moment before, and that all doors had been locked.

Miss Lucila Broad, residing in a flat above the bank, heard a commotion shortly after the noon hour, and heard a shout, later identified as Mr. Kyles'. She leaned from the window and attracted the attention of a school boy, Norm Wilson, to rush to the bank to see what was the matter. The little boy also saw the robber run out, with the bank manager in pursuit.

Mr. L. H. McLennon, of McLennon's garage in Wellington was also interested with a sight of the car driven by the armed men. He identified it as a Chevrolet landau type sedan of 1931 vintage.

Several other villagers saw the two bandits, well disguised, as they left the roads of the county that the robbers might possibly take a boat out across the lake. They pointed to the fact that every road would be watched and only a mere amateur would risk the roads.

The bank, shortly after the holdup, presented a scene of disorder and confusion. Villagers, aghast at the boldness of the daylight foray, clustered in the bank discussing the robbery. On the floor lay several small pools of blood from the cuts of the glass broken from the ledger. A large glass sign, carrying the name of the bank that had been suspended in the front window, had crashed in pieces from where the ledger had pulled it to attract attention during the struggle. Business, however, resumed in even tenor shortly after, Miss Shirla Assistance from Picton was secured to help carry on.

Mr. Kyle, the manager whose praises are still being sung by the villagers, has been in charge of the bank since February 1, when he was transferred to Wellington from Paisley, Ontario, Mrs. Kyle was formerly a resident of Ontario.

The teller, Mr. Watson, who also played a leading part in baffling the would-be robbers has made Canada his home for only a short time, coming from England here.

Dr. W. Thompson of Wellington, summoned immediately to treat the injured manager stated that while the cut on the forehead caused by him during the affray were deep and painful, no serious injury could be reported. Both men, he said, were "shaken up," however.

All Police Called

Immediately following the information of the bank robbery at Wellington all available police in this part of the province were detailed to special service and all outlets guarded. Every car was thoroughly policed.

Sleuth Chief Inspector Lougheed the entire staff of all officers in the R.C.M.P. detailed to Ontario and Prince Edward County and covered the situation. The Belleville police department sent out Detective Ross and two separate detachments, one at the city limits, the other at a point one half mile south, where the Redmerville road joins the provincial highway. Provincial police were summoned to block all traffic on Highway No. 2 and were also assisted by Traffic Officer Byles and Provincial Police Sergeant Harman was at the bay bridge.

Special police, county constables and others scoured the many side roads, while Provincial Detective in company with Provincial Constable Elwood of Picton, conducted a search. All outlets from the county have been well covered and the police were confident that an arrest would be consumated before dark.

During the morning many rumors were hearsay as to the whereabouts of the bandits, but none but one had not been definitely identified at 1.00 o'clock today. This was a car seen by a constable was seen land in Weller's Bay and immediately on word being had for questioning by the officers patrolling nearby. Later a motor boat was seen speeding from the servile side of the bay and immediately the police were on the pursuit. Upon apprehending the boats occupants they proved to be two duck hunters, however. About noon today an abandoned transport was found in the bush, but this proved to be and confiscated.

Police blocking county constables in Prince Edward, Hastings and Northumberland Counties prevented the escape of the bandits from the entire county.

One deep scar on the side of his head is evidence that Constable Bert Grenfell received in the struggle. Intermittent being made in Victoria Cemetery.

The pall bearers were: Messrs. Sam Bowers, Eg. Pitchett, D. Shannon, Geo. Franks, O. A. Meikle, John T. S. Rath all old neighbours and friends of the deceased. The funeral was under the direction of J. O. Frost.

FREDERICK LATCHFORD

The funeral of the late Frederick Latchford was held from the Martin Funeral Home, Victoria Street, on Tuesday afternoon in the presence of many intimate friends and relatives. Rev. O. Phillips of Trenton conducted the service, interment being made in Belleville cemetery. A wealth of floral tributes testified to the esteem in which the deceased was held by a large circle of friends. They were from Latchford, Arthur Silis, Wesley Parks, Mrs. Thompson, Louis Dafoe and Alex Bygrove.

The late Mr. Latchford died in Belleville Hospital on Sunday after an illness which had extended for over a year. He was born in Tyendinaga Township 81 years ago, being the son of the late John and Margaret Latchford and resided in Rossmore, Thurlow and Wellington before coming to Belleville. He was a lover of fine horse and in his early life took a course at the McGregor Horse School and for many years was connected with the Parks Construction Company as superintendent. He was a member of the I.B.S. and leaves his widow, three sons, Charles, Orval and Wilfred of Foxboro, two daughters, Mrs. Fred Smith of Picton and Miss Pearl Latchford of Bloomfield.

Dullest Session in Number of Weeks — Mines Firm Steadily Following Barely Steady Opening in Toronto—Stock Exchange Pares List in Casual Selling

NEW YORK FINANCIAL,

New York, Oct. 11 (AP) —Indolent financial markets moved sleepily today, showing little inclination to do any one thing decisively.

It was one of the dullest stock exchange sessions in a number of weeks. With all American markets closed tomorrow for the celebration of Columbus Day, board rooms were almost deserted by operators who were stretching out the holiday. Bonds were a trifle mixed.

Unimportant gains were recorded by shares of Johns-Manville, Montgomery Ward, Goodyear, Western Union, U.S. Smelting and a few others. Issues off fractionally to around a point included American Telephone, Chrysler, U. S. Steel, American Can, U.S. Industrial Alcohol, National Distillers, Dupont, New York Central, General Motors and General Electric.

Extremely narrow changes ruled in Canadian list, Canadian Pacific and International Nickel shares were unchanged. Deane eased ¼ while McIntyre Porcupine was as much higher. On the curb, Hiram Walker traded at a point but Lake Shore Mines was only a shade below its previous close. Dominion Government 4s were unchanged while 1ar was off 5-16 or a cent at 97.50 cents.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 11.—(CP)—Prices took another little paring in the morning sessions of the Toronto Stock Exchange today due more to casual selling in a thin buying market than to fearlah developments.

Nickel lost 8 cents to 19.85, Smelters 1-2 to 134 1-2, Ford A. was off 1-4 at 11 1-2, Brazilian gained 1-8 to 13 3-8 and C.P.R. was quiet and unchanged. Imperial, British American Oil and International Pete came in for a little selling but the only real change was a drop of 1-8 for B.A. and 1 1-4 for Supertest.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Oct. 11.—(CP—Stocks firmed slightly following a barely steady opening on the Standard Mining Exchange today. The senior golds were unchanged or up narrowly, but the secondary group had its weak spots and there were losses and gains in the Base Metal and groups at noon.

Macassa continued its decline, getting back to $7 before steadying and from that point it had recovered to $2 by noon to show a net loss of one cent. Dome, and Wright Hargreaves were unchanged, Braztorka and Lake Shore were up 25 cents each and Teck 5 cents.

In the Base Metals Noranda made the best showing, holding a gain of 30 cents at 35.30. Nickel lost 15 cents.

MOVE FACTORY IF TERMS NOT TAKEN

Allowed Forty-Eight Hours to Make Up Minds.

Toronto, Oct. 11 (CP) — Unless striking employees of the National Picture Frame Company here come to terms with employers within 48 hours, immediate steps will be taken to move the plant and equipment to Montreal, M. Aisleder, manager, announced today.

Aisleder said the striking workmen were made an offer yesterday. He did not divulge its terms. "If they don't accept we are going to move."

With no person going to work this morning, all was quiet outside the factory. Only a few police were present.

Livestock

Toronto, Oct. 11—(CP)—There were 2000 head of cattle left over from Tuesday on the Toronto Livestock Market today. Cattle trade was dull on a plain quality offering. Early pricing held steady. Calves, sheep and lambs opened steady. Hogs were unsettled.

Receipts as reported by the Dominion Livestock Branch were: Cattle 530, calves 150, hogs 830, sheep and lambs 1040.

A few choice fed calves sold at $7.00 to $7.25 with mediums at $6.00 to $6.00. Good butcher cows ranged from $2.25 to $2.50. Common to medium stockers brought $2.00 to $2.75.

Calves were steady at $6.50 to $7.00 for choice vealers, common sold down to $2.50. A few grass calves made $2.25 to $2.50. Heavies were not in demand.

The hog market opened unsettled with salesmen asking $5.25 F.O.B. for bacons, $5.50 off truck and $5.75 to $5.25 off car.

Lambs opened steady at $6.00 for good ewes and wethers and at $4.50 to $5.00 for culls and backs. Sheep were steady at $2.00 to $2.50 for good light ewes.

Cattle, calf, sheep and lamb quotations remained unchanged from yesterday.

Hogs—No quotations.

For the first seven months of this year 21,335 head of cattle, 145 calves, 186,093 hogs and 23,746 sheep were shipped from Eastern to Eastern Canada.

OVER HALF LOAN TAKEN

Volume From Individual Subscribers is Evident

OTTAWA, Oct. 11.—(CP)—With subscription to the $225,000,000 refunding loan going over the half-way mark, the volume from individual subscribers opens strikingly into evidence this morning. From this class of investor, the response was more pronounced than indicated in last night's figures, which showed an amount in excess of $101,000,000 cash and conversions subscribed for the opening today.

Victory Bond holders were converting their maturing bonds to a marked degree. Their early action today followed large subscriptions yesterday from every Canadian Bank and from many corporations.

The prompt response to the issue on the first day was being continued. Telegrams on the undoubted success of the loan flooded loan headquarters officials as they resumed their work.

Fuller details of yesterday's operations were coming in from dealers and bankers who had been unable to make complete returns of the opening day's transactions last night when subscriptions had reached $101,000,000.

SMALL FARMER WILL PERSIST

Will farms run by corporations on mass production principles crowd out the small farmer? U. S. Senator Arthur Capper believes they will not.

"The reason," the Kansas Senator writes in the current Rotarian Magazine, "why the corporation farm will not become well established as a practice in this country reaches much deeper than temporary economic difficulties, vicious as they may be. The great strength of the individually operated farm is in its competitive adaptability. The weakness of the corporation farming enterprise lies in its inability swiftly to change or materially to modify its production programs.

"Failures of corporation farms during the last two years, and they have been numerous, were caused by the failure of the one source of income on which they depended. They cannot happen on a farm where there are numerous sources of income, including livestock and poultry. Income may come in there, but it will not entirely dry up. The corporation must have income or all activity ceases.

"Hired management, even though expert cannot entirely offset the gains that are certain to accrue from the operation of a farm by a man who is personally interested in making a success of it, even though he may not be an expert. There enters the human equation, and it is a vital one," he continues. "The fact is that the corporation farm does no better job than the good, average farmer in crop production, and at a lower cost."

THE POET'S PLACE

Wilson P. MacDonald's plaint made before the Collegiate Literary Society of the lack of encouragement that many Canadian poets by the Canadian people is not an uncommon one.

It is probably true that while Canadian people as a class may not be so interested in poetry as some other people, because this is a land where yet the great task is in achieving material things and in accomplishing gigantic undertakings, they have an average interest in poetry and art. Of course the country is young and art has not been forced as it has been in other lands. The poet and the painter have a hard way to make their advance here and this seems particularly British trait. Publishers make their artists earn their living, though these are giving the people something better than a stone or even bread.

Poets cannot but feel, however, that more encouragement would permit the cultivation of the muse, but facts in English literature show that most poets and most men of means were compelled to labor and cultivate poetry in their spare hours. France makes it a far more easy with its Academy and its strict rules of composition and style but in British countries artists have to develop their own style. Perhaps this is the reason why poets are such as they become the masters of their fate though often the result must be as Mr. MacDonald complained concerning Alfred Bliss Garnet, that he would doubtless be living yet had he been loved as much in life as he is in death.

While the poet is moneymaking age and even poets need money in order to live (though often they get precious little of it), yet Mr. MacDonald's plea that more opportunity would set up ideals which would make an abiding impression upon the national life. Unfortunately it is difficult to name any power or influence in the seats of the mighty, so the poet sings as he will, by himself, confident that his song is reaching some one.

Such would be as he gave the other night put one back almost in the heroic age when the singers used to chant the songs of the national days of the middle ages when the poet throve at many a court. Today the endowment and support come from within not from without and from the public. It means that the poet must labor to live and earn a right to sing.

Some years ago the late Bliss Carman gave, in Belleville, a recital of his poems and those who attended will never forget how much of himself he put into his readings. That, it is said, is the only way in which poetry should be read. Mr. MacDonald's readings were along the same and will not soon be forgotten.

It must be encouraging, however disappointing it is in other respects, to find that there are those who love poetry, the cowboys, the children, the men who know the beauty of nature and those who love beauty in all its forms.

The day should surely come when the poet need not like apologizing for his very existence to the great and mighty of the land for he sounds a note which must sooner or later be heard in any land which becomes truly great. Canadians who so far have failed to gather in thousands to hear such recitals will yet come to listen to master craftsmen.

You are tried alone; alone, you pass into the desert; alone you are sifted by the world.—F. W. Robertson.

WINTER OF LOVE

Love may be fair in spring, when all
The buds come to the trees,
When all the mating swallows call
In sudden ecstasies.

And love in summer may be sweet
When life's swift tides are high;
And when rich harvests are complete
Beneath the autumn sky.

But lovers never know the taste
Of love's most potent wine
Until the world, a wintry waste,
Lies dear about their shrine.

For closer hearts and hands must cling
Beneath time's threatening blast;
More dear for each remembered spring
That blossomed in the past.

Until the world, a wilderness
Of bitter chill and storm,
Lies back before them, none can guess
The shelter of love's arm.

SIXTY-TWO YEARS AGO the great Chicago fire took place and the Widow O'Leary's gow gained immortal fame for kicking over the lantern which started the holocaust. Now after all this time caustic critics are springing up who seek to debunk Widow O'Leary's cow, the latest being an alleged eye-witness, member of the O'Leary family who deposes that there were several cows in the O'Leary menage and that none of them kicked over the lantern because there was not any lantern. Strange that this debunking attempt should come after so many years—sixty-two years is a long strain on memory and the debunker must have been pretty young at the time. Whether Mrs. O'Leary had one cow or a dozen, one lantern, a dozen or none, the fact has not been seriously disputed that the great Chicago fire started in Mrs. O'Leary's cowshed, and whether the original conflagration increased up the report a bit, anent the origin of the fire nothing matters so much as the fact that most of the Windy City burned down, and sixty-two years after a Century of Progress Exhibition is being held to show just how much the world has progressed, especially Chicago.

WHAT CAUSES HAIR TO TURN DARK TO GRAY

Grayness Not a Disease Color Depends Upon Pigments

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

It is really astonishing how many persons fear gray hair, or are ashamed of it. Gray hair should be a badge of honor. Besides, it is often most becoming, especially when grayness comes on prematurely.

I daresay that to most minds gray hair means old age, if not, indeed the beginning of senile decay, which of course is not true. We do long to see a few straggling gray hairs, as we get past the middle mark of life, and with advancing years these may multiply until no slight hair of original color remains. Yet there are those even of sixty and seventy, who are not gray, and surely thousands with snow-white locks are anything but toothless and mentally dead.

Grayness is not a disease, as some think, although some physical disorders may leave gray hair as an aftermath. This is rare indeed. Neuralgia and chronic rheumatism may produce premature grayness. That nervous and mental upsets, especially fright or shock, can cause permanent graying of the hair, there can be no question. It is doubtful, however, whether hair can turn that way quickly. What occurs in a single night, is graying, after the emotional stress and strain are over.

It is hard to believe, for instance, that the hair in the head of Marie Antoinette turned gray overnight, as the legend goes, when she was a prisoner at the outbreak of the French Revolution. It is believed that she had lost her prestige and power long before, and was very likely to be guillotined in the barren hope.

We must remember that the color of hair depends upon the presence of certain pigments, which are found in what is known as the "cortical" layer of the hair, between the middle layer. These pigment granules, which are found in the cells of the skin, and air is also found in minute bubbles. What grayness actually indicates is that more air and less oil is present than before. This is quite normal. Hither a disordered nervous system or a skin torn down by disease naturally affects the hair, which no longer is nourished and stimulated as it should be.

The original color of hair in youth is dependent upon the combination of pigment granules and air. Even less air in the pigment less granules makes a great difference.

It is claimed by scientists that there are really only two main colors of these pigment granules, yellow-yellow and black-black, and that all the many shades of hair are based on different mixtures of these colors.

That certain persons inherit a strong predisposition to grayness cannot be denied, particularly is this true when they are quite young during the twenties, or even the thirties. Sometimes members of a family all turn gray when they reach a certain age. Not only do they become gray, but they lose the hair, but grayness often appears even in identical parts of the head, and over the temples first, for instance, or in the back of the head.

Aside from these unusual cases the general rule to follow, if grayness is to be late in the day and long as possible, regards keeping the body and mind in good health and vigorous a state as can be. Worry, fear, anxiety and grief have a good digestion, absence of infectious diseases and freedom from worry should help delay or prevent grayness. Such, however, are the facts. If we should live to the natural hair color we must keep fit. Fresh air and sunshine sometimes postpone grayness, but this should be looked upon only by an expert.

Dyeing the hair has nothing to commend it. Often, indeed, it may be dangerous.

But Willyum, isn't it quite an honor? ma said, to be asked, and if they tell me, but it is also takes up a lot of time that I could be devoting to less honorary but more profitable perposes. I told the chairman as much this morning, I didn't mince words about it, I told him flat, I'm a busy man and am given freely of my time and attention to civic committees and I've done my duty by the organization, but he seemed pretty keen to have me accept in spite of all my objections. He said he would drop in this evening with the official notification from the nominating committee and try to induce me to change my mind. But I told him it would be no use. Still, it might be worth just a dime, pop said.

My goodness, Willyum, they must want your services, ma said, and pop said, Perhaps they do, but I don't see it that way.

And pretty soon the doorbell rang and pop went to answer it, men to see pop, and he went in the front room and they talked a while and then they went again and pop came back to the living room, saying, Well, I call that rather high handed to say the least.

What's a matter, Willyum, wouldn't they accept your refusal? ma said, and pop said, They told me they would not, that I had no right to except the nomination under the circumstances. Agreed to accept. I should think he

Biggest Apple Crop Calls for Forty Thousand Barrels

Production Doubled Over 1932 at French's Mill at Melville

81 YEAR OLD OWNER

This season's apple crop, the best in this district for the past twenty years or more according to buyers and shippers, is nearly completed for the thriving little community of Melville, Prince Edward county, six miles east of Consecon, where this season's crop of the famous Melville apple barrels will be turned out by busy coopers from the humming little box and barrel factory of Mr. J. R. French, 81 year old owner.

Last year, with only an average year, the production of barrels to care for the smaller shipment was just half that number.

Sixteen men, the majority of whom are coopers, are at work in the factory attempting to keep ahead of the enormous demand for apple barrels needed to ship the crop from this district to the British Isles and beyond.

Still carrying on one of the oldest trades in the country, first started in this district by his father, Ira French, one of the pioneers of this district, Mr. J. R. French, the present 81 year old owner, still handles his busy hammer with the best of them, and is constantly on the job supervising the production of the same containers that have brought fame and recognition for father and son. At present the name of Melville assisting him to the work.

The story of one of the oldest trades in the country, that of the cooper's artistry with staves and hoops, is interesting as related by Mr. French.

The cooper, Ira French, was one of the original coopers of the district, having learned the trade in the manufacture of the barrels in Point Anne and early in ship history throughout the whole country. There were many shipping points that didn't know the name of French stamped on so many barrels".

To those days his chief work was the making of tight barrels with which to ship salt, pork, fish, turpentine and ship them to the coast. There's much romance in the salt barrel or kind of barrels, although we did not know it, that has boxes and containers for apples.

In those days the staves were all made by hand and the hoops were Mr. French. Their tools were crude and making barrels very slow work indeed. In spite of the handicaps and lack of proper equipment, the product would compare well with present day machinery. Many a day with the help of machinery a fair cooper can make in the neighborhood of one hundred barrels a day. In the old days with hand tools a good day's production was five barrels.

Contrary to the popular opinion that a good cooper it born, not made, Mr. French declares that a good season's apprenticeship could call himself a fair cooper, and could turn out a product equal to that given the work of the old days. Modern machinery and improved methods of these days have made the difference.

The trade of cooper is not dying out, stated Mr. French. Nothing will ever replace the barrel for apple shipments and as long as barrels are needed, there must be men to make them—barrels that will not be broken in on the job all the time. This season Mr. French has the local factory at Melville, expects to graduate five apprentices. These men and youths that had been started in the first of the season to learn the trade.

The best wood for apple barrels is that obtained from the elm tree. Soft maple runs a close second, and maple and beech complete the third and fourth. For beer barrels, oak is favored.

Although the factory has made a few barrels in past years, the demand for this barrel has not been so great in this district. Brewers have been able to obtain the barrels in the larger cities where heavier machinery is needed for their manufacture. There is little future in this district for the barrel, stated Mr. French. The apple barrel is still supreme.

Although the Melville factory is primarily a barrel factory, a large number of fish boxes are also made for fishermen and shippers of the district. Particularly during the winter this second industry is an active one.

MAIN STREET
Ramblings . . . . .

Stirring into action by the more frequent appearances of the snow-tinged fall gales that have been mounting low around local cubicles during the past few evenings, the district weather prognosticators this morning hazarded a guess and their annual bow with their various predictions concerning the state of the weather for the next few months ahead. One savant, after a searching examination of the bark on the north side of the elm trees in the district, and careful tally of the number of nuts secreted in the hoards of the frisky squirrels in the woods, declared that the winter was going to be spotted record by predicting unequivocally a state of winter siege and blizzards that will be more than cruel and bitter for the sufferers unfortunate to live in this northern district. Snow will cover the ground to a depth of several feet; there will be cold blasts from the far North Pole, ice-laden and tinged with the Arctic chill, and all that sort. But, here this venerable savant meets opposition, for the old-timer whose record is equally spotless of errors, is willing to go to the mat on the proposition that there is going to be something akin to a balmy Florida winter. Mild days, with no blizzards, he states, are building their reedy homes thinner than for some years, and the squirrels they would accordingly build them when they feel in their bones there is going a cold winter ahead. He calls attention to the fact that the skins and fleece of the lambs have been sickoty nuts are thinner shelled than they have been other seasons. This invariably means a green Christmas. The groundhogs are burrowing deeper than ever, and the crows have been making their nests in the tops of the tallest trees in the countryside. All this foretells an open winter this year. With two such venerable weather prognosticators on the job, there should be double left in the minds of commonplace mortals as to the state of the weather for the next six months ahead.

CARL HUBBELL VOTED BEST IN NATIONAL

Received 77 Out of a Possible 80 Votes by Writer

GREAT YEAR

Turned Back Senators For 20 Innings Without Earned Run

By Herbert W. Parker, Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Oct. 11 (AP)— The selection of Carl Hubbell as the National League's "most valuable player for 1933", will bring few squaks from John Heydler's circuit and absolutely none at all from Washington Senators, champions of the American League.

By almost unanimous consent, the slender southpaw pitching ace of the World Champion New York Giants was adjudged most valuable to his team in balloting by a committee of eight members of the Baseball Writers' Association of America. The results of the poll were announced yesterday by Denman Thompson of the Washington Star, committee chairman.

Hubbell polled 77 points out of a maximum possible total of 80 and won out by decisive margins from Chuck Klein and Wally Berger, slugging outfielders of the Phillies and Boston Braves respectively.

For several years Hubbell has been rated one of the National league's most effective hurlers but the lean-armed southpaw never before enjoyed so sensational a season as he did this year.

Dominant Figure

He was the dominant pitching figure in the Giants' dramatic drive to the National League pennant, winning 23 games, 10 of them shutouts, and twice turned back Washington in the World series. The Senators failed to get an earned run off him in 20 innings. Hubbell's selection marks the first time a pitcher has gained the award since 1924 when Dazzy Vance, then of Brooklyn, was the winner. No member of the Giants had been named since Larry Doyle won the old Chalmers award in 1912.)

Back of Hubbell in this year's balloting finished Klein with 48 points, followed by Berger with 44. Manager Bill Terry of the Giants was fourth with 35 with Pepper Martin of the Cardinals fifth at 31.

The complete results of the voting: Carl Hubbell, Giants, 77; Chuck Klein, Phillies, 48; Wally Berger, Braves, 44; Bill Terry, Giants, 35; Pepper Martin, Cardinals, 31; Gus Mancuso, Giants 24; Dizzy Dean, Cardinals, 23; Pie Traynor, Pirates, 20; Blondy Ryan, Giants, 19; Al Lopez, Dodgers, 18; Ben Cantwell, Braves, 16; Hal Schumacher, Giants 11; Rabbit Maranville, Braves 11; Guy Bush, Cubs, 11; Larry French, Pirates 10; Frank Frisch, Cardinals, 7; Jim Bottomley, Reds, 6; Joe Medwick, Cardinals 5; Gabby Hartnett, Cubs, 5; Lon Warneke, Cubs 4; Red Lucas, Reds 3; Dick Bartell, Phillies, 3; Floyd Vaughan, Pirates, 3; Randy Moore, Braves 2; Virgil Davis, Phillies 1; Chick Hafey, Reds, 1; Adolfo Luque, Giants 1.

SCHEDULE OF N.H.L. ADOPTED

Each team will play six games against all other teams, three at home and three away. Results will again be tabulated on two schedules, Toronto, Ottawa, Montreal Maroons, Montreal Canadiens and New York Americans making up the Canadian section and Boston, New York Rangers, Chicago and Detroit the American. Play-offs for the Stanley Cup will follow the closing of the regular season, which ends on Sunday, March 18.

For the opening night Detroit will play Canadiens here; Boston will clash with Maple Leafs at Toronto and Americans will open at Chicago. Detroit's title campaign will open at home on Saturday November 11, Canadiens furnishing the opposition, and on the same night Maroons will be at home, to Boston and Toronto, Rangers, Detroit's first home game taked place on Sunday, November 12.

SHEPARD PURCHASED BY BRUINS FROM AMERICANS

Leading Scorer For His Team Last Season

Boston, Oct. 11 (CP)—Art Ross, manager of the Boston Bruins Hockey Club, today announced the purchase of Johnny Shepard, left-winger of the New York Americans team. Shepard, the Americans' leading scorer last season, formerly played with Detroit. The Bruins failed to buy him from Detroit.

He scored 17 goals and nine assists last season, a total of 26 points. With the addition of Shepard and Bob Gracie, who scored 22 points for the Toronto Maple Leafs, the Bruins have added players who accounted for 26 goals and 23 assists last year. Ross said he was working on two other deals that he hoped to complete before leading the combined squad of the Bruins and Cubs, the Canadian-American team to Quebec for the pre-season training that starts on October 20.

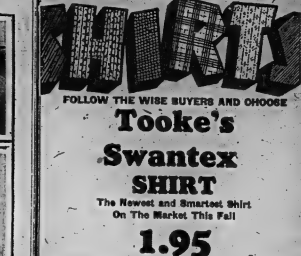
SECOND COLONEL FOR WHOLE CUBAN ARMY



Former Top Sergeant Will Cut Expenses in New Army

Havana, Oct. 11—(AP)—Colonel Fulgencio Batista, the Top Sergeant who led an abortive revolt, coup, Sept. 5 and subsequently became head of the Cuban army, disclosed sweeping plans today for reorganizing his forces.

The new army, the Colonel said, will have only one colonel, two lieutenant colonels and eight majors, compared to this line-up in former President Machado's forces one general, two brigadier generals 14 colonels, 19 lieutenants, colonels and 170 majors.

Here is the far-famed Sarnia senior football team likely contenders for the Dominion crown this year. It will be remembered that last year the Imperials beat Hamilton Tigers, eventual champions, the score of their live in the playoffs. This year, Oulette's team is even stronger than ever with the addition of Jack Patterson, triple threat man from Western University. In the pre-season exhibition series, Sarnia also administered a defeat to the Montreal Winged Wheelers, for another upset. They are almost certain champions of the O.R.F.U. league, not having much opposition.

ELEVEN COAL FIRMS CALLED

Combine to Maintain High Price is Charged

Quebec, Oct. 11 (CP)—Eleven coal companies were called for trial today on charges of forming a combine to maintain high prices for coal. Following upon an inquiry under the Dominion Combines Investigation Act, prosecution was undertaken by the Attorney General of Quebec.

Preliminary moves in the case were made some weeks ago, but actual hearing was postponed until Sir Alfred Cops, British coal mine owner, arrived from Europe to testify on behalf of the defence.

All 11 companies have pleaded not guilty and elected for trial by Judge without jury.

CONTEMPT OF COURT HELD

Witnesses at Inquest Jailed For Refusing to Answer Questions

Peterborough, Ont., Oct. 11.—(CP)—William Gallagher and Hugh McCullough, driver and passenger respectively on a truck which struck and killed 11-year-old Hugh Wallace, are held in jail today on a charge of contempt of court following their refusals to testify last night at the coroner's inquest into Walkem's death.

A verdict that Walkem met death through being run down by a truck "believed to have been driven by William Coursey" was returned by the jury.

Patrick Slaght, nephew of A. G. Slaght, K.C., Toronto, who was with Walkem, testified the truck was on the wrong side of the road. After the boy was killed, a man got out of the machine, but drove away almost immediately, he said.

Edward Cooley, owner of a wood truck said his machine had been struck by that of Coursey later. He had previously stated Coursey was drunk but last night changed his evidence, declaring his belief Coursey had every reason to be nervous and excited".

'HOSTILITIES' AT SEA DELAYED BY STORM

London, Oct. 11—(C.P. Cable)—Naval "hostilities" between England and Scotland arranged to start today were postponed because of a storm which sent heavy seas pounding along the whole eastern coast, making it impossible for warships of any class to travel at their best speed.

The accompanying gale also prohibits efficient use of reconnaissance aircraft while there was even more apprehension as to what would happen to the cluster of obsolete vessels which have been transformed into a "convoy," central feature of the manoeuvres.

Separate from the naval "attack" on Scotland carried out two weeks ago, the new manoeuvres were based on the prfliction of, and attack against, large convoys.

DEBT SPOKESMEN URGE BRITISH CLAIM

Washington, Oct. 11—(AP)—British war debt spokesmen armed themselves with documents and statistics today for their first effort to persuade the United States that the obligations of the London government to this country should be scaled down.

The negotiations were confronted with the problem of reaching a compromise between British sentiment against further war debt payments and the equally emphatic view of the American Congress that payments should continue as scheduled in the 1923 funding agreement. This contemplated instalments of principal and interest totalling $11,000,000,000 over a period of 61 years. Since the agreement was made effective, Great Britain has paid more than a billion dollars. The unpaid principal now amounts to more than $4,000,000,000.

CURRENT SPORT

We are in receipt of a letter from Ed Furtelle of Bloomfield, wish Baker to task for referring to "Warpy" Phillips, Picton's ace hurler, as being a product of Wellington. We regret very much the error as Mr. Furtelle assures us that Phillips was born and raised in Bloomfield and plays a fair game of hockey as well as baseball. We might say in defence, however, we only referred to Phillips as "the Picton Veteran Hurler" for which time he hurled during his term as a Junior. His brother "Shrimp" pitched for the Wellington juniors this past season. "Our mistake, Mr. Furtelle."

But on with the ball game. Phillips gave a rare exhibition of pitching in Southampton as well as his rival mound-man, Goldsmith. It must be granted that Goldsmith out-pitched the youthful Picton hurler on the day's endeavours but, Phillips pitched good enough ball to win. Any pitcher who allows but four hits and one run is deserving of a better fate than Phillips was forced to accept in Southampton. At that the Hanoverite had two more men left stranded on the paths than the homesmen. What a battle Friday's tilt should be with two such pitchers as Phillips and Goldsmith. Kind of reminds us of the old days of Jack Williams, Fred Geary, Al Heckman and Dale Dunlop.

It seems rather a sorry plight when local boxers are forced to appear repeatedly on cards that are being sponsored in other centres. At this time of the year when out-of-doors sport is on the wane and the indoor sport is fast coming into its own the local boxing promoters should assume the offensive and head the other sporting clubs with the popular punch, namely—stage their own boxing shows.

Miss Charney who refereed the B.C.I. at Trenton junior football game last Friday, is expected to turn out with the Belleville and Toronto professional football team in the near future. Incidentally she played outside for Balmy Beach for some years and is one mighty keen sport fan in the line, we hear. All of which reminds us, that Coach Shiels is endeavoring to plug up a few holes in both his junior and senior squads, judging from their recent ability shown on the field the local tri-color squads need but a few changes and they'll be "in there." Incidentally the Oshawa Collegiate apparently are stronger than last season. They experienced little difficulty in downing the fast Peterboro C.I. last Saturday. The Peterbest Lindsay 8 to 6, while the latter trimmed B.C.I. 4 to 2. Thus it looks as though Oshawa is the team to beat.

Following Tuesday morning's early deluge of rain, Harry Wicks was forced to call off his proposed harness races. Mr. Wicks was quite disappointed in the holiday crowd as he had been informed that Belleville was a good horse race town. Despite the fact that the local fairgrounds failing to harness as anticipated we still feel that with a similar card repeated Wicks and the sponsors would be more than rewarded for their efforts. Ten or so seven hundred were on hand for the races on Monday.

Queer as it may seem not past season upset event ever succeeded in the sport leaving followers of this community. One's sport has been terminated its regular season in and around the Bay of Quinte section with the best team and not behind. The same holds good for hockey. Usually we say silver line of sport activities as in the case of harness races. Monday races were equally as good as any ever completed in Eastern Ontario, but the season for harness racing was closed in Belleville at the Fair, so again we say—try it next spring Mr. Wicks and you'll not be disappointed.

Did you know that Wee Willie Keeler went to bat 700 consecutive times without striking out. He started his record at the tag end of the season, went into 1898 and the 1898 season, without whiffing and played the entire season of 1899 and the opening of 1897 before going down on strikes.

Advice to the Lovelorn

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm tired of being the chum, big sister and confident of every man I meet, and why think I'm the best friend any man ever had; then, after telling me all about their troubles with the other girl and listening to my advice, they make up with the other girl and get married.

With two of these gentlemen to whom I sent a sympathetic note, I happened to be very much in love myself. I would have given anything to fling my arms around the neck of either one—the confidences happened at two different times—and said something, like: "Why don't you put your arm around me, dear. Take me! I love you to distraction. Marry me and let me make you happy."

But, instead, my sense of honor intervened and I had to tell them how to write to those worthless willows. Will I ever get them back. Well, it worked in both cases. And now the wives are keeping their husbands' noses to the grindstone to pay for those fine things they got in the good old-fashioned way.

Now, very frankly, I want a husband, a home and a dozen of babies. I'm tired of being the little sympathetic friend and would have been treated badly by other women.

I'm 34 and haven't a great deal of time to lose. I'm not bad-looking, and I have $3,300, more or less, that left me by my grandmother, but I cannot, with all of it myself, if I found the right type of man, I'd like to put my little nest egg in a home.

Why can't I find him? I'm a good person and I don't drink. I've been told I am too literal—that I have no charm, and have no illusion. Why should I cultivate these things when I don't like them? I want to be loved for the things that are natural to me. What would you suggest?

Hopeless.

Hopeless,

Print, my dear, that you drop that signature, "Hopeless" yourself and visualizing yourself in any such despairing capacity. Call yourself "Hope" if you please, and go out to meet your fate full of confidence.

Never was a truer word said than "as a man thinketh in his heart, so is he." You've been thinking of yourself as a spinster confidant to your men friends—sort of sub-mother in their troubles with other girls.

Do for mercy's sake go into reverse! When they begin to tell you about their troubles, say with type of guyzat laugh that you've troubles of your own—and that being taken for the world's sister confessor is one of them.

It would really be a good thing for you to change your environment. Go some place that doesn't know you. Wear your prettiest clothes, and don't start on that sisterly confidence business.

Unfortunately we're taken at our own valuation in this grim old world, and if you're acting as the little sister to the distressed that's the tag they put on you.

Come to think about it, aren't you poaching on my preserves? Next time they begin to tell you their sorrows about other girls, just tell them to write to Beatrice Fairfax.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a bachelor and have my own business. Am amply able to support a wife and give her a good home—if I could only find the right girl. I want a woman who has never gone out to business or earned a dollar. In short I want a woman such as my mother was—a loving wife, and mother who looked up to my father, considering him the head of the family, and who regarded his lightest word as law.

I don't want to establish his hope for a modern he-woman who has earned money and holds independent and radical views on every subject. I want to be boss in my own home. I want my wife to wear an apron—which I consider a true badge of femininity.

I've just quarrelled with a girl I love, but I couldn't stand for independence. Only this morning she sent me a colored engraving from an old magazine, Godey's Ladies' Book, and told me she was sorry to hear that I was a man and was buried for fifty years.

Don't you think she wants to make up, as she's sent this note as the best method of getting my ring. Do you think she'll ever come around and be the kind of wife I'm looking for, to share my life and love?

Clarence H. M.

"Backward, turn backward, O Time, in your flight," and allow me to be the burden of your desires, my dear man, and not the man I love. I don't believe you'd be happy if you got what you think you want.

"When the gods would punish, they grant their prayers" is always something like that; I've forgotten the exact wording of the quotation. But, married for better or worse to a woman such as you describe as your ideal, I believe you'd feel as queer and conspicuous as if you walked downtown in coat and hat and breeches.

Why should any man in his senses want his wife to regard his lightest word as law? Think how stupid and stagnant family life would become. Talk would be at a standstill. You'd say something and the poor lady wouldn't dare reply, fearing she'd be breaking the law.

Then you'd dash off to something more sprightly in the way of feminine society—some girl who would give you as good as you sent; who'd make the pyrex fun of this word-to-law business—and you'd feel that you'd only be within your rights to take a girl who was stimulating and made you forget yourself. It happened to be you wanted to forget or find an excuse for forgetting and seeing her.

Take my advice, dear, back to the girl who scissored out the picture of the ancestral home ladies of 50 years ago. Humor is one of the greatest assets of married life; that girl sounds good to me.

NOW FOR OCTOBER BRIDAL BREAKFASTS

Chicken Takes Second Place As Lamb Comes to the Fore for Gay Event

New York, Oct. 11.—They're planning October bridal breakfasts these days. The main course of the wedding breakfast must be both dainty and wholesome.

If the wedding is to be in the early morning, you literally can serve a breakfast. Fruit, served in an amusing way, some sort of an unusual ham and egg dish or an omelet, strip rolls and plenty of coffee and cream make an ideal menu.

Chicken, fried, roasted and a la King, has long been a favorite for wedding breakfasts served at noon or night. However, if you want to be original, why not consider fine cuts of other kinds of meat?

Lamb is perfectly delicious and has a certain "company" air about it. For this very important occasion, the chops are not quite formal enough. Choose, instead, kernels of lamb. Your butcher can cut them right out of the saddle or rack of the lamb. Allow one for each person to be served.

Each kernel should weigh about six ounces. Sprinkle them with pepper and salt and saute, about four minutes, on both side in hot butter. Remove the kernels and make a sauce in the same pan with a little white cooking wine and butter. Pour the sauce over the lamb and place one kernel in the centre of each dinner plate.

Surround the meat with a small bouquet of cauliflower, a small helping of creamed potatoes, artichokes, stewed fresh tomatoes, hearts of lettuce and string beans.

Be sure the vegetables are well seasoned and covered with butter. Put the lamb in the centre of plates just before they are ready to go to the table. The success of this dish lies in serving it extremely hot.

PLUS FOURS ON WAY OUT

Del Monte, Calif., Oct. 11.—(CP) —The day of embarrassment for those knicker-clad golfers whose legs are either too thin or too thick are numbered in the opinion of Jacques Dupont, Paris Couturier, who is Hollywood-bound. His theory is that long trousers with narrow cuffs will soon make plus fours as out of date on golf courses as Abort skirts are elsewhere.

ASSEMBLY ADJOURNS

Geneva, Oct. 11 (AP)—The 14th Assembly of the League of Nations adjourned this afternoon.

Many People So Used To Chronic Fatigue, caused by deficiencies in their diets, they are utterly unaware how much better they might feel

THAT may seem strange, but a very eminent authority has stated! "It is possible for the adult to become habituated to living on too low a nutritional level, so that he is unconscious of any disadvantages and will protest that he is 'perfectly well,' while as a matter of fact, he is more liable to both physical and mental fatigue, to nervous diseases, and other infections, than if he were living on a higher nutritional plane."

Are you sure your diet is sufficient and not deficient? Are you sure particularly that it is supplying you with enough Vitamins, Iron and Proteins, three vitally necessary essentials to good health?

The new food-drink, VIP, developed after months of scientific research, was placed on the market for the very purpose of making it easy for you and other people to easily secure additional supplies of Vitamins, Iron and Proteins.

Just add a cup or glass of delicious VIP, hot or cold, to your daily diet for a month and see if there isn't an improvement in your vigor, energy and strength, in your appetite and digestion, a better tone to your nerves and a general all-round feeling of better health and spirits.

VIP is obtainable in two sizes—65c. and $1.10—from druggists and drug departments of department stores. Also served at leading soda fountains—a cold VIP milk shake is particularly delicious. 208

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE BELLE

When a rare star such as Katharine Hepburn is given a vehicle that gives her full scope, a dazzling performance is assured.

That is just what is offered in her powerful new drama, "Morning Glory," coming to the Belle Tomorrow (Thursday) and Friday, matinee and evening.

Great characterizations are woven in a highly dramatic and interesting interesting story in this production. Added interest is attached to the story through its resemblance in many details to actual events of Miss Hepburn's real life career.

Briefly, the drama centres about a girl's gallant struggle for success on the New York stage, and her final triumph after bitter disappointments and cruel experiences. The girl or the story is an amazing mixture of genuine, naive enthusiasm, romance and courage.

Not a backstage production in any sense of the term, "Morning Glory" can be fittingly described as an epic of devotion to the ideal and unselfish love. The girl could just as easily have been fighting to win success as a writer or an artist, and is around her struggle and a unique love triangle that the interest centres.

Miss Hepburn again proves her right to consideration as one of the greatest stars of screen history. Far from having a "one film man," this dynamic actress repeats not only the triumphs she won in her past screen successes, but even improves upon them with her amazingly understanding interpretation of the girl in "Morning Glory."

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., co-starred with Miss Hepburn, gives a tremendously sympathetic and effective characterization as the young playwright who believes in the girl, champions her when her prospects are darkest, and teaches her the meaning of idealistic love.

Adolphe Menjou is in his polished best as a debonair and forceful theatrical producer.

In addition to Menjou, such favorites as Mary Duncan, the veteran C. Aubrey Smith, Frederic Stanley, Richard Carle, Tyler Brooke, Don Alvarado, and Geraldine Mitchell contribute strong supporting performances.

From a directorial standpoint the picture ranks as another outstanding achievement for Lowell Sherman.

Four Varied Shorts

The enjoyment of the feature offering is enhanced by the added entertainment offered in the four selected short gems to be exhibited on the same program consisting of "Our Gang" in "Forgotten Babies," The Belle News, a clever Krazy Kat Cartoon, and a clever Travel-talk capably described by the inimitable Pete Smith.

What's your pet superstition?

Don't say you haven't any. There are only a few human beings in the world who are entirely free from superstitions of some kind.

Maybe you won't admit it. Many will not. But ask the average person about Friday, or the 13th month, or walking under a ladder, black cats, odd numbers, or beliefs in the old sayings, and you'll find a surprising number of them who reluctantly admit that they have a little belief. They swear by it, too.

Psychologists will tell you that it's merely association of ideas, coincidences and such...that foster and breed such beliefs. But you would have a hard time convincing the gentry who live by their wits that such is the case.

Prizefighters and gamblers are most addicted to superstitions. Dempsey would never shave on the day he was to fight. The late James J. Corbett had an old, time-worn bathrobe that he always wore into the ring. Another fighter always wore a certain old cap when he left his dressing room, and another would never enter the ring out of the purse than climb through the ropes wearing certain "lucky" pair of shoes on his feet.

Lucky-pieces abound in the clothes of baseball players and gamblers have unbounded faith in odd numbers. The "hot" and "dog shot" gamblers has such faith in the efficacy of a cross-eyed negro boy that he has one holler in his tablishment. Pete DePaola, the champion auto racing driver, would never enter a contest without a baby rabbit's foot in the pocket of his car. Napoleon is reputed to have preferred generals who were 'lucky' rather than those who seemed to be cursed with the jack of it.

So there is belief in "luck" and lucky talismans in the underworld that the authors of "Lady For a Day," Columbia's story of Damon Runyon's famous short stories. As an Belle tonight for the last times in "Charlie Chan's Greatest Case," another of the popular Earl Derr Biggar detective stories. Ralph Linn and Tom Wallis are a scream in the latest comedy "Pathe's Canadian News and a clever cartoon are exhibited on the same program.

WILL REBUILD TWEED FACTORY

Tweed Rebekahs Hold Installation of Officers

Tweed—At the Teachers' Convention in Marmora Mr. S. H. Connor, Principal of Tweed Consolidated School, was again elected Secretary Treasurer of Centre Hastings Teachers' Association. Council also held the office of Secretary since 1916 and that of Treasurer since 1918.

A decision of much importance to Tweed was arrived at this week when Mr. W. S. Gordon, President of the W. Gordon Steel Works Ltd., decided to rebuild their factory which was burned last Dec. 16th.

Mr. Gordon has come to the conclusion that conditions are improving and expects by spring that business will be rapidly getting away from the depression and back to normal conditions and he wants to have the new factory in shape to take care of the business as it develops.

It will be necessary to start over again in a small way to develop the business in large proportions as he did years ago. It certainly takes a good deal of courage to face up to the proposition and understand the only assistance Mr. Gordon is asking of the town is that his taxes of 1933, the year of the fire, be reduced from top to the present time the council has not seen fit to meet his ideas in this connection. He feels that he will be much more independent if he builds up the business again without any other assistance.

No doubt that the fact the W. Gordon Steel Works Ltd., owns a controlling interest in the Tweed Foundries Ltd., has been a large factor in influencing Mr. Gordon to rebuild in Tweed, also the fact that he is in a large property owner in the town and such a great interest in helping to reach this decision.

Mr. Jas Murray has been seriously ill for some time.

Mrs. Jordan of Belleville, D. D. President of the Rebekah Assembly and her husband were guests of Tweed Rebekah Lodge on Friday evening for the purpose of installing the officers for the ensuing year. The following officers were installed.

PALE FACE CALLED IN TO SETTLE TRIBAL DISPUTE

Chief Indian Inspector Listens to Charges of the Tribe

Moravianown, Ont., Oct. 11 (CP)—Solemnly and with appropriate greatness, Indians of the Delaware tribe on the Moravian Reserve have called in the pale-face to settle tribal issues. Enroute to the department of Indian Affairs today is the report of Thomas McGugan, chief inspector of Indian Reserves in Ontario and Quebec. And over the tribal council chamber today had descended peace following verbal warfare.

For days and days Chief Emerson face and former Chief Emerson Snake have divided their Braves into camps and the former Chief Emerson has attacked Nelson Stone, agent on th. reserve on several occasions and Mr. McGugan is reporting to the department after the Braves had told him all about it.

Feeling was running high between the two factions for a time, and more open warfare was expected momentarily. But yesterday Mr. McGugan strolled into camp and called the factions together. For hours he listened to both sides of the story. He said little but listened a lot. Then he formally announced he had reserved judgment on the dispute and declared he would submit his report to Ottawa.

Stone is charged by former Chief Snake with:

1—Displaying favoritism towards children whose mothers were Indian and whose fathers were white men, in giving them high school grants from the department of Indian Affairs, when full-blooded Indian children have been refused.

2—With deliberately withholding vital information from the department concerning the parentage of children receiving grants for higher education.

3—With conspiring among Indians about other Indians, creating illfeeling and tending to cause insubordination.

4—Having appointed as Indian constable of the Reserve, a person with criminal record who had served two years in Michigan State prison.

PLANING MILL IS DESTROYED

Incendiarism Theory in Cobourg Fire is Considered

Cobourg, Ont., Oct. 11—(CP)—Police today considered the theory of incendiarism in the $10,000 blaze that destroyed Cooper's Planing Mill here, completely gutting the interior and consuming about 30,000 feet of fine lumber. The lumber was piled in a warehouse at the rear of the mill.

Only the fact that the mill was metal - sheeted prevented the flames which broke out early Monday morning from breaking through and attacking the residential block to the south. Proximity of the fire to a garage made it necessary to move trucks and equipment from the garage.

Firemen battled the flames several hours before surrounding buildings were safe from the threat of the intense heat. Origin of the fire was still undetermined, but the fact there were two fires on previous dates, also of unknown origin, has led to a close investigation.

The condition of the devastated interior indicated that the fire started at one end and almost immediately broke out at the other end of the mill. The loss is partly covered by insurance.

VICTORY WON ON QUESTION

Germany Forces League to Reject Clause Aimed at Country

(By John Lloyd)

Geneva, Oct. 11 (AP)—Germany won a victory on the Jewish question today in forcing the League of Nations Assembly to reject a clause in a resolution German delegates felt was aimed directly at their government's treatment of the Jews.

As adopted, the measure expressed the hope that all countries, regardless of whether they signed treaties relating to minority groups, should extend treaty benefits to their own minorities.

Minorities were defined as including all racial, linguistic and religious classes without exception.

The political commission had adopted, despite the objection of the German representative, the original resolution recommending that numerically inferior racial classes in all countries be classified as minorities to "justice and tolerance."

Particular disagreement was voiced by the German to a part which said: "The Assembly considers that the foregoing principles are applicable to all categories of nationals who differ from the majority of their race, language, and religion." Representatives of the Reich refused to recognize Jews as a minority.

MILL WHEAT ILLEGALLY TO ESCAPE HUGE TAX

New Form of Bootlegging Grows Out of It.

By SAM BLEDSOE

Associated Press Staff Writer
(Copyright by The Associated Press 1933)

Washington, Oct. 11—(AP)— A new form of bootlegging—illegal wheat milling to escape the processing tax—is growing up, driven to such proportions that a determined drive to end it is planned by federal authorities of the United States.

Collection of the tax, a levy on wheat or its equivalent, is the immediate responsibility of the millers, the bureau of internal revenue.

The farm adjustment administration is vitally concerned, however, because the money from the processing tax are depended upon to raise funds to pay farmers who agree to reduce their acreage by 15 per cent next year.

As indicated by the steady flow of complaints that has come to the farm administration, the chief violators of the law are growers, whom the processing tax was designed to help.

SIX BILLION REFUND OF LIBERTY LOAN?

(By Frank E. King)

"London, Oct. 11 (CP)—The possibility of the refunding of more than $6,000,000,000 outstanding of the fourth United States Liberty Loan, as rumored in Wall Street today, has been discussed this past week in the London financial district.

Stock exchange brokers are watching every move of the American political and financial world for an indication whether such a refunding scheme will be announced, because it would affect security prices on the London market.

DOCTRINES TO RECEIVE TEST

C.C.F. Runs Candidate in Contest Being By-Election in McKenzie

Saskatoon, Oct. 11.—(CP)—Doctrines of the newly-formed Cooperative Commonwealth Federation will get their first test as a Dominion by-election Oct. 23, in a McKenzie constituency held to fill the seat in the House of Commons vacated by William R. Campbell, Speaker, upon his being appointed to the Tariff Board.

Party nominations at Buchanan promised a four-cornered fight for the vacant seat, with Percy Loud, St. George Stubbs, united Farmer-Labor candidate, backing the Standard of the C.C.F. Nomination of Mr. Stubbs followed an extensive speaking tour by the former judge, which took him on a transcontinental trip through Quebec.

Party meetings of Conservatives, Liberals and the United Front named three candidates to run against him. J. S. McMillan of Wadena will represent the Liberals, S. Jabez Buchanan the Conservatives, and L. P. McNamee of Kerrobert the United Front.

McKenzie's test will coincide with two other Dominion by-elections, one in Yamaska, Que., the other in Restigouche-Madawaska, N.B.

CENTRE HASTINGS TEACHERS MEET

Interesting Banquet is Feature of Convention

Tweed, Oct. 11—The annual convention of the teachers of Centre Hastings was held in St. Andrew's United Church, Marmora, on Oct. 5th and 6th. There was an attendance of 104 public and separate school teachers as well as some of the high school teachers of the inspectorate.

Rev. A. B. Caldwell, rector of the Anglican Church, conducted the opening exercises in the absence of Rev. C. W. Hollingworth, minister of the United Church. Mr. F. Sweet, chairman of the School Board was present and minister of the last convention were read the President, Miss Helen Chute, who presided, called upon the treasurer for his report which showed a balance on hand of $197.13. This report was referred to the auditors, Miss E. Shea, and Mr. F. J. Ethlin. Committees were appointed to bring in any resolutions and to nominate officers for the year 1933-1934.

Miss Helen Chute delivered a splendid address on "The Teacher," Miss Grace Daymon, of Harold, gave the report of the Easter sessions of the O.E.D. The convention was very fortunate in their choice of delegate,

Mr. A. W. McGuire, B.A., B.P.E. in his remarks to the teachers spoke of the responsibility which rests upon the teacher and of the fact that someone is depending upon her, and for this reason only her best effort should be given. He urged teachers to strive to improve the discipline in their schools. He advised them to follow the course of study more closely and said that it would be revised and reprinted in a short time.

In the afternoon session, Miss G. Lamsden, primary teacher at Marmora public school, taught a lesson in a primary one primer class.

History in junior classes was the subject of a paper by Miss Isabelle C. Campbell of Tweed Consolidated School. The speaker advised close correlation of history with composition. She said that children are particularly fond of biography which makes the great deal as they like to hear about people. Pictures should be used cautiously.

Through the efforts of the teachers of Deloro and Marmora, and the courtesy of the officials of the Deloro Smelting and Refining Co., a visit was arranged to the plant at Deloro on Saturday afternoon. The teachers were divided into groups of about twenty and were shown the various stages in the manufacture of silver, cobalt, arsenic and alcohol. They were also carefully explained and the teachers are deeply appreciative of the company's kindness and courtesy. Cobalt is manufactured on a large scale in only two places in the world, Deloro in Canada and Germany. In Belgium, Cobalt oxide is used in the Ceramic Industry. Much of the Deloro product is shipped to China, Japan and England. Cobalt metal is used in the manufacture of Stellite, the hardest metal known. Deloro is the only producer of stellite in the British Empire. Much of the arsenic produced there is sent to Pittsburgh where it is used in the glass industry. Some is also used in the manufacture of insecticides because of its arsenate of lime, which have largely replaced paris green.

At 1.30 p.m. the teachers attended a banquet in the Opera House, provided by Miss Hubbard's Institute. After the banquet three teachers of Madoc public school who had visited Great Britain and some countries on the continent during the past summer gave accounts of their trip. Miss Loreen Connor spoke of the beauties of the countries visited and of some of the customs of the people. In Holland she said they found few wind mills and wooden shoes. Miss Betty Rattray spoke of visits to Holyrood and Edinburgh castles in Scotland. She said they were privileged to witness the Tattoo Festival in Lucerne, Switzerland. Miss Aleatha Fleming told of Wordsworth's home and a visit to the Lake Country of Northern England and described the lakes of the Empire.

At the conclusion of this interesting accounts a splendid programme was provided by Lang from Marmora and Deloro. Miss Helen Chute presided. The programme follows:

1 Masonic Male Quartette — "Lake's Old Swimmin' Hole."
2 Reading—Miss D. Lumsden.
3 Violin Solo—Mr. Herbert Hyman.
4 Humorous Skit—Mr. Lucas.
5 Chorus—"O Canada" and "Rule Britannia," Marmora Separate School.
6 Solo—"Bird Song at Eventide" —Mr. J. Baker.
7 Violin Solo—Mr. S. B. Wright.
8 Selection—High School Orchestra.
9 Reading—Miss Mary O'Neill.
10 Solo—Miss E. Campbell.
Quartette—"Way Down Yonder in the Corn Field."
12 Violin Solo—Mr. S. B. Wright
13 Address—"Burma"—Mr. W. Rigg.
14 Solo—Miss Lucas.
15 Selection—H. S. Orchestra.
16 Male Quartette.
17 Old Save The King.

The Friday morning session was again opened by Rev. A. B. Caldwell. The following officers were elected for 1933-1934.

Hon. Pres.—Mr. A. W. McGuire, B.A., B.P.E.
Pres.—Miss Grace Houston.
Vice Pres.—Miss I. Hanley.
Secretary-Treasurer—H. Connor.
Delegate to O.E.A.—Miss Vera Fitchett.
Alternate Delegate—Miss Lois Richardson.
Auditors—Mr. Harold Mott, Mr. E. C. Prentice.
Executive — Misses Frances O'Hara and Loreen Connor, Mr. Grant McKiejohn.

In his paper on the teaching of history in senior classes, Mr. B. H. Connor suggested a number of aids for the successful teaching of history. Discussions followed regarding the writing of notes. It was the consensus of opinion that the teacher should not dictate notes, and that the pupil should familiarize himself thoroughly with the story before attempting to write it which should not be done with the text book open.

One of the most useful topics of the entire convention was a literature lesson with a fourth class, taught by Mr. Jas. Erwin, principal of Madoc public school. Mr. Irwin stressed appreciation rather than interpretation in order to create in the child a love for good literature.

A splendid paper on the teaching of agriculture by Mr. I. J. Kinlin, principal of Bogart public school. Mr. Kinlin said that one hour a week was insufficient time to devote to agriculture in rural schools, as many of the boys and girls would spend all their lives on the farm. The subjects can be correlated with arithmetic, geography, art and composition. The teaching must be practical or it is almost valueless. Excursions may be used to advantage in teaching certain topics.

"The second year Normal course was discussed at length by Miss Jean Moffat of Stirling public school. Miss Moffat has also taken the course, set forth its advantages and spoke strongly in its favor. Some discussion followed in which it was suggested that it should be made more useful to public school teachers.

Just before the close of the morning session, Mr. R. G. Prentice paid a tribute to Inspector McGuire whose book "The Wordsworth Reader" had been approved by the Department of Education and included in Grade 8B as suitable for supplementary reading in public schools. The teachers joined heartily in the sentiments expressed by Mr. Prentice.

Miss Helen Chute vacated the chair as the beginning of the afternoon session and Miss Grace Houston, president-elect conducted the concluding session.

The Resolutions' Committee brought in the following resolutions:—That the thanks of the convention be extended to all those who aided in the evening program.

That the secretary convey to the Deloro Smelting and Refining Co. the thanks of the teachers of Centre Hastings for the privilege of inspecting their plant and for the courtesies shown by the conductors of the various parties.

That if possible the convention be held in Kingston in 1934.

That the following resolution be forwarded to the secretary of the O.E.A.: That the second year Normal course be made more beneficial to the public school teacher, especially those teaching in rural schools.

These resolutions were approved with the exception of the third which was left in the hands of the executive.

Miss Grace Daymon of Harold told of the improvement by the pupils in writing on compositions and letters brought about by interchanging their essays and letters with pupils of other schools.

"School Games" was the subject of a splendid paper by Mr. Harold Mott. Mr. Mott mentioned a number of benefits resulting to the children from the playing of games and suggested suitable games for them.

Miss Frances O'Hara discussed "The Rural School Time Table," which she said must be followed closely if it is not to lose its value. She said that examinations as a test of a child's knowledge were not always satisfactory.

The last paper of the afternoon "Second Class Geography" was given by Miss Hilda Phillips of Marmora public school, who said that as far as possible teaching, particularly of land and water forms should be objective. Where objects failed, pictures might be substituted.

The convention adjourned to meet in Madoc in 1934.

MARMORA CLUB BEGINS MEETINGS

Collegiate Inaugurates a Crusade of Friendship

Marmora—The resumption of meetings of St. Paul's Men's Club, at the White Hall on Wednesday evening resulted in the rendition of a most entertaining program.

W. R. Reynolds presided over an encouraging attendance. After the singing of two hymns, concerted prayers were taken by the Rector, Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell. R. H. Lang, principal of the High School, Continuation School, gave a very absorbing address on "Learning". J. N. Lucas of Toronto, who was formerly associated with the gathering with his special of "The Shooting of Dan McGrew," followed. This was received with applause and a good comic song, "My Little Grass Shack Kealakekua Hawaii."

C. H. Buskard gave a short talk on some interesting experiences he had years ago in the Porcupine District. S. Cheeseman then led off with some community singing after which W. R. Reynolds made a short address in his usual capable manner. The closing items were given by Mr. Lang, whose "Man in the Middle" monologue with the recitation of "Barbara Blake"

Refreshments were served during the social hour which wound up the meeting.

Friendship Crusade

The commencement of the Ontario Crusade of Friendship and Fellowship by Marmora Continuation School was an extremely valuable in the life of the village.

The gathering met in the town hall at 2.30 p.m. on Wednesday, Oct. 4th, with chairman on board. Following his introductory remarks, "O Canada" was sung by the pupils of the school. Mr. R. Hollingsworth then spoke, stressing the value of friendship and the small cost of a smile. Special mention should be made of the splendid orchestra which under the leadership of Herbert Bowman, gave its first presentation at this point in the program.

Rev. F. J. Keeley, who followed this number, emphasized the danger of the general tendency to place the blame of failure on someone else, and the value of sincerity in study.

The school then sang "The Maple Leaf" after which A. B. Caldwell addressed the gathering on the value of cheerfulness in bearing the burdens common in times of depression.

Deloro Safety Committee

The regular monthly meeting of the Deloro Safety Committee was held in Deloro Hall on Monday evening with Mr. R. A. Elliott presiding. Ten suggestions were reported, nine of which were stated to be completed and five of which were allotted an award. The Star goes to the Engineering Dept. There were no accidents during the past month, completing a 6 month accident free period. It is interesting and satisfying to note that there have been no compensatable accidents since Oct. 31st of last year. The Inspection Committee Report was brought in by Mr. C. H. Buskard, Mr. D. R. Robertson was appointed floating member for October. W. J. Rigg told of having held a Prone Method practice in the Oxide plant and Mr. H. Smith was asked to hold a similar practice in the General Division during the current month. Mr. Reynolds, briefly reported for the Publicity Committee and Mr. Buskard presented the monthly statement of the Benevolent Relief Funds. The chairman tactfully referred to the demise of a valued member of the Committee, the late Alex Kennedy. The departmental heads were asked to circularize the plant as to the possibility of having another St. John's Ambulance Co.se.

Mr. Nicholson was asked to give a review of accidents occurring this month at the November meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Middleton and two grandchildren, who have been occupying their summer home at Crow Lake, for the past four months, returned to their home in New Orleans on Thursday.

Miss Marion Loveless spent the week end with relatives in Belleville.

Mrs. Scott and Miss Sadie of Toronto occupied their summer cottage at Crowe Lake for a few days last week.

Reeve and Mrs. F. N. Marett are visiting in Trenton.

Mr. Bob Trowbridge of Kingston is a guest of Mr. Bill Reid.

Tweed High School and Marmora Continuation School played a rugby game on Deloro football grounds last Saturday afternoon. Marmora quite outclassed the visitors and won by 41 to 0.

Mr. Thos. Warren and daughter Grace motored to Ottawa and spent the week end there.

Miss Helen Lynch spent the holiday at her home in Campbellford.

Mr. Christie of Madoc was in town on Friday.

Mr. R. J. Black of Belleville was in town on Thursday.

Elmhurst Beach, Ont., Oct. 10 — The body of Joseph White, of Toronto, was found today in three feet of water near the wharf on Lake Simcoe here. He had been fishing alone yesterday. It was thought he died from a sudden attack of heart disease. An inquest will be held.

COMET SOURCE OF METEORS

Meteor Expert Gives His View of Shower of Stars

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 10—(AP)—A comet, or group of comets like within 5,000,000 miles of the earth may be the source of the annual shower of falling stars seen in Europe last night says Dr. Charles P. Olivier, meteor expert of the University of Pennsylvania.

"In 1920," Dr. Olivier said today, "The Rev. M. Davidson of England, declared that Giacobini's comet might give a radiant point for meteors on October 9, a half way between the constellations Beta and Theta Draconis. This comet's orbit was 5,000,000 miles from earth's.

"Perturbations since then have evidently switched these meteors across earth's orbit, for the Draconid radiant apparently fits the press despatches from Europe."

Perturbations refers to the pull of gravity between earth and other planets, which acts on the orbits of meteors, travelling with a comet orbit. Such perturbations may change many orbits of tens millions of miles out of their regular paths.

BID FAREWELL TO BAYSIDE FRIENDS

A very pleasant evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Westfall, of Bayside, on Wednesday, October 4th, when a large number of neighbors and friends gathered there to spend the evening with Mr. and Mrs. Garrison who were leaving the next day for their new home in Kitchener. Mr. and Mrs. Garrison had been invited to tea at Mr. Westfall's, and were completely taken by surprise when the neighbors came in. After a time spent in the parlor, they were invaded by Miss Rollins and a beautiful rocking chair and gift of money was presented to them. Mrs. Garrison also received a beautiful bouquet of roses and gladiolis from the Ladies' Association of the church.

The address follows:

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Garrison—

We your friends and neighbors in this community, have heard with real regret that it is your intention to leave your home here and move to another section. We shall miss your friendly neighborliness and good-will. You have always been cheerfully ready to help support the church and we feel that this community is the better for having had such a fine couple as you live in our midst. We have found you both honest and upright, throughout the years we have known you and we sincerely hope that in your new home you will be able to make the happy associations as you have here. And now as you take your chair and table and regard them as a symbol of our good-will and may they express to you always our most sincere wishes for your continued health and happiness.

Signed—Mrs. Wm. Westfall, Mrs. Walter Jones, Annie Price, John Fletcher, J. W. Hess.

Mr. and Mrs. Garrison replied thanking their friends and inviting them to come and visit them in their new home, speaking also of the pleasant time they had spent among their friends in the past eight years and their regret at leaving Bayside.

...ing group of passengers on the S.S. Manhattan on its arrival in New York from Europe was this quartette of foreign beauties, winners in a contest conducted by a film company in an effort to gather material from Europe to build up new stars. What's Your Answer to These Questions?

1. In what can you invest your money, except life insurance, with absolute confidence that it will bring you a guaranteed income upon which to retire, say 10, 20 or 30 years hence?

2. What asset, outside of life insurance, can you depend upon to furnish funds for the continued support of your family in case of your death?

Consider these questions—unless you are fully insured.

London Life "complete protection" policies meet both these needs at the same time—protection for your family if you should not live and money to retire if you do live. To these can be added Total Disability Insurance to provide for you in case of prolonged disability from either sickness or accident.

Ask any London Life representative for particulars about a "complete protection" policy, or write to the Branch Office.

ISLAND GIRL

By FRANK R. ADAMS

The frigidity of the occasion, if there had ever been any, was completely dampened by the reference to the death of the Admiral and Vern and the mistress of Cane Key ascended to the second floor in a depressed silence. At last even the pretence of small talk had deserted them.

On the stairway she put her hand on his arm. "Vernon dear, it's really rather by here dead than to leave him to an uncertain exile soon. If it could be over that he did not suffer much—"

She did not finish the trailing sentence but Vern completed the idea for himself. She was quite sure that family had suffered and suffered again, for his devotion to the family's cause had been a deep ingrowing in defence of rights which had been crudely violated.

CHAPTER IV

The front part of the second floor was a spacious library. Sconces with a rebellious spirit had anchored by bound many of the books in red leather and the flesh of color still seemed the sconces calf lover which was the conventional shade for all libraries fifty years ago. There were no new books.

The windows gave you a pleasant view of foliage.

In the general the second floor was brighter, more cheerful. The light up there was better. There was a tremendous ballroom and many bedrooms all lonesomely large and furnished with beds and dressers that were of proportionate size and dignity.

"There's a play-room on the third floor" Irene suggested giving him an opportunity to see back from the door of inspection.

"I should like to see it too. Besides we've nothing else to do." Vern had his vague beginnings of a plan in mind. Perhaps at the top of the house they might even be out of hearing of the unseen ears which he felt were drinking in every dropped syllable and could exchange a few sentences on subjects of crying importance.

The play-room was now pretty much of a storage room for odds and junk. It was part of boarded off portion of the attic and old furniture which had probably been made for the vacant spaces under the eaves had stranded in the middle of the floor. This made a trip across the room a matter of considerable moment even in daylight. It could not be done at night without the aid of a chart and soundings.

There were lovely dormer windows though, overlooking the sound on the front and commanding a view across the tree-tops to the north and south.

At the embrasure, leading to one of the windows, Vern thought they might be safe. It was not. Safe to Irene, however, so take a chance without asking her consent.

He circled her arm with his hand. At first she looked at him in startled amazement—and then she relaxed. Yes, Vern certainly surprise. Vern put the forefinger of his other hand to his lips as the same time beginning to telegraph on her arm by short and long pressures corresponding to dots and dashes in the International Morse Code.

"May we talk here?" he asked in silent signals.

Even before he had finished the sentence she had drawn away from him.

"That tree outside," she offered pointing casually in the direction of one guiding a stranger over the premises. "is the one that used to be a lookout in the old days before it was born Perhaps it was used by slave traders—I don't know much about that. We children were not allowed to play in the attic—except next at the top but we always did whenever no one was looking. It was made like a main mast-rigging."

Vern looked up to the top of the turfed limb of the tree considerably higher than the roof of the building even. There, without doubt, a sailing was the most repulsive counterfeit of a lookout that could become to gaze upon. Not that it was a disfigured face. On the contrary the eyes were clear and calm, the features were large and capable looking. There was no suggestion of malignant leering cruelty such as may at times be observed in those who are ruled by cruelty themselves. It was an expression that had no business being on the giant man's face—a shadow of hell that rested upon the face of a creature of God.

As he looked at it the face smiled a leering threatening smile.

Vern stared; fascinated. Finally he said almost to himself "Peter Pancake."

The answer came not from Irene, but from the head itself. There was glass between them and thirty or forty feet of space. And besides the lookout was high enough to be in the sweep of the gale which bent its branches sheerward. But the head nodded quickly and unmistakably and the smile became a broad grin.

Vern drew back from the window. "Its head me" he declared shakily.

"Peter Pancake is an expert lip reader," Irene explained. "He and my future husband converse without making a sound when they are together in the light and besides that they are incredibly swift and accurate in using the wireless code. I myself, have become quite speedy since I have known them but my skill is as nothing compared to theirs."

Vern wiped his forehead as if there really had been perspiration there. This situation was like a nightmare. Whatever was up now turned there seemed to be nothing and yet you stirred baffling destruction. He was glad that he had not babbled anything of importance in Irene's ear when he had thought himself in the window. He wondered if Pete had seen and read the telegraph signal he had tapped out on her arm. All he could do was to hope that the almost unperceptible pressure he had exerted had escaped observation. At any rate he would not try that again, at least not in daylight or in any illumination which would betray the slightest movement. At least he could do would be to refrain from making a move which would make Irene's situation more difficult than it already was.

Through another of the windows they could look out toward the mainland, could even see it and the smoke from human habitations that were apparently set back quite a way from the beach.

"There is a small town half a mile up the slough, inhabited mostly by colored rice farmers" on a small scale," Irene explained. "I have never come over here. Long ago they were encouraged not to and the taboo has become an unwritten law."

Vern did not doubt in the least that "Dummy" and his beautiful man were equally aware of the unlikelihood of interruption from the shore. Everything, even their own ancient customs, had conspired to make the island proprietors of Little Cane Key as isolated and unprotected as if they were on an atoll in the South Seas.

Nearer at hand, just across the intervening hedge of live oak, was the pointing finger of the mainmast of the yacht. It called especial attention to itself because it was casting shadow.

Vern pointing out that fact to his companion.

"Kreba is warping 'wings' in to the old wharf," I suppose" Mr. Squales must have told him to."

Vern was secretly glad of that although the fact that "Dummy" dared have all the men of the party free and accessible was a cerrtain evidence of his confidence in his protective measures. At that, even in a fair fight "Dummy" and Pancake were probably better than match for Vern plus the four old gentlemen and Krebs. It was not certain that there would be any fighting, not yet. "Dummy" possessed the advantage of the only firearms and the Ferguson boy as hostage.

"Tap-tap, tap-tap." The "attention" signal.

Without waiting for a response the message clattered out. "Come downstairs and out into the yard."

CHAPTER IV

"Dummy" was waiting for them under the look-out. He had moved out a table and the Bible from the drawing room. And yet Vern seemed they had disappeared but when checked by a sharp challenge. He looked up. It was Peter hammering on the tree trunk with spasmodic blows of the hatchet. Peter grinning shook his head and then suppressing his grin by a couple of profane admonitions in Morse code. Vern thought it just as well not to understand them and shook his head. The action above sounded like a woodpecker. Then he stopped and knew what he meant anyway and kept well within sight.

But he wondered what he would do if Irene should utter a cry for help. The cold sweat stood out on his brow at the idea of such a possibility. Vern knew that Irene's game did not really reassure him because she was in a somewhat nervous tention. Men going into action are frequently in a state of good spirits. The nearer the moment approaches the greater the nervousness. It is a kind of sort.

"And we should have some flowers," she continued in the same tone. "I believe I noticed there are some wild ones in the woods. If one of you gentlemen will go with me—"

"Dummy" grinned civilly and pointed to himself.

Irene hesitated a fraction of a second. Then she assented. "All right." To Vern, "If Krebs comes back tell him to prepare a wedding breakfast for everybody. Ask him to get the keys to the wine cellar from Mr. Ferguson."

"Yes, Miss Ferguson."

In a moment they were gone, swallowed up by the concealing untalkably and the smile became a broad grin.

"Peter Pancake is an expert lip reader," Irene explained. "He and my future husband converse without making a sound when they are together in the light and besides that they are incredibly swift and accurate in using the wireless code. OCT 11- MR. AND MRS.- JUST TO MAKE SURE

TARZAN, LORD OF THE JUNGLE

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Drawing his sword, Blake spurred straight between two knights who rode close behind the one who bore Guinalda. A quick slash to right and left and both knights toppled from their saddles. Before others could prevent him, Blake was alongside the young knight who was bearing away the Princess. Grasping his arm about the girl, the American drove his blade with his left arm far into the body of the youthful knight and spurred ahead, carrying Guinalda.

Cries of rage now arose all about him. One knight rose in his stirrups to swing his sword. Another was reaching for Blake. Then something happened—the like of which none of them had ever experienced before. A blue-barrelled forty-five flashed from Blake's holster. Twice came a sharp report and both knights lunged forward to the ground. Terrified, the horses of the nearest knights bolted as did Blake's own charger.

Far behind him were the Knights of the Sepulcher when Blake at last brought his animal under control. Here, about him, was a great forest, offering concealment for the time being. Reining quickly, Sir James threw up and gently lowered Guinalda to the ground before dismounting and tying the horse to a tree. For once in his life, Jimmy Blake was "all in." What he had been through this day had spent his energy and brought him to the verge of collapse.

Yet first he saw that the horse was made comfortable by slipping off the heavy saddle and housing and combing the great hot beast from its mouth. Not once did he even glance at the Princess until he had finished caring for his horse. Then he turned and faced her.

She was standing, leaning against a tree, and looking at him. "They are brave, Sir Knight," she said softly, and then added, arrogantly, "Yet still I hate thee!"

Backache, Kidneys Weak

WHEN your kidneys are in bad condition with pains across back, frequent passages at night, swollen ankles, or other distressing symptoms, try Dr. Pierce's Anuric. Read what Mrs. Earl Fields of 606 Park St., Niagara Falls, Ont., says: "My kidneys have bothered me at different times and I never failed to have the backache. The heavy aches across my kidneys lasted for weeks at a time and I was so nervous I could hardly stand it. I read and often called on your advertisements for Anuric and decided to give it a trial. After using several bottles I was relieved of the worst sign of kidney complaint, and, best of all, I have not had backache since." Don't neglect your kidneys complaint since, I took them."

HOLD-UP SUSPECTS REMANDED ON 5 COUNTS

Local Plant Robbed, Clothing Taken to Toronto After Mishap at Trenton

"Robbery Looked Like Easy Money," Says Pair After Arrest Effected

Miles Pettet And Percy Garrett Taken in Sumac Bush

NO RESISTANCE

Pair Display Amateurism In Their Attempted Holdup

A sumac topped swale in the rocky and wooded section of land just three hundred yards west of Hillier at three-thirty o'clock Wednesday afternoon marked the end of the trail and the capture of two previous amateur bank robbers, Miles Pettet, 24, of Toronto, formerly of Wellington, and Percy Garrett, 32, Edmonton, Alberta, who were defeated in their attempt at armed robbery of the Wellington branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce by the pluck of the manager, just seven hours after.

All day the men had been tracked in a gradually narrowing circle by scores of police and armed farmers of the County of Prince Edward to the spot of capture, after their stolen car the night had sped in the abortive bank robbery had been found abandoned but a few miles distance earlier in the afternoon.

Though Garrett was armed with a loaded revolver, that had been stolen from the bank they attempted to rob, their escape was easy. Wearily the two men raised their arms in surrender when an armed posse, under the directory of Constable Lowden and Provincial Constable Durnford, of Picton, trapped them in the gully.

Physically weary and worn by their desperate flight from the bank after slugging the manager almost unconscious, the men were marched under heavy guard back to Picton, where they were lodged in jail to be arraigned before the Magistrate on Thursday morning.

Signed Statement

After being lodged in jail, police claimed to have secured a written statement from both men, fully signed.

"We were broke," police reported they said. "This robbery looked like some easy money for us—we took it."

Although a professional touch was given the attempted hold up by the flourishing of the sawed-off shotguns with which they attempted to intimidate the teller and manager of the bank, police claim that the played signs of pure amateurism all through. They say that for a desperate of hardened criminals, and were extremely docile, when it appeared that capture might be effected.

Tracing the movements of the men in the stolen car which sped to and from the village of Wellington along the narrow dirt roads of the county for hours was difficult, stated police, who were further handicapped by the lack of accurate descriptions which were given by the men by eye-witnesses who claimed to have seen them, tallied. Police were led to believe, that the men were inches shorter than their actual height, and were dressed in matched clothing. When apprehended both men were clothing described as "brand new."

"It was extremely fortunate, that we were able to capture the men before darkness set in," stated District Inspector W. R. Lougherd of the Provincial Police of this district, who led the armed posse and police through the woods and swamps of the County throughout the day. "They were certainly trying to beat their way along the canal, where they might have had a chance to slip across unseen.

Inspector Lougherd, with another posse was not a few miles away from the armed party to which the men surrendered.

Capture Effected

In parties of sixes, some armed with shotguns, rifles, pitchforks, clubs and other weapons, they scoured fields and woods. A party consisting of Thomas Fitzpatrick, George Carver, Godfrey Upton, Charles Tice, Roscoe Burlingham, and Wilson Ainsworth, combed the southern part of the woods thoroughly, and they were about to give up when Burlingham saw the end of a shotgun protruding from beneath a clump of sumachs.

"Put 'em up!" he cried, and said when no movement came he fired again, "Put 'em up! I mean it."

Slowly the two men rose, lifting their hands in the air. Garrett

REMANDED ON FIVE COUNTS

Alleged Bandits Appear in Picton Police Court To-day

Showing signs of fatigue but unmolested in the court proceedings, Miles Pettet of Toronto and Percy Garrett, alleged by the police as being the parties responsible for the holding up of the Bank of Commerce at Wellington, Wednesday morning, which resulted in injury of the manager, Mervin Kyle and the trussing up of the latter, E. W. Wood, appeared before Magistrate A. E. Calnan in Picton Police Court this morning on five counts.

They were charged separately with robbery while armed, felonious assault, being in possession of offensive weapons, breaking and entering a bank and theft of a motor car. Neither were asked to plead to any of the charges and at the request of the Crown Attorney, Gordon Walmsley, they were remanded in custody for one week. Fingerprints of the two men have been taken and will be forwarded to Ottawa for identification, while from this end of police procedure investigation will be further carried on. The men have the right to elect summary trial before the Magistrate, in which case the Magistrate could sentence them or to go for a higher court.

District Inspector W. M. Lougherd, who supervised the search here in Prince Ward, County was quite pleased with the performance of his men in the emergency and of the co-operation given by the local police at Belleville, Trenton, Picton and Wellington. "Every available man in these districts concerned were at the disposition of the Provincial Police and their help was much appreciated," said Inspector Lougherd to the press today. "I will also to express my appreciation of the help rendered by Sergt. of the department by the residents of Prince Edward County. They were with that help and hints as to where was possible and their organized search was most helpful in apprehending the alleged bandits. Cooperation was also given yesterday will do much to minimize crime in this section and district.

Gunabots brought the crowd of several hundred to a halt as the men were marched to the main road, where a motor police took them in charge. The men had left the main road, and struck into the rugged land and their high speed, had gone into a ditch, and were ready to give up, being tired and hungry.

"We just got tough," they said as each was taken in charge. Pettet is an ex-Wellington boy, and playing baseball there in 1928 for his village. His father resides in Picton. Garrett, who is married, is said to have became estranged from his wife in Toronto for two years.

Suite Composed by Secretary Woodin Lifts Philadephia Orchestra from Red

Philadelphia, Oct. 12 (AP)—Golden notes from the melodic pen of Composer William T. Woodin, Secretary of the United States Treasury have helped lure greenbacks—almost $17,000 worth—from the pockets of music lovers to lift the renowned Philadelphia Orchestra out of the "red."

In a strange combination of culture and commercialism, unsold tickets to the orchestra's Saturday night concerts went on the auction block in the ballroom of a hotel—a 500-city hotel last night after a dinner and musical program—and continued as it was diverse.

LIFE TERMS IN KIDNAPPING BY MAN, WIFE

Six Out of Nine Now Sentenced For Rest of Lives

URSCHEL CASE

"Machine Gun" Kelly To Go To Pen By Airplane

Oklahoma City, Oct. 12 (AP) — George "Machine Gun" Kelly and his wife, Kathryn, were convicted in a verdict returned by a federal court jury today in the Charles F. Urschel kidnapping conspiracy case.

Judge Edgar B. Vaught over-ruled motions for a new trial. The court pronounced life sentences on Kelly and his wife.

The maximum sentences were pronounced under the "Lindbergh Law" by Judge Vaught ninety days after the capture of the Kellys at Memphis, Tenn., and only three days after they went to trial.

Thus six of the nine persons convicted for the $200,000 kidnapping conspiracy have been ordered to prison for the rest of their lives. Also under life sentences are Harvey Bailey, Albert Bates and Kelly's aide in the actual kidnapping, and Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Shannon, operators of the Paradise, Tex., Dance Hall, over which Urschel was imprisoned. Mrs. Shannon is Kathryn Kelly's mother.

Prosecution agents had perfected plans to take Kelly by plane to the Atlanta federal penitentiary.

His wife is to serve her sentence at the women's federal prison in West Virginia.

The jury's verdict was reached last night after deliberation of only one hour. Under the courts instructions, the jurors could agree and not returned until court opened this morning.

Polsom Prison, Calif., Oct. 12—(CP)—Crown "sort of tired of the place" after nearly 17 years in Folsom Prison, Warren K. Billings has abandoned efforts to obtain a pardon and is seeking a parole from his life sentence for the 1916 San Francisco preparedness day bombing.

But Mooney, who has consistently declared he should "by no pardoned or pardoned," offered no criticism.

"He has my best wishes", Mooney said.

AMERICA DISCOVERED 441 YEARS AGO

New York, Oct. 12—(CP)— An ocean voyage made centuries ago was the inspiration for holiday celebrations in many parts of the United States today.

It was the journey on which Christopher Columbus, obscure Genoan seafarer, sailed his way into immortal fame as the discoverer of a new continent.

The 441st anniversary of the discovery of America—was marked by celebrations and festivities principally by Italian societies honoring their ancestor.

The day was a wild holiday in some states and financial markets in the larger trading centers were closed, including the New York Stock Exchange.

Peterboro, Ont., Oct. 12 (CP) — Thought to have been a victim of sleeping sickness, Mrs. William Lucas, 46, died in isolation hospital here after being confined there for only four hours. She had been suffering from the disease for some weeks.

WARN GERMANY OF ASSAULTS

Britain and Three Powers Demand Protection of Citizens

Berlin, Oct. 12 (CP)—Great Britain and three other powers have served notice on the German government that assaults upon their citizens must cease or the most serious consequences concerning the relations of their countries with the Reich may result.

British, United States and Spanish ambassies and the Dutch legation were advised to make representations to the German government following reports of persecution from their home office this morning.

Meanwhile deep concern was manifested at the American embassy over the recurrence of Nazi molestations of Americans.

The burden of the complaint of the four countries was that apparently nothing ever happens after the attacks on their nationals befund a formal apology by the German foreign office.

CONSCIENCE IS EASED AFTER 3 YRS.

Three years ago a visitor to this city walked into a department store on upper Front St., and through a clerk's error at one of the counters, walked out again after concluding a purchase with the momentary satisfaction of having made the best of the deal, in changing a bill for the customer by the clerk one dollar too much was returned. For three years the memory of that deal has rankled in the breast of the purchaser like an avenging flame. But at last peace has come. Accounts have been squared with the explain typewritten letter, postmarked Oshawa, and containing a dollar bill, with a note of explanation, was received by the store cashier. The noted read:

"Three years ago I was a visitor in this city and made a purchasing a purchase and being rendered the change for a bill I was given one dollar too much. For three years this has bothered me. At last I am able to square accounts again."

TRIP TO TORONTO

Discovery of Robbery At Belleville Plant Early on Thursday

Reading like a story in fiction was the robbery perpetrated at the plant of the Modern Cleaners, of this city early today when two men broke, entered and stole over $1,000 worth of clothing and made a successful get away. The two robbers had allegedly previously stolen a sedan car in Toronto, in which they travelled to the scene of the robbery upon their return trip here, over, the car became overheated in the town of Trenton and was taken to the garage where it was proceeded westward in a hired taxi driven by James Lewis.

Entrance to the Modern Cleaners plant was gained by cutting a wire screen over a cellar window. The screen was cut by cutting the neck-knife used by one of the robbers. The robbers later broke open the cellar window and gained access to the main floor of the building where they gathered in all the available clothes. Fifteen overcoats, eight suits and many other articles of wearing apparel. The entire staff of the Modern Cleaning plant had been busily engaged until after 1.00 a.m. Thursday but upon the arrival to open the plant Thursday Mr. T. Hutchinson, the proprietor of the plant, discovered the robbery. The local police were then summoned. It is alleged by the police that during their escape westward the robbers ran became over-heated at Trenton and was abandoned by the two burglars. Later they engaged a Trenton taxi driver to drive them to Toronto. Sensing no wrong in believing the two youths, as he later described them, as being wearing apparel merchants the taxi driver struck a price to drive the men to Toronto, which was agreed upon. Later the Trenton police discovered the abandoned car and after hearing of the taxi driver's episode were of the opinion that the driver had been kidnapped. This theory was later shattered when the taxi driver arrived back in Trenton at about noon Thursday.

Upon hearing of the robbery the taxi driver informed Chief Bain of the address where the two men had boarded in Toronto. The Toronto police were at once notified and according to the local police statements the merchandise is expected to be recovered before sundown.

OWNER DEMANDED BACK JUNK CARD

Whoever took Samuel Tuskey's little paper and junk collection cart from Pinnach street late yesterday afternoon had better explain that Halloween fun at the end of the month and return it. Samuel is so sure the robber stole it, he left it late that afternoon he left the little cart along the side of the street while he foraged around the rear of several Front Street stores for old paper and whatever else valuable junk he could pick up. When he returned the cart was gone. He thinks that boys might have hidden it some place, but if they don't return it he's going to see what the police can do. On Thursday a friend tipped him off that another chap in a spirit of fun had hidden the vehicle down another nearby passage. Samuel recovered the cart, with contents intact.

APPLE TREE IN AUTUMN BLOOM

C. J. Marvin, well known resident of the Marshall Road has another apple tree that refuses to take heed of the seasons seriously. After producing one of the largest and most perfect crops of snow apples in years this summer, the tree, after the apples were picked, again showed signs of impatience. This week when leaves are falling from other trees all through the district, a number of perfect blossoms are beginning to appear on the branches, giving every indication that with a little help from nature it will perform a double shift and grow another crop just to be different.

GREATEST OF TENORS PRAISES J. DEACON

Edward Johnson Sees Brilliant Future For Jack Deacon

In an interview which The Intelligencer in the Toronto Star, Edward Johnson, the famous Canadian Tenor of concert-king at Mr. Kingsley calls him was asked:

"Do you ever stumble on a real jewel—ever find a nugget among the ore?" I asked. "Indeed I do. Why, I'll show you one right now.

"Good!" I cried, "who is this bud of promise?" "He's making his way right now in New York city— he has, indeed, made a place for himself already. He is at Banff this week."

"But what's his name?" I demanded. "Oh, yes, I forgot to mention his name is Jack Deacon. And I believe he'll go far."

Mr. Johnson is steadily engaged in oratorio and church work, in chamber music in and out of New York City.

Those who heard Mr. Deacon's performances recently note the enormous improvement in the dramatic and interpretive aspects of singing.

"Jack" is also said to be under the same coach as Edward Johnson in New York.

Friends of Mr. Deacon have only the highest praise for the help Mr. Johnson has given the young Belleville singer.

Thanksgiving at Centre Street

The Rev. W. D. Hartleon preached a very acceptable and inspiring thanksgiving sermon to a large audience in Centre St. United Church last Sunday morning. A very fine display of fruits and vegetables banked about the pulpit and displayed in the windows spoke eloquently of the crops produced in Canada and to us.

Last evening the annual Thanksgiving entertainment and social was given in the presence of a fine happy audience composed mostly of young people, when refreshments were served, vegetables sold and musical prizes and the following program rendered under the ideal chairmanship of Mr. Kenneth Bird, principal of the Prince of Wales School:

Program rendered:

COAL PROBLEMS

Ontario Intelligencer, City.

Dear Sirs,—

The approaching winter and the number of unemployed on relief in the City has been brought to my attention in connection with the fuel situation. There is no good reason why the price of coal in Belleville should be as high as it is, while all other products are very much cheaper. I have been endeavouring to import Welsh coal for this District but so far have appears to be difficulty in freight rates both by Rail and Boat and apparently a combine of Miners, Vessels and Retailing who are taking profits in my opinion not justified, under the circumstances. I would suggest that the city take same interest in protecting fuel other than through the present dealers for Relief Work. . . . The present tax rate and the reduction in rents makes the value of city property very materially less than in normal times. . . . I will be glad to co-operate with you concerning the question of fuel if you wish me to do so.

Yours truly,
R. J. Graham.

LIVE PROGRAM FOR KIWANIANS

Considerable Business is Transacted at Weekly Luncheon

There is a possibility of the Kiwanis fish staging one of the greatest amateur boxing shows ever put on in this section of the Province if plans now materialize. The show will be run along the lines of the bouts sponsored by the Lions Club of Toronto and matchings will be under competent direction. This was the decision of the members at their luncheon on Tuesday after they had decid'd not to entertain the visiting promotion believing it not to be in the best interests of the club. Detailed plans will be worked out for the new scheme and it will be put over in a way to deserve congratulation even by the most biased fan.

Rev. Mr. Naylor of Tabernacle Church, who succeeded Rev. Earle McCubbin, was welcomed by the local club, in that pulpit was the speaker of the day and his message on Thanksgiving was most timely. Instead of giving an address, the speaker read a poem, one by Edwin Markham and one by Kiernan B. Wood each the many blessings for which we should render thanks. He admitted times had been bad but the people were forgetting the blessings, enjoyed and the speaker believed a good motto would be "quit cackling with clouds and play with the sunbeams".

George E. Frith was the boostir of the day and told of the wonderful progress that had been taken place in the world of rails and the advancements, that were needed. Davey Davison, George, Cole and Carl Reid were the successful winners, when the tickets were drawn and each received a gift from George Cohen. Numbers were given pencils used by the raffl employees. The host was much appreciated At a director's meeting held earlier in the day the club decided that the by-laws respecting attendance would be lived up to in every particular, believing this the only necessary if the club was to continue as a force in their work they were trying to accomplish. A drive for new members will be inaugurated. Next week the club will be addressed by Mr. Ross of Montreal.

EX-MAYOR AND MRS. G. A. REID IMPROVED

Injuries Not as Serious as at First Reported

A long distance telephone call from the Kingston General Hospital this morning to his local office by ex-Mayor Geo. A. Reid discounted rumours today that Mrs. Reid who was injured with Mr. Reid in an automobile accident on Monday night had received injuries of a serious nature. While still confined to hospital, Mrs. Reid has shown considerable improvement in her condition. Doctors in attendance, it is understood, Mr. Reid who reported his condition as being "much stronger" stated that he would probably return to this city by Saturday or Sunday.

COUNTY NEWS

THANKSGIVING SERVICE HELD AT WEST HUNTINGDON

West Huntingdon—This is potato week in this community. Nearly every farmer is engaged in digging and harvesting his potato crop. Some report the crop fair, while some say theirs is away below the average. The fields that were sowed with fall wheat are looking fine. The recent showers have helped the plowing, but not the wells. Thanksgiving season is here once more and fall believe there is every reason in this locality to be truly thankful. Now that the depression is somewhat out-of-date and old-fashioned, we, have turned our thoughts at this particular season of the year to recounting the many blessings.

The United Church congregation held their annual anniversary services on Sunday and the Fowl supper on Monday evening. Rev. Mr. Herrington of Thomasburg, was the special speaker for the morning and evening services on Sunday, and his inspiring messages will long be remembered by the large congregations that gathered for both services.

Special music was provided by a large choir assisted by the Misses Annie and Mildred Elliot of Shannonville. The church was suitably decorated for the Thanksgiving season. Those attending from other places were much appreciated and included members of St. Andrew's congregation. Others came from Moira, Fuller, Mount Pleasant, Stirling, Ivanhoe, Foxboro and Stirling.

On Monday evening the annual fowl supper was served in the Orange Hall and the program was given in the church and was of a very high order. Rev. R. J. Merrison acted as chairman. Instrumental music was given by the following: Mr. Bruce Sills of Bellerville; Mr. Frank Palmer of Fuller and Mrs. William Fleckstone and Messrs. Lorne Wilson and Thomas Sarles. Readings were given by Miss Myrtle Reid and Mrs. Frank Palmer. Piano duet by Misses Marguerite and Irene Elliott; Solos by Mrs. Arthur Horton; duet by Messrs. Lorne Wilson and Ted Hildebrant. Rev. Mellow of Ivanhoe, was present and gave a very uplifting address.

Miss Georgia Pitman, heralded over music for both Sunday and Monday services. The receipts for both days were nearly $150.00.

Rev. R. J. Merrison preached on the Hawaii circuit on Sunday.

AN OPPORTUNITY THAT LONDON WELCOMED

CANADA has come through the depression with her national credit unimpaired. Striking proof of this was recently given in London when £15,000,000 Dominion of Canada 25-year 4% Bonds were offered at par, and the world's most discriminating money market responded by over-subscribing the issue many times. In this market, where comparative values are shrewdly appraised, the Bonds have since been selling at a substantial premium to yield less than 3.70%.

London investors appreciate the enduring strength which Canada has demonstrated. They realize that, since last February, records of Canadian trade and industry have shown a definite upward trend. They know that a downward movement of interest rates has been under way and that a fixed, safe income at present levels should be secured while available.

Your Opportunity Now

The security which experienced London investors thus welcomed is now offered to Canadians. The 1933 Refunding Loan permits owners of maturing Victory Bonds to continue their satisfactory investment without cash outlay. It gives all investors an opportunity to place their savings in Canada's strongest security—with safety—regular income—marketability—freedom from worry.

If you own a maturing Victory Bond or if you have money to invest, you should apply at once for Bonds of the new Loan. There is no step you can take with more definite advantage to yourself, both as an investor and as a Canadian citizen.

DOMINION OF CANADA 1933 REFUNDING LOAN

To holders of Victory Bonds due November 1st, 1933

You can obtain an extra cash allowance for your Victory Bonds by exchanging them NOW for the new 12-Year Bonds. You can also obtain an accrued interest advantage by an immediate exchange for any maturity of the new issue. These special concessions are available for a limited period only.

To Cash Subscribers

As the Loan is strictly limited in amount and all cash subscriptions are subject to allotment, you are urged to enter your application without delay.

Where to Apply

Application forms and official prospectus containing full details of the Loan may be obtained from any Bank or Bond Dealer.

HOW INCUBATOR BABY LOOKS AFTER 18 MONTHS

How it is possible for science to accomplish feats against heavy odds is demonstrated in the case of Charles Bernard St. John (LEFT), well-known "incubator baby" of Kansas City. Tipping the scales at just one pound when born April 4, 1932, Charles, now 18 months, is as husky and full of vitality as any normal child. He is pictured (right) as he is being weighed by his mother, Mrs. William St. John, during his incubator days when he had not yet reached the five-pound mark.

THE LOAN

Canadians have faith in the Dominion, the response to the refunding loan this week has been proof enough of this. Of course the loan is attractive but even if it were less attractive there is not the slightest doubt but what the welcome given the loan would have been the same. There is not the slightest doubt that the entire two hundred and twenty five million will be subscribed very shortly. One hundred and seventy million goes to the refunding of five and a half per cent Victory bonds, due on November 1st and only millions to retire short term obligations.

The interest rates though they reflect the tendency to lower rates are attractive to investors, those who really know the importance of rates and of the security of Dominion obligations. The level of interest is coming throughout the world to be named by the prices of commodities. Economically it would seem to be a good thing that the rates are falling.

The soundness of the security goes without discussion. Canada does not default, more than that her future is the brightest of any of the nations of the world. Among the youngest of the nations she will probably stand to profit most by the recovery and by the future. These bonds which are offered today will go at a premium, it is believed as no distant date when things have corrected themselves somewhat.

The reduction of the interest through the conversion loan is a real gift to those investors who wish to help their country—it means a reduction to the burden of interest charges which the nation has to pay. Empire nations other than Canada have successfully negotiated refunding loans. So will Canada. The loan will go over.

THE OUTLOOK

Premier Bennett's speech at Winnipeg the other evening contains among other things a very encouraging statement as to the improvement which has made itself manifest during the year over than a million in Canada on relief as against one million, five hundred and fifty two thousand in March. The number of employed has increased nearly a quarter of a million. In the face of world conditions over which the Dominion has no control Canada has made a creditable showing, speaking well for the loyalty of the people.

Signs that the country is slowly making its way are indicated in a report from Ottawa as to the steady but slow advance upwards. At Geneva on the same day it was reported that nations have demonstrated a will to live and that the nations of the world have begun to shake off the incubus of the legacy of the Great War.

Western readers must be encouraging to those who have faced trials during the past few years and have yet during the past few years and have yet during the past few years and have yet

Dear Harper and Erma:

We, your friends, have assembled here this evening to do themselves honour, as well as bestow honour where honour is due. Having been made acquainted with the fact of your recent marriage as well as your immediate departure for your new home, we thought it an opportune time to assemble for the purpose of congratulating you, and expressing our most cordial wishes in some tangible way.

We congratulate you Harper upon your choice and we feel confident that neither of you will have cause to regret this very important partnership upon which you have entered and believe that the maxim, which has ever radiated from your young lives will continue to grow warmer and brighten unto the end of a perfect day.

Most of us are acquainted with you Erma, and although sometime has elapsed since you have been in our community, we will not readily forget your kindly manner and willingness to help in any way possible.

We are therefore gathered here this evening to assure you of the confidence and esteem in which you are both held. To wish you as well every happiness in the new estate which you are about to enter and the very best wishes you have are soon to embark.

We trust you will receive these gifts and good wishes in the spirit in which they are given. Therefore we ask you to accept them not for their material value but as a small token of the happy hours spent together in all our associations but more especially as a slight remembrance of this happy and joyous gathering.

Signed on behalf of your friends Harold Comerford, Dorian Stewart.

Active Life Preserves Youth

The Modern Woman's Varied Interests Keep Her Young

(By HELEN POLLETT)

For the preservation of youthful appearance there must be an adjustment of activity and rest. So much work, so much sleep so much fun—especially out door sports.

Work is good for a woman, keeps her full of ginger, if it is the kind of work she likes to do. The old job kicks her out of bed in the morning. She trots off to the busy marts, sniffs the fresh air, comes home feelings that she has a place in the world. She must learn to do her work restfully, with the least possible nerve tension.

Since women have had interests outside the home they have stayed younger, no doubt about it. And they have homes, too, let me tell you, in which they are interested. Life is exhilarating. Old age is never thought about so it never really catches one.

There's a revival of the beauty patch. You like or you no like. It was popular in the days of Marie Antoinette and some of the white haired sisters say they used to be patchy in their young days.

It may look like an affectation, but what of it? It has a flirtatious quality, a some hither prettiness. It is usually worn on the cheek, abaft the left eye. You can buy them any place now. Star-shaped, heart shaped, cut like the ace of spades. We're not for or agin, just passing on the tidings.

Brittle finger nails are supposed to be due to diet deficiency. Get the right vitamins by drinking milk and orange juice, eating lettuce, taking halibut liver oil.

At night touch each nail with hot mineral oil, cover with a silver thimble, or slip the hands in large white cotton gloves. This practice softens the cuticle, wards off hangnails.

FIRST NIGHT IN FILMLAND

May Robson Charming as "Lady For a Day" at Capitol

"Lady For a Day" the present Capitol film which brings to the fore the talented and distinguished actress May Robson, who held sway on Broadway for long years many seasons ago, is a gratifying different picture. It has an entertaining plot in which a hard boiled gambler becomes fairy "godmother" to an aged street peddler, "and charms mayor, police commissioner and state governor into joining in the delightful conspiracy.

The story is decidedly far-fetched but all fairy tales are, and Warren Williams, as the Manhattan grail makes as many wishes come true for the lovable old apple seller (May Robson) as Alladin's powerful benefactor did for him.

Warren Williams was Dave the Dude's gambler par excellence who had a strange superstition that "Apple Annie" brought him good luck as long as he patronized her wares. Apple Annie, just another street beggar to Broadway, lived a dual life one in fact and one in fancy. She had a daughter Louise (the charming Jean Parker) whom she managed to educate in a European convent To Louise her mother was the social arbiter, Mrs. E. Worthington Manville, who resided at a fashionable hotel whose lifts was one round of social affairs. Apple Annie by bribing a hotel employe to supply her stationery and deliver her letters from Europe keeps up this illusion. Louise suddenly announces that she is coming home with her fiance, Carlos (Barry Norton) and his father Count Romero (Walter Connolly) Annie is desolate as she studies her appearance in the glass and looks about her unkempt attic room.

Dave the Dude (Warren William) in search of his lucky apple and coaxed by her fellow-workers visits Annie and on an impulse that astounds his pessimistic side Ned Sparks decides to provide Annie with the setting she has pictured for her daughter.

After a session with beauty experts Annie emerges every inch a queenly hostess. A husband is provided for her in the person of Judge Blake (Guy Kibbee) and as the foreign visitors arrive, unforeseen lanes appear in the web of deceit. The climax is reached when a reception is immediately and Dave who is determined to see the thing through Dave, Dave inquiring society editors, and pretends to rehearse an amazing assortment of gangsters and chorus girls for the roles of statesmen and social celebrities. But the disappearance of the reporters puts him in a desperate situation which is relieved, at the moment when the fullest of the reception seems inevitable, by the sudden co-operation of the governor and guests at a dinner party in his honour.

Dominating all scenes is the charming May Robson whose early ugly appearance was a masterpiece of make-up. The cast of well known actors plays up splendidly and makes the picture one of the outstanding successes of the film year. The other parts are taken by Glenda Farrell as Missouri Martin, Ned Sparks as Happy, Jean Parker as Louise, Walter Connolly as Count Romero; Barry Norton as Carlos, Nat Pendleton as Shakespeare, Hobart Bosworth as the Governor, Wallis Clark the Commissioner and Robert E. O'Connor as the Inspector.

A clever comedy, news reel and other shorts complete the program.

SPRINGBROOK LADIES' AID

The regular monthly meeting of Springbrook Ladies' Aid was held at the home of Mrs. John Burkitt Thursday, October the 5th with an attendance of thirty.

Laying the floor in the church and the coming fowl supper were business topics discussed.

Mrs. Orris. Burkitt read "Why Martha Got Cross". This referred to the Martha and Mary of Biblical Literature. The writer expressed the thought that Martha placed too high an estimate on temporal things. She went on to state that there should be time for quiet communion with God and that peevishness was caused by attempting too much.

Mrs. Lindsay Mumby's reading "Opportunity" formed a sequel to Mrs. Burkitt's. The article pointed in this paper was to seize chance. Everyone had a chance to accomplish his purpose. Man never was given more sight for the chance he might be made great by alert clinsmens. Prejudice and preoccupation should not be allowed to hinder action. One should develop clear vision, concentration, faith and a bundle al little things; the great opportunities were sure to come. Hadeit's group sang, "Almost Persuaded" Mrs. Hadeit assisted in a paper given by Mrs. Fred Heath provided a glimpse at some phases of political economics and the religious life of the nineteenth century and the Reformation. A report of the missionary convention at Mt. Tabor by Mrs. Perry Foley will be given at a later time.

Mrs. John Burkitt, the hostess served tea. She was assisted by Mrs. Chas. Burkitt and Mrs. Percy Mumby.

P.E.I. TEACHERS HOLD CONVENTION

Carrying Place — Mr. and Mrs. N. Innes and family have moved to the Mount Carmel Community, occupying at present a home owned by Mr. John Potter. Misses Hazle and Gertrude Fleming are going to attend Trenton High School Master Alvin Trenton and Daisy walking to school each day from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Norrington where they are staying at present. Olive also is staying with Daisy and attending Fifth Class in the same public school.

Thanksgiving passed quietly in the neighbourhood with little extra company and visiting. Coming on Monday it did, it was necessary for most farmers to make of it a working holiday.

Mr. Lewis Brown is the fortunate possessor of a fine lot of these orchards of choice Snows, Sweets, and MacIntosh that have been for sale hereabouts. With his own family and several hired helpers, he picked during the five of activity each day with eight or nine hours of work and sorting and packing. This year's crop, much like especially will be undoubtedly relieve food scarcity in the larger cities this winter; and even if this community is not to be sorry to see so splendid a yield.

Mr. and Mrs. Norrington had as guests Sunday evening Mr. Clifford Bush and Miss Edith Hasbourn.

Teachers' Convention, held in and around Colborne on Thursday and Friday of last week, provided as ever welcome holiday for the young generation. The local teachers, Miss L. G. Wright and Mr. A. Norrington were in attendance, and report a very unusual plan. On Thursday, instead of the usual sessions, each teacher was assigned one or more lessons to teach in some room of some school in or near Colborne. Urban teachers were sent to other graded schools; rural teachers were assigned to other rural schools; and teachers from two-room schools like our own were sent to visit other such schools. Miss Black and Mr. Norrington were sent to Castleton Public school for the day. Needless to say this unusual arrangement pioneered by Inspector A. A. Martin of Brighton, has caused considerable comment; but general opinion seems to regard the plan favourably. Friday's sessions were as usual.

Several families from this community attended Warkworth Fair on Friday of last week.

A great deal of curiosity has been expressed regarding the curious structure of posts, poles and tackle in the field where the Barry outfit have been pasturing for some time. So close to the road, this unusual sight has attracted many an eye and the natural query "What for?" The correspondent is informed that this is a model starting post to be used in training the colts for a quick getaway. Although not yet broken sufficiently to begin this training at once, it is expected that the work will soon commence. This amazing shooting in the way of the race track is necessary to insure a horse as a quick starter so that he may not be left at the post. At some later date Mr. Barry plans to construct in the same field a half-mile track for other training activities.

Apple picking is still the major sport of the local young and young men. With cool weather favouring us, the sport is not at its pleasantest as one may imagine.

The news that Picton's O.B.A.A. entry had held the strong Southampton squad down to one run in Monday's 1-0 tilt at the Western town has roused lovers of the good old game hereabouts to busy hope and conjecture. Some are planning to attend the game in Picton on Friday and feel that a real humdinger of a game may be assured. Others, unable to attend are solidly behind the Picton boys in wishing them huge success.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Courvers with Miss Margaret and Master Jimmy motored Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Norrington.

Part of a shipment of cakes and pies left a local from the local station some time last Thursday or Friday night by prowlers who are as yet unidentified. Consigned to Toronto the boxes were shipped by mistake to the local station where they were unloaded and left to look out for themselves. As the station has been unused for years it is not locked, and so it was an easy matter for the thieves to take one large box away with them and to open another one. Shippers will be well advised to avoid leaving goods in the station overnight without precaution.

OSHAWA MAN IS ARRESTED

Believed To Be Ringleader of Gang Operating in This District

"It has been said that we should give honor to whom honor is due, and so, Raymond and Orno, we, your friends and neighbors have gathered here tonight because it is a pleasure to us thus honor you each and so heartily welcome to our church and community your charming brides. We have known you for our very best, wishes for your future happiness and to endeavor to show in some way the esteem in which we are held by you.

"It is said that no community can rise above its home life and so we are proud to know that the fine homes of outstanding integrity and great promise are to be founded by our midst.

"As mere words fail to adequately express, our feelings at this time we ask you to accept this token with the sincere hope that God may richly endow you with His choicest blessings" and that you will take Him as your counsel and guide in all the ups and downs of your future lives. For as has always been said a tried is pastures green. Sometimes He who knoweth best may lead in many ways that are dark and mysterious.

"But whether on the hill tops high and fair you dwell,

Morning Prices Irregular in Mines — Little in Way of Trading Due to Holiday in New York

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Oct. 12.—(CP)—Sales of the high priced interlisted shares were few and dealings today on the Standard Mining Exchange. The holiday in New York helping to minimize interest in Toronto market. Morning prices were irregular, with Lake Shore and Dome up 25 cents each and Hollinger and McIntyre showing small recessions. Teck and Wright Hargreaves were unchanged.

Macassa provided the only excitement. Its record drop to 86 was said to have inspired considerable short selling and a run against the short interest carried the price to $1.03 a net gain of 6 cents.

Both Noranda and Mickel firmed, the former to $33.50, up 15 cents and Nickel to $19.95 up 15 cents.

A little quiet buying of the senior gold shares, and an operation against the short interest in Macassa provided the only ruffle on the placid surface of the market today. Prices were slightly irregular. Lake and Wright-Hargreaves firmed against narrow recessions in Lake Shore and McIntyre.

Base Metal shares held to the lipside in the first three hours and the silver group broke with the section. Sherritt Gordon was an exception, slipping back to $1.01.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 13 (CP)—Left in the open recesses while New York took a holiday, the Toronto Stock Exchange did little in the way of trading today. Operators avoided the interlisted group, and business in the domestic groups was so small that the tape was quiet, 9 percent of the time.

GRAIN MARKETS

Winnipeg, Oct. 12.— (CP)— Gains from around failed to indicate any pick-up in foreign demand for Canadian Wheat, and trading consequently lapped on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today. At noon prices were unchanged from the previous close.

October option was quoted at 80 after fluctuating over a 1-4 cent range November traded at 60 1-4. December at 58 3-4 and May at 64 3-4 cents. The more distant futures moved with a range of 1-8 cent.

CANADIAN POET VISITS STIRLING

Gives Interesting Readings From His Poems

STIRLING—A signal honor was paid to our village on Tuesday afternoon when Wilson MacDonald, acclaimed Canadian-born poet, visited Stirling and read a number of his well-known poems to a well filled assembly hall at the Stirling high school. Principal Lawlor, after a few opening remarks, asked Dr. C. F. Walt of the School Board to address the gathering and make the introduction of the guest speaker. In his address Dr. Walt spoke of the gift of a beauty loving soul, not the natural-born asset of every being, but which may be cultivated by perseverance. It was in the hope of cultivating this appreciation of the finer arts that the School Board had arranged for this opportunity of allowing the students to hear the recitation of MacDonald's poetry by the author himself.

Mr. MacDonald in his opening remarks, paid a remarkable tribute to the beauty of our district when he said that in all his 250,000 miles of travel, nothing could, in his estimation, surpass the beauty of this country beginning at Belleville and going northward to Lake Ontario. The poet stated that he had left Canada by his own choice, but that he had been forced by necessity to take up his abode in the United States where his genius has received recognition, Canadian magazines are now clamoring for a great genius of Canadian poetry, a poet surpassing all known Canadian writers of verse. Little do they realize that just as England professed her immortal Shakespeare when she was a young nation, so he said, Canada has already seen the age of her greatest writers although the realization of this has not yet come.

Mr. MacDonald chose as his first poem, "Roses", a poem inspired by the vast mountains of roses extended to view in the valleys of British Columbia. "West-a-Wee", a pitiful poem of a real human experience of the poet, all his poems being inspired by some personal experience, was very touching in its beauty and pathos.

The poet's most popular poem, "The Song of the Ski", was his next choice and was followed by a poem written in a more humorous vein and employing the French-Canadian dialect, "Marie". Other selections included "I Love Old Things" and "The Greyer-ing Chariot", "Stop 'Em Short" also written in the French-Canadian dialect, and "Maggie Schwartz".

In the course of his address, Mr. MacDonald spoke of the shameful treatment Miss Canuan received at the hands of the Canadian government prior to his death. Asking for a gentleman who acknowledged him as a friend, he was denied but at his death was voted $25,000 for a tombstone. He suggested that, ex-teachers would make much more fitting heads of the Department of Education that politicians who now have control of education.

Mr. C. R. Bastel, vice-chairman of the school board, thanked the speaker for coming to Stirling and stated that he felt that from this day poetry would have a new interest for the children. We hearty pleasure of the children was ample evidence of their appreciation of the speaker.

On Monday Marmora continuation school rugby team (junior and senior) engaged in a couple of tilts with the local high school team and copped off the honors taking the first encounter, 14-5, and the second 26-6.

In the first game Stirling lead 5-2 at the end of the second quarter with a touchdown by Wright of Stirling, the main feature of the play. In the second half, however, Marmora managed to get through the Stirling lines to make a touchdown and bring the score up to a 7-5 count in favor of the visitors. When the whistle sounded Stirling students were at the Marmora 10-yard line, an indication of the close play which featured the tilt.

The Marmora seniors met the Stirling seniors in the second fracas, the former taking the locals into camp by a 26 to 6 score. This, however, by no means indicative of the which was much more even than the would indicate, for the first half Marmora was 13 to 0 but shortly after the ng sounded for the third quarter, Hewitt got away for a touchdown, converting it and thereby adding seven points to the Marmora total. Stirling, keeping up the fireworks, also broke away and in making a touchdown although it was not converted, but bringing up the count 6 to 6. Hewitt of Marmora who was seriously injured in the first half had to be removed from the field. Lumsden of Marmora, determined to chalk up a win for his team, went through the third touchdown of the third quarter which ended with the score 13 to 6 for the visitors. Marmora in the last quarter secured another touchdown to pile up the count 20-6.

The Stirling squad, although suffering a severe defeat, have not been disheartened and hope to reverse the score in the return games. The local lads expect to engage in a tilt with Tweed high school on Friday in Tweed.

RUMOR MUTINY ABOARD HOOD

Admiralty States Rumor After Investigation Unfounded

London, Oct. 11—(CP Cable)—Persistent rumors of insubordination among the crew of the H.M.S. Hood largest warship in the world, led the admiralty to investigate further today with the result they confirmed earlier informal statements there was nothing whatever to support the rumor.

Despite the informal denials the rumor persisted throughout the day. The admiralty instituted a thorough investigation and, a formal statement on the matter was expected shortly.

The Hood is at present lying in Gourock Firth with the Renown. The Hood's inc. were ashore at Invergordon on Monday and according to the residents of Invergordon there was not the slightest sign of trouble or discontent among the men then.

"I have heard nothing of the story," the First Lord said, "and I don't believe there is any truth in it." The Daily Communist at the Admiralty said: "I have made inquiries but find nothing to warrant one of it."

Other naval officials stated they had heard only rumors.

Although she is the largest warship in the world—42,100 tons—and carries a complement of around 1,300 men, the Hood is not a battleship, but a battle-cruiser, her heaviest guns being 15 inch compared with the 16-inch guns carried by first line battleships such as the Nelson and Rodney. She armor is lighter and speed higher than the battleships. She was built in 1920.

(By Joseph E. Blakely)

Geneva, Oct. 11 (AP)— Charles te Water, President of the League of Nations Assembly, told the 14th session of the assembly shortly before it was adjourned today that the will to live has asserted itself among the nations of the world.

The assembly had been in session since Sept. 26.

"Defeatism, having defeated by those powers the innate recovery of which many of us insufficiently discounted in our gloomy prognoses," the President, who is South African High Commissioner in London, declared.

"The straightjacket in which the world has been shackled since the Great War has been burst," te Water added, "and an era of economic restriction has begun."

That he praised the efforts of the countries to secure national regeneration and, alluding to disarmament, predicted peace was assured "if the leaders of the great powers have their sacrifices from fear and resentment to a policy of generosity."

The President's closing speech was the last to come from the lips of Dr. Benesch, Czechoslovakian Minister of Foreign Affairs.

SURPRISE PARTY HELD FOR HENRY HAGERMAN, RAWDON

Rawdon, Oct. 11—Over one hundred and fifty descendants of the late Mr. and Mrs. Ben Hagerman who used to reside on the old homestead 8th Concession of Rawdon, gathered at Mount Pleasant church hall on Thanksgiving Day and tendered a surprise and farewell party to Mr. Henry Hagerman, who has been spending the past five months with Rawdon relatives and who is returning to his home in Edmonton on Tuesday October 17th. The gathering also expressed their deepest love and appreciation of their uncle Will Hagerman of Rawdon who is a twin brother of Henry. The two venerable gentlemen were seventy-six years old last March.

Early in the morning folks gathered from all parts of Rawdon, Belleville and Stirling and by noon the beautiful tables were laden with a sumptuous repast of appetizing viands of every description with roast chicken and luscious pumpkin pie holding supreme glory over all the other food and their variety was an abundance of everything.

Mr. Robert Patterson was master of ceremonies and after invoking Grace, he led the gathering in, various numbers of community singing with the three long tables each sixty feet in length filled nicely.

After all had done justice to the dinner a most interesting and amusing programme was carried out.

Miss Vera Wright of Salem gave a splendid reading on "Thanksgiving" explaining that the day about a hundred years ago was beside feasting. The orchestra composed of Mr. Elmer and Mr. R. Pitman of Stirling, Mr. Lorne Hagerman and Mrs. V. Hagerman of Rawdon rendered several selections throughout the programme.

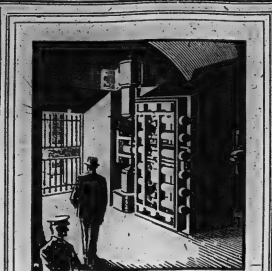
A sextette by Messrs. Russel White John B. Hagerman and Joe Hagerman singing and Messrs. Herbert Hagerman, A. W. Garrison and Bob Patterson coming in on the bass was greatly enjoyed.

The chairman in a neat speech paid tribute to the honoured uncle and Mrs. Robert Patterson of Stirling read a beautiful address which conveyed to uncle Henry and his twin brother Will their deep appreciation of the gathering and wished uncle Henry a safe journey to his home in the west. Mr. Hagerman was then presented with a lovely snapshot album which was practically filled with various photos of his host of nieces and nephews and other relatives.

Mr. Hagerman responded to this ovation with a neat reply of thanks to his relatives for their kindness on his visit to them all in the east, farewell as he may never visit his old home in Rawdon again owing to his advanced age.

During the programme several lovely solos were rendered by Mrs. Ben Hagerman, Mrs. Herbert Hagerman, Miss Margerite White, Mr. John Coggins and a duet was given by Misses Lena Wright and Neva Hagerman. The accompanists being Mrs. V. Hagerman and Miss Grace Pitman. Mr. Bob Patterson delighted with a monologue and a such harp selections. Mrs. Frank Jeffs gave a reading and uncle Henry rendered two humorous selections "Billy Johnson" and "Old Candy Factory" which brought forth peals of laughter.

After the programme pictures of the group were taken and it was unique that three sets of twins were in attendance: Messrs. Henry and Will Hagerman, Mrs. Will Wright (Lena Hagerman) and Mrs. Herb Hagerman (Annie Hagerman) grandsons of Mr. Will Hagerman; Rose and Ralph Jeffs, young sons of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Jeffs.



The family also boasts the 4th pair of twins, Mrs. George Stone (Hilda White) and her brother John but unfortunately John wasn't in attendance. During the afternoon several of the older members gave reminiscent stories of holiday spent at the home of the honoured gentlemen while others revisited by-gone pokes! The younger folk enjoyed a game of softball and later several "Old Time" were run off causing much merriment. There were six children in the family of the late Mr. and Mrs. Ben Hagerman and now only the twins Henry and Will remain. The deceased ones are: Martha, Mrs. Peter Patterson, Nancy, Mrs. Thomas Fair, George Hagerman and John Hagerman and practically all of their descendants were in attendance, so it was a grand reunion of clanns.

It's very simple. These illustrations show how entirely different Old Dutch is from ordinary, gritty cleansers ... and it's this difference that makes it cost less to use. You get a full package containing billions of active little cleansers; tiny, flat-shaped particles that cover much more surface, go much further and do so much more actual cleaning per penny of cost.

Old Dutch is the only cleanser made of pure "seismotite" scientifically recognized as the softest, most efficient and most economical cleaning material. Try it and you'll quickly discover that it does more work, saves more labor; that it cleans quicker, doesn't clog drains, is odorless and removes odors. There is no substitute for the quality and economy of Old Dutch Cleanser.

ISLAND GIRL
by FRANK R. ADAMS

For a moment he wavered. Evidently the fire that burns in the blood of panthers lashed in his veins. But he remembered it for the time being and in a series of signals to Irene, part Morse and part silent words shaped with his mouth he conveyed the fact that now that they were all assembled and the necessary witnesses were at hand he wished the ceremony to proceed. Irene translated the message to the others.

Vern took his stand behind the table flashing a look of warning to the real minister, a warning which he hoped would prevent any interruption or correction if the ceremony did not seem to be entirely orthodox.

Vern had been best man at a couple of weddings and he remembered the recipe well enough to follow it with fair-precision. He delivered an invocation in Latin by quoting the first seven lines of the Aeneid which no one recognized except Dr. Ryder who mumbled the first startling inclination to snort.

Sentence by sentence Vern uttered the words which, presumably, condemned Irene to gaolish. He could not rid himself of the idea as he regarded her standing there so breezily at last, that he was not a judge sentencing his own dearly beloved to a fantastic and horrible execution. Her face as she held it up proudly to him, seemed like a target at which he was directing a lethal weapon, her lovely neck where it showed below the collar folds of her dress appeared a white virgin field in which he was about to bury a bloody sword.

His voice quavered.

"Go on," she warned.

He braced himself. "Who giveth this woman—" he began.

He braced himself, "hecomyman."

And then Wenver Ferguson, rejoiced.

"I'm damned, sir—"

"Dummy" Sparkes held up his hand and tragically a sharp cry burst and died out of the way in child's voice.

"Please, father!" Irene implored. "Not now!"

The old man subsided from his threatening gesture.

"Proceed," Irene commanded.

"And the service went on to its grisly conclusion.

When Vern ceased stuttering they were, as far as "Dummy" knew, man and wife. When he had finished the necessity of concentrating his mind on a possible situation of a minister was over and the full horror of the thing he had done crushed in on Vern. He had put the woman he loved in an absolutely untenable position. There wasn't any way out for her except death. He realized in just what way she did and refused to be comforted by the look of compassion which she shot at him. She was sorry for him! Sorry for him after the way he had bungled everything!

Perhaps she was right. What a horror she must think him after this! Perhaps her swift fate was going to be easier than his lingering remorse stricken one.

She was holding up her lips, to give him the minister's tithe, the survival of the ceremony akin to a droit du seigneur. But this was a kiss of farewell; he knew that as well as if she had said "good-bye forever," when his lips touched her cheek.

To look at her one never would have guessed that she was so cold. She seemed a lovely radiant girl, and yet she was corpse. Dead already in her own mind, a being set upon dissolution, one who is confronted by a forked path one branch of which is barred by insurmountable obstacles of breeding, instinctive fineness and racial ideals. Even her love for himself was not the reason why Irene could never live beyond this day.

The ceremony he had just performed was in reality not a wedding but a burial service for the woman he had belatedly found was his mate.

CHAPTER 29

The participants in the pseudo service turned from the improvised altar to find Krebs grinning over a trayful of liquor glasses. They were fine Bohemian ware not all of one kind, however, and two of them skimped around the edge. But the potion they contained was of one color and it had a wonderfully appetizing aroma.

In spite of the temptation to steady his shaking nerves, with a stimulant Vern did not take a glass from the tray.

"An absolute tee-totaller, sir," he explained to Mr. Ferguson.

He was not pressed further.

"De brekfuss" will be ready in about twenty minutes, Miss Irene," the negro informed his mistress.

"Dummy" laid his hand upon his bride's arm and having attracted her attention, shook his head violently.

Irene interpreted this to the old retainer. "Not Miss Irene any more Krebs, but Mrs. Sparkes."

It was as depressing as the tolling of a funeral bell. No one yet had called her that and when she heard herself it sounded like an indictment out of heaven—a judgment on those five civilized white men who had stood by and allowed this outrage to happen.

"Dummy" himself seemed to realize the effect which his name bore by a wrench had produced and he near as was possible for him he laughed. The result was horrible. There were almost sounds.

A lapping on the tree trunk diverted attention from the monstrous spectacle of "Dummy" possessed laughter and they all joined in.

Pete Pancake signified in pantomime that he, too, could do with a drink and he let down a basket on the end of a rope, apparently the usual method of elevating supplies to the lookout. In the basket was a flask which had evidently been used for a similar purpose before. "Dummy" poured Vern a drink from it and signalled to his henchmen to help themselves.

Krebs had gone back again to his kitchen for the continued preparation of the meal to be called breakfast although it was already late afternoon and the others had resumed their interrupted studdy-poker session. The four old men did, that is.

"Dummy" stood for a moment with his arm around his lovely bride while Vern watched him with pity-der in his heart wondering what he should do if the man attempted any further familiarity. Irene, for her part, implored him with her eyes to keep his emotions under control for her sake.

Finally the tenseness of the tri-angle situation slackened "Dummy" who had been losing the last two rounds finally sat down at the table and put some money on the table. He picked up one of the I.O.U.'s of the other players and asked with a gesture if it was any good.

Irene always quicker than anyone else in grasping situations, explained made the explanation. "These gentlemen are all wealthy New Yorkers. One is a banker another a judge and this one over here, translated looking up at Dr. Snyder.

"I am Vernon Mabee," supplied the parson with a new glance at the real owner of the name, "the owner of half a dozen hotels and many hundreds of feet of New York real estate".

"Dummy" signified that the security was satisfactory and he was "deal in" for the next hand.

He was, not only that pot, but practically every succeeding one until breakfast was announced. This and one more round of poker found him in a jovial good humor indeed.

The breakfast proved to be a treat to write an epic about. Krebs showed conclusively by that presumable masterpiece of his culinary career that his reason for existence was. Corn pone was there, fried chicken, gravy, tan colored coffee, fresh wild strawberries, sweet potatoes candied and potent mellow brandy to top off with.

It was a difficult table to leave. For varying individual reasons, none of them merely well-fed lethargy, no one seemed anxious to depart from the scene of carver which the glasses had been cleared away. Candles had been lit long since and it was quite dark outside.

Very tired and with no wish to argue, Blake smiled "Snap out of it, girl" advised Jimmy curtly. "Your No word passed between the two until Blake arose safety and mine depend on that horse." Tears of hate welled in Gulnalda's eyes. A half-hour she led the animal to and fro as Blake watched out across the plain for the first sign of pursuit. But there was none. For the knights of Nimmr had overtaken Bohun's knights and their running fight was taking them farther and farther from the wood.

and turned toward Her, saying: "Thanks. That's enough." With dry leaves he rubbed the horse down, then came and sat beside the girl. "She is beautiful," she whispered. "Knower thou not where we are?" "What's wrong with this place?" demanded the man. "It is the Wood of the Leopards!" answered Gulnalda, in a awed tone. "Yea!" questioned Blake casually. "Nice name. How did it get it?"

"When it is dark, we can ride back to Nimmr in safety," said Blake. The Princess leaned toward him, a look of terror in her eyes. "Remain here until dark!" she whispered. "Knower thou not where we are?"

Violet has just announced her engagement while Daisy, who has been engaged for over a year now, contemplates taking marital vows shortly. They are planning a double wedding.

Finally "Dummy" rapped out to his wife that the time had come for them to start on their honeymoon.

Irene conveyed the message to the company, adding on her own account, "Our plan is to take the yacht. But we will send a boat after you in a few days to take you over to the mainland so that you can return to your homes."

EMPLOYEES INVITED BACK

If Workers Do Not Comply Plants Will Be Closed Indefinitely.

Stratford, Ont., Oct. 12 (CP)—Just one month to the day since eight hundred furniture workers laid down their tools and walked out of six factories demanding union recognition, increased wages and other concessions, the manufacturers today threw open their doors and invited their employees to come back to work. In the event the men do not comply, the plants will be closed for an indefinite period, officials stated.

Several times before the plants have been opened under the same circumstances, but not a striker has returned to work.

Union recognition is the major stumbling block. The Workers' Unity League, which the manufacturers claim is affiliated with Moscow, organized the Chesterfield and Furniture Workers' Union here some months ago. Time after time the manufacturers have stated that they would talk to their own employees, but would have nothing to do with the Union. The workers, on the other hand, have declared they will not return until the Union is recognized, and until the two companies of troops and four tanks sent here two weeks ago have been removed from the city.

The strike has settled down to an attitude of peaceful waiting. Employees of the Swift Canadian Company plant, who walked out some time ago are still locked out. There were several riots outside the plant prior to its closing.

JIMMY FOXX WINS AWARD SECOND TIME

Only Two Others Have Received The Same Distinction

GREAT PLAYER

Given Battle For Honors By Cronin And Manush

By ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor

New York, Oct. 12.—(AP)— James Emory Foxx, the home run king of the Major Leagues, today was named by the baseball experts as the American League's "most valuable player" for the second successive year.

Only two other stars in either league have ever gained this extraordinary distinction. Walter Johnson, when he was the "big train" of Washington's pitching staff, accepted the award in 1913 and repeated in 1924, the year he helped the Senators win their first world series. Rogers Hornsby won the National League "most valuable player" contest in 1925 and repeated in 1929.

Foxx was selected for top honors again by a committee representing the Baseball Writers Association of America.

The slugging first baseman of the Athletics was given a brisk run in the voting by two Washington stars, Manager Joe Cronin and Heinie Manush, but emerged with a clean-cut margin. Decisive factors in favor of Foxx were that, in addition to retaining the home run crown, he led all the American league hitters with an unofficial mark of .356 and topped the clouters of both big leagues in runs batted in, with 158.

Greatest in Game

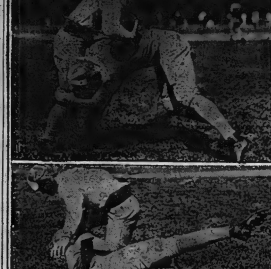
Ballots were cast by eight members of the writers' committee, each listing 10 players in the order of preference. Points were awarded on the basis of 10 for first place, nine for second, and so on.

Foxx was named the No. 1 star by four experts and totalled 74 points out of a possible maximum of 80. He was rated second by three writers and fourth by one. Cronin and Manush each received two first place nominations, collecting 63 and 59 points respectively.

Lou Gehrig of the Yankees, Lefty Grove of the Athletics and Charley Gehringer of the Tigers were ranked fourth, fifth and sixth.



For the first time since 1927, Babe Ruth did not receive a vote or so much as honorable mention.

The selection of Foxx marks the fourth time in six years that a member of the Athletics has been chosen for the American League honor. Mickey Cochrane in 1928 and Bob Grove in 1931 preceded the first baseman in winning recognition as the most valuable.

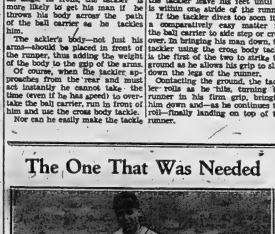
The cross body tackle can be most effectively made when the tackler approaches the ball runner from an angle.

In approaching the carrier from an angle in front, the tackler is far more likely to get his man if he thrown his body across the path of the ball carrier as he tackles him.

The tackler's body—not just his arms—should be placed in front of the runner, thus adding the weight of the body to the grip of the arms.

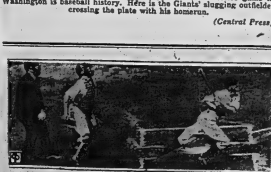
Of course, when the tackler approaches from the rear and must act instantly he cannot take the time (even if he has speed) to overtake the ball carrier, run in front of him and use the cross body tackle.



Nor can he easily make the tackle if approaching from directly in front. The approach must be from an angle in front of the runner.

The tackler's body—or just his arms—should be placed in front of the ball carrier right up to the moment of contact. Never should the tackler leave his feet until he is within one stride of the runner.

If the tackler dives too soon it is a comparatively easy matter for the ball carrier to side step or cross over, bringing his man down, the tackler using the cross body tackle in the first of the two to strike the ground as he allows his grip to slide down the legs of the runner.



Contacting the ground, the tackler rolls as he hits, turning the runner in his firm grip, bringing him down and—as he continues the roll—finally landing on top of the runner.

The One That Was Needed

What Mel Ott did in that tenth inning of the final series game in Washington is baseball history. Here is the Giants' slugging outfielder crossing the plate with his homerun.

"HIT!"—Joe Moore, Giant batter, the catcher and the umpire all follow flight of ball as Moore steps one to outfield

Current Sport

They are all agog and rarin' to go over in Picton. Yesterday we heard that a special freight train was dispatched over the C.N.R. to Picton, an enthused are the Prince Edward County residents over their ball team that they sponsored to have relaxed the rubber band from their back rein and started an era of spending. It is no long since a special freight train has been dispatched to Picton, that the railway authorities were compelled and refused to give out information of the nature of the freight hauled.

But getting down to the knee-meddle finals, we have been informed, that Manager Ymorey is preparing for the largest baseball crowd ever to grace the Picton ball yard. Incidentally we understand that "Fee-Wee" McQuaid, Picton's stellar left hander, was quite broken up over Monday's game. "Why" he robbed Goldsmith of a no hit no run game," was McQuaid's answer when questioned as to his down-heartedness. McQuaid collected the only Picton hit on Monday. Manager Ymorey claims that his charges were robbed by the Senthampton umpire as both Stevens and Phillips beat out bunts. The plays were scored as errors.

If both Goldsmith and Phillips are "in the pink" for Friday's game a real tussle should follow as they are both good pitchers. A repetition of Monday's game should be witnessed.

Incidentally we understand that a special meeting of citizens and all interested in the games welfare of baseball in Belleville will be called something next week. Many startling facts regards the uplifting of baseball in this community will be revealed, while any new suggestions will be welcomed by all concerned. The meeting is to be of wide open nature and all are invited to attend. The executive of senior and intermediate baseball and their possibilities in Belleville are to be the main questions to be discussed at the gathering. Just what the main issue really is we cannot definitely say as yet but it is relating to the expansion of senior baseball in Eastern Ontario including Belleville. On the other hand the public may not desire a "new deal" in local ball circles, so all had better make it a point to be present. As soon as the date has been assigned we will pass the information on to the fans.

Recently we heard that Ken Davis, of the Campbellford Cousins, had received a professional hockey contract frot the New Haven Eagles. Ken has held the contents of the contract, however, and probably will never be consigned. It seems the contract called for about the same money as he now receives for his endeavors on Campbellford ice. "I'll take a chance on working 12 months and playing amateur hockey," stated Mr. Davis when interviewed.

All of which reminds us, that Walter Patterson's local Cities Service champions are marking time awaiting the starter's gun in the Kingston City League. Both they Gananoque and Kingston will be heavily loaded for this year's grind while "Pinch" Patterson is adding pat with bat one, or perhaps two, small chunks along the lines of alternates. When attending the annual meeting of the league last week the Kingston officials handed out some very caustic remarks regarding the local team. They admitted that the acquisition of the Cities Service team last year was the best stroke of business ever completed by them. "Your club added more color to our organization than we ever experienced before" they stated.

On Saturday the B.C.I. senior squad journey to Peterboro where they tangle with "Pete" Corbett's Littlook team. Coach Shiels expects a couple of new additions to his squad before leaving for the north. The lid-rotor are still smarting under last Saturday's trimming and assured their leader that this week's game would be a far different story to tell.

Did you know that—In 1876 the Chicago Cubs won the pennant with a percentage of .788. Chicinnati, the last-place, finished with .138 a difference of 650 points.

Of the 37 games Christy Mathewson won in 1908, in 23 of them he didn't permit an average of more than two runs. In 11 games no runs were scored.

THE NEXT HALF CENTURY'S CHANGE

A Belleville boy eight years of age is the proud possessor of a document. He is Master Mackenzie King Davis, living at 150 Church Street with his parents who named him for the former Premier of Canada.

The brave little lad handed to Mayor Tice to read a letter yesterday containing a greeting card and letter from the Right Honorable Mackenzie King, who said "You are eight and I am fifty-eight. That is quite a difference, but half a century. What the next half century will bring none of us know; but I do know that everyone can help just a little to make things better than they are.

"I can think of nothing which would please me more than that any name sake of mine should take a leading part in the affairs of his country for his country's good. I much hope that such will be the case with you in the course of the next fifty years."

The letter was addressed to "My Dear Mackenzie". Needless to say, Mackenzie treasures the card and letter.

WOMEN TALLER THAN IN THE YEAR 1893

Average Has Been Increased, by Good Diet.

Chicago, Oct. 12 (AP) — The average women of today is three inches taller than the average back in 1893, dietitians meeting in conjunction with the American College of Surgeons, were told by Dr. Charles P. Read of Elgin, Ill.

Speaking yesterday, Dr. Read, who is superintendent of the Elgin State Hospital, said he attributed the growth in women to a better knowledge of balanced diets and a subsequent lessening of nervous ailments. Balanced diets, he said, act to prevent nervous disorders.

Piles Go Quick

Without Salves or Cutting

Thousands of sufferers from itching, bleeding or protruding piles have learned that quick and permanent relief can be had without pilaheal with an internal medicine. Neither salves nor cutting remove the cause.

Bad circulation of the blood in the lower bowel causes piles. The veins are flabby, the bowel walls weak—the parts almost dead. Pyramid Pile an internal medicine must be used to stimulate the circulation, heal and restore the affected parts.

Dr. J. S. Leonhardt was the first to discover a real internal Pile remedy. He got the prescription HEM-ROID, and prescribed it for 1000 patients with the marvelous record of success in 960 cases, and then decided every Pile sufferer should be able to get HEM-ROID tablets from their own druggist with a rigid money back guarantee.

Dr. Leonhardt's HEM-ROID has an almost unbelievable record of success right in this city. So why waste time on external treatments or worry about an operation when J. H. McKeown invites every Pile sufferer to try HEM-ROID with guarantee of money-back if it does not end their Piles, no matter how stubborn the case?

NEGROES ASK PROTECTION

Havana, Oct. 12 (AP)—Havana negroes beseiged the presidential arm of the government today in fear of what leaders described as "a brutal and unjustified crusade" against them. On the claim that whites had been molested, a delegation of negroes told President Ramon Gran San Martin, agitators were urging an open assault before nightfall.

Previously, the frightened negroes had appealed to Colonel Fulgencio Batista, commander of the enlisted men's army, saying growing groups of white menaced their safety. But assured leaders of factions which the negroes charged had conducted an "insidious and unpatriotic campaign" against them, denied they intended to resort to violence.

GOLF FACTS NOT THEORIES

By ALEX J. MORRISON

ALEX MORRISON SAYS:

The outcome of every short shot depends on body action just as much as it does on any other part of the swing. And the trick of getting just the right amount of body action in these short swings has been mastered by very few players.

Some use too much hip and shoulder movement.

Others in trying to cut down the body action succeed only in tightening up the body muscles so that they work against the action of the arms and hands.

The best way to arrive at something like the right body action is by keeping both heels on the ground throughout the swing and just letting the feet roll over toward the inside.

Current Attractions at Local Theatres

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE BELLE,

Give us new personalities! Give us players with talents, looks, enthusiasm—that contagious something which fires the human imagination!

That has been the cry of the public since the early days of the screen. It has been particularly loud and insistent since the talking pictures came to bring greater variety and more intense drama to cinema fare. And the producers have been eager to listen to the demand.

Katharine Hepburn is indisputably an ideal answer to that cry.

Coming to the screen as just another young stage star, so far as the picture public was concerned, she struck the bullseye of popular favor with the force of a bombshell in her first film, "A Bill of Divorcement," with John Barrymore.

Screen audiences overnight became Hepburn conscious. She was the talk of the fans, the toast of the critics, the marvel of the press. One picture had made her a star and a big one.

With Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., co-starred, the screen's most interesting personality is now appearing in her greatest film, "Morning Glory," a drama of a girl's triumphant struggle to do or die fame.

Seldom, if ever, in the annals of the screen has a newcomer made such an instantaneous and impressive sweep to stardom, veterans of the film colony concede.

The answer, they declare, is that she reveals just those qualities for which production heads have been seeking in their search for new personalities.

While Miss Hepburn's screen career has been nothing less than a stampede, her success has not been achieved without a foundation or training, and the usual spots of disappointment and reverses.

In fighting her way to recognition on the screen, she met many obstacles, and success seemed to persist in remaining just around the corner. Perseverance and talent had their reward when she was given the leading role in the stage version of "Warrior's Husband," and responded with a performance that opened the eyes of New York's stagedom and which brought the attention of Hollywood.

That struggle, it is said, resembles in general detail the one experienced by the girl Miss Hepburn portrays in "Morning Glory," from a play by Zoe Akins.

Lowell Sherman directed the new film, and in the cast supporting Miss Hepburn and Mr. Fairbanks, Jr., are such favorites as Adolphe Menjou, Mary Duncan, Frederic Santley, C. Aubrey Smith, Donald Carle, Tyler Brooke and Don Alvarado.

VILLAGE NEEDS WELL, TELLS WASHINGTON

St. Paul, Oct. 12 (CP)—Uncle Sam's cares and his citizens are many and varied. But the village of Kasson, Minn., is believed to be the only one to ask him to dig in a well.

In need of a new water supply and with insufficient funds to finance it, the village has asked the public works advisory board to approve a application for $100 so that a well, costing $1,100 can be dug. The village has nearly $1,000 for the project.

Mother Found Guilty At Peterborough Under Revenue Act

Three Children Under 4 Years and Four Others

Peterboro, Ont., Oct. 13 (CP) — Baby Bill, three-months-old baby yesterday carried off an award at Norwood Fall Fair baby show, today went to jail with his mother, Mrs. Russell Hall, sentenced to three months' imprisonment for possession of mash suitable for the manufacture of illicit spirits.

Mrs. Hall was found guilty by Magistrate Langley when he discredited her story that mash found in a barrel at her home was chicken feed. She was fined $200 with an option of three months in jail. Her counsel pleaded for leniency on the grounds that she had three small children at home, all under four years old.

She had seven other children all older than four, the magistrate was told.

When sentence was passed Mrs. Hill was heard to say: "Well, then, it will be three months, for they will get the money from me."

"It means she will have to take the baby to jail," the counsel told the bench.

An Old Story.

"I knew that would be the story," answered the magistrate, "that I have been dealing with this woman in similar cases for years. Whenever I took to the law and under the law I have found her guilty."

"There are three other children all under four years of age," counsel continued. "You all require a mother's care." But Magistrate Langley was adamant.

Counsel said he would not appeal the conviction but would apply to the Attorney General urging a shortening of the sentence on compassionate grounds.

Mrs. Hill was convicted on the same charge on which her husband was acquitted several weeks ago. At that time she ignited she owned the property where they live and her husband took the magistrate about the contents of the barrel.

Comparing electric costs in Ontario and the United States, he said, the average cost per kilowatt hour in the States was 5.07 whereas it is only 1.27 cents in Ontario.

The chairman asserted the bonded indebtedness of Ontario, approximately $570,000,000 did not present a true picture of conditions since more than half of that indebtedness represented money advanced by the province to the commission and guaranteed by the municipalities.

Increased consumption of power in Ontario formed one of the features of returning industrial activity, he said.

Additional tribute was paid the utilities by Senator Meighen while Mr. Maguire, commissioner member, claimed on the basis of the rates charged here Hydro had entered Brockville, the local consumers had saved a sum of $1,570,000 since 1919.

EFFORT BEARS NO RESULTS

Stratford Furniture Factories Now Closed Indefinitely

Stratford, Ont., Oct. 13 (CP)—A short-lived effort to re-open Stratford furniture factories, closed a month ago when eight hundred workers filed out in protest for higher wages, by opening the doors of the plants and inviting the workers to return, had borne no results today.

Early this morning a number of the strikers and pickets rallied around the strike-bound plants, policed stood guard, and groups of citizens, anticipating recurrence of yesterday's disorders gathered on the scene, but there were no disturbances.

Strikers who yesterday met strike-breakers, foremen and office workers with a barrage of tomatoes and plums as they entered the factories, stood quietly by. There were, however, the odd beaters of tiny tom-toms visible among the crowd of protesting company employees.

Factory whistles which yesterday morning had called workers back to their shops were silent at the opening hour today and it is expected the plants will now remain closed indefinitely.

Two manufacturers last night expressed determination to open their factories on the basis of those returning to work was offered the strikers this morning.

There is still a quantity of unfinished goods which it is expected will be moved out from the plants in some way within the next two days.

Friday the Thirteenth Its Record in History

New York, Oct. 13—(CP)—Today has many persons in what the Ides of March were to Caesar. In other words, it is Friday the 13th.

But it is not likely even the most superstitious will fall a victim to a conspiracy of Romans or of circumstances. History is all against us. Major tragedies have always no particular preference for Friday the 13th, so called double-header of ill luck.

Not that there have not been tragedies. For instance, on Friday, July 13, 1883, Isaac J. Duckworth, an architect, walked up to the bar at Millspaugh's Broadway hotel and said, with a sweeping gesture:

"Come on, boys, we'll have an other drink before we go home."

The "boys" responded with hurrahs, but before they could accept the invitation Duckworth had dropped dead.

Then there was George C. Davis, door-to-door coal oil dare. He came to grief on Friday, March 13, 1903. His specialty was scooting down a steep runway at the St. Nicholas Rink on roller-skates, and blindfolded. Something—maybe the calendar—did its dirty work and Davis landed up in a hospital. He recovered.

The worst luck of Friday, June 13, era. It was called technocracy.

ATTITUDE ON GERMAN ARMS REAL CRISIS

Suggestion That Mussolini May Be Asked to Play Hand

THREAT BY GERMANY

Attitude of Italy Not Yet Certain Members of Conference

Geneva, Oct. 13 — A German spokesman today said that that attempt to haul up Germany and ask her to take an outlined line on a disarmament decision imposed by Hitler will be followed by the withdrawal of the German delegation to conference and perhaps from the League of Nations.

The spokesman voiced the belief that Germany would remain in the conference if allowed to negotiate in peace. He pointed out that the nation refuses to be treated as a participant absent of all initiative.

Admitting that the crisis of the situation, he said he rebelled against allegations that Germany is seeking to rearm when all she wants is a defensive armament in order to begin the suitable equipment of a Reichswehr (army).

Net Seeking to Assure

Geneva, Switzerland, Oct. 13(AP) — The Italian delegation today officially suggested Premier Mussolini be asked to play the leading arms problems as Dr. Rudolf Nadolny, the chief German delegate, left for Berlin, apparently resentful of a move to introduce formal resolution which it was feared had the Reich from any defensive armaments.

Dr. Nadolny will confer in Berlin circles here said they expected Premier Hitler Hindenburg and demanded-in-chief of the Reichswehr (army) to assure Germany's right to share with the Chancellor the responsibility of deciding Germany's arms policy.

As the result of the stand of Dr. Nadolny, Great Britain, France and the United States quickly decided to change their tactics and allow Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, to make a report on the situation when the full conference resumes next Monday.

Critical Attitude.

The chief German delegate was reported to have told Geneva newspaper men that the other powers were trying to keep Germany out of the Reich. He also was said to have mentioned the uselessness of combating the conference.

It was understood Norman H. Davis, American delegate, although his large was sticking to his policy not to commit the United States further. The Americans, however, still took a critical view of the British and the French on the principle there can be no permanent disarmament in the first period of the establishments of the Treaty of Versailles.

It was said Germany's withdrawal for reasons of prestige, would like to see the disarmament conference transferred to Rome, but it was said the Italian premier upon this move if progress really can be made here.

The Mussolini doctrine was described as not conversations under Il Duce's direction, but negotiations in fact, but negotiations within the frame of the Treaty with Mr. Davis participating.

German Rearmament

Baron Aloisi Pompeo, Il Duce's disarmament delegate, still was absent from Geneva today as were the other delegations with doubt as to the Italian delegation's intentions back the three-power stand that there shall be no rearmament of Germany.

It was announced Sir John will report on the situation at tomorrow's meeting of the steering committee of the three supposedly included in the resolution. The British will be given a free hand to discuss the Americans, who have been given a free hand to discuss.

Dr. Nadolny told the other leaders in the discussions that a substitute would take his place on the steering committee meeting.

Generation of Mentally Balanced Citizens Best Cure for Criminality

Washington, Oct. 13 (CP) — The gangster, kidnapper and extortionist were termed a challenge to organized government by Representative Royal Copeland (D.-N.Y.), chairman of the United States Senate Committee investigating racketeering.

In an address before the National Anti-Crime Conference under the auspices of the United States Flag Association, Copeland asserted the best cure chosen between bowing the knee to the racketeering criminal and finding some effective means of dealing with the rule of the under-world.

The American people must rise in its might and shake off the shackles of its fears, or else the increasing boldness and grasp of power will make the criminal supreme in his authority."

The real remedy in fighting crime, Copeland said, "goes to the very foundation of society."

"We must endeavor to raise a generation of mentally balanced citizens, trained from their youth in law observance and love of country, we will be facing the same problem".

Definite Beer and Wine Policy is Promised by Henry at Next Election

Liquor Control Act of 1926 "More or Less An Experiment"

NOTHING SETTLED

New Policy "Not Necessarily" to Include Sale By Glass

Toronto, Oct. 13 (CP)—Definite declaration the Ontario government will go to the country with a new beer and wine sale policy at the next election was made in an interview here today by Premier Geo. S. Henry. He did not indicate what form the policy would take.

"I do not see how we can go to the country without having something of a definite policy," said the Premier. "But we will have a definite statement and policy before an election."

The remarks by Mr. Henry were made when he asked to comment on the reference to a speech last night to the government's beer and wine program by Hon. Harry C. Schofield, minister without portfolio.

Mr. Schofield said: "I can tell you on behalf of the government that when the Conservative party goes to the country in the forthcoming election the government will give the people a beer and wine policy that will satisfy all."

L.C.A. Experiment.

Mr. Henry said the 1926 Liquor Control Act, passed during the administration of Premier G. Howard Ferguson, was "more or less an experiment." The Act is in force until until the people of the province indicated they wanted it changed and showed how they wanted it changed.

"What will be the change and how will the new beer sale be administered?" the Premier was asked.

"There is no policy settled now," he replied. "We cannot satisfy all because there are many who do not agree on certain policies. There are many views," he said. "There is no decision on how the change will be made, but we will have a definite statement and policy before an election."

Asked if the new policy would include sale of beer by the glass, Premier Henry replied: "Not necessarily."

Toronto, Oct. 13—(CP)—A beer and wine policy that will satisfy all will be incorporated in the Conservative platform for the election in forthcoming Ontario election. This was the declaration of Hon. H. C. Schofield, minister without portfolio, in the Provincial Cabinet, here today in his attitude on the question of beer and wine in Ontario during the course of an address at a Conservative rally held last night.

Mr. Schofield had only started to speak when the question was put. "I think I had better answer that question definitely now," he replied. "We will," he said. Ferguson (Hon. G. Howard Ferguson) when in power, he promised to give the people a liquor act that would satisfy them. Again in 1929 he told them that they would have to wait to give them a suitable liquor policy. I can tell you on behalf of the government that when the Conservative party goes to the country in the forthcoming provincial election the government will give the people a beer and wine policy that will satisfy all."

Two weeks ago at Highgate, Mitchell F. Hepburn, M.P., announced the Liberal party would go to the public in the near future a policy on the beer and wine issue which would be acceptable to everyone.
